Potluck Set To Honor Jon Enochs

Jon M. Enochs, new band director at Canal Winchester High School, and his family will be guests of honor at a potluck dinner set by the Canal Winchester Music Boosters Tuesday, Aug. 20, at 6:30 p.m.

The multipurpose room has been tentatively selected as the site, and any change of plans will be announced.

Other Booster activities coming up include a bake sale at 4 p.m. Friday, Aug. 16, at the Huntington National Bank and a like event at the Canal Winchester Bank at 9 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 17.

Parents of all band and choir members are asked to donate baked goods, noodles and other homemade items for either of the sales.

One of the smaller mobile homes that will eventually occupy Elks Acres on Alum Creek Drive was trucked in last week in two sections. The sections, much too wide for assembly until they have reached their destination, are permanently placed on foundations — some even over basements. With width ranging from 20 to 24 feet and lengths up to 60 feet, the homes provide more floor space than many conventionally built homes. Offered completely furnished, the factory-built mobiles differ completely from the concept of the usual "trailer" as they are sold with lot.

Obetz Proves 'On The Move'

In April, a Spectator headline asked "Is Obetz At Last 'On The Move'?"

This week Joe Gallione, village building inspector, indicated that it is indeed — but a little too fast to suit him— or local statute.

According to Gallione, who professes a marked aversion to anyone's "trying to make a fool" out of him, he planned to issue a couple of stop orders early Tuesday morning.

Gallione was already perturbed about the pictured mobile home going into place Monday at Elks Acres, the Alum Creek subdivision platted for about 600 lots, most designed for the oversized factory-constructed units resembling conventional house trailers.

The building inspector stated he interprets the law to prohibit the homes from going into place until the streets are completed.

It was his intention to settle this matter with either the developer, Cliff Elkins, or his attorney, James J. Maxwell, Jr., before the matter goes a step further.

However, when he learned late Monday evening that the footers and three courses of concrete block were laid for a building on the acreage adjacent to the point at which the outerbelt crosses Groveport Pike, he appeared really ready to "blow his stack."

A hasty call to Mayor Ron Perry confirmed his suspicions that the construction had been undertaken without official knowledge in general, and without a building permit.

The property, owned by a partnership listed at the Franklin County Courthouse as Ball, Curtis, Galloway and Kuhn, for whom G. R. Galloway, 234 S. Harding Rd., has been the spokesman, involves 197 acres purchased last November from Herbert Travis.

Rumored to be the site of a proposed warehouse (the most frequently named occupant is J. C. Penney's) the acreage currently boasts not only the outline for a building estimated at somewhere near 100 yards square, but field equipment bearing the name of Amalgamated Construction Co. of Columbus.

AT PRESS time, Gallione and Perry were still attempting to learn by whose authority Obetz is "on the move."

Madison Asks Public For Millage Advice

Invitations that are figuratively gilt-edged have gone out to 300 citizens of the Madison Local School District to attend a meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Junior High School Cafeteria.

These 300 who served on the Citizens Committee that worked toward the last bond issue and all those in the community interested in the schools will be asked for opinions and advice concerning the financial needs of the District.

FACING ANOTHER increase of 500 students this fall and rising operating costs, the Board and administration realize increased revenue is a must.

It is further recognized that this additional millage must be asked at the November elections.

However, the uncertainty lies within the matter of "How much?"

PHILLIP K. WILLIAMS, Madison superintendent, has pointed out that the cost of meeting the salary improvements asked by the Madison Local Education Association for its membership (faculty) and for non-certificated personnel involve 2.7 mills.

He also has reported it will take another 2.2 mills to make up for the money used for operating expenses this year that was drawn from the Jan. 1, 1968 balance that is now approaching depletion.

Although it is believed a millage of 4.9 mills alone will still leave the District in dire straits, Ralph Hudson, Williams' administrative assistant, stated this week that the board is reluctant to make a decision without consulting those who must pick up the tab — the taxpayers.

AT A SPECIAL meeting scheduled Monday, the Board is anticipated to evaluate the opinions expressed at tonight's session and pave the way for legislation at the regular meeting Aug. 12 to place the issue on the ballot.

Hudson added that the Board will receive a report of a meeting set with the State Department of Education on the District's request for state assistance on a proposed $5.7 million construction program.

According to Hudson, the state will not take official action until September or October.

On-The-Money Census Essential In Hamilton

Nose counting is of prime importance this year, in Hamilton Township, according to John Savel, local school superintendent.

Savel made this statement in asking that the public be reminded that summer registration will be held for all new students next week from 9 until noon and from 1 until 3 p.m. daily.

HE EXPLAINED that closing of the kindergarten facilities at North makes the present classroom space "tight" and that only an accurate registration can enable the administration to make last minute adjustments if enrollment differs to any degree with the predictions already made.

He emphasized that the problem of crystal ball gazing is more difficult in Hamilton than in most districts as the number of dependents expected from Lockbourne AFB is a fluid figure.

Registration for kindergarten children will be held at the Kindergarten Center next to Central Elementary on Rathmell Road and for all other students at the school which they will attend (Obetz, Central and South Elementaries and the Junior and Senior High Schools).

CHILDREN MUST be five or six on or before Sept. 30 to enter kindergarten and first grade respectively. Proof of birth date and immunization records should be produced at the time of registration.

Savel stated that summer building improvement in readiness for re-opening of the schools is on schedule, with the painting and repair of eight Obetz classrooms already completed.

This work was accomplished at relatively small taxpayer expense through use of custodial labor.

Photographer Wins Trophy

A photo taken July 8 at an East Side cave-in where a construction worker lost his life earned Robert Carter of Groveport a first place trophy at the International Fire Photographers Fifth Annual Photo contest in Chicago.

The photo competed in the Class "Best Fire Department Photo of Activity Other Than a Fire," one of the five classifications the local photographer entered.

Carter, who has been with the Columbus Fire Dapartment for 16 years and has served as photographer for the past five, lives at 5276 Stoltz Ave.

Sgt. McQuaid In Thailand

S/Sgt. Howard C. McQuaid, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. McQuaid of 220 West St., Groveport, is on duty at Takhli Royal AFB, Thailand.

Sgt. McQuaid, a vehicle maintenance technician, is a member of the Pacific Air Forces.

Jesse Short Enrolls At Bliss

Jesse Short, a June graduate of Hamilton Township High School, has enrolled in the Bachelor of Commerce degree course at Bliss College and will begin his studies there in September.

He is the son of Mrs. Laura Short and the late Jesse Short of Obetz.

With apparent endless patience, Mrs. Walter Coffenberry tutors two of her smaller charges in the mysteries of using a needle and thread. "In and out and pull," she repeats as Donna Renee or "Punkie" Ramar and Marta Doll, right, give their undivided attention.

Hilda Coffenberry From Flanders Enriches Life Of Local Children

It is made up of the dozens of tots who spend their afternoons at the local Lutheran Church and a remarkable woman named Hilda Coffenberry who, as a Hamilton Township recreation supervisor, teaches them arts and crafts, how to get along with each other and — most important of all — the joy of living.

To her, the very idea was ridiculous.

"Children don't give headaches," she scoffed in her Flemish accent (which several of her more devoted charges unconsciously initiate). "Only adults do that."

MRS. COFFENBERRY has traveled a long and sometimes difficult road since she grew up in Belgium as the tomboy daughter of a country doctor.

Although she was apparently a happy child — even during the World War II years when she learned hunger and cold and hardship — she believes she would never have been content in her native land.

"I always wanted to see beyond the horizon," she explained.

AS A YOUNG school teacher in Antwerp she met an American soldier, now M/Sgt. Walter Coffenberry, who is in supply at Lockbourne AFB.

After their marriage in 1946, they came to the United States where she soon learned U.S. geography the practical way as they traveled coast to coast to his various stations.

Slipping into American life as easily as into an old shoe, Hilda soon took out her citizenship papers and further proved her adjustment to new world ways by serving 15 years as a room mother.

BUT SHE RECALLS one European trait she did not easily drop which used to worry her husband—that of talking with her hands. (Even as a master of half a dozen languages, she still finds herself at a loss occasionally for a specific English term.)

"Hilda," he would say, "you buy all your dresses and slacks with pockets; put your hands in those pockets and keep them there."

Perhaps a little sadly, Mrs. Coffenberry related that during the five years her husband was stationed at Hahn AFB from 1960 to 1965 she learned that she doesn't "belong in Europe any more."

SHE EXPLAINED that her make-up, American-learned lack of reserve and even their red Chevrolet station wagon set her apart from her former friends and neighbors who have never quite recovered from the deprivation of World War II. (She recalls herself the five years without coffee or soap, the trips to the fish market when one carried one's own wrapping paper and the necessity to bring an "empty" to secure a tube of toothpaste.).

A resident of Obetz, Mrs. Coffenberry regards her community services (she is president-elect of the PTO and Den Mother of Cub Pack 31) as a substitute for the charities she cannot afford.

With a twinkle, she asked, "Don't you think some of these activities might help me go to heaven?"

ACTUALLY SHE DIDN'T seem nearly as concerned with whether she was heavenbound as with the good she could do on this earth.

In fact there is more than than one public official in her adopted community who has learned it is not politic to stand in the way of this Flemish girl when she wants something — from no-parking signs to surface drainage at the school.

South Central Installing New Data Equipment

The South Central Power Company has announced it is installing additional electronic data processing equipment at its Canal Winchester office in October.

According to Earl Watkins, EDP chief for South Central, the locally-owned power company initially installed such equipment four years ago.

Present maximum use of the equipment, company officials state, has made the new computer a necessity.

You Can Help Bring Manufacturer Here

The labor study now being compiled by Joseph & Feiss Co. to measure the Columbus labor pool will determine whether the men's clothing manufacturer will expand into Franklin County.

And according to those "in the know" a map of the respondents to the survey will be the determining factor in pinpointing a particular area of the city in which Joseph & Feiss, a division of Phillip Van Heusen Corp., is interested.

The nationally-known manufacturer is predicting an expansion which will entail a payroll of 500 persons, 90 percent of whom will be women.

Cognizant of the fact that no such manufacturing facility is presently located in the area, the company has already announced it will conduct a local training program.

The rather unusual approach to the selection of plant location provides local residents who are committed to the advancement of their community with the opportunity to influence the decision leading to that selection.

Persons who are interested in a modern facility which will bring not only employment opportunities but tax dollars to the Southeast are urged to bring the coupon appearing in the classified section of this issue of The Spectator to the attention of potential employes.

IT WAS AN OCCUPATIONAL HAZARD

As members of the Groveport Teen Center search for ways to raise money to remodel and refurbish the old township hall, one of their more profitable inspirations was the car wash held at the local Texaco station last weekend. However Rhonda Hendrix learned that sometimes even a volunteer service worker of the Presbyterian Church cannot be trusted completely as Dan Kim, the student engineer from Korea who contributes his time to the Center two days a week, misses the car hood, but has a hosing good time. At the right, hard at work putting a high shine on their customer's car, are Alice Arlin, 5456 Groveport Rd., and (partially hidden from the camera) Patty Gallicchio, 889 Wirt Rd.

HOUSING DISCRIMINATION: PART II

A Negro Home Buyer Asks: Is It Worth It?

Editor's Note: This is the second of a series dealing with housing discrimination in the Columbus area. Last week some new optimism by the banks and realtors toward the racially discriminated was discussed. In continuation of this issue, a case in point of a Negro buyer, a white seller, and a white realtor will follow.

By NANCY STEPHENS
Spectator Staff Writer

Jean and Dorsey Woodward are quiet people. They are quiet people who know what they want out of life and will use the law to get it.

The Woodward's are Negroes. They want a suburban home, a few trees, a nice lawn, some flowers and a good school in which to raise their four young daughters.

At this moment a case is pending with the Ohio Civil Rights Commission concerning the Woodward's, a home in Dublin, and discrimination.

Mrs. Woodward says she often wonders if it's worth it all . . . if it's worth the fight to enjoy the rights guaranteed by the Constitution to all American citizens.

The first of February, the Woodward's began looking for a home. The search started in Worthington and Westerville. They were looking for a four-bedroom home in the $20,000 bracket. Mrs. Woodward says she soon learned that such a home at that price was very difficult to find. So, their offer was raised to the $25,000 bracket.

The Woodward's traveled the streets looking for an appropriate house and then would call the realtor to set an appointment to see the interior. Each time she would call, she immediately told the realtor that her family was a Negro family. After receiving what seemed to her as far too many negative answers about a house in that price range, Mrs. Woodward said she decided to simply call and not explain the fact of her race.

At this point, the Woodward's saw an ad in the local papers for a four-bedroom home in Dublin. The price was $19,000.

According to the petition pending with the Civil Rights Commission, and the formal complaint filed by Mrs. Woodward, this is what took place: an appointment was made by the Woodward's with Mrs. Annetta Pinney, agent for the Abe Kilbury Realty Co, to see the home on February 27. This was a Tuesday. Mrs. Woodward says the home was exactly what she had hoped for. A $50 deposit was made and a formal purchase offer in the exact terms of what the owner, Marvin Steele, had specified, was processed. This transaction took place also on Tuesday.

Mrs. Woodward asserts that the real estate agent made no offer of financing al' to them at that time although a clause was provided in the purchasing offer subjecting buyers to a suitable bank finance. This clause was placed in the offer at the request of Kilbury Realtors.

A three-day waiting period was necessary during which the buyer was committed to buying the house, but where the owner had the option of accepting or rejecting the offer.

On Thursday, Feb. 29, the Woodward's received a phone call from the agent, Mrs. Pinney. Mrs. Woodward testified at the hearing that they were told by the agent the owner would not sell the house to Negroes because he did not want to be the first in the neighborhood to sell on an open housing basis.

It was on this day the first complaint was filed.

The first hearing was to be April 26. Thirteen days prior to this, an area woman, Elizabeth Leppert, bought the home for $19,000.

Before Miss Leppert purchased the home, Stanley Robinson, the Woodward's attorney, asked the Civil Rights Commission to issue a restraining order. But the Commission does not have the power to do so. Attorney Robinson then went to the Common Pleas court to ask for a writ of mandamus ordering the Commission to issue the restraining order. That case is also pending, and Miss Leppert was given legal notice of it.

The attorney then brought another action in the Appeals Court to temporarily restrain Miss Leppert from selling the house to someone else.

• • •

The original complaint was amended to include Miss Leppert in the second hearing of the case. According to Frank Gibbs, a staff member of the Civil Rights Commission, a notice must be given 20 days prior to the hearing, so the second hearing was delayed until June 12. During this time, Miss Leppert reportedly made two offers to the Woodward's to sell the home to them, one at a price of $27,500, and the second at $23,000. Miss Leppert reportedly has had repairs made on the home.

Gibbs says that the big question now is, why would anyone buy a house with the knowledge that she might have to give it up to the original offerer?

As to the main problem suffered by the Civil Rights Commission, Gibbs put it this way, "We have no power to keep a landowner from disposing of his property and thus avoiding anything we do."

After this incident, Mrs. Woodward began to quote the negative replies realtors gave her in her search for a home. The list seems endless.

School will begin soon and the Woodward's would like to settle in a new, larger home before that time. In talking to Mrs. Woodward, she says she sometimes is inclined to think that the "third party" system of house buying for Negroes may be the only answer, as some of her friends have suggested. This point will be discussed in the third of this series.

As for the Woodward's, they are still searching for a home to move into this summer. But all hope is not lost as they have just placed another deposit on a home on Lane Road, with W. T. Krumm Realtors. What happens here only the future can tell.

SHE'S SOMETHING RATHER SPECIAL

Beauty and brains were enrolled at Miami University recently when Miss Sheila Poenisch, accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Poenisch, 3034 Courtright Rd., attended freshmen orientation at the Oxford school. Miss Poenisch has elected to use the $4,000 scholarship she won as first runner-up for Miss Teenage America at Miami to pursue a career in radio or television. The Groveport-Madison alumna was co-valedictorian of her class this spring with a perfect four point average.

Official Honored

At the last meeting of the Madison County Board of Education, President Harold Wilcox, on behalf of the board, presented a chair to Superintendent Rolla D. Webster as a token of their appreciation for 17 years of service to the schools of Madison County.

Corpus Christi Parishioner Wed In Ecumenical Service

Lance Tigler III, 780 Thurman Ave., and Miss Jane Mock of Wayne, N.J., were recently wed in the Packanack Community Church of Wayne.

The Rev. Alan M. Sprenger of Corpus Christi Church, the groom's pastor, points to the ceremony as a step forward in the ecumenical movement, and one recognizing the American custom of a marriage being performed in the church of the bride.

The wedding, conducted with the formal approval of the Roman Catholic Church, was witnessed by Fr. Bernard Prusack, vice-chancellor, and the bride's pastor, Dr. Jack Irwin.

According to Rev. Sprenger, the custom of allowing a non-Catholic bride to be married in her own church rather than that of her Catholic spouse is in line with the practice in the Columbus Diocese of Columbus of the Catholic pastor inviting the Protestant pastor to join him when persons of mixed faith exchange vows.

The newly-weds will live in Defiance, Ohio, where the groom will teach and coach at Defiance College and the bride will enroll as a senior.

Groveport Boys Attend FFA Camp

The camp activity included conservation education, forestry, firearms safety and a well-rounded recreation program and was highlighted by a 50-mile air tour of the area.

Attending the camp on scholarships were Ron Kallies who received his through winning the District Farm Mechanics contest; John Wagner, elected by the chapter as recipient of the Weller Camp Scholarship and Howard Crumley who was awarded the Franklin Ford Tractor Sales Scholarship.

Zeller Serving With Air Police

Methodist Bible School Next Week

Groveport Methodist Church is holding Vacation Bible School 9 a.m. to 12 noon, Monday through Friday, Aug. 5 to Aug. 9 for children 3-12 years of age.

Included in the program are singing, formal classes, prayers, recreation, refreshments and crafts.

Ohio Farm Bureau Board Suggests Attack

A three-pronged attack has been suggested by the Board of Trustees of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation on the low prices being received by farmers, D. R. Stanfield, executive vice president, stated after the group met recently.

The program calls for an expanded land retirement program, including retirement of whole farms. Stepped-up efforts to bargain for price and conditions of sale through the Ohio Agricultural Marketing Association, an affiliate of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, and greater efforts to expand the export market through government and commercial channels.

THE GADABOUT

By Priscilla Lenox 444-1051

"Fantastic, fabulous and incredible" . . . these overworked adjectives best describe The Spectator's bowling columnist, Norma Kirkendall, today's "Outstanding Personality."

She attended Livingston Elementary, Roosevelt Junior High (where she headed her class) and East High School, where she made the National Honor Society.

At Ohio State University, she received a degree with distinction (3.56 average out of a possible 4.00) in Education in 1939, and made Pi Lambda Theta, national honorary.

Receives Doctorate

In 1957, she received a Doctorate in Theology, with archaeology as her major, from Chicago University. Because of this interest, she has made 18 trips to Mexico, and has a nice collection of artifacts as th[illegible]sult of her digging en[illegible]s.

[illegible] has travelled widely in 49 states and Canada, and has been to Europe four times. She has also visited Iceland and North Africa. These trips and tours are recorded on slides, and provide visual background for her travel lectures.

She's Also Talented

Our day's Outstanding Personality is talented musically, teaches piano, organ and voice. She recently won second place in sacred accompaniment in the Hammond organ competition at the HemisFair.

She is the church organist at the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints at Reinhard and 22nd St., where she is a teacher of an adult church school class and a women's church class. She is also the church publicity director. These activities have been an inspirational background for the church school teacher's textbook she authored.

She also is a free-lance writer of non-fiction and poetry, and composer of music. She has taught music and commercial subjects in high school.

Takes To The Air

Our Outstanding Personality, who is Forms and Literature Manager of the Women's International Bowling Congress, was kept busy during the recent 60-day national championship tournament in Texas, as she ran the press room during the day and made eight daily radio broadcasts. Her past radio and television experiences were invaluable indeed.

She is past national president of the International Mailbag Club Inc., and past president of the Central Ohio Industrial Editors Association.

And what does she do for hobbies? She enjoys entering contests and has won many prizes, with wins of every shape, size and value!

Grateful To Parents

Norma credits her parents for her action-packed life, for they taught her to enjoy life to the fullest, and this she has done, indeed. Her outlook can be best summed up in her own words . . . "Years ago I read where every experience adds to your necklace of memories, so guess what I'm trying to do is get the nicest necklace possible." Yep, our Norma is quite a gal!

To be wed on Saturday, Aug. 3, are Carol Shick, 1344 Byron Ave., and Charles Miceli, 1433 Oakwood Ave. in Christ the King Church; Carol Moser, Kidron, Ohio, and Richard Reiner, 1541 Studer Ave., in St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

The Spiritual Life Group, South United Methodist Church, will meet Tuesday, Aug. 6, 11 a.m., at the church.

The junior high age group of St. Paul's United Church of Christ will enjoy a session of Tent Camping, Aug. 2 through Aug. 4, at Pike Lake State Park.

Birthdays furnish a welcome diversion for youngsters who are beginning to tire of "nothing to do" . . . Priscilla Bailey, Diana Skiver, Melinda Fry, Tami Finta, Eddie Christian, Debbie Stagsetter, Douglas Thompson, Michael Pallos, Rick Clark, Beverly Wallace, Daniel Obert, Vicky Bivens, Mark Speakman, Donita Brumfield, Brenda Neal, Greg Maiberger, Trudy Tope and Beth Wiley.

Wedding anniversaries to be remembered are those of Jean and Fred Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Glenroy Antle, Judy and Greg Murphy, Agnes and Ed Dorn and Billie Rae and Joy Graumlich.

Friday, Aug. 16 and Saturday, Aug. 17 will be "lively" dates at St. Mary's, 685 Mohawk St., for they signal the annual Festival and Homecoming for the South Side landmark. At this time, the White Elephant chairman, Mrs. Michaels, would appreciate donations for her booth. The phone is 443-3625

Hodge-podge hop-scotch . . . Vacation Bible School sessions at Trinity Lutheran Church will be held from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays for the week of Monday, Aug. 5, through Friday, Aug. 16. Mrs. Floyd Peake is director of the project.

Jimmie Hill will direct the Columbus Federation of Musicians band in its concert at Schiller Park, Sunday, Aug. 4, at 8 p.m.

The monthly euchre party sponsored by members of the Harmony Glee Club will be at 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 3, at 435 E. Kossuth St.

Mary Circle, Trinity Lutheran Church, will meet at noon Wednesday, Aug. 7 at the church. Mrs. Alfred Henkelmann will give the Bible Study. Hostesses will be Mrs. Ludwig Hoffman, Mrs. Louis Wittman and Mrs. Kuni Strauss.

The monthly business meeting of the Schiller Park Golden Age Club will occur at 1 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 6. A birthday recognition will also be part of the agenda.

Bikes Asked

The donation of bicycles would be most appreciated by patients of Orient State Institute. Locally, Mrs. Roy Speakmon is able to answer queries for interested donors, as she works diligently for the school's PVA. Her phone is 444-0832.

The Youth Fellowship of the Washington Avenue United Methodist Church has planned a skating party for Tuesday, Aug. 6, 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. at Skateland. The Junior Fellowship will visit a train station, Thursday, Aug. 1, at 10:30 a.m., and visit Borden's Ice Cream Plant, Tuesday, Aug. 6 at 10 p.m., as they fill their summer with visits to local places of interest. The church's Administrative Board will meet at 6:45 p.m., Wednesday, Aug 7.

Sorry not to be able to include this serviceman's address for our "Serviceman's Birthday" today, but he is currently in the process of moving to another air base . . . Jon Leist is the young man and we hold him as a cherished younger friend. Cpl. Ted Coon, 2107880 USMC 5th CI Team, 111 MAF-FPO, San Francisco, Calif. 96602, will have a birthday Friday, Aug. 2.

James Roberts Marries Girl From Hampton, Va.

Mrs. James Roberts

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Grantham of Hampton, attended the University of Mississippi before her marriage.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Roberts of Obetz and recently completed four years of service in the U.S. Air Force before joining Janitrol of Columbus.

SBA Billboards Help Celebrate 15th Birthday

Columbus Outdoor Advertising Co. posted the first in a series of billboards which will remind residents and businessmen in the Central Ohio area of the SBA's role in aiding the small businessman.

SBA Regional Director Richard C. Sensenbrenner, in accepting the billboards, said SBA was "particularly grateful to Tom Kaplin and the Columbus Outdoor Advertising company and to the leading businessmen and women in the area for their generosity and civic spirit in helping SBA make people in Central Ohio more aware of the Agency and the services we have available."

Sensenbrenner also thanked Kline L. Roberts, president of the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce, for the Chamber's help in publicizing the SBA and Columbus Police Artist William M. Needles, who designed the billboards.

On hand to watch the posting of the first billboard were E. Hillier Walton, general manager of Columbus Outdoor Advertising; Rosemary Martin of the Chamber; Carl Brown, 1968 "Small Businessman of the Year" and T. J. Tobbe and Louis Mendani of the SBA Advisory Council.

A Newspaper's Soul

A newspaper has an obligation to be a beacon of light in any community, and when it fails to do this it might as well pack up its machines and reporters and advertisers and turn into a public relations firm.

A newspaper, like a human being, must have a soul. And a heart and conscience. And the desire to let truth shine.

A newspaper must care.

The Spectator Newspapers' staff members have come under some criticism this past week for revealing events some would prefer hidden.

Specifically we refer to our series on open housing, welfare, a column on violence and stories concerning a local school district.

This newspaper has been requested to "turn off the heat" generated in the direction of the Hamilton Local School District.

Our series on open housing, which has demonstrated that closed housing is a more apt term, has not always been received with open arms.

Our columnist who wrote on violence was told she was "ignorant about the Bible. There has been wars and always will be. And for all our lofty ideals we have to remember we're still animals."

And our reporter for the welfare series has found little time to do anything but answer phone calls, including one caller who said he "wouldn't be responsible for what happened to him if this series continues."

But let it be made clear now.

The Spectator Newspaper is a community paper serving all facets of the community — the good and the bad, the hopeful and discouraging.

We do not intend to hide our heads in the sand and leave problems to others. This "All-American City" does have problems.

If human beings, as our astute caller suggested, are still animals, then why not treat them as such? Lock the human animals in cages, block their desires — and then sit around and watch a new Nazi concentration camp develop.

But if we are truly human beings—with hearts, souls and bodies — then we had better act like creatures endowed with purpose. We must care.

To rephrase a timeless piece of wisdom. What does it profit a newspaper if it gains the whole world and loses its own soul?

Wonderful World?

Ohio was the nation's number one industrial growth state in 1966, according to the latest U.S. Commerce Department figures.

In addition, the State Bureau of Employment Services has reported 500,000 jobs have been created for Ohioans since the beginning of Gov. James Rhodes' administration.

These are noteworthy achievements. But before we add our thankful voice to the Wonderful World Of Ohio's Chief Executive, we'd like to ask a few other questions.

How much hard, cold cash has the Rhodes administration put into a statewide program to implement the findings of the Federal Riot Commission Report? (Not just 500,000 jobs?)

In Gov. Rhodes' own estimation — seen over national television — the welfare structures of the state are not the best possible. What is Rhodes doing to provide adequate changes in the structure?

What added incentives is the Rhodes' administration giving to keep teachers trained in Ohio universities within the Ohio educational system?

Roads, bridges, industry and promises do not a state make.

Can Ohio also rank number one where it counts — in services provided to our mentally ill, poverty-stricken and outcasts?

Quiet Involvement

The entrance of private industry into the ghetto holds great promise for the future of American cities.

The one difficulty which has arisen from such ventures is that promises have sometimes outstripped performances.

Nevertheless, the involvement of the private sector in the inner city can only mean the revitalization of the whole American economy.

One company which has long stood in relationship to Rural America is now delving more deeply in urban centers.

We think they are to be commended for this venture.

Moment Of Truth

with cay cross

The age of maturity is a moment of truth between one generation and the next.

It's the time when "do what I say and do what I do" ends, and it's suddenly "let's see what you are."

It's the taking off of a mask to find where you've pinned the donkey's tail, or looking up to see what's heavy heavy over thy head.

The age of maturity, being a highly personalized thing, is impossible to predict. Our society, though, with all of its rules and regulations has always tried to name it and probably always will. Fortunately (or unfortunately, depending upon which side of 30 you're on) those who are heading pell mell for the individual age don't seem to pay much attention to our charts and guesses unless those guesses restrict what they consider their youthful rights by materializing into law: i.e., the one in Columbus which prohibits anyone under the age of 21 from entertaining in taverns.

• • •

How inconsistent we are—even about something like this where we demand a consistent standard, a general age.

We permit the 18-year-old to marry and assume the responsibilities of a family; and we train him with a gun and trust him with the security of our country. Our governor and president along with many other elected officials are soon to trust them with the serious act of participating in their country's future by voting.

Yet, try to decide whether or not they should entertain in nightclubs, and you're involved in the controversy of the year.

Why? Because there are those who feel that 18-19-20 year olds, working in this undesirable atmosphere, will be drawn into such an undesirable life. With most of our society the way it is, I'm afraid I have to agree.

• • •

The true charge in being a good parent or wise educator is not just to care for the child, teaching him right from wrong until the child is of age; it's also in preparing the child for his maturity and then, acknowledging the man.

A child and adolescent must be given the truth and knowledge about drinking, smoking and sex, just as he must about law and order and religion.

Your child didn't get his driving license until he learned how to drive, did he . . . and what about his drinking license . . .

When your child is 18, will he know how to drink? Will he know his limit, and why he shouldn't pass it? And where will he have gotten his knowledge?

If 18 year olds are to be allowed to entertain in these places, let's let them be patrons and owners, too.

If we're to judge them and even each other by impossible age laws, let's at least be consistent. Maybe what I'm trying to say is that this consistency is necessary all the way through life as parents and teachers of the young. If you want your boy to go to church, you go to church with him. So if you drink, drink with him. Be a human parent.

Because if you've been less than honest with your son or daughter about life, how will he or she handle it when it's suddenly there. Can you say that they'll be O.K., just because they've reached a certain age?

And can society?

New Team, Old Magic

By ROBERT W. REIDER
Editor and Publisher

REIDER

Paul Brown fans — they're legion in the Columbus area — were not exactly surprised when things were spelled out for 90 hopefuls of the new Cincinnati Bengals of the professional American Football League.

Brown left no doubt that he intends to operate the Bengals under the same formula which brought him unparalleled success at Cleveland. He intends to have a well-disciplined ball club.

Late for meals, $50 fine; sneaking out after bed check, $500; late for practice, $50 for the first 15 minutes and $200 for each 15 minutes thereafter.

"IF YOU MISS a plane on a trip it's a $100 fine, and you pay your own way there. If you miss a plane going home, it's $200," Brown told his players.

"As an expansion team we have a special reason to work harder. And it isn't going to take me long to recognize the tramp, the boozer, the barroom bum, the ladies' man. We might be an expansion team, but we're not going to be like the French Foreign Legion."

Times may have changed since Brown was in command at Cleveland — but Brown hasn't.

It remains to be seen if his get-tough policy can still produce the old magic. Bengal fans will know shortly.

Down Wall Street

In the world of high finance there is a way to achieve the twin objectives of both appreciation in value and a high return on investment dollars. Fundamentally, the investment tool for growth is the common stock. For a stable, steady income from investments, the bond or preferred stock is the proper tool. How can the objectives of steady, high income and appreciation in value be combined into one investment decision? The answer is through the vehicle of convertible bonds and convertible preferred stocks.

By using convertible issues, the investor can receive a generous yield from the investment while the common stock offers little or no return. When the value of the common stock goes up, the value of the convertible will move up, too. But on the downswing, when the common falls, the convertible will not fall as much due to the fixed income. Because of the steady income, investors will be less inclined to sell, causing the convertible to be less susceptible to down movements.

Convertibles are attractive to investors because it gives the safety of a fixed income security plus the speculative possibilities of a common stock.

Jackpot Jujitsu

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

It is better to give away than to receive.

This should be the new Golden Rule for Ohio businesses, which seem to take some unknown delight in running giveaway programs.

It is difficult now to buy anything without being handed a little card spelling out how anyone can win $3,000 by matching numbers or forming neat little rows of contorted figures.

TWO EPISODES this past week have left me wallowing in the depths of despair, ready to burn my easy-to-reach jackpot cards or tear, mutilate and fold my old university IBM card.

Noticing the gas tank marker in my small car registered below the empty mark, I casually pulled into a Columbus gas station.

"Do you want the $3,000 easy-to-win jackpot cards or a chance at a vacation trip to Jamaica?" he said as he waved the cards in front of me.

I was about to ask him to fill it up, when he grabbed an arm I made the mistake of dangling from the window.

"PLEASE, SIR, you've got to declare your choice now. The contest ends at midnight."

Out of sympathy I took one of the little pink cards. He watched me open it, as a crowd gathered outside my car.

"Oh, too bad," he sobbed as I studied the card. "You got a $3,000 half and a picture of Sammy Davis, Jr."

People in the crowd began to weep as a Salvation Army band played taps in the background.

The station attendant wiped tears from his eyes. "Look, we've got a new contest beginning next week. Here's a ticket entitling you to one-half of a thousand dollar bill. All you have to do is match this half with the missing half, which is in circulation somewhere."

Unable to bear the genuine sympathy of the attendant, I drove away from the gas station.

Three blocks later I ran out of gas on Olentangy River Road.

• • •

THE REAL TRAGEDY, however, awaited me later.

Returning home from a hectic day at the office, I found my wife in tears. My house looked like a political convention building after the candidates have left.

"What's wrong?" I asked her, afraid of an answer.

She sat down on the sofa and began to cry. "I guess I'll just have to go to the grocery five times a week now."

"It's not the end of the world," I said, attempting to comfort her.

"No," she replied softly, "but where else could we get a free trip to Bermuda for only $4,500?"

Letters To The Editor

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

A Scout's Plea

To The Editor:

I am a Scout and know what it is to be out in the wilds and enjoy God's gift of nature. For this reason I am probably more aware of our water pollution than most people (other than fellow Scouts).

I have been taught that water is mankind's most essential need, and without water people and communities cannot survive.

After water leaves the clouds and reaches the earth's surface it is in the control of the people. The local, state and federal governments are doing more than their share. However, the average citizen has no respect for our streams and lakes and therefore dumps great amounts of waste material into them.

In order to protect our water for survival a[illegible] joyment, I believe every adult should educate his c[illegible] take care of and respect our natural resources. Don't pass the blame on to your government. Start today and keep your streams pure.

UNICEF Goal

To The Editor:

In the face of many uncertainties at home and abroad, United States citizens responded with unprecedented generosity in 1967 to the needs of the world's children, through the United Nations Children's Fund.

As a result, the U.S. Committee for UNICEF turned over a record total of $5,850,000 to (international) UNICEF.

Ohio totals are available now, and all who participated (contributors and volunteers) have reason to be proud of Ohio's accomplishments. Trick or Treat contributions were $167,639.89 while Greeting Card Sales amounted to $39,700.50.

On behalf of all volunteer groups in Ohio who participated in this effort, as well as the U.S. Committee (whom I represent in Ohio) I would like to thank all of the generous contributors who made 1967 our most successful year.

Likewise, all concerned with UNICEF are grateful to this newspaper, most kind in allowing space for news items and local activities concerned with UNICEF. Thank you.

Where To Start Saving The World

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

The anger grew. As the tiny figures had eddied across the television screen and told their conflicting stories in shock and horror, the anger had grown.

That this should happen once again to the Kennedys. That this should happen once again to all of us.

It was an all-encompassing anger. It encompassed the sickness of our society, the unfairness of life, the callousness of God.

"I DID IT for my country," a news announcer quoted the gunman as saying. "I did it because I love my country."

Suddenly the anger focused. It focused not so much on the gunman as on all those like him among us — those who know what is good for the rest of us, those who push and shove and trample and shoot and kill in the righteousness of their own glorious cause.

Save us, dear Lord, from those who would save us.

For no man consciously does evil. Each man must justify to himself what he does. And how easy that is for those who know they serve in a righteous cause.

How easy for the assassin to pull the trigger, for he knows what's good for his country. How easy for the Nazi to strangle a Jew, for he knows he builds a Reich that will last a thousand years. How easy for a Communist to purge a dissenter, for he knows he creates a brave new world.

HOW EASY IT is for the Christian or the Moslem to butcher his fellow man, for he is the repository of divine truth. How easy for the Vietcong terrorist or the Saigon police chief, for each knows he kills to save his nation.

How easy for the Klansman to lynch a "nigger," for he knows he saves the Southern Way of Life. How easy for a Black militant to cry, "Burn, baby, burn," for he knows this will make his people free.

How easy for the radical left to strive to tear down this sorry scheme of things entire, for they know our society is destroying our souls. How easy for the radi[illegible] right to form secret guerrilla bands, trained to shoo[illegible] kill, for they know they must save us all.

So the anger grew. And with it the hatred. I h[illegible] We must somehow save ourselves from these hateful people who would march militantly over us to save our society, our nation, our world.

IN MY OWN self-righteousness, I hated more than I can remember ever hating before. In my own self-righteousness, I could gladly have seen them all destroyed. In my own self-righteousness.

And now, in reflection, I am more convinced than ever in what I have long believed:

If I would remake the world, I had better start with me.

MAVERICK WITH MUDDY SHOES

By Richard L. Paugh

A hearty congratulations is in order for the City of Columbus and the Ohio Department of Natural Resources for their combined effort that led to the building of the West Whittier Marina.

Almost in the shadow of the Lincoln-Leveque tower, it brings outdoor recreation into the heart of the inner city.

You'll be pleasantly surprised at the plentiful parking, ramps and docks for your use. Motors (up to six horsepower) are allowed, along with canoes and rowboats.

The water area is bounded on the south by Greenlawn Dam but you can travel about a half-mile up the Scioto River. This allows you to get to quite a few areas along the banks that cannot be reached by shore-bound fishermen.

WHAT FISH can you catch? There are plenty of catfish and carp and some lunker bass.

My Kiwanis friend, Gene Sabo of Sabo and Stone, tells me that he has seen several muskelunge caught right at the dam. This came as quite a surprise to me.

The dedication ceremonies were held July 20 and were presided over by Robert Holmes (State Representative), Warren Cremeans (Columbus Service Director) and Robert Levy, Sr. (chairman of the Riverfront Development Committee).

I WAS PLEASED to officiate as chairman of the city's Waterways Activities Committee.

This committee is an advisory group of citizens who meet once a month to study various projects and problems that concern the Columbus waterways recreation.

Whenever people have a request to make concerning city waters, it is referred to us for consideration and advice.

THE AGENDAS over the past two years have included subjects from skiing, sailing, fishing, new types of craft, police protection and safety measures to problems of camping, wildlife refuges and party boats.

If you have questions or requests about water recreation in the city or Franklin County, address your letter to the Service Director, City Hall, and the Waterways Activities Committee will give it every consideration.

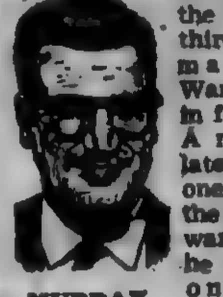
The committee is made up of every type of outdoor sportsman. It is the true American way to settle problems.

SPEAKING of fishing, the walleyes are hitting up at Hoover Dam but you've got to stay out late at night. Troll parallel to the east shore slowly with a nightcrawler on a spinner.

You won't get too many hits but the ones you do boat will average four to six pounds.

JIM MURRAY

The Nine-Inning 'Mugging'



MURRAY

It was a hot afternoon in the Polo Grounds Aug. 16, 1920, the fifth inning, no one on.

As Carl William Mays wound up to pitch to Ray Chapman of the Indians, the Yankee third baseman, Aaron Ward, crept in for a bunt. A moment later, he saw one carom off the plate toward him and he pounced on it and threw it to first baseman Wally Pipp for the putout.

It was Wally Pipp who noticed the blood on the ball and glanced quickly toward home plate.

Raymond Johnson Chapman was to be, so to speak, the only player in the long history of baseball to die with his spikes on.

It is an eerie statistic. In a game where a pair of rusty spikes coming in groin-high can be a case of galloping septicemia, where every line drive or outfield wall should read, "Warning — May Be Hazard to Health," where doubleheaders are played in sunstroke heat, only one man has ever been killed playing the game — and that was by a thrown ball.

THE ONLY deadly weapon in the game carries the league president's signature and says "Official" on it and is only five ounces heavy and nine inches around.

It can kill at 60 paces. And many a young man who would swerve his car off a highway to avoid hitting a rabbit thinks nothing of throwing it at a batter's head.

It's called "protecting the plate."

IT'S ALSO called "murder."

Baseball is a game which changes very slowly, if at all, like an ancient religion. Uniforms evolve infinitesimally.

But one of the most dramatic changes you will notice in the last few years is that more and more batters appear to be taking their stance wearing ear-muffs or aviation headsets circa Amelia Earhart?

THESE ARE anti-skull fracture devices. They go to bat like a guy going to a duel.

What has happened? Is the game more dangerous or the players more chicken? Is baseball a "blood sport" like auto racing or bullfighting?

BASEBALL has always had one distinct advantage over football. It has never been in danger of brutalizing itself out of existence.

It paid off for skill and gracefulness, not brute violence.

It was not a game in which its players had to take the field in face cages and 20 pounds of armor and it kept a trainer, not a physician and stretcher and ambulance on the bench at all times.

BASEBALL appears lately to be jealous of football's domination of the orthopedic ward. It appears to want its game to attract coroners, too.

Death by baseball has always been an unspoken presence in the locker room.

Only occasionally does the veil rip aside and you perceive the nameless dread every batsman feels at one time or another.

IT IS THE World Series last year. The Red Sox and Cardinals have been nicking each other's batsmen.

You approach Lou Brock, who still has dust on his pants falling down from "brushback" pitches.

"Was he trying to hit you?" you ask.

LOU, SMILING, shakes his head. "Pitcher wants to hit you, he can," he says significantly.

You flash back to that dreadful scene in San Francisco when Juan Marichal brought a bat crashing down on the head of John Roseboro. An hour later, in some wonderment, Maury Wills asks nobody in particular: "What'd he have to do that for? He had the ball, didn't he?"

"HE HAS the ball." That's the batter's way of saying the pitcher has all the artillery.

The ball comes to the plate at 98 m.p.h. At that velocity, it might as well be ticking. Wherever it hits, it will leave a blood clot.

As this is written, the game is taking on more and more the appearance of a nine-inning mugging. The roll-call reads like the Battle of Bull Run.

AL KALINE, fractured right forearm. Tony Conigliaro, fractured career. Paul Schaal lies in a Boston hospital with a broken ear drum, blurred vision and a fractured skull.

The umpires are loathe to enforce the two-knockdown rule (two warnings and you're out of the game) for the macabre reason the league feels the law may construe his action as prima facie evidence it was not a game, it was a felonious assault.

DETROIT'S Jim Northrup speaks for the hitters when he says, "Unless we're allowed to throw bats at them, they shouldn't be allowed to throw balls at us."

The way to bring more life to the game is not to bring more death — it needs more base hits, not more ear hits.

Worthington Post Trades 'Zeros' For Tourney Title

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Sports Writer

Behind John Biddle's flashing speed, Worthington's Leasure-Blackstone diamond outfit won the Central District (12th District) American Legion championship Sunday on the Ohio State University baseball field.

Biddle was remarkable in handling Don Laird's Southway Post No. 144 as he used 15 strikeouts to handcuff the Southsiders in the double elimination baseball show — to earn Worthington its second straight shot at the State championship to be held this week in Athens.

BUT BIDDLE was only Sunday's star on the mound.

All three Worthington victories came behind shutout performances by Leasure moundsmen (Dale Ross, Dave Slvinski and Biddle).

Ironically, Worthington's lone tourney setback was also a whitewash job.

IT WAS Bill Hauck's stellar hitting (two doubles, single) that set up the Sunday match via an 8-0 shutout over Grove City on the same diamond 24 hours earlier.

John Fleeman, former Worthington star in his own right and now an Ohio University senior who handles summer Legion coaching chores, predicted all along, "I think we'll be able to make Athens again this year."

John based his feeling on the fact that his '68 group was a "really well-balanced one" in comparison to last year's winners who he said "had a few more standout players."

BUT NOT TOO many young Legion flingers were more standoutish than was Biddle in his two-hitter Sunday by not permitting a Southway base runner beyond second in the nine inning battle.

Whetstone High School — along with neighbor Watterson—literally loads the Worthington roster with the talent that placed both the Braves (City) and Watterson (Catholic) in the top spot of their respective leagues this past spring.

THE BOYS from Whetstone are Jim Shields (catcher), Ric Clouse (shortstop)— both two-year Worthington summer performers — plus first-year men Larry Davis (OF), Jon Davies (2B), Terry Frisby (OF) and Skip Peltier (OF).

Watterson's operators hold the next player load position with first sacker Bill Hauck, pitchers John Biddle and Dave Sivinski, third baseman Bill Grossman and catcher George Efta. Efta and Hauck are second-year players.

Dwight Miller, who starred in both basketball and baseball for Worthington High's Cardinals the past two seasons, provides Hauck with relief at first base.

LIVCO Relays Scheduled Saturday In Lincoln Village

A total of 14 swim teams will join the host Buckeye Blue Dolphins for the annual LIVCO Relays Saturday.

Swimming will begin at 8:30 a.m. at the Lincoln Village pool with finals in the all (three-man) relay event getting underway at 6 p.m.

Joining BBD for the relays will be: defending champion Upper Arlington, Worthington, Twin Towers (Grove City), Hilltop Swim Club, Swimland Sailfish, Olympic Beach, Livmoor Heights, Marietta Y, Springfield Y, Marion, Lancaster, Newark, Delaware and the Dayton Dolphins.

All age groups (8 and under, 9-10, 11-12, 13-14 and 15-17) will compete in the day-long relay meet with champions determined in each age group.

Arlington and Worthington show the largest number of entries with the Sailfish, Lancaster, Dayton and Springfield teams also figuring to offer stiff competition for top honors.

Allocations to state associations for entries in the 1969 BPAA All-Star Tournament were announced by Robert A. Colburn, Tournament Director for the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

The allocation to each state is based on that state's number of paid lanes in BPAA membership, with no state allotted fewer than two men's spots and one woman's spot.

THE GREATEST number of spots has been awarded to Ohio — 18 men and 14 women. Three other states have been given 15 men's spots — Illinois, Michigan and New York. Illinois and Michigan have 11 women's spots and New York has 10.

DICK WEBER says: "Many times I am asked, 'What weight ball should I use?' My answer is always the same, 'I don't know.'

"There are as many 'right balls' as there are bowlers. What is right for one person could be all wrong for another. Consider some of the variable factors which must be considered when one is selecting a ball.

"A person's weight, sometimes his height, native strength, muscular development and oftentimes the type of work a person does. An accountant would probably find it difficult to use a ball which was just right for a piano mover.

"I THINK the best way to sum up the question is to say that the weight of the ball is directly dependent upon the individual's relative size and strength.

"Bowling is a game of skill. Accuracy and scoring are your main objectives. Select the proper ball, and have it custom fitted and learn to control it. Don't let the ball control you."

CMS Slates Mid-Season Championship

Dayton's Dick Freeman became the winningest driver of the season at Columbus Motor Speedway Sunday with his third straight feature (and fifth of season) victory in the 30-lap Sunday headliner.

HOBBY-STOCK pilot Neil Fultz earned his second straight win in the 20-lap feature with Larry Simpson, Bob McElroy, Dick Burns and Don Stump trailing in that order.

Sunday the Williams Rd. raceway will host the Mid-Season Championships — the late-models showing a 60-lap feature (guaranteed $3000, or 40 percent of gate, purse, winner gets minimum of $750); the hobby-stocks going in a 30-lap feature.

Time trials begin at 7 p.m., the first race underway 60 minutes later.

THE RAINED-OUT ARCA New Car races have been [illegible] scheduled for Saturday, Au[illegible] 10.

Second Whitehall Women's Tourney Opens Saturday

First-round action in the girls' division of the double-elimination tourney finds: Thurman vs. Whitehall (diamond 6), Emmanuel Lutheran vs. Lockbourne (diamond 5), and Westgate vs. Hackett (diamond 4), all at 1 p.m.

AT 3 P.M., the losers of the second and third games play on diamond four while Reynoldsburg (champion of the first tourney) plays the winner of game three (diamond 5). At the same time, winners of games one and two vie on diamond 6.

On Sunday (1 p.m., diamond 6), winners of the 3 p.m. games meet for a finals berth while the loser of the Thurman - Whitehall game meets the winner of Saturday's loser tilt (1 p.m., diamond 5).

IN THE opening round of the Women's division (1 p.m. Saturday), Whitehall plays Riggnetts (diamond 2), Reynoldsburg faces the Ohio Company (diamond 1) and defending champion Walnut Heights draws the bye.

Action continues at 3 p.m. Saturday and at 1 and 3 p.m. (title game) Sunday.

Individuals or teams should not renege haphazardly on their responsibilities to their leagues even when they may be provoked or disgusted about a league dispute.

When a team joins a league, or an individual joins a team, a moral, fiscal, and legal commitment is made to teammates, other teams and the league.

THE LEAGUE schedule, the realization of the prize program, commitments to the lanes and satisfaction of the bowlers depend upon everyone keeping his promise to the league if reasonably able to do so.

Illness, changes of a person's work schedule and a few other situations could make it impossible for a person to continue in a league.

In such cases, appropriate notice should always be given. Every effort should be made to help find your replacement, or pay the league fees while the replacement is being sought. Above all, don't just walk away without saying anything to the league officers.

THIS HOLDS true even if a team or individual bowler feels he has received a bad decision in a dispute. Disputed issues of such magnitude should be appealed to the Columbus Bowling Association for review rather than used as an excuse for quitting the league.

If the dispute cannot be settled by the local association, the ABC can be requested to review and rule on the dispute.

"Quitting" only complicates the issue and often harms a lot of others. The bowler who withdraws under such conditions actually jeopardizes his own membership by such hasty action even when there is merit to his dissatisfaction.

THAT'S WHY one should seek relief from provoking situations through appropriate appeals rather than create problems by just walking out of — or quitting — the league.

The Columbus Bowling Association stands ready and willing to help. Use these services. Our main interest is keeping the bowler happy and bowling.

Hens Here For B-I-G 5-Game Set

The Columbus Jets wrap up home stand number nine this week with pennant hopeful Toledo keying the series with a five-game visit.

Buffalo's Bisons vacate the visitors' dugout after an evening game (7:45) tonight (Grange Mutual Insurance Night)—making way for the Mud Hens.

TOLEDO completes the series with single evening games Friday, Saturday and Monday, spliced around a key twin-bill Sunday (1:30 p.m.).

Following the Monday game, the Jets depart for stopoffs at Rochester, Syracuse and Pittsburgh (exhibition game with Pirates Aug. 12) before returning (Aug. 13) to open a six-day home stand vs. Rochester and Syracuse.

Fishin' Facts

Two-pound test line doesn't look like much — to either man or fish. Maybe that is why it's so effective.

When temperatures soar and game fish in your favorite water hole ignore the best you have to offer, a switch to featherweight equipment may improve the situation.

ACCORDING to the experts, ultralight tackle can be the answer when waters are tepid, low and extremely clear —and when the fish are nuzzling only the most delicate morsels on the menu.

Though a perfectly balanced rig is desirable, anyone possessing a medium-weight spinning rod can load and spool with two- or four-pound monofilament and achieve satisfactory results. Lighter lines are available but work best on rods designed to handle them.

Gossamer lines offer two distinct advantages: (1) they are less visible to wary fish, and (2) they permit easy casting of tidbit-sized lures. Such factors can make quite a difference to lackadaisical lunkers.

TO OVERCOME the disadvantages of frail lines, follow these rules: check rod and reel for rough edges that will cut the mono, and inspect frequently for knots; stay out in open water; don't try to "horse" 'em in, and be exceedingly careful when boating a fish.

Ultralight lines might even make you a better fisherman. Certainly it doesn't take long to discover you can't yank up snagged water lilies or haul down tree branches by brute force.

You learn to work over, around and under trouble spots, and spend more time fishing than fooling.

Eight More Winners In Walleye Tag Contest

Eight area fisherman recently won prizes in a walleye tag return contest sponsored by Hoover Reservoir-area bait dealers and the Oakland Park Conservation Club.

Edwin Irwin Insurance Agency Awarded Teays Valley Contract

The Edwin Irwin Insurance Agency was awarded the contract for the bus and driver training car when the Teays Valley Board of Education met this month.

Other low bids acceptd were those of Standard Oil of Ohio for fuel oil, Pennington Bakeries for bread and Sealtest for milk.

THE BOARD, faced with an increase in the cost of milk, approved raising the price of half pints to students from two to three cents during the coming school year.

Other July business included approval of a dental program for second grade children at Scioto School and authorization for the clerk to secure bids on purchase of drainage tile and gravel for the Scioto grounds and installation of same.

The Board learned of the intention of Ray Swoyer, bus driver in the district for many years, to retire. Other resignations were those of Terry Barthalmas, Nancy Irwin and Ellen England.

CERTIFIED personnel employed who will be new to the district are Maryedna Rice, librarian; Nina Jean Lockhart, sixth grade; Forrest Webster, high school special education; Richard Slaven physics and math; Phillip Smith, Patricia Byerson, James Pickering, Drexel Poling and Sharon Pollock.

The board also learned that Mrs. Julia Heiser has completed the requirements for a four-year provisional certificate and awarded her a regular contract.

The regular August meeting will be held Monday, Aug. 26.

BONNIE BECOMES A BEAUTY

Winner in The Spectator's fabulous "Make-Me-Over" contest arrived here breathless and excited last Thursday morning to be whirled through a day of surprises and gifts reminiscent of the old "Queen for a Day" show. She is Mrs. Bonnie Everhart of 152 Guernsey Ave. Left to right in the pictures above, Bonnie as she arrived at Spectator offices and later at Merle Norman studios. First she has foundation and powder applied to her face and rouge high on her cheek bones. Next her rather small eyes were brought out with shadow in blue-green, false eyelashes and a thin line drawn at the base of the lashes. As the finishing touch, Bonnie applies coral lipstick with a lip brush to define her mouth.

Here Bonnie gets the treatment at DeLuca's Beauty Salon. Operator Fran cuts and tapers her thick hair in the direction of the natural wave then gives our gal a rinse to perk up the color and a conditioner to make her hair more manageable. The thing that gave Bonnie's whole face an "uplift" was the professional plucking of her heavy straight-across eyebrows. In the last picture, Bonnie grins at her image in the mirror as her hair is teased. Fran concentrated on giving our contestant attractive bangs to shorten her long face and make her eyes show up. Runners-up in the contest were Mrs. John D. Scanlon, who received a make-up kit from Merle Norman, and Mrs. Elizabeth Beatty, who will have her hair done at DeLuca's.

As the finishing touch, Bonnie received a complete outfit compliments of the Union. She chose a tan and gray suit in the new "thirties" look with elongated lines and low slouch belt. Her shoes and handbag were gray patent leather and she chose stockings with a smoky tinge. When she got home, kids, five and two, and hubby Lynn didn't recognize her. In addition, Bonnie was treated to a professional photograph from Firestone, a night at Scioto Downs, lunch on The Spectator and an evening at the Kenley Players production of "Can-Can," where she went backstage to meet Joey Heatherton in person.

Turn House To Home In Minutes

By CAY CROSS

OK lady, it's been that kind of a day! Whatever you've done from eight to four, the fact remains it's four anyway, and you've but an hour and a half at the outside to prepare for HIM.

Times like this all you think of is the way you've just got to show him what a little miracle worker you are. AMAZE him by being super-active in that club of yours and ASTOUND him by being so prepared for him and your evening together.

The challenge that's faced every modern Millie in every modern suburb since the advent of the second car is how?

(First of all, give a little thanks for that second car!)

Now, you're on your way home so just cool down, slow down and relax. In fact stop at a florist. That's right — stop and pick up some easy to arrange, inexpensive flowers (daisies are always nice) and a box of chocolates for the candy dish.

It may sound ridiculous when you think of all you have to do yet, but men are suckers for such frills, because it's so homey and you.

Now you're home, so start whatever you need to start first for dinner, and begin making your all-American house an instant home. Turn the music on and turn it low. HE might walk in any minute. Be prepared. Look in the mirror. Comb, re-touch then start building.

Look for the things HE'll see first: the ashtrays — empty them. The living room — straighten. And, because you might not get another chance, quickly make the bed.

Tie-on a frilly apron (nothing makes you look more HIS) and concentrate on dinner. Don't ignore candles—even with other lights. At times like these, you'll need every trick in the book.

Plan ahead too. Fill a dishpan with lots of hot suds and pop those utensils you're finished with into it. In fact, wash, dry and put away quickly as you can, for the "instant evening" ahead.

Just before HE comes, use your trusty room deodorizer. Not too much — but men don't ever suspect those kind of things, so HE'll just think it's really freshness he's smelling. (Be thankful here, that you don't have to crush cloves or whatever fool thing the pioneer gals did!)

Set the table if there's time. Whatever you do, arrange things so that — at least for a few minutes when HE comes in — you can sit down and very comfortably ask about his day and look perfectly sure that his was much worse than yours.

Then give him his evening paper, or whatever periodical will make him happiest, and walk smilingly [illegible] into the kitchen where you run like a crazed man 'til things are served.

Last but not least, look often at that little old sign your grandmother gave you — and keep the message BURNED into your wifely mind.

"Be it ever so humble, there's no place like HOME." Be thankful that HE thinks so too.

Makes it worth the frenzy, doesn't it . . .

More tips for an instant week:

- Keep sachet in your drawers and closets. When you don't have time to clean and freshen, the powder scent will make it seem as though you did.
- And keep a container of baby powder in the linen closet. When you change the sheets, sprinkle the powder directly on the mattress before the fresh bottom sheet. (Believe it or not, it's even good for the mattress).

Jewelry In A Jiffy

Newest idea from the world of baubles, bangles and beads is do-it-yourself jewelry made in minutes with paper.

No kidding! Sit cross-legged on the floor with your six year old, borrow some of [illegible] brightly-colored paper [illegible] a pair of scissors and you're all set.

Bracelets and rings are easiest. Cut heavy, colorful paper in strips several inches wide and long enough to fit your wrist or finger, glue the ends together and voila!

Make five or six bracelets in various colors and wear them all on one arm like you would your wooden or metal ones.

For a heavier bracelet, take an old one you're tired of and papier mache it. Cover it with strips and strips of newspaper dipped in flour paste and spray with paint.

Earrings are the most fun. Take strips of colored paper and loop them just like your daughter does when she makes chains for the tree at Christmas time. Put loops inside bigger loops and fasten to your earring finding with some kind of thin wire.

Another great idea comes from our own artist Sandy Aska. Take any cracker (saltine, cheese or oyster) and dip in colored varnish. Allow to dry and then stick a wire into the hardened cracker and attach to an earring finding.

Quickie Recipes For Dinner

DINNER: Dressy enough for company! Buy half-inch thick slices of yummy, yummy ham (leave a little fat on). Sprinkle with brown sugar, dot with butter and broil very, very slowly — don't worry, it won't take long while preparing meal.

Add a can of pitted cherries, and a half cup sugar (better yet, a can of already prepared cherry pie filling) to a box of instant corn bread mix.

Fill muffin tins and don't tell it's a mix!

Serve with instant au-gratin potatoes, chopped cabbage with bottled slaw dressing and iced tea or coffee.

For dessert, let the mixer do the work. Mix a half gallon pineapple sherbet with already whipped cream. Add a medium sized can of fruit cocktail and serve on packaged pastry cups, out of the package, of course.

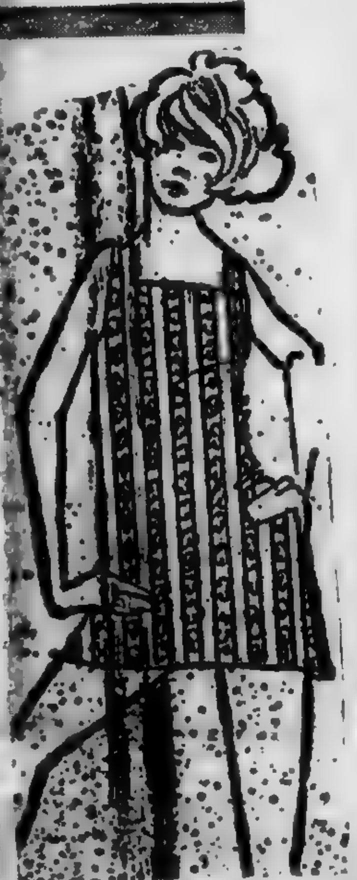
Voila! Instant day.

Spectator Salutes Instant Woman



INSTANT FASHION

Topping the list for a lady living in the immediate is a paper dress. Quick, easy and light they are a must for today's "Instant Woman." The new ones are flame resistant, washable and very inexpensive (usually cost a dollar). A real attention-getter is the new paper dress from Ohio Bell patterned like the yellow pages. Order it for a dollar from Yellow Pages Dress, Box 49, Asheville, North Carolina. Paper dresses are available in Columbus at Bazaar International.

Electric Woman

Twentieth Century United States of America — woman becomes electra!

- Electric hair dryer, of course. With a drop of perfume — electric air.
- Electric toothbrush, for him.
- Electric sun tan? Or old Sol's nature in HER electric golf cart.
- Electric manicure. Electric pedicure. Electric relaxicisor for hands - feet - muscles - soft shoulders - curves.
- Electric tummy flattener, hip firmer, chin patter.
- Total girl cooled and warmed electrically, soothed to sleep musically. Spoiled by dishwasher, mixer, disposal and stove. There's even an electric broom.
- Total girl highlighted by "soft light" bulbs, make-up mirrors, and electric candles. Watch her shine. Like sunlight on the lake.

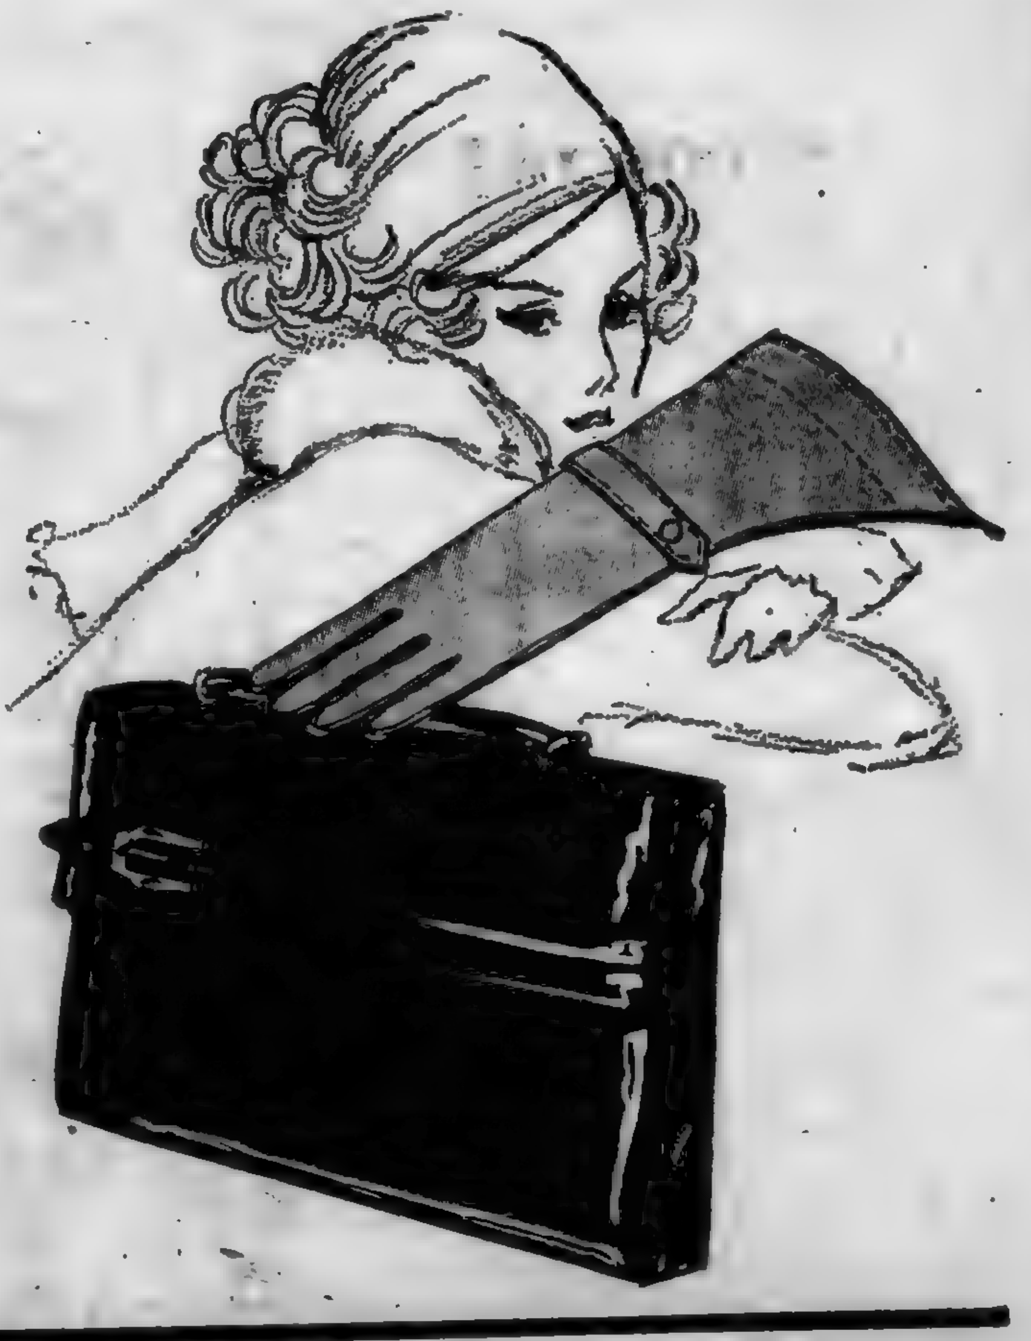
Flip a switch.
Turn her on.
Electric Woman . . .

GOING TOO FAR

Bonnie, our "Make-Me-Over" winner, sat patiently as she was renovated from top to toe and submitted to ratting and false eyelashes without a whimper.

At false fingernails she balked, though. She wore them in silent protest for awhile but soon we discovered them lying in a dejected little heap in one of the Union's dressing rooms.



NOW ON HAND FOR THE REVIVAL OF 'THE THIRTIES'

The 30's And Accessories

With today's emphasis on the quick and easy, and fashion highlighting the skirt and blouse look, accessories at long last come into the limelight.

This fall, it's going to be the 30's look, and the 30's never had such variety!

Here are the latest notes from our gals at the exclusive Union Store on everything from hats to handbags. As you can see, it's going to be an exciting season!

GLOVES — Created for the total look of coordination, for the tailored look, clever uses of buckles, belting jumbo stitching and interesting metallic trim. The Gauntlet running from bold heavily-stitched long gauntlets to the more lady-like version with pleating and buckle trim.

PUT TOGETHER LOOK —Start with choker, add a pendant on chain, then add 27 inch chain or 45 to 50 or 54 inch chain.

PINS — Worn mid-center, stack pins and ties, chatelaines, cameo pins, heirloom looks in pins show between ruffles and collars. Bar pins for ties and ruffles and sashes. Chevron pins worn on ties and ruffles.

RINGS — No hand should be without several.

STOCKINGS—Silky look; opaque stockings with silky look shadow stripes; sheer opaque patterns or dimensional stockings. Lovers knot patterns; shiny wet look.

Most popular will be the panty hose because of short hem length.

MILLINERY — Oversize slouch brim with veils. Large rollers with upturned brim and flared back. Oversize roller with a veil for fall and trace of a veil flowing seductively from the back brim.

What would the 30's have been without Garbo? And no revival of the 30's would be complete without the Garbo cloche.

Also strongly 30's are the small berets, fedoras and occasion hats trimmed with jewels and appliques.

Versatile Dough Makes Baking A Snap

We've all enjoyed the benefits of all-purpose flour. New from Pillsbury is an all-purpose biscuit dough.

The new product (labeled Extra Light Buttermilk Biscuits) becomes available in the Columbus area this month in 10-count cans.

Although the dough makes a perfect home-style biscuit for mealtime, Pillsbury has added a new twist. It has a number of uses.

The dough can be used to make a flaky pastry in just minutes, to make crisp tortillas for south-of-the-border favorites or as a flaky, golden topper for casseroles or desserts.

Of special interest to the homemaker is the dough's use as a quick and easy crust since homemade pie crusts can be frustrating to make even for the most experienced cook.

In the picture is a tasty and attractive suggestion from the Pillsbury kitchens —Peach 'N Pear Cobbler.

PEACH 'N PEAR COBBLER

1 can (1 lb.) pears, cut-up (canned)
2 T. cornstarch
2 T. brown sugar
¼ tsp. nutmeg
dash salt
1 T. butter
1 T. lemon juice
1 can (8 oz.) Pillsbury Refrigerated Extra Light Buttermilk Biscuits
1 T. sugar
¼ tsp. cinnamon
(6 SERVINGS)

Pre-heat oven to 375 degrees.

Drain peaches and pears, reserving ¾ cup combined syrup.

In medium sauce pan, combine cornstarch, brown sugar, nutmeg and salt. Slowly blend in reserved syrup.

Bring mixture to a boil; cook until thickened and clear. Stir in fruit, butter and lemon juice. Cook until fruit is hot.

Lightly butter bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Separate dough into 10 biscuits.

Separate 7 biscuits in half forming 14 thin biscuits. Press 8 thin halves against the sides of the pie plate, overlapping slightly to form a scalloped edge. Arrange remaining 6 halves in bottom of pie plate and press together to form a crust.

Pour hot fruit over crust. Cut remaining 3 biscuits in half; arrange in spoke fashion on top of fruit. Combine sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle over top of cobbler.

Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes until biscuits are deep golden brown. Serve warm.

Diver's Watch Breaks Surface Fashionwise

According to the Waltham Watch Company of Chicago, many of the watches are being sold to men who aren't skin divers. (Well after all, one never knows when a heavy dew might come up).

The company attributes increased sales of diver watches for out of water use to their durability and highly masculine, athletic styling.

Miss Susann Speaks Out

With 62 million women voting in the November election, sex appeal will play an important part in deciding the winner.

Jacqueline Susann, author of the smash best-seller Valley of the Dolls, offers the definitive rundown of who's got what it takes. In her article, "Sex In The 1968 Campaign," which appears in the August issue of Pageant, Miss Susann gives her feminine reactions to the eight leading contenders.

Hubert Humphrey is a man who appeals to a lady's sympathies: ". . . you like him and you feel he's never really had a chance to have a great deal of fun."

Richard Nixon who is "terribly attractive in person" ought to "have a razor cut, you know, molded to his head. And he should try some jazzy shirts and have his suits a little more mod."

The Reagans are attractive but lacking in star quality, "sort of a road company edition of the Kennedys." John Lindsay is a man who would get Miss Susann's vote "because he has guts—real hard-core guts."

McCarthy is "so intelligent — and very brave. But I don't think he has the dynamic passion to stir up the female voters."

As for George Wallace, "forget it!"

Since he pulled out of the race "LBJ's image has done a turnabout. He is a sympathetic man. Now I'll always think of him as Nice Daddy."

Nelson Rockefeller "is a nice-looking man and would make a good solid President. But . . . he's a Rolls Royce—powerful and dependable. As for me, I prefer a fast sports car."

Miss Susann makes no predictions, but Mr. Gallup, Mr. Harris and all the contestants might learn a lot from her observations.

Instant Beauty: Quickie Lashes Make The Scene

Today, as always, the eyes have it and in this hurry-scurry world any damsel welcomes advice on instant beauty for those "mirrors of the soul."

Wonder how our girl Bonnie's eyes were transformed in so short a time? The secret is a new false eyelash called the "Inga Lash."

And don't despair because you became convinced long ago that Halloweeney false eyelashes aren't for you. These look like the real thing — home grown!

The trick is in the application. These long lovelies fit UNDER your lashes instead of on top, and it really takes an expert to tell at all.

They are easy to apply, easy to remove and available at Merle Norman.

Try batting them and set the man in your life's heart aflutter.

CROSS TOWN

By CAY CROSS

Ah, it's vacation time so there's mostly news of readers coming and going this week. Let's start off with a cool one: Off for Scndinavian gallivanting this week are Marion and Alice Boyer. The Boyers, who forsook Canal Winchester a couple years ago to become German Villagers, leave today for Norway, Denmark and Sweden.

That's a hard act to follow!

Also seen at the Cross Roads were: Helen Michaels, owner of Country Club Beauty Salon, who just returned from two weeks vacation at Camp Lejeune, N. Carolina, where she visited her son, Marine Warrant Officer Sam Michaels, who is a Japanese interpreter there.

Sister Joseph Christine Sharon Baldy is visiting her [illegible]s, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Baldy of 225 Midland this week; [illegible] Robert Talbert, manager of Shoppers Fair, just returned from two weeks vacation in Missouri and Oklahoma. Robert and wife Carolyn, along with their six children, who live at 3861 Hanna Dr. here, camped at Grand Lake where they caught bass and catfish.

Mrs. Paul Carruthers of Graham Road, had a very happy reunion with her sister, Floy Allspaugh Nelson, whom she had not see in 30 years. With Mrs. Nelson was her daughter, Mrs. June Nelson Crawley, from Caracas, Venezuela. While staying here, Mrs. Nelson visited relatives and many old friends. Mrs. Nelson resides in Riverside, California.

A few honors to report this week: one well-earned, one dubious. Evan E. Williams, 2491 Sherwood, earned his by being a hero recently at the Indian River links. Standing at the tee of a long par five, he got off a "long true drive" and followed it up with a mighty three wood to the green. Applause broke out when the Columbus and Southern exec dropped the 35-foot putt for an Eagle.

Now a West Virginia joke with a twist: Most of the West Virginian jokes I know are at the expense of those on the other side of the Ohio River. I met a West Virginian recently who turned the tables on me.

A brain transplant was being contemplated in a Charleston hospital. Three brains were available—a doctor's brain at $30,000, a lawyer's brain at $40,000, and an Ohioan's brain at $50,000. When the prospective recipient inquired concerning the high cost of the latter, he was told, "That one has scarcely been used." Oooh —

See you all next week, y'heah?

Jack Warden, TV Cop, Visits Columbus

Age, 47; birthplace, Newark, N. J.; height, 6 feet; weight, 170 pounds; hair, red; eyes, blue. These are the vital statistics of "Detective Lt. Mike Haines," up from the ranks with 18 years on the force of "NYPD," or actor Jack Warden.

Here in town last week to promote the successful police drama's second season over ABC (Channel 6) this fall, Warden appeared just as tough as he looks on TV while being a 24 hour cop for a 24 hour town.

He is married to a French girl and has a six year old son, Christopher. Upon his father's departure on this promotion tour Chris said "I love you, Dad, and I'm going to miss you." Jack replied, "I love you, too." "But, I love you more, Daddy." And with this, rough Warden explained, "we don't compare love, it is not fair," and asked his son why he felt this way. Christopher stated, "I love you more, because I need you more, than you need me." That's so shockingly true and for a six year old!

What is shooting a show like? "Six months, at the most, to complete 26 shows. Shooting the series involves a 7-7 work day, consisting of reading the script in the morning, then shooting various segments. "I learn my lines from the dressing room to the set."

Being a tough cop, his fan mail consists of the unusual. "Oh, yes, once in a while a letter reprimands me for the way I treat some of the offenders. There are eight very sophisticated people who write me religiously telling me what I'm doing wrong as far as characterization."

As an actor, Warden does have a pet peeve, which is the scripts. "The material does not delve into life. Of course, time is the big factor."

Jack Warden

How does he feel about acting? "There is no particular security to acting. I do not over-extend myself financially for then I cannot do the parts I want to do. This way I am not burdened by the need of money."

For all its insecurity, Warden obviously loves his work and would definitely do it all over again. Asked just prior to "NYPD" what he was doing, Warden quite honestly stated, "Nothing." That seems to sum up the frustrations of all actors.

What if the series folded? "For about 20 minutes I'd be torn between Ireland or London. I'd look around, visit friends and maybe buy a piece of land"

Does he like promotion tours? "No, not necessarily. It's not knowing who you are going to meet."

What was his biggest break in show business? "My biggest break was when I broke my leg during a parachute jump in World War II. In the hospital I met another GI who had been in the entertainment business and he sparked an interest in acting."

Currently, he may be seen in "Bye, Bye Braverman" and will be back this fall . . . quite a character, he is . . . watch for the twinkle in his eye as he delivers a speech on the police code numbers.

Columbus Symphony, Singers To Perform

The Columbus Symphony Orchestra and the Columbus Freedom Singers will perform at a "Music In The Air" outdoor concert Sunday, Aug. 4 at 4 p.m.

The free concert will be held in Linden Park, Briarwood Avenue and Ontario Street.

Professor Wilbur E. Crist, head of the instrumental department at Capital University's Conservatory of Music, will be guest conductor.

The newly-formed Columbus Freedom Singers is a chorus of more than 100 local youths who range in age from 15 to college age level. Their purpose is to promote communication between people of varying backgrounds.

James W. McDonald, vocal music director at Crestview Junior High, will be in charge of providing costumes and choreography for the program.

The Columbus Symphony will play the following numbers: Shubert's Unfinished Symphony, first movement; Johann Strauss' Overture to Die Fladermaus; Richard Strauss' Waltzes from Der Rosenkavalier; and Rodgers and Hammerstein's Sound of Music excerpts.

Bistro's Jennifer Warren Transmits Inner Beauty

By now, everyone should have heard or read tbout the stunning triumph being achieved by a new singing sensation, Jennifer Warren.

To these accolades, I hasten to add mine, for as she skyrockets to fame, I want to be on her bandwagon.

Not every performer can transmit an inner beauty which not only mystifies, but enthralls her audience. Miss Warren did, is and will, for she is of that realm of sensationalism from which we seem to be seeing fewer and fewer newcomers . . or is it they just seem to fade out?

Columbus' Bistro is the first of a long and successful career for this almost homely lass who seems all face and arms. She can look like a child of six then like a woman of the ages without batting an eye. Her arms and hands flail through the air just as any story teller of repute.

This lass of fair hair, an appeal of a kitten and a refined sense of comedy, has a euphony that flows and ripples . . . chiming in on youth, love and happiness.

So let the fanfare peal and Jennifer's triumph thunder throughout the world. For now, through Saturday night, Jennifer is presenting an "Alice In Wonderland" show that shall live everlastingly in the hearts of all who are fortunate enough to make the Bistro their entertainment this weekend.

Stadium Show Scores

The co-authors, Jerome Weidman and James Yaffee, have given the world more than just a trial. For in their play, they present the pros and cons of the importance of the individual versus conformity, machines and togetherness.

Precise, concise dialogue and plot enable this case of treason against America during World War II to result in impact, but also to allow the audience to perceive the events and then recount the steps to self-destruction of the defendent.

The jury is the audience. Thusly, an unequaled opportunity is offered to not only view, but become far more involved than just amusement. Bravo to American Playwrights Theater for having accepted these authors into this steadily rising triumph in keeping artistic theater alive and away from the perils of money.

Director Gerald L. Ness has cast some of Columbus' finest talent, formed them into a picture so perfect that each actor has risen to higher acclaim than in past roles. Mr. Ness has masterfully blocked this show which creates the impact and directness needed.

Of great importance is his capability to keep the trial from becoming stifling through his perfect timing. Cheers to Mr. Ness for his simplicity . . . no gaudiness . . . the play is a true art form.

The cast totals 11. They each deliver a perfect characterization. Facial expressions and body movements, so very essential to this play, are perfection. Each has reached understanding with the play and his contribution to the total significance. If Stadium were to hold over any play (which has never been done to this writer's knowledge) this should be the one, for (again) every actor has far excelled any previous endeavor.

The actors are Graydon Goss, Burton Louis, Jack Denyes, Glenn Bittner, Leo C. Bininger, Virginia Donavan, Curt Meeks, John Purdy, Clarence Lewis, Robert Sisinger and John Purdy.

"The Ivory Tower" plays through Saturday night. Maybe we should have more APT plays. To reserve tickets for this show, better phone 293-2295 right quick. "Ivory Tower" is one of those monuments that everyone will be saying, "Did you see Stadium's . . . ?"

The TV Corner

"The Golddiggers" will feature Dean Martin's daughter, Gail, as the special guest. She will join Frank Sinatra, Jr. and Paul Lynde on tonight's 10 p.m. colorcast over Channel 4.

• • •

Barry Goldwater and Bill Miller will recount the human and humorous elements of their 1964 presidential campaign with NET correspondent Paul Niven over Channel 34 at 8:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 5.

• • •

Channel 10 will carry the fifth annual "Hall of Fame" NFL Exhibition contest which this year pits the Chicago Bears and the Dallas Cowboys, live and in color, Saturday, Aug. 3 at 3 p.m.

• • •

Unusual but interesting guests on the CBS Television Network's popular "Captain Kangaroo" show this Saturday will be the Billy Taylor Jazz Trio with the musicians heating up the morning air at 8 a.m. with jazz interpretations and Taylor telling the show's audience what jazz is all about.

Vera At Bistro

Teenagers will be permitted to partake of the Bistro atmosphere this Monday through Thursday as recording star, Billy Vera, is the featured entertainment.

Vera's current recording of "With Pen In Hand" is sure to be part of his set. He will be there through Saturday, Aug. 3.

Buckeye Barbershop Cut-Up Dates Set

Dates for the semi-finals and finals of the Buckeye Barbershop Cut-up at the Ohio State Fair were announced today by State Treasurer John D. Herbert.

Herbert, appointed chairman of the barbershop quartet comedy sing-in by Gov. James A. Rhodes, said semi-finals for quartets will be held from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, Aug. 24.

Quartets will vie for three awards at the finals to be held between noon and 4 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 25.

"The state treasurer said the Buckeye Barbershop Cut-up is a new feature of the State Fair and is in keeping with the fun atmosphere of the fair, the participating quartets will represent the outstanding comedy routines among Ohio barbershop quartets belonging to the Johnny Appleseed District of SPEBSQSA, Inc.

U.S. Navy Needs Seabees

The U.S. Navy is issuing a new call for Seabees under the "Direct Procurement Petty Officer" program.

The direct procurement program provides an opportunity for skilled men to fulfill their military obligation while gaining increased experience in their trade.

Volunteers sign up at any Navy Recruiting office for a Seabee 30-Month tour of duty. At that time, they directly are given Petty Officer ratings, based on their qualifications.

Arts Festival Chairman Congratulated

Columbus' Arts Festival Chairman, Mel Dodge, is to be congratulated for the success of Columbus' seventh Annual Festival held this past week at the Statehouse grounds.

Once a year seems inadequate, for the interest ran high and the talent abounded.

All phases of every committee and every exhibit and performing art were well delivered and well received from Columbus residents.

My feeling, and I am sure of the majority, that five days just isn't enough considering the potential and values of an Arts Festival.

Some of the exhibits and performing arts will be at the Ohio State Fair . . . justly so. Look for these announcements in the upcoming issues of the paper.

All those who enjoyed the Festival, whether backstage or out front, should be quick to thank Mr. Dodge of the City Recreation Department for his fine achievement.

AROUND TOWN

In next week's issue there will be a pre-view of a new community theater group being formed in Northeast Columbus. It is being sponsored by the North Branch YMCA. The yet unnamed group will present "Thurber Carnival" Aug. 9 and 10 in the Woodward Junior High School Theater, 8:30 p.m.

Opening Saturday at the Center of Science and Industry is a new planetarium show, "A Trip To The Moon." Showtimes are Saturday 1:30 and 3:30 p.m.; Sundays at 2:30 and 4:30 p.m.; Mondays at 3:30 and 8 p.m.; and Tuesdays through Fridays at 2:30 p.m.

"Thoroughly Modern Millie" starring Julie Andrews, Carol Channing and Mary Tyler Moore is being held over at the Clinton, College Cinema and University Theaters.

ORGANIZATIONAL NOTES:

American Business Women's Association Plans Dinner

The members of the Rose Capital Chapter of the American Business Women's Association plan a 6:30 p.m. dinner meeting Aug. 6 at the Hotel Fort Hayes.

The reservations chairman is Margaret Ryder.

The manager of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra, Alan McCracken, will be the featured speaker. McCracken will soon leave the Columbus area to assume new duties with the San Diego Symphony Orchestra later this month.

Newly elected officers will assume their duties for the 1968-69 term of office at this meeting.

The new officers are Mrs. Mildred Collins, president; Marjorie Gilbert, vice-president; Mrs. Donald Carnes, recording secretary; Mrs. Edna Anderson, corresponding secretary; and Thelma Judy, treasurer.

The new board has named the following committee chairmanships: banquet, Phyllis VanAtta; budget, Mrs. L. M. Baker; contact, Margaret Ryder; courtesy, Dorothy Lechner; education, Mrs. Edwin C. Allen; membership, Camilla Scofield; music, Mrs. Ralph McClure; program-vocational, Mrs. Jeanne Purnhagen; Rose Rambler bulletin, Evelyn Dilsaver; social, Mrs. William A. Ayers; Boss Night, Polly Karr; Hand of Friendship Tea, Mrs. Ross Cox; and Woman of the Year Tea, Marjorie Gilbert.

CLUB PICNIC

The Order of the Eastern Star Birthday Club will hold its 24th annual picnic Aug. 8 at Westgate Recreation Center, from 5 to 9 p.m.

A covered dish dinner will be served at 6:30, followed by a short business meeting with election of officers and games. Nora Hummell will be in charge.

Eastern Star members who have a birthday in August, and their families, are invited to attend.

PRESIDENTS

Presidents of leading women's organizations throughout Franklin County have been invited to attend a luncheon Tuesday, Aug. 6, in the Grant Room of the Sheraton-Columbus.

Leaders attending the noon luncheon sponsored by the National Foundation-March of Dimes Franklin County Chapter will be asked to express their ideas on the possibility of a one-day leadership conference concerning birth defects.

According to the national foundation, similiar education conferences have been held throughout the country.

The proposed conference being planned for Oct. 3 at the Sheraton-Columbus would feature outstanding speakers and panelists in the field of birth defects research and education.

GOLD STAR

American Gold Star Mothers, Inc., Chapter 1, will hold a regular business meeting Thursday, Aug. 1, at 1 p.m., in room 201, Veterans Memorial Building, with Mrs. William J. Degenhart presiding.

Chapter 1 will sponsor a watermelon party for 100 veterans at the Chillicothe VA Hospital Wednesday, Aug. 14, with Mrs. Ival Cottrill in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Percy Reed will entertain chapter members and friends with a social and games party Thursday, Aug. 22, at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Reed, 2728 Berwick Blvd., at 1 p.m.

Columbus Area Scouts To Take 2000 Mile Trip

Thirty Explorers and six advisors from the Central Ohio Council of the Boy Scouts of America will leave Saturday, Aug. 3, from the Columbus area for a 16-day, 2,000 mile round trip which will take them into the wilderness of Canada's Quetico Provincial Park.

The group will stay at University of Wisconsin and Duluth Air Force Base while on route to the Scout owned and operated Charles Sommers Wilderness Canoe Base, on Moose Lake, 22 miles northeast of Ely, Minn.

Sightseeing on the way will include Indiana's Sand Dune State Park, Wisconsin Dells, and Mesabi Iron Range near Hibbing, Minn.

Upon arrival at the Scout Canoe Base, the entire group, which is divided into three crews, of 10 Explorers and two advisers each, will be issued canoes, paddles, tents, food, and other necessary equipment for a nine day trip consisting of canoeing, portaging from lake to lake, fishing and swimming.

Since the canoe base is only three miles south of the Canadian Border, almost all of the nine days in the wilderness area will be spent in Canadian territory.

After returning to the Canoe Base Aug. 14, the contingent will return to Columbus via Michigan, with over night stops at Sawyer, Kinchloe, and Wurtsmuth Air Force Bases in Michigan. Sightseeing will include a boat cruise through "Soo" locks and a tour of old Ft. Mackinac.

The Explorers have participated in two local training sessions as preparation for the trip, first with a 34 mile Mohican River canoe voyage and second with a weekend orientation and practice in canoeing techniques at Camp Greenhills.

The advisors who will accompany the Explorers are Dave Wortendyke, who serves as trip leader, and Bob Hamilton, both from Upper Arlington, John Cornett and Norris Quam from Columbus, Jim Smith from Reynoldsburg, and Chuck Parmenter from Commercial Point.

Area scouts participating include:

From Bexley, Tom Marr.

From the Northwest region: Jim Curry, Glenn E. DeMott, John A. Grant, R. Matt Hamilton, David Hamilton, Alan H. Mercer, Steve A. Myers, Thad Rasche, Dale Wilkin, Charles A. Adams.

David H. Davis, Fredric J. Grant, Steve A. Hatten, Max Heller, Doug L. Hulse, Michael L. Miller, James E. Morgan, Craig R. Peyton, Richard Quam, Daniel R. Volkema, Bruce Wood.

AN INTERPRETATIVE ANALYSIS

What Can Be Done About Welfare?

(Editor's Note: This analysis of welfare has grown out of a continuing investigation into the complex problem of public assistance in our community. This is not a report from sociologists or welfare theorists. But like all segments of the community, newspapers must also take responsibility — and some share of the guilt — for welfare).

A Spectator Special Report

The idea of welfare has always been an integral part of the American experience, long before technology gave rise to the possibility of a welfare state. Slumbering deep in the fiber of American culture, the Judeao-Christian tradition has formed the cornerstone for economic and psychological assistance to the downtrodden.

In the early years of the American experience, London philanthropists were trying to make the colony of Georgia fulfill a European dream of a land which helped the unfortunate. This dream failed in Georgia.

"Lay your shoulders to the wheel," the American writer Thomas Paine declared to his countrymen in 1776. In a land where the wheel and the heart of man carved civilization [illegible] wilderness, those who did not put their shoulders to [illegible]sk were suspect.

The poor still are suspect. And many social thinkers shake their heads in disbelief to consider that in a land far richer than any before some seem doomed to remain in the disinherited land of poverty.

Present Realities

The present welfare system is outdated and often hurts those who are supposed to be helped by programs. This is to say nothing about administrative officials, who also suffer at the hands of the system.

On this issue, it appears, Gov. James Rhodes of Ohio and social experts seem to agree. One writer in a national magazine has called the present system "insane."

Talking about alternatives to the present public assistance program and having to deal with present structures are two different things.

It may be true that the present welfare system provides less than a minimum standard of living and is fraught with bureaucracy (reportedly it takes 75,000 workers to administer funds), but it is also true that until new ways of administering funds are realized the present system is the only one we can change.

Many social experts talk about a "guaranteed family income" as the most practical way to eliminate the current welfare system. One local expert, however, thinks such a plan is a long way off. If Rep. Chalmers Wylie's most recent newsletter is any indication, public attitudes are in opposition to such a program.

Nevertheless, long-range planning and research are absolutely necessary. No piecemeal approach will solve the problem — no cries of jobs for Ohioans will solve the total crisis.

The central question now is: What can be done with the present structure to meet immediate, gnawing needs?

Welfare Facts

There must be a community cleansing of attitudes about welfare recipients — which usually think they are exploiting the program and unwilling to work. Some of our highest state officials have used the terms "welfare handouts" and "doles" — words which betray their misunderstanding.

Let's examine the facts about welfare.

- Welfare recipients don't want jobs.

False. The poor earn some $12 billion a year and get $6 billion in payments.

- Welfare recipients are dishonest in stating needs.

False. A national study ordered by Congress in 1961 showed fewer than five percent of all AFDC recipients were found to be ineligible.

- Most welfare programs go to people who could work.

False. According to national statistics, 25 per cent of recipients are over 65; 16 per cent are blind or disabled; 45 per cent are children; and 14 per cent are parents. A 1964 study locally by the League of Women Voters found very few on assistance were eligible for jobs.

- Recipients can easily live off welfare payments.

False. A 1966 study by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed a family of four living in the city needed $9,376 for a "moderate standard of living." The average welfare payment in urban areas for a family of four is $1800 a year. In Mississippi the average is $388 a year.

- If the recipients had more money they would misuse it.

False. In countries with guaranteed family allowances, surveys show parents on welfare spend the majority of funds on their children.

- It is sound fiscal policy to limit welfare spending.

False. To cut back on spending at the expense of services is to eliminate a potential consumer. In reality, government austerity merely shifts the economic burden to the private sector and keeps people from being self-sufficient.

- The State of Ohio is doing all it can for welfare.

True and false. Under present spending priorities, this is true. But the state is not meeting the standards it set for a "minimum standard of living."

But to hope for such immediate revolution in structures is foolish. Despite the existence of dedicated social workers — who are burdened with bureaucracy, poor pay rates and medieval community attitudes — the system is not meeting

Developer Predicts Obetz Total Employment

This statement, made by G. R. Galloway, a member of the partnership that is developing an industrial park in the village on the acreage formerly owned by Herb Travis, which may be slightly premature is—at least — a logical prediction.

GALLOWAY appeared at Obetz council this week to work out misunderstandings existing between village officials and the developers which had arisen after construction was begun without local blessing.

Stating that "We haven't anything but confusion," Galloway was adamant that, with the village prohibited by Ohio law to approve his plans, that the okay issued by the State is the only green light needed for the construction now underway.

He conceded, however, that possibly village-issued building permits are in line and expressed the willingness to apply for such—if and when local officials determine the cost of same. (Solicitor Henry Maser is going to study past legislation to learn whether an ordinance governing commercial construction has ever been passed).

FOLLOWING THE often rather stormy negotiations (at one point Galloway stated he felt his construction superintendent whom he described as a "loud Irishman" was more than a match for Joe Gallione, local building inspector) the developer revealed to The Spectator the scope of the industrial development planned.

The present warehouse now going up, with its attendant truck service building, will involve about 150,000 feet of floor space.

Upon completion, it will be leased to a nationally known merchandising chain to whose specifications the building has been blueprinted.

WHEN IN OPERATION, (March, at the outside) the warehouse will provide employment for 300 persons.

Stating that Prudential, the largest insurance company in the world, and the Huntington National Bank, Columbus' second largest bank, both have "a hunk of money" in the project, Galloway emphasized that village fears of violation of building codes are groundless.

He described the long range plans for the Park as "up town" with two other commercial projects already planned for the acreage which, with the warehouse, will equal the present tax duplicate of the entire village.

"There aren't enough people in Obetz to fill the jobs that will open up," he said, in his contention that unemployment is on its way out.

HE LATER RETURNED to council chambers to offer a proposition involving the development company's rejuvenating the municipal water plant and doubling its capacity at an estimated cost of $172,000.

According to his proposal, the improved plant which would serve the entire village —including the Park—would be owned and operated by Obetz, with a percentage of profits being earmarked to at least partially reimburse the developer for the initial investment.

Council was noncommittal on the idea, with at least one councilman indicating that although it might be acceptable to the village, he was quite aware construction of a private water system for the Park alone would cost Galloway and his partners $400,000.

GALLOWAY HAD a word of warning for council earlier in the evening as it prepared to employ the services of Franklin Engineering Ltd. to keep a professional eye on developers). The cost will be passed on to the developer).

Claiming there are developers "running from here to Halifax" to find villages without legislation prohibiting sub-standard streets, Galloway stated Obetz should pass on more than their actual engineering costs to developers. Thus council can provide a reserve fund against builders that pull out at the last minute, leaving engineering costs to be paid by the village.

It is doubtful whether Galloway's unsolicited advice was particularly welcomed by the developers of the residential subdivision, Elk's Acres.

CLIFF ELKINS and his attorney, James Maxwell, Jr., had already expressed a very normal curiosity about how much Obetz' contracted engineerng services were going to cost in their development off Alum Creek Drive which is platted for about 600 lots —and hopefully a neighborhood shopping center.

They were present in an attempt to gain final approval for the subdivision which will contain a large proportion of mobile homes.

Although this approval was withheld until Franklin can scrutinize the plans, Gallione was overruled in his contention that no homes can go into place before streets are completed.

COUNCIL AGREED with the subdivider that the demand to subject new streets to heavy construction is an impractical one.

In turn, Maxwell as chief spokesman for Elkins assured council of the intention to meet all village specifications and to do what is necessary to make the subdivision "palatable" to their neighbors to the south, the Leroy Cunninghams.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham, stating they were defending an investment of $25,000 in their home were protesting the present plans, claiming they were not identical to those originally submitted — in their presence — to council.

POINTING TO the money and hard work that had gone into their improvement of their property since its purchase 20 years ago when the ground was so barren that "even jackrabbits carried knapsacks" the Cunninghams charged council has not "gone to bat" to protect their property.

With appointments set up between the subdividers and Gallione as well as with the Cunninghams, the subdividers are apparently bent on a conciliatory path.

Temporary peace established with developers in the area, council passed the ordinance that will place an $198,000 sewer bond issue on the November ballot and laid plans to employ radar to end speeding on Lancaster Street.

Here's What Madison Local Can Do If State Gives OK

Madison Local School Board firmed up its plans to obtain state assistance to meet its construction needs when it met this week.

To conform with a request by the State Department of Education, the board took a second look at its earlier projection of needs through 1972 and made some revisions.

SUPT. PHIL Williams reports the board is now seeking funding for four new elementary schools (including three new sites); the addition of art, music and multi-purpose rooms and kitchen to Dunloe, Madison and Asbury Elementaries; an addition to the junior high to allow its pre-determined conversion to a senior high and building of a second senior high in the Blacklick Estates area.

Following this plan would entail using both the Groveport-Madison High School and Groveport-Madison Elementary as a junior high facility serving — at least through 1972 — the entire district.

ASKED TO PINPOINT the elementary sites, Williams could say only that the Ohde site (already owned) on Hendron Road would be used, a second one sought in Blacklick Estates, a third in the northern part of the district and a fourth south of old 33, probably to serve the eastern part of the present Groveport-Madison elementary attendance area.

Although costs have not yet been estimated, Williams made an educated guess that speaking of this program is talking about at least $6 million.

Through the state aid which will be available to Ohio schools on a priority of need basis, a district bonds itself up to capacity and then votes a 22-year one-half mill levy and the state picks up the tab. This half-mill represents its only obligation to repay the funds received from the state.

In another educated guess, Williams estimates the average tax duplicate of the district at $60 million over the next 22 years.

The half-mill charge on this sum would be $30,000.

These figures mean roughly that for an investment of slightly less of $1 million paid over the next 22 years, the district could receive $6 million in new construction money immediately.

WILLIAMS stressed that granting of the District's request is anything but certain.

State funds are reported available for only four to seven of the 31 Ohio school districts which have applied.

He did state, however, that the guessing game should soon be over, with the State Department expected to make its recommendations to the State Board of Education before it meets Sept. 9.

In other action the board moved to take a stand against the request for apartment zoning for 19.104 acres immediately east of the Madison Elementary School and a similar request for acreage behind Berwick Shopping Plaza. (See zoning story on this page).

The POSITIONS are being taken on the grounds that high density housing will increase the financial problems of the district.

The board will meet in regular session Monday, Aug. 10.

Mrs. Barker 'First Lady'

Mrs. Robert Barker was seated as a member of the Madison Local School Board this week.

Mrs. Barker is the first woman to serve in this capacity in recent history.

She was appointed to fill the vacancy created when her husband resigned after being recalled as a Reservist to active duty recently.

Phil Williams, superintendent of the district, indicated Mrs. Barker did not "inherit" the position, but earned it in competition with others interested in serving. She was selected on basis of her interviews with board members.

Mrs. Barker is remaining at home, 5027 Harbor Blvd., while her husband is overseas.

Rezoning Hearing Set For Wednesday

Residents of the Winchester Estate area adjacent to Berwick Shopping Plaza are planning a trip to City Hall bright and early next Wednesday morning.

At 9 a.m. the Development Commission will hear the rezoning application filed by Lester J. Erlenbach, 365 N. Cassady, for rezoning of 26.2 acres south of Refugee Road and back of the Shopping Center.

ACCORDING TO the request, the applicant wishes the zoning changed from R-1 to AR-1 which will permit construction of 36 apartment units to the acre.

Homeowners of the adjacent subdivision which was recently annexed to Columbus, object to the proposal on the grounds the only access to the acreage is by way of Hampton and Wessex Court. Both are residential streets and not designed to accommodate a heavy flow of traffic.

SO INFORMED, the Development Commission tabled the application when it was heard earlier this summer.

Toner explained the request was tabled rather than turned down to give the developer the chance to come up with better access to the "banana" shaped acreage bordered to the west by New 33.

In spite of the encouragingly negative reaction from the planners, interested residents believe as little as possible should be left to chance and are hoping their presence will lend support — if needed — to their position.

Ashville Opens Bids For Chlorine Beds

The apparent low bid is that of the Char-Mac, Inc., of Columbus in the amount of $13,870, a figure $1,130 under estimates.

HOWEVER, a final decision awaits recommendations of the consulting engineers, Burgess and Niple, and will be formally acted upon next Monday at a joint meeting of Council and the Board of Public Affairs.

The decision to add the chlorinating process to the system was made in compliance with the Ohio Board of Water Pollution which objects to the impurity of the effluent as it presently flows into the Scioto.

The only official [illegible]n of note taken this week was agreement to make city water available to residences planned by Masters Homes of Columbus in the Kline-Kuhlwein Addition. Benefiting homeowners will be assessed for the extension of service.

DISCUSSION WAS held, but nothing settled, on the use of the old freezer plant donated to the village by Dr. Chester Rockey.

Although local officials had hoped to be able to convert it into a municipal facility including office space, it appears funds are not available for a project of this scope.

Among the uses now under consideration is its adaptation as a "Youth Canteen."

COUNCIL is following with interest the reports of Nola Julick of the Council and Mayor Harold Hartley on progress of their meetings with Franklin County Regional Planning Commission.

RPC is working with Ashville and other political entities in Central Ohio to establish the coordinated area planning necessary to merit consideration for federal aid in solving local problems such as utility and street improvement.

C-W Board Meeting Set

The session of the Canal Winchester School Board originally scheduled for Monday, Aug. 12 has been moved to Tuesday, Aug. 13, at 8 p.m.

Supt. Carl Miller announced the change in the belief that the meeting may be of general interest to the public.

The matter of the amount of an operating levy to be presented at the November election heads the agenda.

Madison Local Registration Immediately After Aug. 16

Any student who will be enrolled in the Madison Local School District this fall and is not registered is asked to do so as soon as possible after Friday, Aug. 16, between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Kindergarten children and those in grades one through six can register at the elementary school which they will attend. Parents with questions concerning attendance areas should call the central office at 836-5371.

ALTHOUGH HITTING has been the '68 Jets' mainstay, the local IL entry has displayed its share of expert moundsmen. 'Spectator Day' To Be Aug. 25 At Jet Stadium

Sunday, Aug. 25, will be "Spectator Newspaper Day" at Jet Stadium!

The Spectator Newspapers invite all their readers to enjoy exciting Columbus Jet baseball on that date with a special reduction in admission.

By clipping the coupon you see below and presenting it to any ticket window at the stadium on Aug. 25, fans will receive 50 cents off the price of any seat in the house.

Ticket prices are $1.50 (general admission), $1.75 (reserved seats) and $2 (box seats).

We think we've picked a good "day" for baseball fans as the Jets will be playing host to their intra-state rival—the league-leading Toledo Mud Hens for the last time this season.

Game time is 2 p.m. and remember, 50 cents off your admission ticket with the coupon in this newspaper.

Join us at the stadium on Aug. 25 as the Jets battle for their third pennant and eighth first-division finish since they entered the International League in 1955.

Thirty Explorers and six advisors from the Central Ohio Council of the Boy Scouts of America will leave Saturday, Aug. 3, from the Columbus area for a 16-day, 2,000 mile round trip which will take them into the wilderness of Canada's Quetico Provincial Park.

The group will stay at University of Wisconsin and Duluth Air Force Base while on route to the Scout owned and operated Charles Sommers Wilderness Canoe Base, on Moose Lake, 22 miles northeast of Ely, Minn.

Sightseeing on the way will include Indiana's Sand Dune State Park, Wisconsin Dells, and Mesabi Iron Range near Hibbing, Minn.

Upon arrival at the Scout Canoe Base, the entire group, which is divided into three crews, of 10 Explorers and two advisers each, will be issued canoes, paddles, tents, food, and other necessary equipment for a nine day trip consisting of canoeing, portaging from lake to lake, fishing and swimming.

Since the canoe base is only three miles south of the Canadian Border, almost all of the nine days in the wilderness area will be spent in Canadian territory.

After returning to the Canoe Base Aug. 14, the contingent will return to Columbus via Michigan, with over night stops at Sawyer, Kincheloe, and Wurtsmuth Air Force Bases in Michigan. Sightseeing will include a boat cruise through "Soo" locks and a tour of old Ft. Mackinac.

The Explorers have participated in two local training sessions as preparation for the trip, first with a 34 mile Mohican River canoe voyage and second with a weekend orientation and practice in canoeing techniques at Camp Greenhills.

The advisors who will accompany the Explorers are Dave Wortendyke, who serves as trip leader, and Bob Hamilton, both from Upper Arlington, John Cornett and Norris Quam from Columbus, Jim Smith from Reynoldsburg, and Chuck Parmenter from Commercial Point.

Area scouts participating include:

From Bexley, Tom Marr.

From the Northwest region: Jim Curry, Glenn E. DeMott, John A. Grant, R. Matt Hamilton, David Hamilton, Alan H. Mercer, Steve A. Myers, Thad Rasche, Dale Wilkin, Charles A. Adams.

David H. Davis, Fredric J. Grant, Steve A. Hatten, Max Heller, Doug L. Hulse, Michael L. Miller, James E. Morgan, Craig R. Peyton, Richard Quam, Daniel R. Volkema, Bruce Wood.

AN INTERPRETATIVE ANALYSIS

What Can Be Done About Welfare?

(Editor's Note: This analysis of welfare has grown out of a continuing investigation into the complex problem of public assistance in our community. This is not a report from sociologists or welfare theorists. But like all segments of the community, newspapers must also take responsibility — and some share of the guilt — for welfare).

A Spectator Special Report

The idea of welfare has always been an integral part of the American experience, long before technology gave rise to the possibility of a welfare state. Slumbering deep in the fiber of American culture, the Judeao-Christian tradition has formed the cornerstone for economic and psychological assistance to the downtrodden.

In the early years of the American experience, London philanthropists were trying to make the colony of Georgia fulfill a European dream of a land which helped the unfortunate. This dream failed in Georgia.

"Lay your shoulders to the wheel," the American writer Thomas Paine declared to his countrymen in 1776. In a land where the wheel and the heart of man carved civilization [illegible] wilderness, those who did not put their shoulders to [illegible]sk were suspect.

The poor still are suspect. And many social thinkers shake their heads in disbelief to consider that in a land far richer than any before some seem doomed to remain in the disinherited land of poverty.

Present Realities

The present welfare system is outdated and often hurts those who are supposed to be helped by programs. This is to say nothing about administrative officials, who also suffer at the hands of the system.

On this issue, it appears, Gov. James Rhodes of Ohio and social experts seem to agree. One writer in a national magazine has called the present system "insane."

Talking about alternatives to the present public assistance program and having to deal with present structures are two different things.

It may be true that the present welfare system provides less than a minimum standard of living and is fraught with bureaucracy (reportedly it takes 75,000 workers to administer funds), but it is also true that until new ways of administering funds are realized the present system is the only one we can change.

Many social experts talk about a "guaranteed family income" as the most practical way to eliminate the current welfare system. One local expert, however, thinks such a plan is a long way off. If Rep. Chalmers Wylie's most recent newsletter is any indication, public attitudes are in opposition to such a program.

Nevertheless, long-range planning and research are absolutely necessary. No piecemeal approach will solve the problem — no cries of jobs for Ohioans will solve the total crisis.

The central question now is: What can be done with the present structure to meet immediate, gnawing needs?

Welfare Facts

There must be a community cleansing of attitudes about welfare recipients — which usually think they are exploiting the program and unwilling to work. Some of our highest state officials have used the terms "welfare handouts" and "doles" — words which betray their misunderstanding.

Let's examine the facts about welfare.

- Welfare recipients don't want jobs.

False. The poor earn some $12 billion a year and get $6 billion in payments.

- Welfare recipients are dishonest in stating needs.

False. A national study ordered by Congress in 1961 showed fewer than five percent of all AFDC recipients were found to be ineligible.

- Most welfare programs go to people who could work.

False. According to national statistics, 25 per cent of recipients are over 65; 16 per cent are blind or disabled; 45 per cent are children; and 14 per cent are parents. A 1964 study locally by the League of Women Voters found very few on assistance were eligible for jobs.

- Recipients can easily live off welfare payments.

False. A 1966 study by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed a family of four living in the city needed $9,376 for a "moderate standard of living." The average welfare payment in urban areas for a family of four is $1800 a year. In Mississippi the average is $388 a year.

- If the recipients had more money they would misuse it.

- It is sound fiscal policy to limit welfare spending.

False. To cut back on spending at the expense of services is to eliminate a potential consumer. In reality, government austerity merely shifts the economic burden to the private sector and keeps people from being self-sufficient.

- The State of Ohio is doing all it can for welfare.

True and false. Under present spending priorities, this is true. But the state is not meeting the standards it set for a "minimum standard of living."

But to hope for such immediate revolution in structures is foolish. Despite the existence of dedicated social workers — who are burdened with bureaucracy, poor pay rates and medieval community attitudes — the system is not meeting

Developer Predicts Obetz Total Employment

This statement, made by G. R. Galloway, a member of the partnership that is developing an industrial park in the village on the acreage formerly owned by Herb Travis, which may be slightly premature is—at least — a logical prediction.

GALLOWAY appeared at Obetz council this week to work out misunderstandings existing between village officials and the developers which had arisen after construction was begun without local blessing.

Stating that "We haven't anything but confusion," Galloway was adamant that, with the village prohibited by Ohio law to approve his plans, that the okay issued by the State is the only green light needed for the construction now underway.

He conceded, however, that possibly village-issued building permits are in line and expressed the willingness to apply for such—if and when local officials determine the cost of same. (Solicitor Henry Maser is going to study past legislation to learn whether an ordinance governing commercial construction has ever been passed).

FOLLOWING THE often rather stormy negotiations (at one point Galloway stated he felt his construction superintendent whom he described as a "loud Irishman" was more than a match for Joe Gallione, local building inspector) the developer revealed to The Spectator the scope of the industrial development planned.

The present warehouse now going up, with its attendant truck service building, will involve about 150,000 feet of floor space.

Upon completion, it will be leased to a nationally known merchandising chain to whose specifications the building has been blueprinted.

WHEN IN OPERATION, (March, at the outside) the warehouse will provide employment for 300 persons.

Stating that Prudential, the largest insurance company in the world, and the Huntington National Bank, Columbus' second largest bank, both have "a hunk of money" in the project, Galloway emphasized that village fears of violation of building codes are groundless.

He described the long range plans for the Park as "up town" with two other commercial projects already planned for the acreage which, with the warehouse, will equal the present tax duplicate of the entire village.

"There aren't enough people in Obetz to fill the jobs that will open up," he said, in his contention that unemployment is on its way out.

HE LATER RETURNED to council chambers to offer a proposition involving the development company's rejuvenating the municipal water plant and doubling its capacity at an estimated cost of $172,000.

According to his proposal, the improved plant which would serve the entire village —including the Park—would be owned and operated by Obetz, with a percentage of profits being earmarked to at least partially reimburse the developer for the initial investment.

Council was noncommittal on the idea, with at least one councilman indicating [illegible] although it might be [illegible]ble to the village, [illegible] was quite aware constructi[illegible] of a private water system for the Park alone would cost Galloway and his partners $400,000.

GALLOWAY HAD a word of warning for council earlier in the evening as it prepared to employ the services of Franklin Engineering Ltd. to keep a professional eye on developers). The cost will be passed on to the developer).

Claiming there are developers "running from here to Halifax" to find villages without legislation prohibiting sub-standard streets, Galloway stated Obetz should pass on more than their actual engineering costs to developers. Thus council can provide a reserve fund against builders that pull out at the last minute, leaving engineering costs to be paid by the village.

It is doubtful whether Galloway's unsolicited advice was particularly welcomed by the developers of the residential subdivision, Elk's Acres.

CLIFF ELKINS and his attorney, James Maxwell, Jr., had already expressed a very normal curiosity about how much Obetz' contracted engineerng services were going to cost in their development off Alum Creek Drive which is platted for about 600 lots —and hopefully a neighborhood shopping center.

They were present in an attempt to gain final approval for the subdivision which will contain a large proportion of mobile homes.

Although this approval was withheld until Franklin can scrutinize the plans, Gallione was overruled in his contention that no homes can go into place before streets are completed.

COUNCIL AGREED with the subdivider that the demand to subject new streets to heavy construction is an impractical one.

In turn, Maxwell as chief spokesman for Elkins assured council of the intention to meet all village specifications and to do what is necessary to make the subdivision "palatable" to their neighbors to the south, the Leroy Cunninghams.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham, stating they were defending an investment of $25,000 in their home were protesting the present plans, claiming they were not identical to those originally submitted — in their presence — to council.

POINTING TO the money and hard work that had gone into their improvement of their property since its purchase 20 years ago when the ground was so barren that "even jackrabbits carried knapsacks" the Cunninghams charged council has not "gone to bat" to protect their property.

With appointments set up between the subdividers and Gallione as well as with the Cunninghams, the subdividers are apparently bent on a conciliatory path.

Temporary peace established with developers in the area, council passed the ordinance that will place an $198,000 sewer bond issue on the November ballot and laid plans to employ radar to end speeding on Lancaster Street.

Here's What Madison Local Can Do If State Gives OK

Madison Local School Board firmed up its plans to obtain state assistance to meet its construction needs when it met this week.

To conform with a request by the State Department of Education, the board took a second look at its earlier projection of needs through 1972 and made some revisions.

SUPT. PHIL Williams reports the board is now seeking funding for four new elementary schools (including three new sites); the addition of art, music and multi-purpose rooms and kitchen to Dunloe, Madison and Asbury Elementaries; an addition to the junior high to allow its pre-determined conversion to a senior high and building of a second senior high in the Blacklick Estates area.

Following this plan would entail using both the Groveport-Madison High School and Groveport-Madison Elementary as a junior high facility serving — at least through 1972 — the entire district.

ASKED TO PINPOINT the elementary sites, Williams could say only that the Ohde site (already owned) on Hendron Road would be used, a second one sought in Blacklick Estates, a third in the northern part of the district and a fourth south of old 33, probably to serve the eastern part of the present Groveport-Madison elementary attendance area.

Although costs have not yet been estimated, Williams made an educated guess that speaking of this program is talking about at least $6 million.

Through the state aid which will be available to Ohio schools on a priority of need basis, a district bonds itself up to capacity and then votes a 22-year one-half mill levy and the state picks up the tab. This half-mill represents its only obligation to repay the funds received from the state.

The half-mill charge on this sum would be $30,000.

These figures mean roughly that for an investment of slightly less of $1 million paid over the next 22 years, the district could receive $6 million in new construction money immediately.

WILLIAMS stressed that granting of the District's request is anything but certain.

State funds are reported available for only four to seven of the 31 Ohio school districts which have applied.

He did state, however, that the guessing game should soon be over, with the State Department expected to make its recommendations to the State Board of Education before it meets Sept. 9.

In other action the board moved to take a stand against the request for apartment zoning for 19.104 acres immediately east of the Madison Elementary School and a similar request for acreage behind Berwick Shopping Plaza. (See zoning story on this page).

The POSITIONS are being taken on the grounds that high density housing will increase the financial problems of the district.

The board will meet in regular session Monday, Aug. 26.

[illegible]ezoning Hearing Set For Wednesday

Residents of the Winchester Estate area adjacent to Berwick Shopping Plaza are planning a trip to City Hall bright and early next Wednesday morning.

At 9 a.m. the Development Commission will hear the rezoning application filed by Lester J. Erlenbach, 365 N. Cassady, for rezoning of 26.2 acres south of Refugee Road and back of the Shopping Center.

ACCORDING TO the request, the applicant wishes the zoning changed from R-1 to AR-1 which will permit construction of 36 apartment units to the acre.

Homeowners of the adjacent subdivision which was recently annexed to Columbus, object to the proposal on the grounds the only access to the acreage is by way of Hampton and Wessex Court. Both are residential streets and not designed to accommodate a heavy flow of traffic.

SO INFORMED, the Development Commission tabled the application when it was heard earlier this summer.

Toner explained the request was tabled rather than turned down to give the developer the chance to come up with better access to the "banana" shaped acreage bordered to the west by New 33.

In spite of the encouragingly negative reaction from the planners, interested residents believe as little as possible should be left to chance and are hoping their presence will lend support — if needed — to their position.

Mrs. Barker 'First Lady'

Mrs. Robert Barker was seated as a member of the Madison Local School Board this week.

Mrs. Barker is the first woman to serve in this capacity in recent history.

She was appointed to fill the vacancy created when her husband resigned after being recalled as a Reservist to active duty recently.

Phil Williams, superintendent of the district, indicated Mrs. Barker did not "inherit" the position, but earned it in competition with others interested in serving. She was selected on basis of her interviews with board members.

Mrs. Barker is remaining at home, 5027 Harbor Blvd., while her husband is overseas.

Ashville Opens Bids For Chlorine Beds

The apparent low bid is that of the Char-Mac, Inc., of Columbus in the amount of $13,870, a figure $1,130 under estimates.

HOWEVER, a final decision awaits recommendations of the consulting engineers, Burgess and Niple, and will be formally acted upon next Monday at a joint meeting of Council and the Board of Public Affairs.

The decision to add the chlorinating process to the system was made in compliance with the Ohio Board of Water Pollution which objects to the impurity of the effluent as it presently flows into the Scioto.

The only official action of note taken this week was agreement to make city water available to residences planned by Masters Homes of Columbus in the Kline-Kuhlwein Addition. Benefiting homeowners will be assessed for the extension of service.

DISCUSSION WAS held, but nothing settled, on the use of the old freezer plant donated to the village by Dr. Chester Rockey.

Although local officials had hoped to be able to convert it into a municipal facility including office space, it appears funds are not available for a project of this scope.

Among the uses now under consideration is its adaptation as a "Youth Canteen."

COUNCIL is following with interest the reports of Nola Julick of the Council and Mayor Harold Hartley on progress of their meetings with Franklin County Regional Planning Commission.

RPC is working with Ashville and other political entities in Central Ohio to establish the coordinated area planning necessary to merit consideration for federal aid in solving local problems such as utility and street improvement.

C-W Board Meeting Set

The session of the Canal Winchester School Board originally scheduled for Monday, Aug. 12 has been moved to Tuesday, Aug. 13, at 8 p.m.

Supt. Carl Miller announced the change in the belief that the meeting may be of general interest to the public.

Madison Local Registration Immediately After Aug. 16

Any student who will be enrolled in the Madison Local School District this fall and is not registered is asked to do so as soon as possible after Friday, Aug. 16, between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Kindergarten children and those in grades one through six can register at the elementary school which they will attend. Parents with questions concerning attendance areas should call the central office at 836-5371.

'Spectator Day' To Be Aug. 25 At Jet Stadium

Sunday, Aug. 25, will be "Spectator Newspaper Day" at Jet Stadium!

The Spectator Newspapers invite all their readers to enjoy exciting Columbus Jet baseball on that date with a special reduction in admission.

By clipping the coupon you see below and presenting it to any ticket window at the stadium on Aug. 25, fans will receive 50 cents off the price of any seat in the house.

Ticket prices are $1.50 (general admission), $1.75 (reserved seats) and $2 (box seats).

We think we've picked a good "day" for baseball fans as the Jets will be playing host to their intra-state rival—the league-leading Toledo Mud Hens for the last time this season.

Game time is 2 p.m. and remember, 50 cents off your admission ticket with the coupon in this newspaper.

Join us at the stadium on Aug. 25 as the Jets battle for their third pennant and eighth first-division finish since they entered the International League in 1955.

CPS Offers Public $13,000,000 Fare

At the lead of Mrs. Barbara Levenson, Columbus Public School Board has likened its past actions to those of an overly thrifty housewife who apologetically asks her husband for an inadequate allowance and then faces his wrath over a daily fare of beans.

The comparison came this week with the board's preparation to place an 8.2 mill operating levy on the fall ballot to make possible a $71 million budget for 1969.

SCRUTINY of the tentative budget indicates the proposed increase of $13 million in expenditures won't put much caviar before Columbus' school children — although with what appears to be a five percent raise in salaries it may put a little steak on some faculty tables.

HOWEVER, it is even more obvious that local taxpayers may not rest too well after digesting the fact that "quality education" is going to cost them a hike of almost 30 percent in school taxes.

The proposal is made in an effort to implement not only the recommendations of the OSU Advisory Commission's report accorded priority and improved instructional program developed by the CPS staff but to provide a salary schedule that will attract and hold qualified teachers.

THE BOARD'S goal is complicated by a relatively low tax duplicate per pupil which makes high millage inevitable if expenditure per pupil is to compare favorably with that of other city districts.

"Possibly our difficulty lies within the fact that we just haven't had everything other districts are accustomed to— elementary art, musical and physical education teachers and guidance counselors at this level," Dr. Harold Eibling, superintendent, speculated after this week's board meeting.

Expressing the view that these programs and other educational advantages can be offered only if the public is willing to pay for them, Dr. Eibling was emphatic he has not — and will not — indulge in the illegality of deficit financing.

RELATING THAT several years back the district, operating on a multi-million budget, ended the year with only a few cents over $37 in the till — "but $37 in the black, not red" — Eibling faced the possibilities of voters' nixing the levy in November.

"If it fails, cut backs will begin immediately," he stated, indicating that the first step would be failure to employ teachers to fill the vacancies created by the normal attrition rate which averages one teacher each school day.

Dr. Watson Walker of the board evidently saw no such threat to the proposal when he took issue during the meeting with Frank Langdon who spoke of "IF the issue passes."

LANGDON—AT least publicly—is apparently the only member of the board who has any doubts about the package the board has prepared for public consumption, indicating he personally favored a lesser levy but had no choice but to support the majority.

Langdon expressed some satisfaction that the proposed budget does not include financing for the more controversial recommendations of the OSU study — such as busing of students only to achieve racial balance and taking over of Fort Hayes as a family-oriented learning center.

With the increase in instructional and administrative costs totaling over $10 million and contributions to retirement absorbing another $1.35 million of the $13 million raise most of the proposed improvements involve fields where additional personnel are required.

Briefly these recommendations include:

- Assignment of elementary art, music and physical education teachers throughout the city, doubling of special inner-city programs, expansion of reading improvement staff and employment of additional lay readers and teachers' aides.
- Curriculum expansion
- Free summer school
- Broadening of program for emotionally disturbed children
- New testing programs
- Intensive instruction supervision, step-up of planning and evaluation, in-service training for teachers and research and feasibility studies.
- Busing to school with unused capacity
- Acceleration in recruitment of Negro personnel
- Strengthening of communications

the total rehabilitative needs of recipients. Few institutions are.

Case In Point

It is no longer a question whether welfare in Franklin County has reached the crisis stage. The "welfare crisis," according to one National Association of Social Workers' publication, has been such in this county for eight years.

Former welfare workers — including supervisors and research specialists — know this crisis firsthand. Many of them resigned or were fired because of it. Others—including union members or university personnel — have long been dissecting problems. Two welfare administrators trying to give an optimistic picture of the welfare department nevertheless had to admit that the staff situation "has never been ideal," and they were trying to "build the staff to satisfactory levels."

And while it may appear a "honeymoon period" is in effect, the truth is that the welfare situation is as potentially explosive as ever. We are simply not hearing about it as often.

A letter written to the editor of a local newspaper Feb. 7, 1968 called the welfare situation a "conspiracy of silence . . . Most of all, the news media; why is it so strangely timid?" The writer asks a valid question, one which the press should correct.

Statistics concerning the extent of staff turnover since the strike vary. Criticizing those who "guess at the situation," a state official says the county agency showed a net gain in employes of 46 in the first four months of 1968 as compared to 21 gained during the same period in 1967. The NAACP, however, says it has "documented proof" that 25 out of 36 social workers with master's degrees have left the department or been fired since June, 1967. The Spectator has a list of 25 MSW workers who have left the department since that time.

What is causing this crisis?

Every group has its own set of answers. A former personnel director of the FCWD said the sore spots were internal administrative use of people, pay checks and morale. Other reasons cited include: conflicting philosophies of what welfare is; community attitudes; an underpaid staff; lack of a total administrative plan; lack of protection for employes outside the union; disregard for long-range fiscal planning; and the system itself. Probably only fully staffed research teams could explain final reasons.

And what about the recipients of welfare? As the debate grows about the system, what about them? It is estimated that during this year, 5.3 per cent of Franklin County's population will be served by the welfare department. Are they the group most hurt by the crisis?

While welfare and political leaders claim the common purpose of welfare is to get people off relief, the question must be posed: how is this goal possible in the midst of such a crisis?

14 Suggestions

In the belief that social experts have not yet solved the welfare problems of this county, we are suggesting a 14-point plan of possible directions.

These are not dogmatic assertions and some may not be feasible. The suggestions are not listed in order of importance.

1. The 1961 "One Hundred Man Citizen Report On The Franklin County Welfare Department" noted there may be a great deal more public acceptance of welfare than newspapers would lead people to believe.

Nevertheless, it appears that an undetermined segment of this community still think of welfare recipients in derogatory terms. A solid PR performance must redirect community attitudes toward the needs of people and away from stereotypes.

One step for consideration is to change the name of the welfare department to Franklin County Family Services.

2. The welfare department is making attempts to serve the needs of clients on a neighborhood basis as part of a decentralization program. This is a positive step which must be pursued.

3. The welfare department is instituting a declarative form for clients as a way of establishing need for services. This is a much needed step.

4. A coalition of welfare directors in Ohio counties must present the State Welfare Department with a unified analysis of problems and possibilities.

5. A Welfare Advisory Board should be given policy-making power and not be politically controlled. The board also should be fairly representative of all the community.

6. The National Association of Social Workers' suit anticipated against the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare should be used as a last resort if other efforts fail.

7. The key to power is organization. There should be an Urban Welfare Coalition made up of social service agencies, churches, poverty organizations, business and university to tackle the question of welfare.

One more massive research report on welfare may be needed, but it will go the way of the Federal Riot Commission Report unless action-programs are built in.

8. A truce should be called between all groups now fighting each other over welfare. Reconciliation is absolutely necessary.

9. In-service training should be maintained and increased at the welfare department.

10. The labor dispute must be settled. There can be no lasting change in structure until a mutual agreement is reached.

11. The long-range legislative changes in the administration of welfare funds should be the object of immediate research.

12. The possibility of a final solution to welfare problems rests with the overall reform of the state and county system of revenue raising.

13. It has been demonstrated that better service to clients results from reduced caseloads. And reduced case loads stem from a fully staffed department and adequate funding.

14. Research in the welfare department should be a top priority. In addition, more research should clarify policy-making powers.

An efficiency research team should be brought in to analyze problems.

Want To See Jets Play?

Ed Hahn and Bill Lares, first and second vice-president respectively of the almost new Hamilton Township Lions Club are giving Lions Day at Jet Stadium a 60 ticket boost.

They are distributing the tickets to youngsters of the area who want to see the Jets play Tuesday, Aug. 13, on a first-come, first-served basis.

Lares states that a free bus ride goes along with each ticket. The time and place of bus pick up can be learned when the tickets are distributed.

Madison Citizens Turn Back Millage Question To Board

About 50 persons showed up last week when citizens of the Madison Local School District were invited to meet with administrators and board members to discuss the District's financial needs.

According to Supt. Phil Williams, 80 percent of those present indicated they recognized the need for additional operating levy which the board is anticipated to present to the voters at the fall elections.

AFTER A GENERAL session at which charts were used to show the revenue that can be utilized with additional taxes ranging from one through nine mills, the group went into work sessions directed by Williams, his administrative assistant, Ralph Hudson, and board members John Hummell and Lott Smith.

The consensus of the voters after reconvening appeared to be that the board and administration have at their fingertips the information upon which to base a well-informed estimate of the District's needs, and that the decision concerning number of mills to be asked should come from them.

Williams stated that the tax duplicate, currently listed at $38.6 million is estimated to rise to $40.1 million next year.

HE FURTHER stated that an additional levy of six to six and one-half mills or $250,000 will be required merely to maintain the system at its present educational levy.

The above increase takes into account staffing and operating costs of the 19 new classrooms that will be opened this fall to accommodate the 450 to 500 additional students who, for several years, have annually spiraled enrollment.

It does not make any allowance for the increase in teacher salaries already recommended by the members of the Madison Local Education Association for themselves as well as non-certificated personnel.

ASKED HOW INSISTENT the teachers' association is about their proposed pay hike the superintendent stated that he did not believe he could justify to them a tax increase that did not involve an allowance for salary improvement.

Current beginning scale for a teacher with a bachelor's degree is $5,508. This is $300 lower than that offered by Columbus Public Schools and somewhat lower than neighboring suburban systems with which Madison must also compete for teachers.

Williams stated that he believes the board will take formal action on the number of mills that will be sought at the regular meeting which is set for Wednesday, Aug. 21.

Disclosure Needed

It is imperative that the Internal Revenue Service disclose as much as is legally permissable of its current investigation of possible income tax evasion involving high city officials.

This is not an ordinary case. Involved are this city's highest elected and appointed officers — and obviously, the reputation of the entire city.

While The Spectator Newspapers respect the legal limitations on pre-trial publicity, we strongly urge that the IRS go out of its way to disclose any information that may clear away the uncertainty and anxiety surrounding this investigation.

And, in the same vein, it is up to the Columbus Police Department to be open and candid in its discussion of its case against the three IRS employes arrested in front of a local bar.

Communication

What exactly is housing discrimination?

Webster defines the word "discriminate" as making distinctions in treatment, showing partiality (in favor of) or prejudice (against).

So very much has been written about this concept that it almost seems as if the age of the written word has passed when it comes to housing discrimination.

But after researching, talking, reading and listening to many who are experts in this field, a conclusion has been reached.

Housing discrimination in Columbus and everywhere else in the United States is nothing more than a vicious circle. The circle may start anywhere and yet it is all-inclusive.

A Negro wants to buy a home in an all-white neighborhood. He is up against the homeowner who is worried about what the neighbors think. The neighbors are often split in their thinking as to acceptance or not, or in other words, as to prejudice or not. Those who are not prejudiced, in all sincerity, will stand up and be counted. They will be counted to the point of being "do-gooders." Those who are prejudiced, but often say they are not, will not publicly voice their opposition. Instead, they make harsh, cruel phone calls to the realtors or to the owner, often not daring to give their names, and most often without even bothering to find out anything about the prospective buyers.

And what happens to the realtors? It is they who are always smack in the middle of the whole arena, with pressures from all angles.

It is their business to sell homes, period. They have to make a living too. Either way they go, they are caught in the middle. If they sell anyway, regardless of a strong opposition to it, they are cursed. If they do not sell, they are termed as bigots and prejudiced dealers by others.

The home builders continually plead not to sell one of their homes located in an all-white neighborhood to a Negro, the brokers are in the middle as to telling the owners that the prospective buyer is Negro, and the realtor is left with the whole sphere to consider.

And who is to blame for housing discrimination? No one and everyone. From the do-gooder to the builder to the owner on down.

Some say this is a sickness. But is it? Or is it simply a matter of non-communication, the basic problem of life? Communication and thought.

Written words won't do the trick, nor will riots or speeches or Supreme Court cases. But perhaps finding out who thinks what way and being really concerned about the other guy will.

Intellectual Militancy

Ohio State University has added another course in Negro history, and the surprising development this time is that the course will be presented "from a perspective of black militancy."

Somewhere we recall statements from the Ohio State Board of Trustees about a black militancy which seizes administration buildings and causes havoc on campus.

Apparently the OSU administration has decided it is better to keep militancy on the intellectual level.

With four new courses on black history and culture slated for the autumn quarter at OSU, the university cannot be accused of tokenism.

What is frightening is that the new courses were added after the crisis at OSU, and leaves some wondering whether radical confrontation—however much we deplore it—doesn't produce results.

Let us hope that it will not take another crisis to instill OSU administrators with the belief that dialogue between black and white at the university level is absolutely necessary.

Church Revolution

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Let me tell you why two of my friends have forsaken their callings as ministers and why another close friend is about to leave his pulpit in frustration.

While one of my friends was trying to convince his congregation of their obligation to confront poverty in the community, his parishioners were ready to oust him because he had removed a traditional candle from the altar table. He will not return to the church, although I cannot classify him less of a religious man because he is no longer within the arms of the institution.

Another young minister, whom I have known for five years, asked to leave his church when he found out his congregation objected to his "socialistic" concerns as a member of a child welfare board and an ecumenical church body. He will not remain in the church much longer.

My third friend, now serving a church in a rural area, is thinking about leaving. He made the mistake of participating in the Poor People's Campaign in Washington, D. C. With a solid background in social work, I do not expect him to remain within the religious institution very much longer.

* * *

These three friends are highly symbolic examples of what is happening within the modern church today. They are not unique, as both Time Magazine and Newsweek have illustrated. We call them the "new breed of clergy" and the "restless pastors," although they would be the first to deny anything novel in their approach.

There is a revolution going on today in the church. Those classing themselves "evangelical" or "traditionalist" may hotly decry this revolution—but it is a statistical fact that American churches are in trouble. And they are in trouble from within, from the clergy.

Some may say the churches have never had it so good. The polls (bless their heart) say otherwise. They show a significant degree of discontent with the church as it is on the part of the layman and the clergyman. And seminary officials are some of the first people to realize this crisis. One of the best seminaries in Ohio closed down two years ago because administrative officials felt it no longer was needed or could not make itself pay for upkeep.

Part of the reason for the crisis in the church is a political — and not religious — factor. Church conservatives say the church has a historic role to play and any attempt to "be relevant" smacks of retreat. Liberal churchmen argue the institutional church is in trouble because it has removed itself from the great issues of the age.

Contemporary religious thinkers — from the German thinker Dietrich Bonhoeffer who died during the Nazi purge to the modern Harvard theologian Harvey Cox—have been saying that "religion" is not enough. They claim the church must be involved in the Secular World (poverty, industrialization, war, politics) or it is not the church.

* * *

One reaction to what some clergy consider to be the failure of the institutional church is withdrawal. Roman Catholic priests marry and become reporters, teachers or community workers. I know of at least three former Ohio ministers who are now working in anti-poverty organizations.

Another reaction to the crisis has been called the "underground church." While Time Magazine has described its workings in New York City, I have attended one meeting of the Underground Church in Northern Ohio. The Underground Church is basically made up of people who for one reason or another feel the organized church is dead. They do not want to leave the church entirely; but they do want the church to be what they think it should be. They are like Unitarians without a name.

With changes in society taking place at such a frantic pace, it is no startling fact that the church is undergoing the same soul-searching.

Many religious thinkers believe the church of the future may be entirely different from the structures we now have. The Underground Church, churches in ghetto areas, churches in factories, churches in Communist-dominated nations may point the way to what will happen in the future.

What really worries me is my three friends. I think the church has lost three of its finest young spokesmen.

Raised Eyebrows

By ROBERT W. REIDER
Editor and Publisher

REIDER

Darbydale's filing of an estimated 1969 budget four times out of balance has raised some official eyebrows.

So many that it is difficult to find many members of the Darbydale governing family willing to be badged for the top-heavy budget.

Clerk Laura Clover, in a covering letter to the Franklin County Auditor, wrote "I was hesitant in signing my name to the Budget Forms this year . . . due to the fact that it has been raised to an exorbitant amount . . . and I am skeptical about even submitting it . . ."

An aide in the auditor's office declared "I have seen a lot of them, but this is the screwball of them all."

Solicitor Jerry Weiner, disclaiming knowledge that the budget had been filed, is reported to have expressed a dim view of officials who engage his services and then do not utilize them.

And so it goes.

Darbydale really hasn't done anything to cause everybody to flip. What's the crime? All they've done is estimate expenditures of $87,985 against an anticipated $22,160 in revenue.

Heck, they're merely getting around to doing what just about everybody else in government has done for years. It is like lifting a spoonful from Governor James (Kingfish) Rhodes' canned baloney on why Ohioans should bond themselves to death.

Looking Down Wall Street

By LARRY GOLDBERG
Saunders, Stiver & Co.
Investment Securities

An investment club is a group of people, like you and your neighbors, or like you and your co-workers, who meet usually once a month. The members pool small sums of money and invest in selected issues every month. This is a way for new investors to learn by doing and for experienced investors to combine investing and socializing.

The sizes of clubs vary, with the average having 14 members. Clubs should be small enough so every member can actively take part in the decision making, but large enough to take advantage of the adage "two heads are better than one." The more diverse fields, such as accounting, finance, production, etc., represented by the members, the more fully a company and its securities can be analyzed. The core of the investment club may be a bridge or social group, business associates or others who wish to meet socially with the intention of gaining knowledge and hopefully profit from their meetings.

The first official meeting is to further discuss the idea and agree on their operations, goals, etc. The club must comply with the state laws that apply to their formation and operation. At the second meeting, they get down to business — that of discussing investment opportunities of different companies.

A registered representative of the brokerage firm handling the club's account may be invited to help with the first selections so the club will start off with sensible choices. The amount invested every month is entirely up to the membership. The usual amount is $25. The dollar amount of investment isn't as important as the amount of knowledge and experience gained.

All members of the club should participate in order to learn from the meetings. Each member has a job to do and benefits academically and financially if the club is successful. After discussion of the reports, a decision is made by majority vote upon which security the club will purchase in that particular month. Existing holdings are constantly reviewed. The buy or sell decisions are passed on for execution to the broker who also maintains records for the club. He is called upon from time to time to recommend securities for the members' consideration.

For more information about investment clubs write or call me at Saunders, Stiver & Company.

Exercise

By TED BEARDSHEAR

Columbus would be a fine place to exercise . . .if you liked to perspire and things.

I mean, you know, with all those YMCA's and Recreation Centers and golf courses and things.

But who likes exercise?

Those people who tell you exercise is good for you are usually sitting on their fannies when they tell you . . . , right?

So why shouldn't it be fair the other way round? Why not sit on the old fanny and get your exercise that way?

I've always had a distrust of things that get you out of breath. It just doesn't seem natural. In fact, anything that makes you breathless is unnatural. Breathing was made to be an automatic, unconscious sort of thing. Why louse it up and make it pronounced?

And doctors. They always tell you to exercise when the most exercise they get is lifting a martini glass to their mouths. Show me a doctor who practices what he preaches and I'LL show you a man who isn't making a go of his business.

Me, I can't afford to eat my bodyweight. In fact, the only exercise I want is the strength to tote my carcass around enough to function.

Exercise? Faah!

They Said It

"We must decide whether or not to pass on to posterity the ever increasing problems in human relations — or to be the answer to these problems."

Letters To The Editor

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

Out Of Step

To The Editor:

Your editorial in The Spectator of July 18 seems oddly out of step with the reality which must encompass the insensible mutterings of Black Power advocates. At issue at this time is the question of bias and racism generally, which both the white and black members of our number should grasp at the outset.

Continued repetition of half truths can have no beneficial effect on what now appears to be very grave malaise.

Concerned

Old Wrecks

To The Editor:

Why should wrecking yards be enclosed with a solid fence? What is so ugly about old cars? At one time they were majestic in their own right.

Do we ask the farmer to cover a dusty, barren plowed field? Do we ask the farmer to cover manure piles? Do we ask that perfume be sprayed around pig pens, paper mills, sewage plants or meat plants?

Do we ask residential families to hide their garbage cans? Do we ask the grocer to cover dirty, disease-possible soft drink and beer bottles? Do we ask quarries to roof their holes so no dust will seep into our polluted air?

Perhaps old cars should be left on roads and in lawns or put them in water. By doing these things we can spread the habitats for rodents and other pests and increase our water, air and land pollution.

Why should there be enclosed fences around wrecking yards? We bury in a cemetery that is not required to be hidden from our view.

Thank you.

Get Out There Men, And Heckle

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

One of the fastest growing firms in this campaign year is Hechler's Hecklers, Inc., which supplies, according to its letterhead, "Hecklers For All Occasions."

"There's little room in politics these days for untrained amateurs," explained Hathaway Hechler, the firm's president. "When a candidate wants hecklers, he wants competent hecklers he can count on. So when he thinks of hecklers, we like to say, he thinks of Heckler's."

Mr. Hechler was asked about the ethics of hiring hecklers to heckle an opponent.

"Great Scott!" he cried, aghast. "A candidate doesn't hire hecklers to heckle an opponent. He hires hecklers to heckle himself."

* * *

Mr. Hechler patiently explained that when a candidate is heckled he at the very least wins the sympathy of the public, for "Americans believe in fair play and free speech." And if the job is done by professionals, he said, it means not only sympathy but votes.

"Naturally, I can't reveal our clients, but after Humphrey was heckled masterfully in Watts the other day, he went up 1.6 points in the polls," he said proudly. "And listen to this testimonial from George Wallace after being stopped by hecklers in Providence, R.I.: 'Get mad at them? Why, they got me half a million votes.'"

"BRRRrrraaaxxxXXXTTT! Aw, you don't know what you're talking about," said a big-bosomed lady in a flowered hat as she waddled through Mr. Hechler's office.

"Your Bronx cheer is as good as ever, Roses," Mr. Hechler called after her admiringly. "Isn't Roses great? I guess you've seen her at a thousand political rallies and stockholders' meetings, but the times have passed her by.

"The demand now is for Black hecklers. There's no better way a candidate can appeal to the White backlash vote than to be heckled by our Black militant hecklers. And hippies are big, of course. Being heckled by hippies gives a candidate an image of solid moderation

"Yet there's still room for specialists. Jimmie, come in a minute and do your thing."

"We hope to use Jimmie extensively in the North," confided Mr. Hechler.

* * *

In addition to an ugly mien and loud voice, professional heckling requires exquisite timing. "The [illegible] must know when to heckle," Mr. Hechler said. "For example, when the candidate says, 'Now, turning to my solutions for Vietnam . . .' Well, that's when he desperately needs to be drowned out.

"You can see why there are no amateurs in this business."

But surely some hecklers must be unpaid amateurs, driven solely by their hatred of the candidate?

Again, Mr. Hechler looked amazed. "Why would anyone," he said in disbelief, "help elect a man he hates?"

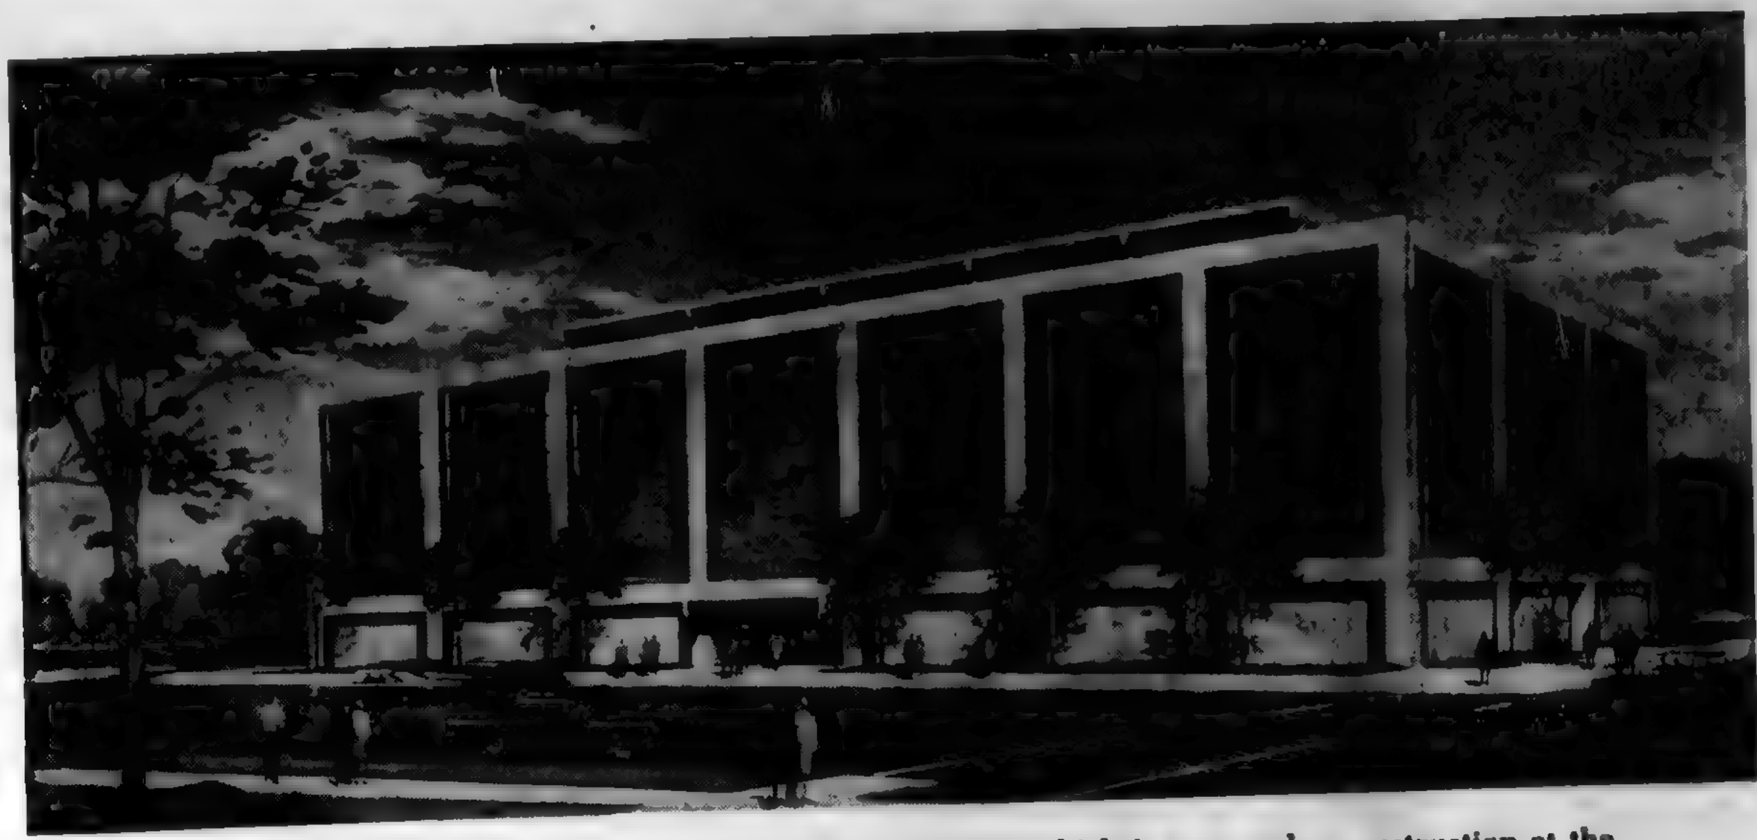
BACHELOR OF SCIENCE ENGINEERING TECHNOLOGY STARTS AT FRANKLIN UNIVERSITY



Architect's rendering of Franklin University's new building which is now under construction at the southwest corner of Grant Avenue and Town Street

The degree of Bachelor of Science in Engineering Technology will be offered starting Sept. 3 with the opening of Franklin University's sixty-seventh year.

The demand for students with four years of education in engineering technology and the university's new building prompted the development of this program by the Technical Institute.

STUDENTS who have earned the Associate Degree in Engineering Technology may continue their studies and earn the new four year degree.

Interested persons should telephone Dean Sidney J. Kelly. The Institute will continue to offer its Associate Degree programs and the Bachelors program during the day and evening.

Ground was broken on June 5 for the new four-story Franklin University building at the southwest corner of Grant and Town Sts.

THE CEREMONY followed announcement by officials of United Redevelopment Corporation and university trustees that the building would be started. It is the 18th structure to be commenced in the Market-Mohawk urban redevelopment area.

Total cost of the project is estimated at $2,250,000. The estimate is provided by A. Charles Brooks, project coordinator for United Redevelopment, which will supervise construction.

The new building will contain 64,000 square feet of space. The structure will house classrooms, laboratories, a library, administrative offices, and food facilities. It was designed by Holroyd & Myers, Architects.

Trustees decided to build the new building as a result of the large increase in enrollment at Franklin over the past ten years. The present enrollment is approximately 2,100 students, a 250 per cent increase over the 843 attending Franklin in 1958.

Accounting, Business Administration and Industrial Organization and Management are the major fields of study offered in the General College of Franklin University.

Dr. Joseph F. Frasch, president, reports that the University plans to continue offering day and evening courses in all areas of study. He reports that schedules are arranged so that day students are free to work in the afternoons. Evening classes permit students who work during the day to attend college classes at night.

Evening students are in general, older than day students. Many of the students who attend the University receive some help from their employers in the form of tuition refunds. The veterans who attend are helped by the Veterans Administration.

Allyn Ehrhardt, University Librarian, reports that a grant of $5,000 has been received from the federal government for use by the library. Many new books are arriving daily and the space available for books is almost completely used. The librarians are looking forward to moving into the University's new building which is designed to house 80,000 volumes and to seat 150 students.

The University serves the community by sending its instructional staff to teach in plants and offices of local businesses and industries. In general, these courses are of short duration and are designed to fit the particular need of the business. College credit is not given but certificates of completion are awarded. This extension work is carried on by the colleges and the Management Institute of the University. Extension work is growing and more efforts will be devoted to this area of service.

Franklin University was established by the Columbus YMCA in 1902. In 1964, the University was incorporated as a not for profit institution of higher education. It is held in trust for the community by a Board of Trustees. Rapid growth of the University led the trustees to build the University a new home.

The new building will be occupied in August of 1969. Plans call for an expansion of programs and services when the move is completed. The new building provides lockers and coat racks for the convenience of students. Each floor may be reached by stairs or elevator. The entire building is air-conditioned. Parking will be available for a limited number of students.

Columbus And Southern Sends Workers To School

Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company sponsors two adult education courses for its employes. Both programs involve the International Correspondence School, and the company defrays the cost of instruction on behalf of its employes.

Completion of certain specified courses plus practical experience counts toward promotion.

In other divisions in the company, courses selected by each division pertaining to the work done in that department are available to any employe who wishes to take advantage of this opportunity for additional knowledge and know-how.

The program was begun in 1952. This year some 110 employes are taking ICS courses to further their education, including workers in generating, stores, substation, meter, building services and operation groups.

Approximately 1,120 Columbus and Southern employes have improved their work status and ability by taking advantage of additional education through these company-sponsored correspondence courses.

In addition to these programs, the company maintains its own school for training linemen, the Brice Line School, located on Refugee Road. All three grades of linemen, A, B and C, receive two weeks intensive training in tool handling technique, safety, basic and advanced electricity and climbing procedure when they are hired or promoted to a higher position.

The curriculum at Brice includes both lecture and practical experience. Each of Columbus and Southern's 152 linemen have attended at least one of the two-week sessions.

Firestone Photographs Keeps On Growing

So often the headlines proclaim a new industry coming to town which will hire 60 people; and yet when a home grown business develops from a borrowed $100 and a one man show to a present investment in six digits and with a 60-employe payroll no one shouts and provides the acclaim due.

Dan Firestone borrowed $100 from his family, while a student at Ohio State University to begin a photographic career. He had been a photographer with the Coast Guard, and started taking group pictures at OSU and working taking pictures of babies.

In 1946 the basement of [illegible]5 N. High provided the darkroom. "It was so small," Dan says, "you had to step outside to change your mind."

The first big move was up the street to 2525 N. High and Firestone Photographs finally had a studio. From 1947 through 1952 at this address, Dan built his business, and outgrew those facilities. A move downtown to 168 N. Third, the present address, started a chain reaction. First floor, second floor, third floor, finally in 1960 Firestone Photographs, Inc., purchased the seven floor building, and presently utilizes nearly the entire space.

MARCH, 1966, was probably the biggest change for Firestone Photographs, Inc. This was installation of color photofinishing equipment, nearly $250 thousand worth. This includes an 11S printer made by Eastman Kodak, and one of the few in the United States. It will make color prints up to 11x14 size automatically. The entire photofinishing chain requires six computers which automatically compute exposure from your color negatives, color correct and then process the prints at the rate of 19½ feet per minute.

Firestone Photographs, Inc., is an international business. From Vietnam, mail order processing is done for the members of the armed forces. The mail order portion of the photo processing business is growing rapidly, and in fact, accounts for a sizeable percentage of the nearly $1 million per year in sales. Firestone has photographers stationed at several military posts, as well as many other points throughout America and Canada. They cover many special events such as Presidential Inauguration, Indianapolis 500, Festival of States in St. Petersburg, Seattle Sea Fair, in fact, practically every state in the union.

FIRESTONE Photographs still does college groups and portraits and is internationally known for color group pictures. It is true that Dan doesn't have his head under the traditional black drape of the photographer. He is much too busy keeping up with the business end.

Besides serving the amateur market through mail order, Firestone Photographs also serves this market through one of the largest groups of dealers in the area. These are drug stores, camera shops, department stores, etc. The processing plant also serves professional photographers throughout the nation. Members of the processing staff are trained by Eastman and continually supervised to provide the ultimate in care and diligence.

OF COURSE, Firestone Photographs is still a photographic studio, even though the great emphasis in people and investment is in photo processing. They do all types of commercial photography, portraits and are probably the area's leading wedding photo studio. The studio is equipped to do both still and motion pictures, a far cry from the tiny basement darkroom and a borrowed $100.

Firestone Photographs has grown to over 60 employes, five and one-half floors of their own building, over $1 million per year in sales, and most important, provides Central Ohio with a fine locally owned processing plant for color and an outstanding photographic studio.

Crippled Children Have Special Day At Fair

Local crippled children have been invited to attend the 1968 Ohio State Fair on Crippled Children's Day, Friday, Aug. 23, according to W. J. Treece, executive director of the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children, the Easter Seal organization.

The special event is sponsored by the Crippled Children's Entertainment Association with Judge William C. Bryant as chairman and the Ohio State Fair Management with Jerry L. Kaltenbach as manager.

A complete day's outing has been planned for the children during their 14th annual event. Free admittance to the Fair for the youngsters and their escorts will be provided along with transportation by shuttle bus on the grounds and free rides on the midway.

A special grandstand show has been planned exclusively for the handicapped boys and girls. Meals will also be furnished and facilities for rest and medical care will be provided. Registration of the children will start at 8 a.m. at the Youth Center at the Fairgrounds on the day of Aug. 23.

Any crippled child under 18 years of age who wishes to take advantage of this opportunity should contact the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children at 555 S. Monroe Ave., telephone 253-5523, before Friday, Aug. 16, for tickets and identification.

Adult volunteers are also urgently needed. Persons wishing to help on Crippled Children's Day should contact Judge Bryant's office, telephone 224-9277, for additional information.

Nurses' Refresher Course To Begin September 23

A six-week refresher course for non-practicing registered nurses is slated to begin Sept. 23, offered as a joint effort of the Columbus Public Schools, the Department of Adult Education, the Ohio State Employment Service and the Ohio Department of Health.

Part of an on-going program to stimulate the re-entry of qualified nurses into the profession, this course is scheduled to end Nov. 1, and will be followed by another beginning in February. Open to 20 enrollees, the course will combine both classroom and clinical instruction in a local hospital.

Miss Drumel

Miss Washburn

For a program for your service or church group, school, club or other organization, give the Gas Company a call:

Miss Ann Drumel and Miss Joy Washburn present informative and entertaining programs on the natural gas industry — free of charge.

The company also has 16 mm color, sound films available.

TALKS

"FANTASTIC SPLENDORS IN OHIO . . . FOR YOUR PLEASURE" . . . a dynamic talk about discovering the unexpected places and pleasures in Ohio. Ann uses "color magic" to find these unexpected places and color slides to carry her audience on a 25-minute tour of the Buckeye State. (25 minutes).

"IT'S THE FASHION . . . DOLL" . . . a unique fashion show and talk which relates the startling similarities in the development of women's fashions and the natural gas industry. Joy's models are large dolls, colorfully dressed in authentic period fashions of the past, present and future. (25 minutes).

"THE LAND OF ENCHANTMENT, OHIO" . . . Ann or Joy present picturesque color slides of Ohio's natural beauty, industry, entertainment and history, and model clothes made from natural gas. Traveling the land of enchantment, audiences are delighted by the magic of it all. (25 minutes).

"THE MAD HATTER" . . . Ann or Joy models the latest miracle fashions and uses unique hats to take the audience on a trip through a natural gas wonderland. (25 minutes.

FILMS

"ENERGY ON THE MOVE" . . . a story of the natural gas industry's efforts to keep pace with today's and tomorrow's energy needs. It is the story of movement . . . convenience for our homes . . . power for our factories and progress for the future. (28-minute and 14-minute versions).

"THESE ARE MY PEOPLE" . . . the story of the discovery of natural gas and its use in "American Original Natural Gasland," and the story of how people made the natural gas industry what it is today. (28-minute and 13½ minute versions).

"THE UNDERGROUND STORY OF NATURAL GAS" . . . the fascinating story of how the gas company stores gas piped into Ohio from the Southwest by pumping it into underground rock formations. (28-minute and 13½-minute versions).

To arrange for a talk by Miss Drumel or Miss Washburn, or for a showing of a film, call COLUMBIA GAS OF OHIO, 228-5611, Ext. 534.

BMCH Triples Size In Only 3 Years

It was just three years ago that Business Men's Clearing House opened for business at 88 E. Broad St., but in those three years the firm has tripled its size as more and more employers and employes discover its unique placement service.

A staff of 36 professionally trained counselors are now employed by BMCH in five divisions: Technical, chemical, electronic data processing, administrative and clerical, which specializes in female placement. Counselors in each division are specialists in that particular field.

This specialization aids both parties, since prospective employes and employers both know they are dealing with persons well versed in their field.

Agency manager in Columbus is Jack Quick, who started with the firm three years ago as a trainee and became agency manager in March, 1968.

BMCH, founded in Chicago in 1902, is a division of General Employment Enterprise, Inc., the only employment agency which sells stock across the board. It will be listed on the American Stock Exchange as of Aug. 31. President of GEE is Herbert Imhoff.

On Sept. 1, Business Men's will launch a new program which will open 50 new franchised offices throughout the United States.

These agencies will be modeled after the Columbus operation.

Peace Corps Test Slated August 17

Columbus area residents interested in putting their skills to work in helping developing nations around the world are invited to take the Peace Corps placement test Saturday, Aug. 17.

The 1:30 p.m. test may be taken at a center locally, located at 44 N. High St., room 202.

The Peace Corps uses the test to determine how an applicant can best be utilized [illegible]

An application for the Peace Corps must be presented before the test. It can be secured from post offices.

Twelve thousand volunteers are now serving in Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Pacific Islands. More volunteers are needed for programs which will begin this fall and winter.

Economist Predicts Orderly GNP Rise

An orderly and sustainable industrial growth in the second half of 1968 will push the Gross National Products to a record $865 billion, Martin R. Gainsbrugh, senior vice-president and chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board, predicted recently.

Addressing about 150 Ohio savings and loan executives recently at a "refresher" course at Imperial House-Motel in Columbus, Gainsbrugh said that the GNP could possibly reach $870 billion.

"The rate of inflation, in turn," Gainsbrugh said, "should drop from its present four percent to possibly three percent."

He mentioned a number of reasons for the slower economic pace. First, steel fabricators will be working off inventories built up as a hedge against labor difficulties.

Backlog of car demand inherited from output lost by automobile strikes last year has been more than made up. Fear of a steel strike and subsequent price hike may have led to an inventory buildup of cars and other durable goods.

Then the Paris truce talks have apparently led to a tapering in defense contract placement, if not defense spending.

Gainsbrugh believes that the key factor most directly altering the tempo of growth in the months ahead is federal spending controls. This should cut the nation's deficit from $20 billion for fiscal year 1968 to about $5 billion in 1969, he said.

"Spending by consumers and industry alike will feel the bite of higher taxes," Gainsbrugh declared, adding: "The full impact on consumption and investment will be considerably greater, therefore, than the amount of surtax alone."

These current and prospective restraints on future expansion are far from complete, he asserted. "Mounting interest rates on mortgages and disintermediation can again sap the strength of home building," he said.

Columbus Travelers Aid Picks New Executive Director

The appointment of R. William Gibson to the position of executive director of Travelers Aid of Columbus was announced by president, the Rev. Charles D. Kirsch, pastor of the Reynoldsburg Methodist Church.

Gibson succeeds Mrs. Thelma H. Shilhan, who had served the Columbus Travelers Aid as executive director for 23 years. She will be associated with the Ohio State University in the capacity of house director for the Mary Pomerene Scholarship Alumnae House.

Gibson, who lives with his wife, Helen, and two children, Keith and Diane, at 194 E. Tulane Rd., is a 1955 graduate of Upper Arlington High School. He obtained his Bachelor of Arts Degree from Capital University and his Masters in Social Service from Indiana University.

Rev. Kirsch stated that Gibson has worked with the Franklin County Welfare Department as chief casework supervisor, probation officer for three and one-half years and director of Court Services for the Franklin County Domestic Relations and Juvenile Court.

Are you a new high school graduate or a recent college student? If so, why not investigate the very worthwhile field of COSMETOLOGY. Cosmetology is a profession that is profitable, secure and interesting. It is profitable because good hairdressers earn good money; it is secure because cosmetologists are much in demand all over the country; and it is interesting because it deals with a personal service to people . . . and what is more interesting than people? Nationwide graduates are constantly preferred to other graduates because they are superior operators when they finish their training. The excellent basic training, the careful supervision by a staff of dedicated instructors, the extensive experience on the clinic floor working on the public, the advanced classes in hairstyling . . . these are all qualities that set Nationwide apart from other beauty schools. For a free brochure giving full details, call NATIONWIDE BEAUTY ACADEMY, 221-4264; or write or visit either of our downtown Columbus locations, 200 North High or 110 South High.

Whitehall Adult Education Class To Open Sept. 15

Courses offered in the Whitehall City Schools Adult Education Program are based upon the desires and needs of the people in Whitehall and the surrounding areas. Fees established for courses are the same for all enrollees regardless of residence location and are based primarily on the fact that 15 students' fees should be enough to compensate the instructor. Fees are payable at the time of registration.

DIPLOMA PROGRAM: Each year many adults receive their diplomas from the Whitehall program and, to some, this means almost immediate advancement on their jobs. Last year 58 adults received diplomas through the program.

Regular offerings include such courses for credit as: American History, American Government, English, algebra, mathematics for business, English for business, physical science, office machine operation, typing (both elementary and advanced), and bookkeeping. Arrangements can be made with the instructor for credits in French and Spanish.

Credit courses run 17 weeks and meet twice a week for one hour and forty-five minutes. Tuition cost is $16.00 for each credit course per semester, payable at the time of registration.

Special courses are offered for industrial plants and other groups as their desires are made known to the Whitehall City Schools. Typical of such classes are: an electrical course for a large railroad; a water treatment course for municipalities in Central Ohio; a tool design course for a large industry; a course in blueprint reading and elementary machine shop; public relations; salesmanship; human relations and other similarly specialized courses.

Other courses offered are French, Spanish, German, woodworking, basic drafting, dressmaking and sewing (both elementary and advanced), interior design, floral design, knitting, ceramics, painting and drawing, cake decorating, sculpturing, dancing (both elementary and advanced) and slimnastics for women. Also meeting with considerable response are public speaking, basic electricity, upholstering, driver training, first aid, English for the foreign born and effective writing.

THE KEYPUNCH course—The keypunch course has proven to be a valuable training program for those who are ready for employment almost immediately upon graduation from the course. Recently, I.B.M. Keypunch operators have been in demand.

New courses to be added this year include health and investments.

REGISTRATION — Registration for the fall semester will be accepted from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. in the Whitehall Yearling High School Cafeteria on September 9, 10, 11, and 12. Classes will begin the week of September 15. Additional information regarding the program may be secured by calling 235-2385 or 235-8010.

Bus Drivers Will Gather

The 12th annual Transportation Conference sponsored by Franklin County schools is one indication that preparation is underway for the opening of a new school year.

Drivers of all school buses in the Franklin County area have been invited to the Evening Street School in Worthington for an all-day meeting Thursday, Aug. 8. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. The first session begins at 9:30 a.m.

The aim of the yearly conference is to provide safer transportation for all students at a reasonable cost.

Those involved in the conference will discuss latest information on legal responsibilities, retirement, preventative maintenance, practical driving procedures and principal-bus driver relationship.

Parades Lose Their Glitter; Becky's Foot's In A Cast

Parades in Columbus have a little less sparkle this summer. Twirling contests all over the Midwest are duller. All because Becky Gleich fluffed a jump in a baton-twirling class. And broke her foot.

Becky is 17 and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gleich of 1555 E. Gates St. She is on her first job, as a clerk-typist in Nationwide Insurance Companies' home office, and has been to work every day in spite of the clumsy cast on her right leg. But twirling's out for the summer.

And that's a heartbreaker for Becky, because she has traveled for five years on weekends with the Columbus Hurricanes drum and bugle corps. Its members give exhibitions, march in parades and compete in contests in Chicago, Detroit, Indianapolis and other cities. Even in Canada. And Becky is one of the group's stars.

She has 15 trophies from solo competition contests. She has also won some state competitions. She was head majorette at Bishop Hartley High before graduating in June.

Like whom?

"Well, like mayors and politicians, and rock-and-roll singers. And you learn a lot, too."

Like what?

"Like sportsmanship. Like how to win and how to lose—gracefully. Besides, you make a lot of friends when you're out on the circuit."

A twirler's life does have a few drawbacks, Becky admits. "When I started out I got a lot of bruises and a few black eyes from hitting myself with the baton. But I learned to twirl away from my body and to catch the baton every time I threw it into the air."

Costumes, she says, can be costly. "But," she adds, "I solved that problem by learning to sew."

Becky's so enthusiastic about her hobby that she plans to eventually open a school to teach twirling and modern jazz dancing. "I'm saving my money with my own school in mind," she says.

That's in the future — after she gets back on her own two feet.

Local Goodwill Serves 230; Contracts Could Up Number

The developing of more jobs for the handicapped of society is the pressing aim of the Goodwill Industries in the 136 working centers around the United States and parts of the world.

Columbus' operation, which serves 22 counties in Ohio and two in Kentucky, currently employes 230 handicapped persons, and has recently been putting greater emphasis on a sub-contract program with hopes of developing more jobs.

"OUR SOLE purpose for being is the training of the handicapped," noted Public Relations Director Doug Berwick.

While the man in charge of the Industrial Services Department, Bill Willis, feels that his main duty is to "rehabilitate people so they can be employable in competitive industry."

IT IS Willis' job to foster this contract program, and search and prepare work received from both major and minor industry around the greater Columbus area.

"We will do sub-contract work in many types of employment where private industry does not have the personnel or space to do certain things," Willis noted.

ACCORDING TO Willis, he has to first survey the work proposed from private industry to see if Goodwill can handle it and what the price should be before he bids on the work

The up-keep of the buildings and outlet stores and the payment of workers' salaries is handled mainly by refurnishing the items donated by the public and selling them through the five outlet stores in the area.

"For every one person that we employ and help to rehabilitate four others are on the waiting list," Willis added. "The more contracts we get the more people we can serve."

BUT THE main occupation of the Goodwill people is the educating and assisting handicapped individuals so that they can take their place in a competitive working society.

When someone comes to Goodwill they are each given a test to fit them into the work for which they are best geared.

"WE CAN train people who can do a limited type of work and take them off the dole and make them useful people in society," said Berwick.

Of the people entering Goodwill, Willis figures that about 25 to 30 percent are eventually employed in competitive jobs in society and will stay in those positions.

"Thirty percent will never leave Goodwill because of the nature of their handicap," he added.

Goodwill Industries helps handicapped people to help themselves This idea is translated into action by contributions from the public of usable clothing, household articles and financial assistance.

YWCA Offers Varied Program

People are their business at the YWCA.

September marks the beginning of the fall season in the Adult Education Department of the Young Women's Christian Association.

For the convenience of all area residents, the YWCA offers classes at three locations in the Columbus Area: Central Center, 65 S. Fourth St., Hilltop, 2879 Valleyview Dr., and Westerville, First Presbyterian Church. Child care is available at all Centers.

AN "OPEN HOUSE", Thursday, Sept. 12, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Westerville Center, is the beginning of an exciting array of classes. Mrs. John (Peg) Dickhaut, teacher of the new class on "Creativity," will present the preview program, "The Feminine Mistake." There will be an opportunity to meet the teachers of the various classes, view displays, and enjoy fellowship over coffee.

The Hilltop Center presents its display in a "Sneak Peek" Thursday, Sept. 19, to 2:30 p.m. The special feature of this event is, "Fabrics for Fall," coordinated by Sally Mitchell, Leiter's Famous Designer Fabrics made and shown by Leiter models. There will be a preview of classes and refreshments.

People want to be where the action is and the action is at the YWCA! Bring a chair on "See-Look Day" at the Central YWCA, Wednesday, Sept. 25, and Howard N. Morrow, teacher of the class on "Chair Caning," will give a demonstration of this skill.

NEW CLASSES offered at the Central Center include antiques, the study of glass, furniture, etc., crewel embroidery (beginning), chair caning (beginning) and Tole Painting.

Are you curious about your people? There is an "Ancestor Searching Class" to help you learn more about them.

Other daytime classes at the Central Center include, Bridge II (intermediate), Bridge (playing only), Decoupage, Flower Arranging, French (beginning, intermediate, and conversation), furniture refinishing and antiquing, German (beginning and conversation), Grace n' Grooming, Sewing, Basic and Advanced Bishop, Tailoring and Upholstering.

The evening classes at the Central Center are Art-drawing, Beginning Bridge, Drapes I (basic skills), Guitar and Folk Music, Papier Mache' and Other Crafts, Sewing, beginning and advanced, Bishop Sewing, basic and advanced.

THE NEW CLASSES offered at the Westerville Center include, "Let's Be Creative"; a variety of creative experiences, "How To Plan Those $$; basic financing for the homemaker, "Speech Craft"; conducting a meeting, Basic Roberts Rules of Order, Introductions, Welcomes, etc. and "Slim and Trim"; at Westerville Health Studio.

Westerville also repeats many classes which have been requested: Swimming, (beginners and elementary), Knitting, Water Color Workshop, "Let's Read Together," rug making (hooked and braided), Decoupage, Crewel Embroidery, Creative Writing, Art Tours, Sketching, Bridge (duplicate), Metal Crafts, Painting, Bridge (beginners), Copper Enameling, Bicycling and Gym Fun, and Weaving.

Come to the Open House or call the Center, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. 882-6846.

CLASSES HELD Monday through Thursday at the Hilltop Center, are Bishop Sewing I and II, Drawing and Sketching, Swimming (all levels), Rug Hooking, Painting, Dancing for Preschoolers (beginning and advanced), Bishop Tailoring, Basic Knitting, Cake Decorating, Batik-Printing, The 1969 Look and You, Golf, Flower Arranging and Christmas Cards.

You're invited to the "Sneak Peek," or call the office, 276-2945, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. or 224-9121 Ext. 30.

For the first time there will be an enrichment program for discriminating people — at the Central Center. "Cultural Explo" — an exciting study exploration of two leading cultural heritages in the USA, Monday evenings 7:30 to 9. "Oriental Cultures" — China Vietnam, Japan, explored with help of East Asian experts at OSU and "Negro Culture and History," Mr. Titus Saunders, winner of N.D.E.A. history study grant. "Petticoats of France"—the lives and influence of such women as Jean d' Arc, Anne of Brittany, Catherine de Medici, Mme. de Pompadour, Queen Marie Antoinette, Empress Josephine, Empress Eugenie, on French history in the 14th through the 19th centuries. They will be portrayed through entertaining and informative talks and slides by Mrs. Jaqueline Hall.

The physical education classes are just for you: You are invited to the YW Fall Kick-Off Dessert, September 23, 1 to 2:30 p.m. at the Central YWCA. The guest speaker will be Mrs. Woody Hayes. Call 224-9121 now and register.

SWIMMING CLASSES are offered for all. Jumping Jimnastics, Gals A-Go-Go, Express Yourself Please are among the classes in the Physical Education Department. There's also beginning golf, basketball club, beginning tennis, first aid, self defense and Judo.

Call the YWCA 224-9121 and request a brochure. Register early! Help make "our [illegible]" people better!

YMCA Schedules Courses

Through the doors of the Central YMCA at 40 W. Long St. pass the men and women, boys and girls of all ages, to participate in its many activities. Besides its famous programs for men and boys, many women and girls (over 18) are attracted to the Informal Adult Evening School (see list of courses offered in YMCA advertisement page 9). During the Family Swim period on Saturday, you find both sexes of all ages.

Changes in the YMCA have not been limited to just including women in 'Y' activities. There is constant change in an effort to offer new and up-to-date programs. An example of this is found in the modernized, remodeled Business Men's Club. Since November, 1967, this club has offered facilities and services second to none. Not only are the two gyms, indoor running track and modern well-lighted handball courts providing excellent, well-rounded physical activities to members, but the Business Men's Club members also enjoy the new sauna room, whirlpool and steam bath, special exercise rooms, the services of qualified and experienced masseurs, and a restful TV Lounge — all in the comfort of air conditioning. College trained specialists map programs to fit individual needs. Whether you wish to improve your physical fitness, or just remain in top physical form, the 'Y' professional staff can help design the program for you.

In the Adult Evening School, new courses are constantly being offered, in an effort to help solve the problems of individuals and the community. New courses in the process of development now are New Math for Parents, Defensive Driving, Negro History, Problems of a Growing City and Civil Service Exams. These classes, and many others, serve to help embrace the YMCA purpose of "building a Christian personality in a Christian society," which the YMCA emphasizes through its well-rounded program, and the development of the body, mind and spirit equally, as in an equilateral triangle. For information regarding any of the Central YMCA programs, call 224-1131.

Ohio Dominican Announces Schedule For Autumn Semester Courses

Registration for classes in the Evening Division at Ohio Dominican College opens this week and will continue through Aug. 24.

Classes in the evening division program will begin Sept. 3 on the Sunbury Road campus. Classes will begin at 3:35 p.m. and continue until 9 p.m.

All courses in the evening division are equivalent in content, objectives and credit value to the regular college day-time program. These fully accredited courses are transferrable to a degree program either at Ohio Dominican College or another college. Ohio Dominican College offers these courses to men and women of the community desiring to continue their education or who wish to study for personal enrichment.

Thirty-nine courses will be offered in the first semester program. Courses available in [illegible] instruction required [illegible] many college freshmen [illegible] as "Principles of Biological Sciences" as well as other accredited courses in art, economics, library science, political science, sociology, education and theology.

The History Department will offer a course this fall in "Continuity and Change in Sub-Saharan Africa." The course will stress selected aspects of the historical background of Sub-Saharan Africa.

The Political Science Department will offer courses this fall in "Urban Regions" and "International Politics," while the Sociology Department will offer a course in "Ethnic and Minority Problems." This course is a study of various ethnic groups and their place in the larger American community. The problems of prejudice and culture conflicts within the United States and in the world community.

A Family Life Institute will be held at the College Oct. 28, co-sponsored by The Family Life Bureau, Diocese of Columbus and Ohio Dominican College. The Institute will feature speakers who will explore the various aspects of Family Life Education. Such subjects as family roles, tasks, family interaction, child behavior, adolescence, family planning, nutrition and abortion will be covered in the sessions and workshops. For information concerning the Family Life Institute, contact The Family Life Bureau, 228-2453.

The Second Semester Evening Division will begin Jan. 13. Courses will be offered at the same time and registration opens in the fall. A special course being offered during the Second Semester is "The Negro in America." The course will include a study from the viewpoints of anthropology, history, economics, sociology and political science. A series of 20 lectures beginning Jan. 14 through March 27 will be given.

Registration for courses in the Evening Division must be made in person. Office hours are 9 a.m. through 4:30 p.m. daily except Saturday, Tuesday and Wednesday 6:30 through 8 p.m. The office will be open on the last day for registration Saturday, Aug. 24 from 9 a.m. until 12 noon.

Adult Ed Changes In Five-Year Span

"Adult Education in the Metropolitan area of Columbus has changed completely in the last five years," believes Karl Kessler, President of the Central Ohio Adult Education Association. "Opportunities have increased greatly, both school systems and industry have stepped up programs, and new facilities have made possible courses which previously could not have been offered."

There is no doubt but that enrollment in adult education classes has increased five-fold in the five year period, he said. "And the character of the offerings has changed too. Once most courses were of the business training, personal improvement, and hobby types but today, the emphasis is on upgrading skills and the learning of new techniques," he emphasized.

Industry has entered the adult training field because of necessity to train employes in specific areas. Almost every employer of large numbers of people in this area is either operating its own program, or employing the talents of other organizations to provide the service, according to Kessler.

At the state level, public support for adult education has increased, primarily because of the Federal Government's interest in providing opportunities for the unemployed and the economically disadvantaged. Kessler said the programs in Adult Basic Education which were begun statewide some five years ago have brought thousands to a literate level where they have been able to find employment.

Kessler is also Supervisor of Adult Education for the State Department of Education of Ohio.

RILEY

Adult Ed Grows At S-W Schools

Demand for Adult Education services in South-Western City School System continues to grow, according to Russel Riley, Director. Advent of the system's Technical Training facility has given enrollment a tremendous boost, he said.

With about 170 adults enrolled the first session in 1962, courses generally were of the personal-improvement type and the hobby type. Today, the majority of courses are devoted to both new and upgrading skills. With the equipment of the tech school available, the most highly complicated types of training can be made available.

Classes will continue to operate in various schools throughout the district, Riley said, but those in trade and industry and vocational areas will mostly center at tech school. He predicted that total enrollment in these courses will approach 400 for the fall session.

CBU Far Cry From Old College Image

Today's modern business college is a far cry from the image many people have . . . one or two rooms hidden away in an old dimly lit building with a dozen ancient typewriters and as many dreary students pecking away in beat to a metronome.

And one of the outstanding examples of the up-to-date commercial school, with a broad curriculum, including a dozen or more phases of business, is Columbus Business University at 208 N. High St.

CBU, one of the largest schools of its type in the nation, and one of the very few accredited business schools in Ohio, has a yearly enrollment of more than 1,000 students. These men and women come to CBU from practically every county in Ohio, and from many other parts of the country as well as from overseas.

The school was founded back near the turn of the century and has grown steadily. It now occupies three full floors in the modern building at the corner of N. High and E. Spring. Every room is fully air conditioned for maximum comfort the year 'round, and all are scientifically lighted.

All equipment is as modern as possible to keep pace with the rapidly changing technology of office machines. The faculty members are all degreed teachers and each is a specialist in his own field. Emphasis is on individual instruction, so a very favorable student-teacher ratio is maintained at all times.

Classes are offered in what many people consider the standard business fields such as secretarial science, accounting and marketing. But CBU offers a broad variety of "electives" which permit students in these subjects to specialize in specific areas if they wish. Other courses are taught in such important fields as airlines reservations and communications, and communications administration. More than a dozen complete courses are offered.

Elective subjects include those concerning broadcasting, electronic data processing, interior decorating and fashion coordinating and buying.

CBU also offers the famed Nancy Taylor charm course exclusively in this area, as well as the Mr. Executive course, a personality course for men. Both are bonus courses for all CBU students.

Classes are offered in day and evening schools. A free placement service is provided for students who wish part-time work while in school and to place them in the best possible positions after completing their studies. The placement service, school officials said, has more openings than students for the past several years.

CPS To Offer Basic Education

Adult Basic Education will again be part of the program when the Columbus Public Schools open their doors for 1968-69.

The Adult Basic program is a free educational program for adults 18 years of age and older, aimed specifically at reducing the illiteracy rate. Subjects stressed are reading, writing, arithmetic and spelling and courses are available for the totally illiterate all the way up to high school graduates. Some students use the program specifically to brush up on a particular skill.

The program began in the summer of 1965 as a pilot project conducted in conjunction with the State Department of Education.

The program has enrolled 500 students each year. But the 1960 census showed that Greater Columbus has 38,000 residents who never got as far as the sixth grade and 43,000 residents — mostly in the inner city — who are over 25 years old and have had less than eight years of education.

Age is the only requirement for admission to the program. Materials are also furnished free. Five centers operate in the inner city — four in the evening and one during the day.

Regular Columbus Public Schools teachers handle the classes and adults may enroll at any time during the school year.

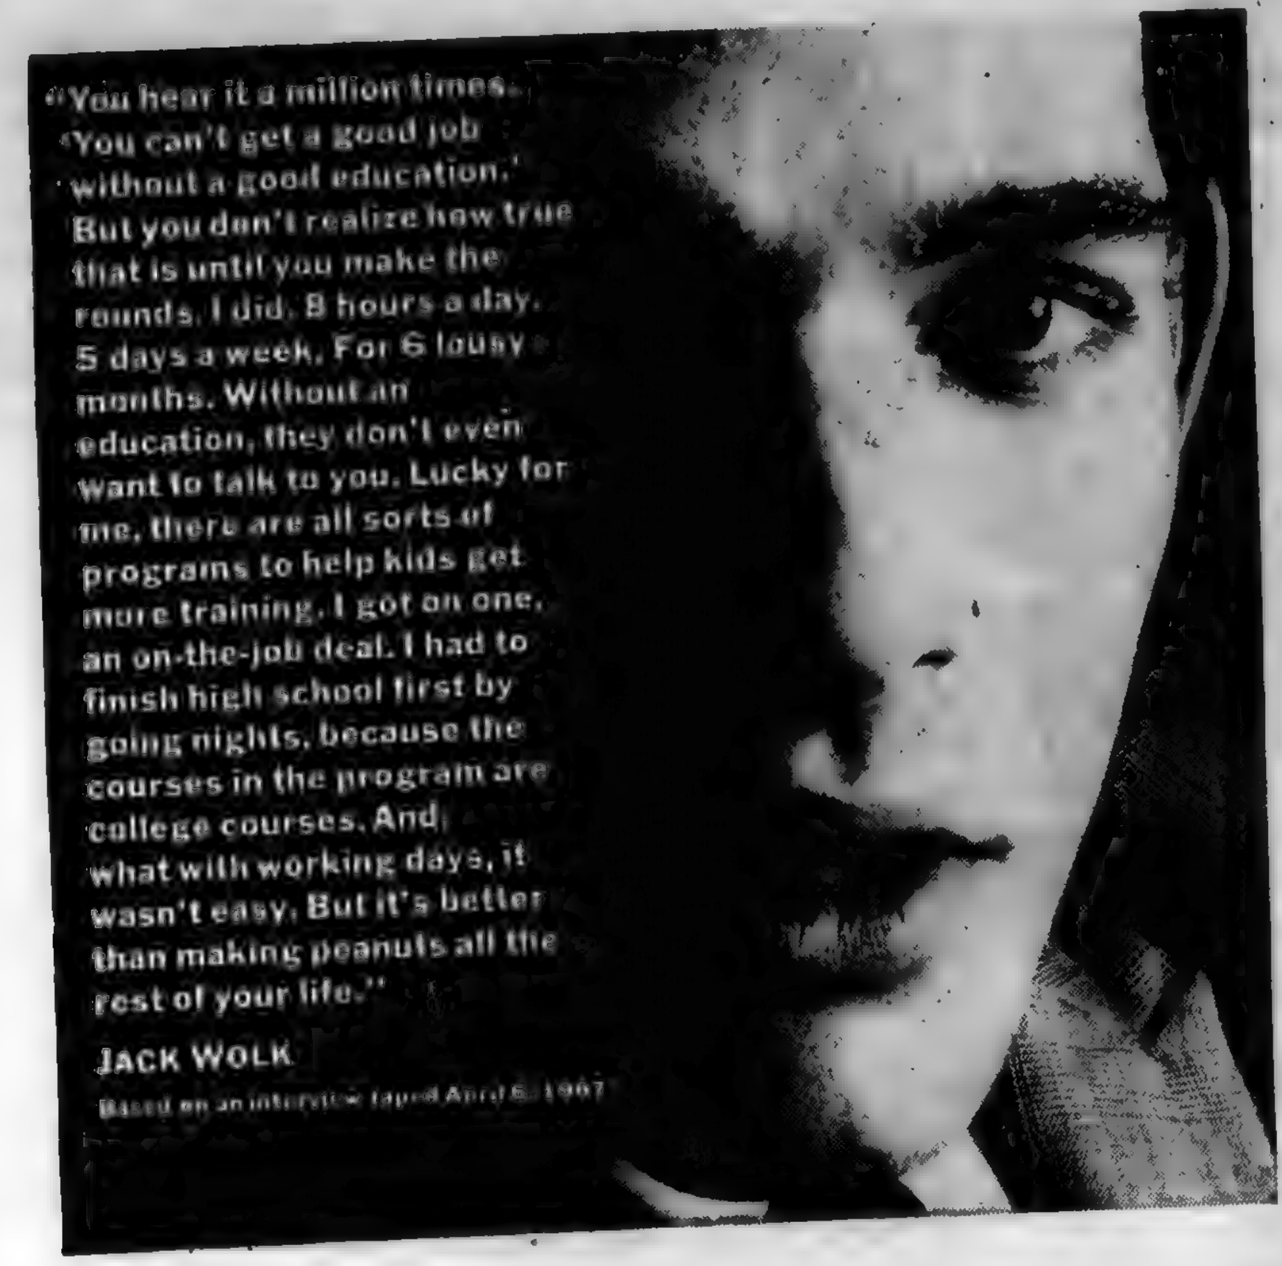
"LARGE ENOUGH TO SERVE YOU, SMALL ENOUGH TO KNOW YOU"

AUG 1968

If you think staying in school is tough, listen to someone who quit.



"You hear it a million times. 'You can't get a good job without a good education.' But you don't realize how true that is until you make the rounds. I did. 8 hours a day. 5 days a week. For 6 lousy months. Without an education, they don't even want to talk to you. Lucky for me, there are all sorts of programs to help kids get more training. I got on one, an on-the-job deal. I had to finish high school first by going nights, because the courses in the program are college courses. And what with working days, it wasn't easy. But it's better than making peanuts all the rest of your life."

JACK WOLK

"I started out just cutting classes. And at first it was a lot of fun. There's only one trouble. The jobs that kids who quit school can get only pay about $50 or $60 a week. With no chance of promotion. But just imagine you were a boss. Who would you promote? Drop-outs? Or people with education? So I pulled myself together. Went back to class full time. And finished school. I can't say I had a ball. But a couple of hard years in school are a lot better than a long hard life without it."

VIVIAN MUNERA

Based on an interview taped April 8, 1967

In A Stew Over Stew Lingo

By ROSE MARIE McMILLS

Someone should write a cooking dictionary for new brides.

[illegible]ow don't get me wrong [illegible] not that I can't cook. [illegible] just that there are a lot of words I don't know what they mean yet.

—Take dredge.

Now I follow my cookbook to a "T." I mean, when a recipe tells me to stir occasionally, I set the timer for each stir.

I even have it down to a science how many grains are in a dash of salt.

On the other, if you play it strictly by the rules you can end up neurotic just because the recipe calls for prepared mustard or ⅛ teaspoon of mint extract and there ain't a spice in the house.

Anyway, like I was saying take dredge.

I was making beef stew the other day. Having carefully collected all the ingredients (even down to the bay leaf) and scrupulously followed the recipe, I was stopped short when it suddenly says, "Dredge the meat in flour."

Dredge?

The cookbook's dictionary doesn't even mention dredging.

The really dictionary is a big help. It tells me that a dredge is a device consisting of a net attached to a frame which is dragged along the bottom of a river to gather shellfish.

I finally was forced to fall back on woman's intuition or that beef stew would have never gotten done.

Having concluded that dredge sounded rather violent and something akin to drub, I pounded the flour into the meat.

Never has my woman's intuition failed so miserably. It seems dredge simply means to coat thickly with flour.

Howcum they can't just SAY that!

Some of the terms you can guess though. "Coddle," for instance. Anyone can tell that means to cook gently because it sounds so much like cuddle.

And "ramekin." The other day I thought I had successfully made it through a recipe until it concluded curtly "Bake in ramekins."

Do you know I figured out that a ramekin is a little individual baking dish just because it sounds so much like munchkin?

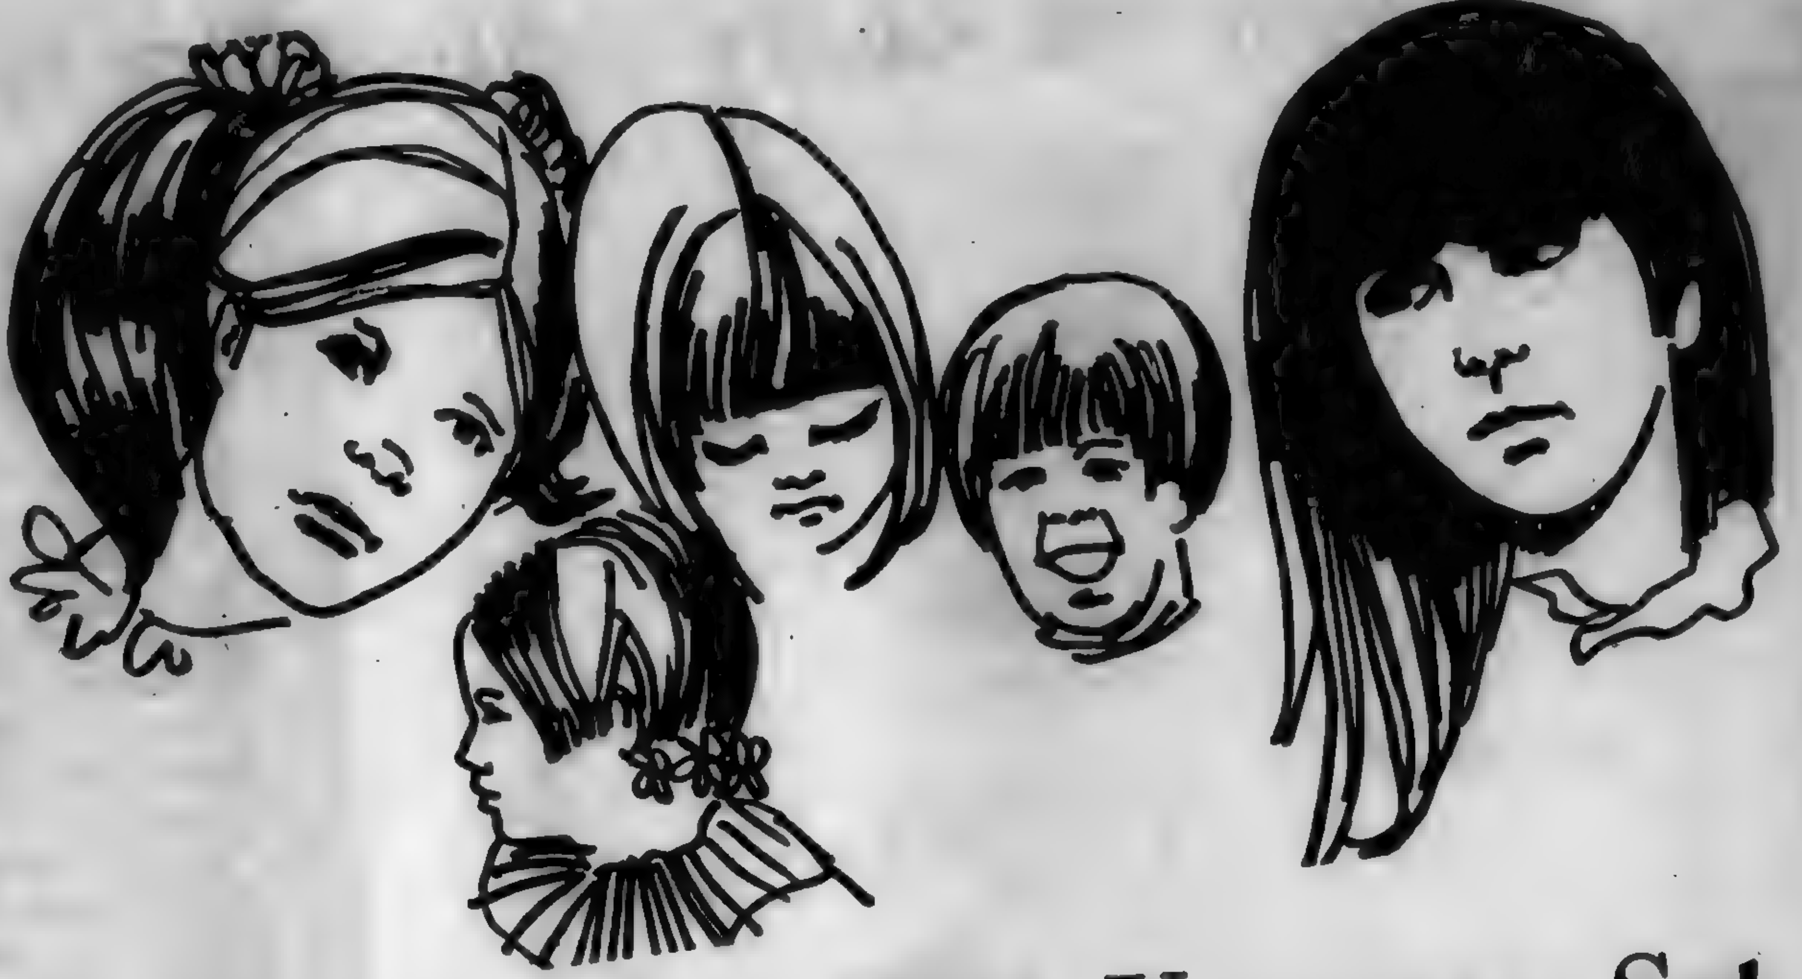
I just KNOW Betty Crocker wouldn't approve of my methods.



Fall Coifs For The Younger Set

By ROSE MARIE McMILLS

As a carefree summer draws to an end, it is once again time for mom to capture her little dimpled darling out romping in the sun with her hair in glorious tangles and transform her into some semblance of a little lady for fall and school days.

In the first place they are probably bleached by the sun and dried by chlorine from the pool that wasn't washed out promptly and thoroughly.

In addition, her hairdo is probably badly in need of cutting and shaping—an essential for the free-swinging, easy-care coif that is a perennial favorite for the younger set.

Step number one for you to repair the damage is to step up to your favorite beauty salon and get your daughter's hair cut properly according to her own hair type.

Since most mothers and beauticians are very much against setting a child's hair and young hair in its undeveloped state simply won't take a permanent, a cut suited to your daughter's hair type is a must.

If missy's hair is straight, have it cut short in the popular "London bob" or "pixie" cut. If she has fine hair, have it blunt cut.

Highly important if her hair is worn straight and short is that it be shiny, squeaky clean.

And of course, there are always braids if you MUST have her hair long and it is naturally straight.

If your little girl is possessed of naturally curly hair, you're in luck. According to our sources at Lazarus she is the latest thing. Curls haven't been so much in vogue since Shirley Temple danced her way into mothers' hearts way back when.

Make her curls of the loose, bouncy, Shirley Temple type or wind them around your finger for the long tendril effect a la Scarlett O'Hara.

Remember too to dress up her tresses. All the frills — ribbons, flowers, hairbands —are the "thing" this year.

All it takes is a little expertise and your little lady will go to the head of the class.

Doctors Make Good Husbands? Dont You Believe It, Ma'am!

While most American women continue to believe that doctors make the best husbands, evidence to the contrary continues to mount. Douglas Greene studies the issues in his article, "How Normal Is Your Doctor?" appearing in the August issue of "Pageant."

"One basic difficulty is that doctors spend too little time with their wives," reports Mr. Greene. When a wife feels shortchanged of affection she may get back at her husband by becoming sexually unresponsive. "She continues to withhold sex while he takes solace and reassurance from another woman," says the author.

Adultery is a simple step for doctors to take because they enjoy the gratitude of so many female patients. The wife may then retaliate by taking the same measure, and divorce can follow soon after.

Other drawbacks of the medical population are high rates of suicide and drug addiction. And many doctors who marry early are plagued with the problem of having outgrown their women once they are out of school and into practice for a few years.

"If you will take all of the other problems in stride," concludes Mr. Greene, "your marital life will be like most other people's — busy, confusing, rocky, but basically satisfying."

Men's Toiletries Make A Big Splash

Whatever you may feel as a woman about perfume on your man, the gentlemen are finding the idea sweeter every day, according to the April issue of "Beauty Fashion."

Part of this is due to the fact that the philosophy behind men's products has moved from the utilitarian, pharmaceutical approach, to one that sells the stronger sex on the idea that men's toiletries will make them more attractive.

Cologne and after-shave lotions still account for the greatest percentage of sales in the men's market although the sale of men's treatment products (face bronzers, balms, skin series creams) experienced a remarkable growth last year.

As for the total men's toiletries market "Beauty Fashion" predicts that it will have a sales volume of $750 million by 1970.

Housewife Turns Hippie

By CAY CROSS

For three strange evenings of one lost weekend, I found the secret of returning to youth: this middle-aged mother of four turned hippie.

I ironed my hair, donned black net hose and a plastic skirt borrowed from my babysitter and applied ghastly make-up that not too many years back would have been used in a horror movie.

Rejuvenated to the point of no return, I sneaked out to my station wagon, drove brazenly through the heart of town feeling as Bozo must on tour, and arrived at my new temporary job as a waitress in a hippie joint.

Security card in pocket and the great American dream that you could be what you wanted, I stepped boot-deep into the younger generation.

It was great. It was frightening. But best of all, it was nearly impossible.

At first, I "zonked out" completely by continually blowing my cool. I learned that the way to close kids up was to go up and say, "Hello, I'm your friendly neighborhood adult, and I'd like to know what's happening." Honesty may be the best policy, but keeping your mouth shut works more often.

They want to talk. And nothing makes them happier than when you actually listen. So between keeping cups out for the thick black coffee and making change, I mostly listened.

It's the "establishment" which includes everything from middle-aged adults (gulp) to the CIA. The term "Big Brother" is used frequently and not loosely.

These kids are smart and educated in their war on "them" if only through their debates with each other. And more than anything else, what they hate is war. What they love is Love.

The gold you spend for refrigerators, they explain, after being sifted through the banks of big business, really goes toward the cause of man against man. Defense is never mentioned.

So by conforming to the dropping out, they pride themselves on not being conformists. They're very organized.

And then there's the Love.

It's free. Anything that costs, except for necessities, is out, and Love is definitely in. The greatest thing the hippies have going for them — which to me is love for everyone—is also the worst. Kids do everything so passionately.

At the coffeehouses where I worked, only conversation and perhaps some gentle touches of affection were present. But I was invited to a love-in (or the Columbus variety of one) and the exact opposite applied. They seemed to want to give free love to everyone.

As long as you were "in," that is. There is discrimination. Not toward black or white — color wasn't even noticed. But against any and all outsiders.

And — as in all great fads — there are also the "props." The material things that give credance to the immaterial. The necklaces on the boys, as well as an earring perhaps. Sandals, huge posters, swirling dead colors, candles, all things of little or no cost — and then POT. Yes, right here in Columbus, POT.

From all I've read in the national magazines, HIPPIES are still big business. The Wall Street Journal says "call it psychedelic and it sells. Playboy claims two of every five college students participate in the movement, to whatever degree.

It all evolves around San Francisco, of course. The west coast. Out there it's serious. Back here it seems a fad.

And then there's the pot.

THEY—the some who use it——carry it in little boxes, wrapped in brown paper. I even saw one girl take it from a tissue in her shoe.

The effect is hard to evaluate, since they're pretty far out when they begin. But its use is general. And dangerous.

I felt the effects of Pot via a psychedelic movie shown in a private basement. The title was "Alice In Wonderland Revisited." It was screeching, gentle, wild, and total encompassing. I liked it.

It was perhaps, bold in spots — no more than some I've seen in public theaters. But most of all, it was art. And the kids reacted to that.

There's no way you could not react to these gentle searching people. I heard a boy called Steve sing softly before a silent room.

"I say what my parents say
—If it's false it doesn't matter.
The only way I'll be myself is if I don't get caught
The whole book I've bought
My plastic world won't shatter . . .
I'm a perfect citizen — selling out my soul."

I liked it too.

How long will it last?

I hope the gentleness and press for peace never leaves.

How far has it gone?

In Columbus, it seems a fad. Most of the kids only tune in, turn on, and drop out a little.

Is it good? Can anything that twists young ideas of love, and makes those that have the world by the tail turn to drugs be good?

And can anything that makes tomorrow's generation accept EVERYONE in spite of race, or place; turns their nearly every thought to working for peace and warns them to be themselves be all bad? No, No, NO — and neither are the kids involved.

Is it serious then? One of the most popular coffee houses involved is church sponsored.

Fashion's Female Lets Curls Go To Her Pretty Head

The revival of the thirties look in fashion has ushered in a new look for milady's tresses as well. Making headway (and headlines) today is the curly-wavy look so prevalent during that era.

The look is today though —very '68 and all girl.

Although reminiscent of the thirties, these curls and waves are a little different. The hair is not as flat or fitted as close to the head [illegible] thinned, but blunt cut. [illegible] whole coif is looser [illegible] more unconstrained than it was back then too—the curls aren't those crimped little machine-made things of the thirties. The look is all bounce and tousle and gloriously feminine and you.

If you've been a little lax about hair care of late though—you'd better shape up, literally. Your new curlier-wavier locks are going to require more care, and neglect will really show.

More women are going to have to have more things done to their hair—permanent waves, body waves and heated curlers for at-home, pick-up sets are a must.

Hairpins, which a lot of girls have never seen except on their grandmother's dressing table, are back. And believe it or not, pin curls are here to stay—at least for awhile.

If you're young, you've probably never made one. Helpful hints — use clips to secure them on short-to-medium length hair, and hairpins for long hair. (Otherwise your hair will take FOREVER to dry).

Now about those waves. Know-how is all important. In the first place, you just can't make waves that last with rollers, so you might as well forget it.

Here's how — wet hair thoroughly and apply setting lotion. With comb, curve hair in the direction you want the first curve to go. Secure with a row of hairpins lodged one behind the other.

Then curve the hair in the reverse direction to make a wave bed for a row of pin curls rolled in the same direction as the bed curves.

Repeat if you want another wave below the first one. You will find that medium length hair is best for waves.

Finally, unless you have naturally curly hair, your set is going to need quick pickups throughout the week.

One suggestion are Q.H.S. (Quick Hair Setting) rollers that you put in a pot of boiling water, heat for 15 minutes, then roll up—five minutes for a loose set, 10 for medium, 15 for tight.

Whatever your choice — short frothy curls, snuggles of corkscrews, head-hugging waves or shoulder-length ringlets—get in the swing of things by putting new bounce in your hairdo.

TIDBITS

Turn a round of cardboard into a pretty decorator's basket this summer with a three-gallon ice cream container from the local soda shop and some adhesive covering, such as Marvalon.

To perk up a room, choose a daisy or polka dot pattern.

The Suburbs -- Good And Bad

By CAY CROSS

Much has been said about what's wrong with the suburbs. Like — they're all stamped out of a single pattern; or they all contain people who live above their means; and they all take too long to get to or from, depending upon whether you're going to or from work. With today's fantastic freeways though, that last argument is nearly useless.

As a matter of fact, there is much today's modern suburbia offers — especially here in Columbus. The schools for example. A couple of generations ago, our suburban public schools lagged far behind those of Columbus. Now the reverse is true.

One of the reasons is the fresh newness of the school itself and its officials, and another is the way the tight groups of parents campaign for school-bond issues or support their school boards. The suburbs are comparatively small, and the community is easier to identify with.

This same smallness and intimacy encourages good urban government and large participation. It's THEIR community, literally.

And it is simply not true that suburbanites are cut off from the culture and worth-while entertainment of our times. They see more plays, attend more concerts, hear more lectures and visit more art shows than do their city counterparts. Advertising is aimed in their direction.

Last but not least, we must recognize the axiom of the suburb: the shopping center. That huge neon oasis offering large variety and convenience in one-stop spending. Downtown businesses don't even try to compete — they just put a store in every one!

In fact, some of them often wonder now which came first: the shopping center or the suburb?

Trifari Reveals Fall Collection

News is that fall's fashion plate will once again be aglitter with jewelry whether she frolicks through mounds of red and gold leaves ajingle with chains or dazzles her date with evening sparklers.

And speaking of baubles, bangles and beads—Trifari has just drawn back the curtain on its dramatic new fall collection.

CHAINS OF CHIC

Direct from the guru influence come Trifari's new chains of chic—all interesting and irresistible. Perfect with the high turtle necks, these chains may be worn by the newly-fashionable "real lady" as well as her mini-skirted daughter.

Shiny and textured links, hammered, forged, twisted; there are a wealth of chains from which to make your individual statement of chic.

And don't forget that they are most effective when several are massed together.

Their effect is heightened by adding a chain with a pendant magnificently medallioned and enamelled; be it crown, Maltese cross, Mercury's head or a coat of arms.

Waistlines are back in fashion and as clothes move closer to the body belts, particularly jeweled ones, are very much in style. Among the many (rope or nugget squares, enamelled coins, and shields) is a fabulous belt of hammered rectangles with a flattering swag of chains.

COLORFUL ACCENTS

The subdued colors of fashion, very classic and reserved, with grey, brown and black the early favorites, are dramatized and highlighted by Trifari's brilliant jewelled enamels.

Pins are either mammoth or miniscule. No half way measures.

Birds with gorgeously enameled plumage, knots, turbans, a mask, scrolls, open squares and feathers are only a small part of the wealth that pours from Trifari's treasure chest.

The mini-pins are heraldic in feeling as they include a crown, orb, helmet, crossed swords, mace, and others all exquisitely modeled and a fascinating challenge to your individuality in how you use them to make an outfit yours alone.

Earrings are important with the new hair styles. Whether the head is smoothly waved or your coiffure is the loosely hanging fall, earrings are indispensable to complete the perfectly groomed head and add a glow to the complexion.

Choose the new and chic enormous button, the popular "shrimp" or wedding band, the contour or the dramatic drop.

Enamelled bracelets have received additional fashion impetus with the advent of the long ,skinny sleeve. Trifari has an astounding array of wide cuffs and slim bangles enamelled in a wide variety of fascinating designs and colors.

GOLDEN ACCENTS

Golden and platinum-tone jewels are also a splendid foil for more subdued colors.

Trifari has created new, rough textures in golden jewelry that are smashingly beautiful. There is one golden necklace with a pendant that is incomparable worn with a V neck. Its complementary wide flexible bracelet is truly "not-to-be-told-from-the-precious."

Conducive to preening is this magnificently enamelled bird of paradise pin called "Plumage." The enormous button earrings emphasize delicate features and the cuff bracelet calls attention to a graceful wrist. The trio is part of Trifari's just-out fall collection.

RING-A-DING-DING

Latest in rings is a tension spring, built into the inside of the ring, which expands over the knuckle and contracts to finger size when the ring has been properly placed.

Today's rings are available in plain gold-tone, pave rhinestone, enamels, mosaics, ribbed and open lattice work.

TASSELS

Foremost in fashion's 30's revival is the tassel. Ideal with either a high neck or a plunging V, elegant tassels are a divine foil for the darker fashion shades.

All adjustable, so you may wear them at the length individually becoming to you, are multi tassels in golden-tone, suspended from a golden chain and several chains that hold the longest tassel in the world.

Tassel earrings that dangle, in the fashion of the 30's are not only becoming but have great movement. Truly eye-catching is this collection.

MIDDLE EAST INFLUENCE

As tailored as the fashion is by day, by evening a lady wants to be exotic. Evening clothes are opulent and luxurious.

Stop evening traffic by wearing Trifari's "Jaipur." Gorgeous enamels and clusters of cabochons in would-be sapphire, emerald, topaz, coral, terra cotta and turquoise are eye stoppers worn pinned to the waist, shoulder or wherever you find they give the greatest effect.

The "Kashmir" collar and broad bracelet, plus enticing long drop earrings in chrysoprase and carnelian, combined with pseudo pearls and rhinestones, are dazzling.

The jewelry is bold in design, yet delicately detailed. They glow against evening velvets and the delicate golden lacy settings add to the look of exotic elegance of the Near East.

Quickie Tip For Backyard Chefs

Here's an idea from Kleenex for backyard barbecue chefs who have trouble getting an even, glowing fire started.

The quickest trick, we are told, is to place a layer of paper towels over the coals, squirt charcoal starter over them, ignite, and voila!

Travel Made Easy— Kids' Games Galore

Vacation time is upon us again and once more "mom" finds herself confronted with the prospect of a backseat crowded with hot and travel-weary youngsters that she must somehow keep amused and out of the driver's hair until the destination is reached.

Most of the games in the booklet are of the competitive type. Every child has a pamphlet of his own and attempts to find items in a game before the other players, checking each item off as he finds it.

Games range from the simpler sort like finding words on billboards, "modern," "fire-proof," and "reasonable," to more interestings one that mother herself may want to join in.

Several games are truly informative, such as the "Roof Game" and the "Window Game," which requires players to identify different types of roofs and window shapes.

Although mothers may think that the identification of a "hip" or "quonset" roof is too difficult for children, the game is accompanied by pictures and truly results in a learning experience.

Also of an instructive nature are such enjoyable games as a highway sign shape game and a game on highway beauty, where children find different kinds of litter and signs of careless behavior on the part of motorists (burned grass, etc.).

Even the old standbys have several new twists. The "License Plate Game" has one section where the players find proper names on the plates, such as "Mary" (Maryland).

All in all, the booklet has 30 pages and about as many games.

Jean Martinez To Leave Columbus Stage

When Playhouse On The Green rings down the final curtain on their next play, "Separate Rooms," another curtain will fall. This curtain brings to an end the distinguished career of Jean Martinez.

In case the name is not familiar, Jean has now appeared in at least six plays per season for the past five years at POG. For community theater goers, her career has ranged from Players Club to Gallery Players to Worthington Players to Village Little Theater to Stadium Theater. For TV viewers she has work- on Traffic Court, Juvenile Judge, Flippo's Show, Let's Face It and has [illegible] many commercials.

"Five memorable events include doing 'Little Mary Sunshine' three times, 'Hatful of Rain,' and then there was my acting debut at POG. By default I was asked to do a role in 'The Jest.' I had one rehearsal, and when I walked off stage my fellow actors were applauding. This was very touching and moving.

"I have performed for the Pleasure Guild for the past seven years. When I walked off the stage after doing 'Rumpelstiltskin' a little boy of 12 cautiously said, 'You know, you really had me fooled. I thought you were a girl at first.'"

At POG during "The Man Who Came To Dinner," when she was to climb into a casket, the lock would not open. She frantically worked to no avail. Finally, Peter Harris had to break the lock so she could hurriedly climb inside to ring down the end of the act.

She learns her lines by pacing. Jean feels that community theater is the greatest training ground for those seeking a career in acting. "My advice is just to do evrything. For instance, I've played dwarfs, elves and drunks. You learn something from every experience.

"I feel very sad in leaving Columbus and my friends, but if I wish to continue to progress, it is either New York or Los Angeles, so I have chosen the latter. What scares me is getting from here to there. I'm driving out.

"I do have friends there, some you know. Ray Girardin from POG, Marilyn Trapp, Bob Denning and other actors who have found careers out there."

That's how it is to be an actress, or really just a sampling. It is hard to think of theater without Jean as her fans will attest. She has given much pleasure and joy to theater goers in the past 15 years.

She is making her encore in "Separate Rooms" at POG beginning Monday. The play is booked for two weeks.

Intermission

With Claudia Elkins

Dave McCoy Opens

Columbus' newest singing sensation, Dave McCoy, opens a one week engagement at the Desert Inn Monday night. McCoy recently completed a four Sunday series entitled, "The Now Composers," at the Bistro. He has also been a guest singer on TV 4's Nick Clooney Show for the past several weeks.

New Theater Group Formed

There is nothing so bright and shiny as a new penny. This also applies to a new group of non-professional actors in Columbus' northeast area.

Not yet officially endowed with a name, the group is being sponsored by the North Branch of the YMCA. Executive director of the North Branch, Gale Galbreath, is the producer of this group's first production "Thurber Carnival" which by no small coincidence presents this accumulation of humorous thoughts by James Thurber this Friday and Saturday at the Woodward Junior High School Theater, 5151 Karl Rd., at 8:30 p.m.

This past Sunday, a visit to a rehearsal resulted in complete joy. Here is a group starting on the right foot . . . the experienced actor intermingled with the neophyte . . . an energetic director with imagination . . . teenagers and adults working side by side . . . many members from the community . . . a fine selection of first production and, last but far from the least, enthusiasm that will be the deciding factor to success.

This series of ideas is best explained by saying that you are not going to see a play with a plot or build. "Thurber Carnival" is just that, a carnival of ideas presented in the overtones of carnival atmosphere.

When you miss an actor on stage, then that person has made an impression. A happening in the name of Jean Ann Weaver is the ringmaster. Others in the cast making interpretations are Fred Kark (what a voice), Rick Viola, Mike McGee, Nora Stanton, Barbara Hardy, Dee Fister and Ken Sprang.

Now for some other notes. Supposedly this is a musical play set to jazz timing. This means fast pace, stepping on lines if need be, and tempo . . . pick it up.

Miss Dee Fister, a fine talent, overacts in the "Pet Department" scene too much.

Projection and speaking clearly will have to be incorporated to allow the audience to hear those witty thoughts of James Thurber. Basically, just tightening up is all that is needed for a top-notch show.

To borrow a phrase from the Ohio Community Theater Association, "Community Theater builds community culture" is very apropos at this time. Those of you who have Friday or Saturday night open should consider "Thurber Carnival." Tickets may be reserved by calling 263-1853 or obtained at the door on nights of performance.

The TV Corner

• • •

"Focus On Columbus," a WLW-C TV Sunday program, will feature Community Services Director Morris Butler and assistant Ann Walker hosting a discussion on housing discrimination in renting and selling, new housing laws, realtors and realtists, urban renewal and ghettos.

Special guest will be Tom Matthews, advisor of the Southwest Housing Organization; Mrs. Pat Wylie, Welfare Rights Organization and Jarret C. Chavous, member of the Model Cities Task Force on Housing and director of the Street Cleaning Department for the City. Air time is 11:30 a.m., Aug. 11.

'Never A Dull Moment' Is Wholesome Entertainment

For a family outing, "Never a Dull Moment," is just the right dosage of taste, fun and wholesome entertainment as per the standards of Walt Disney Studios.

If you've become accustomed to the current vintage of bare facts on film this one would be complete boredom. One should then steer clear of Town and Country and Great Western Cinemas.

Two actors, Dick Van Dyke and Edward G. Robinson, vie for the advantage of their supreme talents for comedy, as well as timing, which often carries several weak scenes.

The antics and plot of stealing a painting are humorous, and in some instances hero Van Dyke is reminiscent of an Abbott and Costello delivery.

What is lacking, direction, becomes a minor factor as one quickly becomes entertained by Van Dyke, Robinson and a plot that has an obvious ending from the beginning . . . just relax and watch the cliches of the cops and robbers scenes and the bad guys.

Much to my surprise the 9:55 p.m. showing this past Saturday offered the opportunity to see an audience of adults . . . I was not alone.

This Walt Disney film is better than past movies, but only from the acting standpoint. The studio has cured one problem and the next one should be choice of directors.

Anyway, if you'd just like to see an old-time movie with three old-time cartoons with "Pluto" and all, they are available.

Flash Flood Endangers NL

One of the best things that ever happened to St. Louis was a Flood.

It ravages not along the levee but along the warning track. It comes up not out of the Mississippi but out of the dugout.

AT ITS crest, it inundates the National League.

It's the only Flood the people of Missouri hate to see recede. It is one Flood you dare not sandbag.

You may talk of the Johnstown Flood, Noah's, the Yellow River's, but along Walnut St. on game night, the most famous Flood in history is Curtis Charles Flood.

MURRAY

He has marooned two pennants.

As they say in the fight game, pound-for-pound, he is the best centerfielder in the game.

He looks more like a leaky faucet than a Flood. If they don't cut the grass in center, only his cap is showing.

No one in the league plays the sluggers any deeper, or the banjo hitters any shallower.

"The damned thing about Flood," the late Freddy Hutchinson used to say, "is that he can have his back to the wall and come in and take a soft line drive out of the shortstop's ear."

ST. LOUIS has had a tradition of great centerfielders—Ernie Orsatti, Chick Hafey, Taylor Douthit and Terry Moore.

To hear old-time fans tell it, Terry Moore used to haul down fly balls over in East St. Louis and throw out guys at home by 11 feet. The only way to get a ball over his head was to airmail it.

But Curtis Charles Flood threw in the only errorless full season (1966), not only in the history of the Cardinals, but in the history of the league.

HE WENT 226 games without an error, also a league record.

From Sept. 3, 1965, until June 4, 1967, no scorer had a chance to mark "E-8" on a St. Louis scorecard.

With the bat, it's even less of a contest. Curt Flood made 602 hits in three years in a row (1963-64-65).

FUNNY, BUT WHEN this Flood joined Cincinnati in 1956, he was about as welcome as one from the Ohio River.

The Reds had already plucked Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson from the same high school (McClymonds in Oakland) as Curt, and they reasoned the only way a Flood could crack into that outfield would be by a leak in the wall.

Curt was giving both those guys 30 to 40 pounds and several inches in height. So he decided the answer was in a bigger swing.

ON SOME of the slower pitches, Curt went around 420 degrees and got two swings. Unfortunately, he missed both.

Even so, he led the Carolina League in hitting in his first year and lost the home run title by one homer (to Leon Wagner, 30 to 29).

The Reds decided to make a third baseman out of him.

"THE ONLY way I could get the ball to first base was to carry it there," Curt admits today.

"The manager used to beg me to throw to second any time I got my hands on a ground ball. 'That way we can hold it to a single.'"

Curt led the league in turning double-plays into doubles, period.

THE CARDINALS got him for a flock of nobodies even the slot man on the Sporting News had to look up (Ted Wieand, Marty Kutyna, Joe Taylor and Willard Schmidt).

Flood tide came when Johnny Keane came to the Cardinals as manager.

Solly Hemus, the previous manager, used to refer to his overswinging by likening him to a guy who would use a sledgehammer to break a walnut.

CURT, WHO was as quiet as a river rising, made his own corrections and, when Keane said, "You're my centerfielder, even if you only bat .200," Curt was able to answer, "How about if I bat .300?"

Which he did (.322 his first full season).

"I thought I had to be Babe Ruth. Dick Groat taught me there were 18 other places to get a safe hit besides in the seats."

CURT, WHO paints portraits in the off-season, is so valuable to the Cardinals (who are the Yankees of the late '60s) that they kept him in the lineup last year, even though his arm was so sore it hurt him to hand the ball to anybody.

The shortstop spent as much time in center field as Curt did on balls hit out there. Curt became the master of the two-foot relay.

Fortunately, his arm is all right now, and there are Flood warnings all over the National League.

THE RED CROSS may be called in to pass out doughnuts and blankets at the World Series in October, where the headlines may well read "Detroit Devastated By Flood."

Freeman Keeps String; ARCA Here Saturday

With threatening skies cutting attendance to 4500 and delaying the feature for an hour, Dick Freeman roared to his fourth straight victory (sixth of season) in the 60-lap Mid-Season Championship main go at Columbus Motor Speedway Sunday.

BOB HALL and Harold Blakeman waged a tight battle for hobby-stock feature honors until a spin-out chilled the latter's hopes.

Saturday night the Automobile Racing Club of America ('65 through '68 model cars) arrives with its star-studded lineup—the program highlighted by a 100-lap championship feature.

SUNDAY THE late-models and hobby-stocks return with time trials (7 p.m.) and opening races (8 p.m.) carded at the same times both nights.

Boxing-O-Rama Set Tomorrow At Fairgrounds

The highly successful Summer Boxing Program concludes tomorrow, with a "Boxing-O-Rama" which will be held at the WBNS-TV Pavilion, located on the State Fairgrounds.

Participants between the ages of eight and 17 will box two one-minute round exhibition bouts. No decisions will be rendered.

The Boxing-O-Rama is free and open to the public. The program gets underway at 6:30 p.m.

Several youngsters in the summer program have been selected on the Columbus Boxing Team which will represent the Capital City in the first Annual Ohio State Fair Tournament Aug. 24, 31.

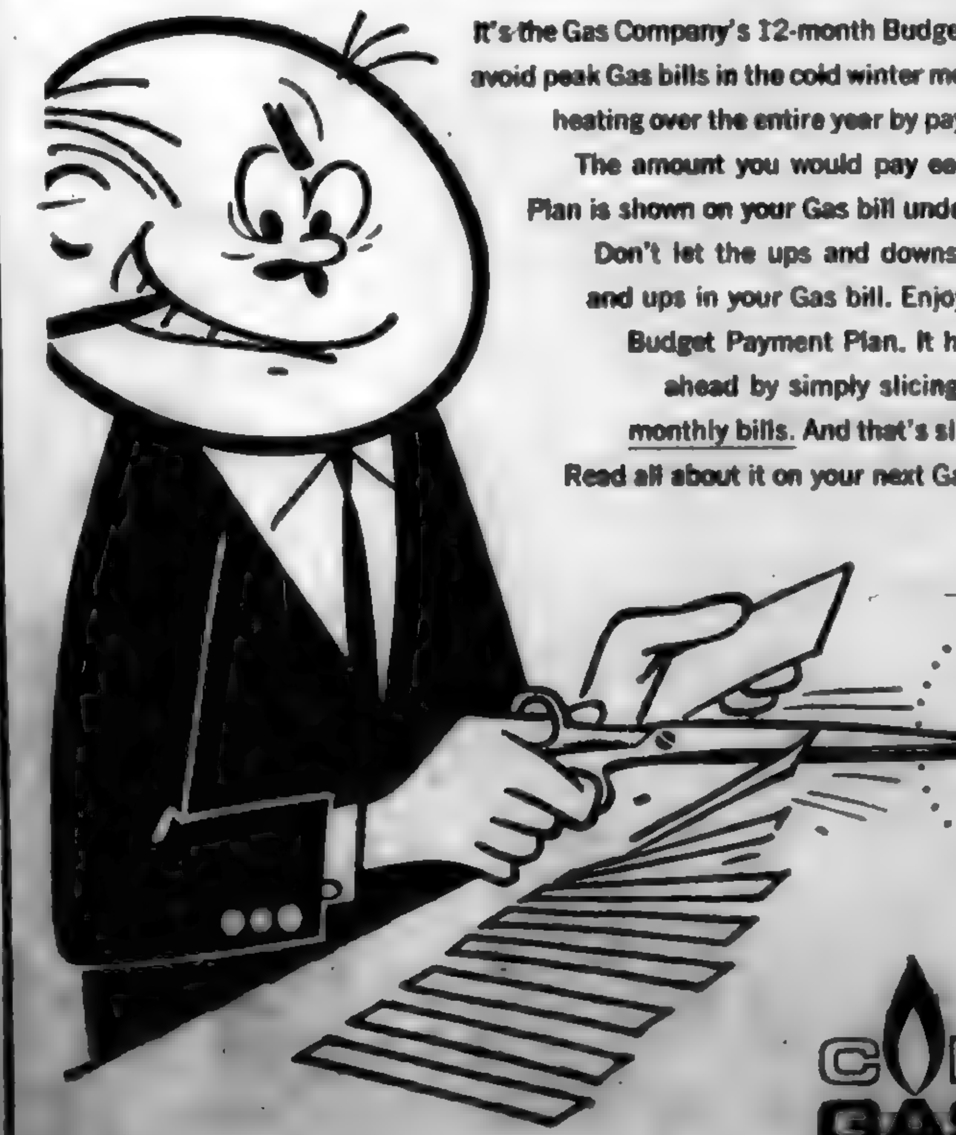
SHREWD SUGGESTION TO CUT WINTER HEAT BILLS


It's the Gas Company's 12-month Budget Payment Plan. With this plan, you avoid peak Gas bills in the cold winter months. You spread the cost of winter heating over the entire year by paying the same amount every month. The amount you would pay each month on the Budget Payment Plan is shown on your Gas bill under "Budget Amount."
Don't let the ups and downs of the thermometer make downs and ups in your Gas bill. Enjoy the convenience of the 12-month Budget Payment Plan. It helps you plan your budget months ahead by simply slicing up your yearly Gas bill into equal monthly bills. And that's slicing it pretty thin!
Read all about it on your next Gas bill.

But there will be a whole storeroom of good summer and fall clothing at the South Side Settlement House, 363 Reeb Ave., Saturday morning for a thin dime.

At the clearance rummage sale from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m., the South Side Settlement Family Council will tag all items at this uninflated price.

Mrs. Clara Duey and Mrs. Edna Foster, co-chairmen of the sale, are urging bargain hunters to come early and stay late.

At Symposium

Members of the South Central Power management team have attended a two-day symposium on data processing management Aug. 6 and 7. Attending the meeting were: Albert Aebersold, Earl Watkins, S. J. Fischer, Robert Swinehart, Robert Holzman, William Ridge and Sanford Haigh.

Mrs. Everett Attends Institute

Mrs. Betty Everett, 37 Frederick St., has just returned from the 39th annual International Congress and Institute of Graphoanalysis in Chicago.

According to Mrs. Everett, 350 students and practioners attended the six-day institute devoted to the study of learning personality traits through study of handwriting.

'King Football' Waits Anxiously In Wings

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Although its impact on the average fan won't be felt for another four weeks, "King Football" saunters back onto state-wide high school grid fields a week from tomorrow in the form of "basic training" for thousands of young athletes.

The 21 days of football practice will form the molds which will take the field Friday, Sept. 6, as starting elevens for their respective schools.

THE EYES of Central Ohio grid fans will be generally focused on two '68 versions—that produced by Marv Moorehead at Upper Arlington and Bob Stuart at Eastmoor.

Moorehead's Golden Bears (open with Pleasant View) will be defending a State grid title on the heels of a 10-0 '67 campaign which ran an impressive UA win log to 38 wins in 39 consecutive outings.

At Eastmoor, Stuart and his Warriors (open with Bishop Ready) will be attempting to extend the area's longest victory skein — 20 games.

BOTH FACE rugged roads in their individual quests for encores — Arlington with its first taste of Central Ohio League competition, Eastmoor with a testy City League schedule and a non-leaguer at home with perennial state power Canton McKinley on Oct. 4.

Westerville — the area's third unbeaten last fall (10-0) — finds itself in a brand new league (as will 13 other local 11's).

In fact, no existing 1967 area grid league finds itself unaffected by the toll of alteration this fall.

"NEWEST OF the new" is the Ohio Capital Conference whose eight-school membership will include Whitehall, Reynoldsburg, Pleasant View, Gahanna, Westerville, Worthington, Mt. Vernon and Delaware.

Bexley and Grandview fill a pair of vacancies (created by the OCC) in the Mid-Eight alignment — joining regulars like Grove City, Hilliard, Groveport, Mifflin, Marysville and London.

The third major change appears in a revamped Metropolitan lineup, altered to include standbys Franklin Heights, Teays Valley and Hamilton Township and newcomers West Jefferson and Dublin.

NOR HAVE the tried 'n true City and Central Catholic loops been spared a face-lifting.

A pair of Southside "sophomores" — Wehrle Memorial and Mohawk—jump into varsity competition on a full-scale basis for the first time, the former joining the CCL ranks, the latter swelling the bulging City lineup to 13.

FOR THE benefit of those short of memory, defending loop champions look like: CITY — Walnut Ridge and Eastmoor; MID-EIGHT — Westerville; CCL — Watterson and METRO — Whitehall and Pleasant View.

Naturally, there are the "rookie" coaches — a total of 10 taking new positions this season.

CITY, MID-EIGHT and OCC teams fall next in line with two each — Vince Cahill (Walnut Ridge) and Dave Koblentz (West) in the CL, Bob Starr (Groveport) and Buddy Epperson (Mifflin) in the Mid-8 and Howard Millisor (Pleasant View) and Bob "Smokey" Wion (Worthington) in the OCC.

Fans will need a stopwatch to detect the only real rules change for high school gridders this fall — between-play timeout cut from two minutes to 90 seconds.

Hamilton Township's entry in the Teays Valley Pony League recently gained the loop pennant with a fine 12-2 mark — sewing up the title on Gary Johnson's no-hitter. Team members include (kneeling, from left): Gary Johnson, Greg Lafferty, Steve O'Dell, Billy Larrimer, Tom Mouser and Jim Yates. Standing: coach John Stubbins, Rick Grim, Ed Godfrey, Mark Daubitz, Bob Koontz and Tim Stubbins. Another H-T player — Don Grim — is pictured in inset at lower left.

Fishin' Facts

A dab of paint or the addition of a little padding may be all that's needed to salvage a lure that is not producing fish.

Color and size are extremely important in influencing the decision of a fish to smash a certain plug, say fishing authorities.

BUT THE LURE in your hand may appear entirely different when scanned by the critical eye of a roving largemouth. He may not be impressed by either its size or color.

Skin divers have no[illegible] lures painted yellow [illegible] much larger when [illegible] from beneath the surface. This aberration is apparently caused by reflection, plus the magnifying effect of water. The same model in a different light-absorbing color might appear nearly normal.

YELLOW AND white-and-red combinations have long been favorite topwater choices. Their effectiveness probably derives from the reflective qualities of these colors — not the colors themselves.

But color is not the only way to achieve a false dimension. There are other ways to pad out the girth of a lure without actually adding bulk.

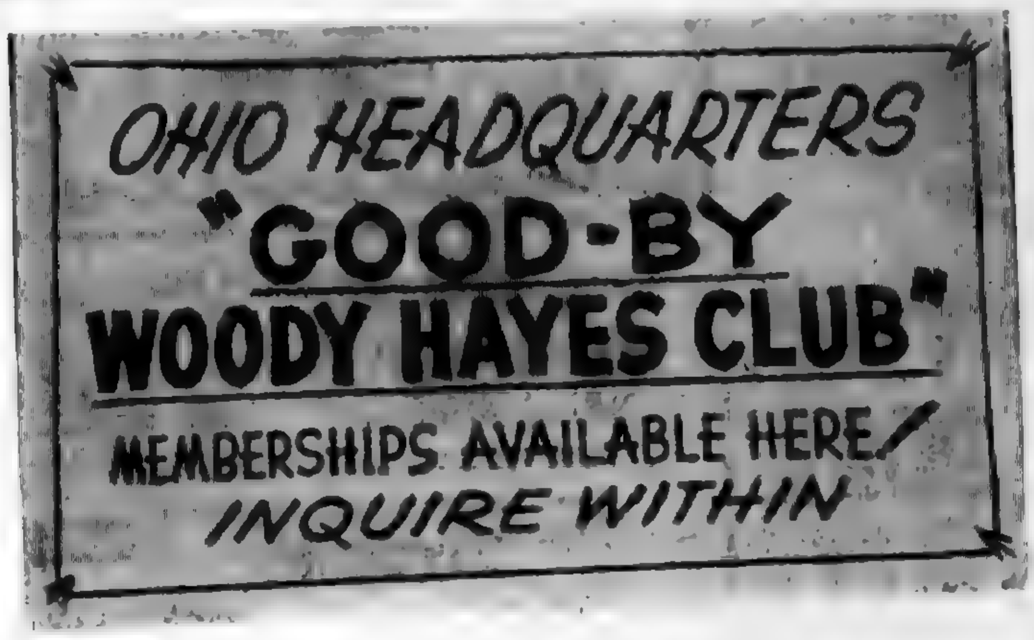
Ordinary flyrod bugs with stiff hackles attached so that they stick out at right angles can create the effect of a larger apparition. The same feathers placed on the tail give the appearance of a longer lure.

NEITHER alteration affects the casting or fishing abilities to any degree, but both create an entirely different impression on fish.

So heed the hues and pad the plugs. A phony line has been the downfall of many a lunker.

H-T Physicals Aug. 14

Hamilton Township football coach Bruce Burnham has announced that physicals for all Ranger varsity grid candidates will be held Wednesday, Aug. 14, (7:30 a.m.) in the high school gymnasium.



THE RITE OF FALL

Although the Buckeyes' '68 opener (Sept. 28 vs. SMU) is still better than seven weeks distant, some people are already digging the barbs into OSU's long-suffering mentor Woody Hayes. This sign — occupying the front window of a Hilltop tavern — may have to be replaced with a "Hayes For President" placard come November, the Buckeyes tabbed as sure-fire Big Ten and Rose Bowl contenders in pre-season tabulations.

MAVERICK

By Richard L. Pough

WITH MUDDY SHOES

The current fuss over gun legislation might well go down in history as the fiercest fight ever waged in the halls of the United States Congress.

Before it's over, a national vote could be called for to settle—once and for all — the knotty problem.

THERE ARE two very important facets of gun ownership that have never seen the light of day and now is a prime time to air them.

First, most citizens do not know that more than half of the long guns (both rifles and shotguns) made in these United States do not even have serial numbers.

I personally feel this is idiotic in itself to place guns on the market without a means for even the owner to identify his weapons.

THIS HAS been a slow process over the years. Originally, all commercially produced guns bore numbers from the factory.

There is no federal law that requires this but common sense pointed out the necessity of a permanent means of identification.

First, only the cheapest single-shot .22 rifles and a few lesser makers of shotguns left off all numbering systems to make the gun cheaper by eliminating one step in the manufacture.

THEN ALL gun companies found they could get away with this shortcut. Now all domestic companies leave off serial numbers on all except their expensive lines.

Even if Congress passed a law to record all guns, there are millions now in the hands of civilians with no means of identification. I firmly believe laws should force the manufacturers to number and record all guns made or imported by them.

For 10 years I was a gun dealer in Central Ohio and each time my store was burglarized (12 times) my insurance company would make good only on the guns I could prove I had bought by showing the invoices with each serial number thereon.

IF YOU own guns, find out if they have serial numbers. If they do, record them and put the list in a safe place.

If they do not have numbers, contact your insurance man and ask him how you can make sure they are covered without a number.

The second badly needed manufacturer's regulation is a system of proof-firing prior to placing the gun on the market. There is no federal law requiring the testing of guns by the manufacturer.

IN ALL other countries, the weapons must bear the official proof-mark of the tester before it is released to the dealer. Here, no such regulation exists.

Nor do we require import guns to be tested. Many surplus military weapons are bought overseas by the pound or ton and sold here as workable weapons.

Many of the $14 .22 pistols coming into our stores from West Germany are just as likely to kill the guy behind as the guy out front. Many of the moving parts such as the cylinder are made of aluminum, with practically no tensile strength at all.

HERE ARE two "gun laws" which are truly needed.

Whitehall Junior Olympics King; Mary Fowle Sparkles

Paced by four first-place finishes, Whitehall captured honors in the Open Boys Division of the 1968 Junior Olympics conducted Saturday at OSU.

Whitehall firsts came from: Mark Hunter (13'10" in running long jump, 10-11 category), Jim Sears (36'5⅝" in running triple jump, 14-15 category), 440 relay unit of Dave Cline, Bill Barber, Dave Brobst and Jim Dean (:53.1, 12-13 category) and mile relay crew of Vando Rogers, Steve Southworth, Dan Reid and Clay Fuller (3:35.3, 16-17 category.

In Friday's girls competition, Brentnell out-pointed Goodale, 96-28, for the playground honors while the Ohio Track Club dominated runnerup Grandview, 224-113, in the open category.

WHITEHALL was sixth with 42 markers.

Individual girls standout was Wehrle's 14-15 entry Mary Fowle who took three blue ribbons (low hurdles in 7.4, running long jump in 15'10" and high jump in 4'7¼").

Kathy Peterson (13'1", running long jump, 10-11 category) and Karen Kappes (:12.2, 100-yd. dash, 12-13 category) gained the lone Whitehall firsts in the girls division.

Swimming Invitational Is Saturday

Warmups for the day-long time-final event are set for 8:30 a.m. with competition beginning 30 minutes later.

Joining the hosts of the Invitational will be Upper Arlington, the Sandpipers, the Buckeye Blue Dolphins, Mt. Vernon, Hilltop, Delaware, Marion, Gahanna, Swimland Sailfish, Newark plus a host of local swim pool teams.

Competition will extend through four age groups — 17 under, 14 under, 12 under and 10 under.

PIN NEWS

Keglers' Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

Congratulations to new CBA directors Harry Hoffhines, Don Craven, Harry Sycks and Richard Bryant.

And a lot of hurrahs for Ed Thomas who finally cracked the 300 circle (after so many near misses) in his own Stardust Trio League. The same applause for Albert Rice whose perfecto came in the Arena Singles Classic.

DON'T FORGET the Columbus BPA weekly sweeper eliminations for the PBA Pro-Am. Aug. 10-11 trials are at Capri and Scioto; Aug. 17-18 at Arena, Grove City, Jewish Center, Moose and Swan; Aug. 24-25 at Riverview and Hillcrest and Aug. 31-Sept. 1 at Stardust and Graceland.

These are open to all men and women bowlers regardless of average. Handicap will be 70 percent of 200 based on 1967-68 book averages.

BOWLING language differs by locality. In the 1968 BPAA All-Star, two Australian keglers were talking:

"I hit the skyrocket and left a cackling hen. I deserved a Jim Pike but had to settle for a Fred Astaire. Then came two Zasu Pitts and a stubborn Pearly Gate. Finally I left a Georgia More.

How about a Rat Fink? I'll take a Pig's Ear and pick up the Gregory Peck. Bugs Bunny means nothing to me. There's lots more in the Rusty Tank. Say, there's a nice twist and twirl. Take a Captain Cook but watch your Loretta Young. If you open your North and South you're Pat Malone."

PAT McDONOUGH, in the Sports Reporter swears it is true and the translation is:

"I hit the pocket and left the 10. I deserved a strike but I had to settle for a spare. Then came two splits and a stubborn 8. Finally I left a 4.

"How about a drink? I'll have a beer and pick up the check. Money means nothing to me. There's lots more in the bank. Say, there's a nice girl. Take a look but watch your tongue. If you open your mouth you're on your own."

ACTION AS AVERY WINS PONY TITLE

Home plate was a busy spot in the fifth inning of Saturday's title game between Avery Pontiac and the Eastmoor Merchants — both vying for the Don Jones Memorial Pony-Grad pennant. Above, Avery's Kevin Griffin slips past E-M catcher Dave Waltemath attempting to break a scoreless tie. Griffin eluded the tag but also missed the plate and was called out on Waltemath's second try. Griffin saw it another way and implies same to umpire (above right). Below, Avery's Mark Aprile skids across the plate with a successful steal of home shortly later to give his team a 1-0 lead. Avery (12-1) went on to win, 3-1. (Spectator photos by Jack Wittenmeier).

Knothole Scores

In opening play of the Senior Knothole Tourney at Powell, Ohio, Monday evening, Franklin Esper Post edged Upper Arlington, 4-3, and Linden blanked the Columbus Yankees, 4-0.

Hula Hoopers And Clowns Star In Playground Action

When youngsters from Stockbridge, Scioto, Deshler, Southeast Lions, Heimandale, Kerns, Schiller and Barack City playgrounds competed in the sectionals of the hula hoop contest sponsored by the City Recreation Department, winners were selected for boys and girls each in the classes for under 10 and for over 10. They are, from left, Mathew Schmitt, 1272 S. Champion, representing Corpus Christi as he "Slips the Eel"; Michael Wiggins, 415 Cochran, representing Heimandale as he makes like "A Stork"; Julie Thurman, 225 Hinkle, who attends the Southeast Lions Park, also imitating the bird with the one-legged stance; and Cinda Brooks, 1412 E. Whittier, of Deshler, performing the "Buzzard," which is only for those with a gyrating neck.

STOCKBRIDGE: clowns — Karen Pearsan, Connie Pearson, Donald Pearson, Elizabeth and James Daisyhead, Teresa Ollang, Melinda Ollangg, Timmy and Tina Howard, Scott, Cara and Linda Caplanger and Randy Howard; hula hoop — Sandra Cox, Ernie Hensley, Elizabeth James and Glenn Harper.

Three Canal Students Tape 'El Eco Espanol'

Three Canal Winchester High School Spanish students traveled to Ohio State campus this week to tape an interview that will be heard as "El Eco Espanol" on WOSU-AM this fall.

The program, written by Alan Garfinkel, graduate teaching assistant and Leslie D. Litt, graduate student, is planned to challenge those with "rusty Spanish" with a heavy reliance on humor and music to brighten up the educational program.

Ohio State Spanish students as well as those from a number of area high schools have been invited to participate in the series which will be narrated by Professor Mario Iglesias of the Romance Language Department.

The broadcasts will begin in October.

Southsider Ends Vietnam Study

Pfc. Vernon F. Ware, 18 son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd E. Ware of 1555 Burley Dr., has completed a two-week course in combined action school at the Third Marine Amphibious Force Headquarters, Danang, Vietnam.

During the course he was instructed in the language, customs and religions of the Vietnamese.

He will work and fight with the Militia-type Vietnamese popular forces in one of the more than 80 Combined Action Platoons in the five northernmost provinces of South Vietnam.

Spectator To Print Series: Ohio Pen's 'Horrible World'

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

What really goes on within the walls of the Ohio Penitentiary?

A former seminary student who was engaged in advanced clinical training in pastoral care there and was also a summer intern chaplain, has written about his experiences in a publication entitled "Horrible World."

Rev. Tom Sagendorf, now a minister in Flint, Mich., does not claim to be a criminologist. "I am a Methodist clergyman," he writes. But his analysis of problems and possibilities strikes a prophetic note, for the series of articles was written some time before outbreaks at the penitentiary.

THE STORY HE has to tell is not a pretty one. It is one which reaffirms the conclusions of the Ohio Council of Churches' 1967 statements concerning penal reform: "The Ohio penal system has sought to maintain the status quo rather than to follow a growing national trend of critical self-examination and penal reform . . . The result can be seen in a type of institution such as the ancient and huge Ohio Penitentiary (built in 1832) where inmates are generally dehumanized in a crowded, sub-human environment . . ."

Rev. Sagendorf's story is not one for the faint-hearted or those who want to believe conditions at the penitentiary prior to the recent crisis were beginning to change for the better.

Rev. Sagendorf describes more completely than scattered news stories how the "crud" (a term used by an administrative official) behind the wall are treated. He explains why the men within the walls are called "living dead."

Again and again he laments a penal system which destroys socially sick human beings daily. And he does so not in the name of "do-gooders" who arise to meet a crisis with words. He gathers information to work for structural changes within the system.

OVER AND BEYOND glaring headlines which spilled out the sordid story of the penitentiary after the recent crisis, Rev. Sagendorf carefully illustrates why the crisis has always existed in one form or another.

He writes as an angry man.

"The shock of entering the Ohio Penitentiary for the first time," he writes in the introduction, "was one that I will never forget.

"It was as if I were entering another world. From the cold, hard, monstrous facilities through which I had to pass, the blank, unfriendly faces of the guards, and the cage effect of the iron bars, I almost expected to find frightening monsters chained up inside the walls.

"Instead I was astonished to discover that behind all the stone and steel were human beings — human beings who looked just like I would if I were dressed in blue denim trousers and shirt."

AND HE ALSO writes as a compassionate man, one willing to learn from inmates and administrators alike.

"I am especially grateful to an inmate, whom I shall call Scott Gregory, who is suffering this day behind the walls of the Ohio Penitentiary. Scott's sensitive friendship was a constant source of courage to me while I was behind the walls . . . That we have decided to incarcerate Scott and many like him for an eternity of years in a deadened world where he is completely isolated from us is more our loss than his . . ."

The Spectator Newspapers are fortunate to have been selected to present this series of stories. We wish to thank The Board of Christian Social Concerns, The North-East Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church for permission to reprint articles.

CJTA Summer Sessions Begin

The Columbus Junior Theater of the Arts' summer session began this past Monday and will run through Aug. 22.

This creative dramatics workshop for children ages six through 10 has a few openings remaining. The class includes creative dance, music and related acts.

Applications Ready Now For Columbus Police Jobs

There are now at least 25 vacancies for patrolmen in the Columbus Police Department, according to Gale L. Reeder, personnel director of the Civil Service Commission.

Reeder emphasized that there are five other vacancies due within the year, in addition to a continuing need for qualified personnel.

Applications for the position of patrolman are now being processed at the Columbus Civil Service Office, Room 301, City Hall Annex, 67 N. Front St. Interviews are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

According to Reeder, there is a special Saturday filing deadline of Saturday, Sept. 7, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Qualifications for Columbus Police Patrolman include age limits of 20 to 31 years; high school education or equivalent; height between 5'9" and 6'4"; weight in proportion to height and vision of 20/20 in one eye and 20/30 in other eye without glasses.

Reeder states that opportunity for promotions is excellent as there are presently 130 promotional positions available now with the department.

"The police department offers many specialties," Reeder stated. "There is a great deal of opportunity for special training," he continued. "Many have been trained in Washington."

Included as benefits with the department are paid vacations, sick leave with pay, furnished uniforms and a retirement program.

"The city now pays complete hospital and surgical benefits for the whole family," Reeder commented.

"As of Dec. 22, 1968," Reeder continued, "starting salaries will be hiked by five percent. This increase will be available to those hired now."

OHIO PENITENTIARY:PART I

Human Values Lost In 'The Horrible World'

(Editor's note: Rev. Tom Sagendorf, now a minister in Michigan, has spent time in clinical training at the Ohio Penitentiary and also was a summer intern chaplain there. Permission to reprint this 1966 series was given by The Board of Christian Social Concerns, The North-East Ohio Conference, The United Methodist Church.)

By Rev. Tom Sagendorf

Speaking recently at Howard University, Methodist Bishop John Wesley Lord of Washington called for a complete overhaul of existing patterns of dealing with prisoners in penal institutions . . .

Although there is a growing volume of voices calling for penal reform in the United States, such enlightened thinking on penal reform is not new. The four greatest minds representing American criminology in the first half of the 20th century (Sellin, Tennenbaum, Sutherland and Barnes) were unanimous in their judgment on imprisonment as a method of dealing with crime and criminals . . .

A GOOD MODEL

The Federal Correctional Institution in Seagoville, Tex. [illegible]nsidered by many to be a model correctional institu[illegible] The institution is composed of an arrangement of long, low modern buildings separated by spacious lawns and wide walks.

THERE IS NO WALL surrounding the institution—just a low fence; neither are there guard towers or gun positions. On passing through the gate in the fence, you find no gatekeeper. The men in the institution are dressed casually in khaki shirts and trousers and are strolling freely along the walks through and around the areas . . .

Three words occur frequently in the warden's conversation about Seagoville: "responsibility, self-discipline and judgment." This treatment provides an atmosphere where the inmates can learn that a man can live by belonging to a community instead of defying it . . .

'CLOSED WORLD'

The Ohio Penitentiary in Columbus, Ohio is considered by many to be a model of the worst in American penology. The institution is set in the heart of downtown Columbus and its 22½ acres are surrounded by a 32-foot high wall.

To look at the ancient, castle-like structure (built in 1832) makes any sensitive person shudder, but the thought of nearly 4,000 men existing behind these walls is horrifying.

SHOULD YOU BE allowed the rare privilege of entering this carefully-guarded "closed world," you would notice upon entrance that there are not only many gates, there are many gatekeepers. As you go through the gates, you are questioned, frisked, and treated with the utmost suspicion.

When you pass the last gate and enter the courtyard, many things leave an indelible impression on your mind. One is the number of rifle-carrying guards who watch carefully from the guard towers which dot the walls; another is the number of bleak-looking buildings which are crammed within the 22½-acre area; another is the way the men are "marched" in columns under guard wherever they move; and still another is the way the guards are rigidly uniformed and carry clubs, some of which look like sawed-off baseball bats . . .

The nearly 4,000 men in the Ohio Penitentiary live either in cells or in dormitories. Four men live in a cell which is eight by 11 feet. Inside the cell with these four men are four bunks, a sink with cold water (the cells have no hot water), a toilet which must be left uncovered, and all their personal belongings.

AS MANY AS 900 men are locked in these four-man cells upwards from 18 hours a day. The dormitories house the remainder of the men. The bunks in these rooms are so close together that two men cannot meet in the aisle. These segregated (by race) dormitories are both a health and a fire hazard . . .

The men in the Ohio Penitentiary are allowed little freedom. They are carefully guarded every moment. They are given no privacy, not even in their mail . . .

LOST WORDS

One soon learns that "responsibility, self-discipline and judgment" are long-lost words in the Ohio Penitentiary. So are the values of honesty, human dignity, and brotherly concern. The men are taught to hate and ignore their fellows and are punished when they don't; they are constantly reminded of their utter worthlessness and unacceptability; and they soon learn to sacrifice anyone or anything for a temporary relief from the suffering of their existence.

TO TALK TO the warden and his associates offers little hope. They will not tell you of a mission to rejuvenate human beings at the Ohio Penitentiary — although you may be temporarily fooled by the "window-dressing" . . . . This is why the men within the walls are called the "living dead" and the recidivism rate in about one-third.

Quick with a spoon, Mary Kay Milligan, 5312 Edgeview Dr., Hamilton Meadows, joined Richard Ward, 2525 S. Champion, as he got into shape for the Walnut Hill MYF ice cream social planned from 4 until 8 p.m. Saturday. According to Mary Kaye who is president of the youth organization, the social at the parish hall on Rathmell Road will feature a menu of hot dogs, sloppy Joes, potato salad, baked beans, homemade baked goods and coffee and punch as well as a carnival complete with games and fishpond. The proceeds will finance a MYF Retreat at Camp Francis Asbury.

MISERY LOVES COMPANY THEORY BEHIND WOMOS

AND WHEN they meet on alternate Fridays, one of the main orders of business is to toss their husband's name into a hat.

The name drawn last week was that of Lt. Dennis Puppel whose wife awaits him at 4958 Arbor Village Dr., while he serves with the U. S. Army First Cavalry in Vietnam.

He will soon receive a package from each and every one of the WOMOS.

The relatively new organization has only 15 members and — working under the theory that misery is a lot easier to bear when shared— is looking for other women in the same rocky boat.

PRIMARILY A social club, their activities range from meetings with informative speakers to the recent outing at the zoo accompanied by their children to the mother-in-law potluck planned for Sept. 10.

Anyone who wants to become a member of this "lonely hearts" club may call its advisor, Miss Rowena Kessler of the "Y" staff, 225-9121 for further information.

The next meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 23, at the YWCA.

CURRENT OFFICERS are Mrs. Tom Householder, 2620 Lockbourne Rd., president; Mrs. Hugh Buck, 161 Addison Rd., Grove City, membership chairman; Mrs. William Drury, 3270 Faycrest Rd., secretary, and Mrs. James Mobley, 3215 Hilock Court, treasurer.

Craig Fisher Is Named To All-State Boys Band

Craig Fisher will represent Canal Winchester as a member of the 1968 All-Ohio Boys Band which will perform during the Ohio State Fair.

He will join the other 100 members of the band—selected from high schools throughout the state — Saturday for the encampment that will ready them for the scheduled Fair performances.

Craig, who will be a sophomore this fall, has been in the sax section of one or another of C-W school bands since the sixth grade and more recently has played lead guitar in the local combo known as the "Flying Dutchman."

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Fisher, 32 Park St., Canal Winchester.

Savel Pushes 5.9 Mill Levy As Imperative In Hamilton

Hamilton School Board once again sidestepped the issue of placing an operating levy on the November ballot when it met this week.

However, a letter to the board submitted by Supt. John Savel may be an indication of the road the board will follow when it meets in special session Monday to make the decision which can no longer be shelved.

SAVEL STATES that the funds required to operate the schools at the current level for the next first nine months of 1969, to operate the middle school which will open in September of '69 and employment of a business manager will require an additional $118,000, or 5.9 mills.

Although he recognizes in his letter that an improved teacher salary schedule is an eventual must Savel implied that only 5.9 mills is imperative now. (The Hamilton Local Teachers Association has formally requested four mills be added to the levy to provide such improvement).

THE 5.9 figure should be a relief to local taxpayers, as it is no secret that an increase of 13 mills was written into the estimated budget filed in July.

Also of interest in Savel's communication was the observation that his projection of enrollment figures is based upon 350 homes being built in the "Hamilton Meadows Subdivision."

He is presumably referring to the Fishburn acreage. It was optioned by the school board but relinquished in a deal whereby Mayfair Homes agreed to foot the bill for certain site improvements for the middle school site.

Present plans call for the closing of Obetz Elementary in the fall of 1969, using Hamilton Central as a kindergarten through four elementary center with enrollment of 1097; operating Hamilton South as a K through five center with enrollment of 1030; establishing the Middle School as essentially a sixth and seventh center (although seven fifth and three eighth grade sections would be included the first year) and the high school building restricted to housing grades nine through 12 with the exception of eight eighth grade sections.

THE VOTING POWER presented by President Bill Lares and Mrs. Frances Shipley in recent months when supported by Don Beggrow blew up Monday night.

The break came when, for the umpteenth time (The Spectator has lost count), the question of the board meeting its commitments to continue Printing II was discussed at length.

Finally, after hearing Savel repeat once again that necessary funds had been appropriated in the budget — and hearing directly from a State Department representative (Savel has relayed the message time and time again) that the state subsidy will be withheld for the entire program if Printing II is not initiated this year, Beggrow moved the program be adopted.

With Tim Gibbs and Joe Mace backing him, the resounding negative votes of Mrs. Shipley and Lares did little except possibly let off steam.

Their subsequent "nays" against employing a teacher to instruct the course the majority had just approved were equally futile.

THAT THE BREAK in allegiances by Beggrow was not limited to the matter of printing was apparent when he again voted with Mace and Gibbs in opposition to Mrs. Shipley and Lares upon Savel's recommendation that employes and parents go through channels before bringing "complaints" to the board.

Placed in the minutes was a letter from the chairman of the professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee of the Ohio Educational Association.

Hamilton had requested an OEA evaluation of the policies and procedures of the board, administration and staff of the district.

THE LETTER STATED that no such study is being undertaken until the middle of the 1968-69 school year is underway, but that it appears the "general educational climate" and other facets of the district are "improvable."

Savel stated that unless the board rescinds its original action (the request was made at Savel's recommendation) the evaluation will probably be made this fall.

Other business to be considered next week is extended service policies of the district and a negotiations agreement with non-certificated personnel.

C-W Seeks Levy

This week the school board reluctantly determined that since deficit financing is verboten in the state of Ohio that it must ask for an additional 6.6 mill operating levy.

THE PLEA which will go on the November ballot can provide the district with about $86,000 in additional revenue on the $13.2 tax duplicate.

According to Supt. Carl Miller the levy, if voter approved, will provide the funds necessary to pay custodians a reasonable salary, keep the teacher salary schedule competitive with that of other area districts, meet the payroll of additional certificated and non-certificated personnel for the new wing and —hopefully — allow an elementary principal to be added to the staff.

THE MILLAGE, the first asked since 1963, was placed at a figure high enough to preclude the necessity of coming back to the voters with a like plea in the immediate future.

Vacation End For Students In C-W Band

Marching band practice will begin Monday at Canal Winchester High School and continue Monday through Friday until the end of August.

Jon Enochs, newly-selected band and instrumental director at the high school, has announced that all band members are expected to attend the sessions which will be held from 9 until 11 a.m. and 1 until 3 p.m. daily.

C-W Labor Day Celebration To Include 'Community Day'

Two widely different additions have been made to the program as Canal Winchester firms up its plans for the eighth annual Labor Day Celebration.

The first is that of a community day to be held Sunday, Sept. 1, which will begin with a community church service on the school grounds in the morning and end with a square dance for adults in the evening.

THE SECOND is that of a "Meet the Team" program keyed to the kick-off of the gridiron season ending the Labor Day Festivities.

According to Mrs. Jeanne Beaty, secretary of the Labor Day Parade Committee, the "big show"—that of the hour long parade—will begin at 2 p.m. sharp on Monday, Sept. 2 led by winners of the Beauty Pageant selected Saturday afternoon. More than 100 antique cars, floats, bands and drill teams will follow.

Immediately after parade judging is announced at the high school stadium, the drill team from Fairfield School for Boys will perform and at 4:30 p.m. the amateur talent show initiated last year will begin.

ANOTHER INNOVATION of the 1968 celebration which is expected to draw up to 15,000 spectators is a garden tractor pulling contest late in the afternoon.

As in the past, chicken barbecue dinners will be sold continuously on Labor Day from 11 a.m.

Hungarian Orchestra Featured

Old world music, colorful costumes of another era and traditional Hungarian food and beverages will be featured at the public picnic scheduled at the Big Walnut Recreation Park on Noe Bixby Road (formerly known as Schultz Park) Sunday afternoon.

Sponsored by the Hungarian Federation Branch 69, the festivities will begin at 2 p.m.

Providing the music for both folk and modern dancing will be the Tokay Orchestra of Julius Varga from Cleveland.

Junior High Schedules Are Ready

Seventh and eighth grade students who will be enrolled in the Hamilton Local School District this fall may now pick up their schedules at the Junior High office between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Principal Don Vansant also announced that junior high football conditioning was slated to begin at 9 this morning.

He added that this date is accurate and that the boys who reported earlier last week had apparently confused their starting date with that of the senior high football squad.

County Service Center Seeks Additional Staff

The County Service Center is again seeking persons interested in joining the ranks of the "War on Poverty."

Three openings currently exist in the staff of the Center at Urbancrest operated by Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization to serve those in Franklin County living outside Columbus proper.

They are those of neighborhood organizer, youth specialist and clerk-typist.

In the near future, several part-time employes will also be hired as recreation leaders for specific assignment in the Hamilton Township, Darbydale and Urbancrest areas.

Applications for the positions may be secured by contacting the Center, Urbancrest Elementary School, phone 875-7426.

Lantern Parade To Light Up Schiller Park Tuesday

The annual Lantern Parade with children from a score of playgrounds will highlight the summer program sponsored by the City Recreation Department next Tuesday.

According to Miss Mary Gillen, supervisor of the South Side area, the colorful event will begin at 8:20 p.m. Tuesday.

SHE HAS announced the following schedule for the Zoo Wagon: today (Thursday): Watkins, 2:30 p.m.; Heimandale, 4 p.m. and Stockbridge, 5:30 p.m.

Miss Gillen also reports that Michael Wiggins from Heimandale, who won the district championship in the recent Hula Hoop contest, went on to take first place at the city level and entered the state contest this week.

Following are the names of the participants by playgrounds:

Ohio University has announced the names of students on the Athens main campus who have earned places on the spring quarter dean's list for the 1967-1968 academic year.

Actual songsters of the Dailey Trio, are, from left, Miss Naomi Endicott and Mr. and Mrs. Ron Dailey. However, when they head for engagements throughout the United States the trio sometimes becomes nine strong with Paul and Carl Moore and their guitars, Ron's father as pianist, the Dailey daughters, age five and six, and Ron's mother who goes along for the ride and as baby sitter. Dailey Trio -- With Bosses' Patience Takes Spiritual Message To Many

They not only face the fact — but cheerfully accept it — that the young gospel singers are happy to work for them when they have time, but . . .

SINGING THEIR hearts out for little more than the satisfaction of "making others happy" are Barbara and Ron Dailey, 3724 Laguna Dr., and Naomi Endicott, 113 Delray.

Explaining their devotion to the "Gospel Sound," Dailey stated that none of the group would consider "retracting" to popular music (a term comparable to "backsliding" in religious groups).

"We feel we can bring the message of God to many people who may sleep through a regular church service, but be touched by our music."

THE TRIO, all South High graduates, are accompanied by Ron's father, Ed, 535 Robinwood, at the piano, and two other South alumni, Paul and Carl Moore, 1037 Smith Rd., who play the lead guitar and electric bass respectively.

Although with the exception of Miss Endicott, none of the musicians have had formal training all are adept at original arrangements which have made them in demand as far away as Los Angeles where they took part in a three-week program this spring.

Making their "sound" especially versatile is the three-octave range of both Naomi and Barbara with the latter routinely singing alto and bass during the same selection.

TOLERANT AS their employers are, the demands of fulltime jobs, eight hours of rehearsal a week and long weekends "on the road," preclude any of the singers from the interests shared by most young adults their age.

But, according to Naomi, the few deep friendships they are able to form with others with whom they share a common love of religious music makes the sacrifice of casual acquaintances a minor one.

The trio, which will appear Aug. 25 and Sept. 1 from 12:30 until 1:30 p.m. at the Ohio State Fair, is frequently heard on Sunday mornings on Bill Swad's "Gospel Caravan." (Swad, who is the president of the Full-Gospel Businessmen Association, is also Ron's understanding employer).

AS MOST semi-professional singers who rely largely on free-will offerings to cover their travel expenses, the Dailey Trio occasionally cuts an album to bolster the exchequer.

Currently, "Jesus, Use Me" a selection of spirituals, hymns and gospels is available at Lazarus.

"Over 1½ Million Roast Beef Sandwiches Can't Be Wrong"

AUG 1968

THE GADABOUT

By Priscilla Lenox 444-1051

Feminine members of the Moose Lodge, located at 36 W. Sycamore St., will have a busy schedule, Thursday, Aug. 15 to Sunday, Aug. 18, as they play their role of hostesses to the 1968 State Convention of Women of the Moose, held in conjunction with the Ohio State Moose Association's Convention.

Registration at the Columbus Sheraton Hotel will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. in the hotel's northeast promenade Thursday, Aug. 15. Mrs. Anna Anderson is the registration chairman.

The welcoming party will take place in the Venus Room, at the conclusion of the registration. Mrs. M. F. Winegar is in charge of the entertainment for the event.

Opening Session

The opening session of the convention will be held in the Venus Room at 1 p.m., Friday, Aug. 16, with Deputy Grand Regent Doris Trout, of Coshocton, presiding. The invocation will be given by Mrs. Alice Kerk, Columbus, and the address of welcome will be delivered by Mrs. Clyde Cunningham, Columbus, who is the general chairman.

Official visitor Marie Holden, Director of Chapter Activities, Mooseheart, Illinois, will speak at the ritualistic ceremony to be held at 2 p.m. in the Venus Room., on Saturday, Aug. 17. The state president's banquet will follow at 7 p.m. in the Saturn and Jupiter Rooms. Doris Trout will conduct the closing session in The Venus Room, Sun., Aug. 18, at 10 a.m.

The Firemen's Family Picnic will be held Saturday, Aug. 17, at Buckeye Lake, beginning at 11 a.m.

Campers At Round Lake

The ailing or convalescent list includes Maude Mooney, Jesse Abbott, Minnie Turner, Erwin Wirth, Doris Cochran, Maude Mercer, Harold Deible and Lillian Walters.

"Teen Week," an event scheduled for the young folks of the Southwood Church of Christ, Aug. 19-23, will combine Bible Study sessions to be followed by a period of fun. Becky Fullen and Eleanor Tope are in charge of registrations.

A "Teens for Christ" social event will be held Saturday, Aug. 17, from 3 to 9 p.m., with a swimming party to be held at Eckels Lake.

Hodge - podge hop - scotch . . . The Schiller Park Golden Age Club will enjoy the monthly social meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 20.

Off To Dutch Land

A tour of the Pennsylvania Dutch Country has been planned by members of the Senior Citizens, from Sunday, Aug. 18, to Wednesday, Aug. 21.

The first concert of the summer will be presented by members of the Musicians' Union, Local 103, at Schiller Park, Sunday, Aug. 18. Fritz Saenger will be the guest conductor.

"The Junior Fellowship of the Washington Avenue United Methodist Church will enjoy the view from the LeVeque Lincoln Tower, in their "Columbus exploration" summer plan, Thursday, Aug. 15. Camp Otterbein will be visited by members of the Homemakers Class, Aug. 16 through 18, while the Young Adults will attend Sunday, Aug. 18. The Youth Fellowship has planned a Historical Tour for Saturday, Aug. 17.

Realization that vacation days are dwindling casts a small dark cloud in the happiness of the younger birthday-celebrants: Mark Thompson, Sherri Mayer, Gary Weakley, Randel Hamilton, Fred Prindle, Teresa Reed, Kathy Davis, Tony Stinnett, Mary Booker, Sheila Wiseman, Kenneth Ervin, Carl Reynolds, Gary Leslie, Terry Cahill, Dean Reynolds and Theresa McSweeney.

Mid - August anniversaries of weddings in former years will be remembered by Joyce and Woody Spriggs, Mary and Bob Moehrman, Mary Lou and Doug Leonard, Dorothy and Carl Burton and Sally and Bob Floyd.

Belles who were recently "ringed" by their beaux include these newlyweds: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ballinger, Donald and Dianne (Wells) Lowery, Dr. Francis and Lucy (Steinmetz) Williamson and Richard and Alice (Rader) Brusadin.

Soon to be married are Lois Minnick, Orlando, Fla., and Delano Stewart, 1226 Smith Rd., who will exchange their vows Friday, Aug. 16, in Florida. Saturday, Aug. 17, a wedding ceremony will unite Joan Jacobs, 1209 Studer Ave., and James Bidlake, 1145 E. Cooke Rd.

Advisory Committee Plans Organization

Formal organization heads the agenda of the Development Code Advisory Committee meeting set for 9 a.m. Friday, Aug. 23, in the lecture hall of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., 190 N. Front St.

According to Edmond M. Loewe, acting chairman, structure and operational procedure will be determined and the role and concerns of the committee and individual members will be discussed.

ESTABLISHED by council resolution in April to work with the city planners and its consultants to recommend revisions of Columbus zoning and related codes, the committee offers membership to civic, professional and business organizations "concerned with and affected by" such codes.

Each such organization desiring representation is asked to designate a delegate and alternate by submitting in writing their names and addresses to M. Steven Gallanis in the City Planning Division.

Currently, most South Side groups are represented through the Council of South Side Organizations with Jim Hildenbrand and Walter Davison serving as delegate and alternate.

ANY ORGANIZATION with legitimate concern over the development codes of the city which is not represented by this "umbrella" council may arranged for its own delegates.

However, to avoid a membership made up of special interest groups with relatively localized "axes to grind," it is considered desirable for smaller factions to gain their voice through a group such as the CSSO.

The ordinance does spell out that individuals, civic, professional and business associations and public or semi-public agencies not specifically designated to serve are welcome to bring their views to attention through either the chairman of the committee or Jim Crozier, development director.

IT IS FURTHER specified that all meetings including that of next Friday be open to the public.

Discussing the scope and importance of the work ahead of the committee, Gallanis pointed to the divergence of opinions expressed during the first two preliminary meetings already held.

While some favor a "blanket zoning," returning all areas to residential classification with application necessary for other land use, others hold an opposing position, believing all areas should be declared available for broad commercial and/or manufacturing use with application mandatory before a restrictive residential zoning could be obtained.

ALTHOUGH conceding the committee's recommendations are not binding upon the city and its consultants (or, ultimately, city council) Gallanis stated that planners are eager to work with the committee as the only practical road to a code that will be generally acceptable to the community which must live with it.

South Side Bachelor Is 'Two Time Loser'

He is Joseph Meyers, 1767 S. Eighth St.

HE USED to be a television fan who also enjoyed his stereo.

But he's doing without just now.

Meyers' sad story all began one day when he came home from work and noted that his stereo was particularly conspicuous — by its absence.

HE SOON discovered a living room window that had been pried open and reported the apparent theft to the police.

But not one to brood, he went to bed hoping that the strong arm of the law would eventually hoist his record player back into its customary place.

Early the next morning, he heard a knock at his bedroom door.

IT WAS HIS niece, whose family lives in the upper half of the duplex, sent by her mother on an errand.

"Uncle Joe," she asked, "where is your color TV?"

Although certain he was being "ribbed," Meyers went to see.

IT TOO HAD exited — but not alone.

Also missing was the portable TV that had been in the dining room when Meyers had retired.

The view of a friend snoozing peacefully on the living room couch where he had bunked the night before did little to lessen Meyers' chagrin.

HE KNEW the man had a reputation of sleeping so soundly that he had been told "someone could swipe the wristwatch off your arm and you'd never know it," but — really!

Once again the police were summoned.

BUT IT STILL isn't playing any music for Meyers.

It is being held by police as evidence against Billy Joe Estepp, 264 E. Innis, who has been charged with receiving and concealing stolen goods.

The console and portable are still on the "missing TV" list.

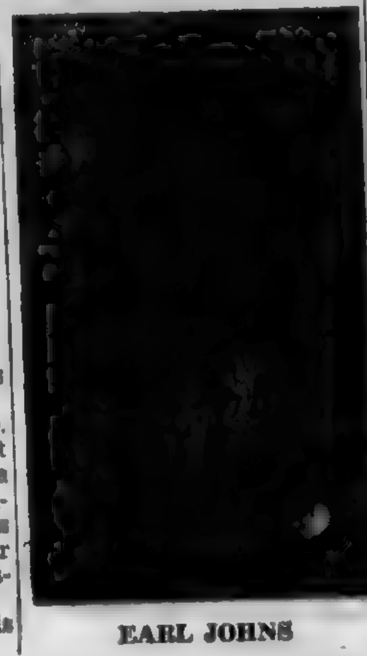
AWARDED AT DA NANG

Recognized as the outstanding security policeman in his squadron at Da Nang, Vietnam, A 1/c Timothy J. Wolf, right, recently received the "Gunfighter of the Month" award from Col. George K. Smith, commander of Da Nang AFB. Wolf is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wolf of Groveport.

Earl Johns Named Assistant To Feeney

Earl Johns, president-elect of the Council of South Side Organizations, has been named Assistant Director for Management of the Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority.

Pat Feeney, director, states the appointment was made to fill the vacancy created by the death of W. Wesley Sawyer.



EARL JOHNS

Johns, who has been with the Columbus Recreation Department for 19 years, is well-known on the South Side where he was director of the Barack Recreation Center at Lincoln Park since its opening in 1965 until his promotion six months ago to district supervisor with the Recreation Department.

His CSSO activities have included chairmanship of the 1968 Fourth of July celebration held a Southview Park and while at Barack he was an active member of the Lincoln Park Community Council with which he has since maintained his affiliation.

An alumnus of Virginia Union University and Ohio State, Johns began his career with the Recreation Department at Beatty, moving up to Center Director in 1952.

He is a member of the Mt. Vernon Avenue District Improvement Association, Alpha Pi Alpha fraternity and the Ohio Recreation Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Johns and their daughters, Lynne and Leslie, live at 295 Nelson Rd.

Eastland Enrollment Approaches Capacity

With 17 programs to go into operation at Eastland Joint Vocational School District Sept. 4, administrators are lining up last minute enrollments as contractors continue their crash program to ready the new facility for student occupancy. (The administrative offices are already moved to the Hamilton Road site in Groveport from the temporary headquarters in Whitehall).

Supt. Dave Martin states that at last count, enrollment is 502 with electronic and cosmetology filled to capacity. (Some programs include one and others two and three units with each limited to 24 students).

COURSES THAT are very close to maximum enrollment with the number of vacancies remaining are data processing, one; office reproduction and electricity, three each; auto body repair, auto mechanics and dental assistant and sheet metal, each four.

Others nearing the point of capacity are distributive education, six; chem lab, seven, and high skill stenography, eight.

There is still ample room in the third unit of occupational work experience and the second unit of office machines operation.

FIRST PREFERENCE for the vacancies will go to students living in the participating school districts of Canal Winchester, Madison, Jefferson, Reynoldsburg and Whitehall.

However, arrangements have been made to accept — when possible — tuition students from Bexley, Licking Heights, Pickerington, Southwest Licking and Westerville School Districts.

The program, designed at a junior and senior level, is open to youths under 21, whether or not they are currently attending school in their home districts.

ANYONE interested in participating in the vocational program which is recognized as one of the most complete in the Central United States and programmed to prepare students for either direct entrance into the labor market or college can call Martin at [redacted].

Although details have not yet been worked out, the board has set Sunday, Oct. 27, as dedication date for Eastland.

Other recent board action includes acceptance of a letter of resignation from Herman Seymour as maintenance custodian and naming Lloyd E. Davy, 736 Elm St., Groveport, to fill the vacancy.

County Gets Tax Bonus

Over $50.5 million is on its way to Ohio's 88 counties.

State Treasurer John D. Herbert has reported that $50,632,288, representing a record high intangible personal property tax collection, is being sent to the counties for local government fund distribution.

Franklin County's share is $3,885,941.

Governors' Bonus

If the recent Governors' Conference in Cincinnati produced nothing else, it did provide an extra bonus for the visiting chief executives.

The visiting governors were presented with such necessities as perfume, portable television sets, baskets of fruit, cigars, cheese, fishing tackle, scented toilet tissue, pots and pans, white dinner jackets and other items which only governors can use.

With such crucial issues as poverty and war confronting this nation, it is indeed heartwarming to note the way in which Governor James Rhodes tackled the problems.

Now that The Spectator Newspaper Women's Department has named the winner of their "Make-Me-Over" contest, we may next request them to stage the same contest for our chief executives.

Hunger And Diets

Let a man examine the world closely enough and he will probably end up shaking his head in disbelief.

Newsweek Magazine has reported that 10,000 people die daily from hunger around the world.

Consider for a minute some other developments.

Another national magazine has intimated that the food stuffs which go into the production of alcohol for Americans could probably save these 10,000 persons.

Consider the fact that producers of food for cats, dogs and other pets do a thriving business in this country.

Think about the American emphasis on diets and weight control.

And then try to understand what is going on.

Cheers For ECCO

East Central Citizens' Organization (ECCO) deserves a special word of commendation this week for the work it has done in Columbus.

Recently given an additional grant of $202,910 from the Office of Economic Opportunity, ECCO is controlled entirely by the poor in its own neighborhood.

The entire poverty program will stand to benefit if ECCO proves itself to be self-sufficient.

And so will Columbus.

A Terrible Silence

By JOHN MORGAN

Death is simply a headline until it happens to someone you know.

And when it does, all the ugly features of death appear. Hidden beneath a black mask and shroud, death arises shouting some incoherent cry of pain. And we end weeping in a voice as ancient as the earth's first man.

There must be something wrong in a universe which allows death so much dominion. And I am angry because it strikes my family and my friends and the children of the world.

Perhaps there may be some secret meaning which death alone knows. If a king dies he is laid to rest in the same earth which must cover the pauper, the prostitute or the poet. Death plays no favorites; it is not bribed by fame or money. A rich man's death is only sometimes more comfortable than the death of a poor man.

If death was just and allowed each man his full share of life, the shock of losing a loved one would not be so great. But death is impartial. It is a judge without a jury, a thief in the night which seizes from us what we should value most — the gift of life.

When the old die, we say they are relieved from the pain which revolted their bodies. When a violent man dies we say death is just.

But when a good, young man dies — what then? When an innocent child dies, what then?

Is it death—the biological end of life—which we fear? Or do we really fear dying?

Do we curse the darkness we see in other people's deaths, or do we see death reflected in us through others?

I wonder how many could explain the death of an innocent child?

I do not claim to be a religious man. It is hard enough for me to understand this world without having to deliberate the next.

But death poses that question . . . that question the first man posed to himself as he stood by his dead wife. Why?

And I ask it again and again . . . Why? why? why?

The heavens are terrible in their silence.

Looking Down Wall Street

A mutual fund is you—and many people with similar investment aims—combining your money to form a large "pool" of money. This offers the important benefits and advantages which would otherwise be available only to persons of great weath. You receive shares in the fund for your money represented by a single certificate. With the money you invest, professional management of the fund eliminates the problems of timing, of selecting the right industries, and the proper company with prospects for growth within that industry.

There are over 300 mutual funds representing a wide variety of investment objectives. If you seek income from your investment, there are funds to meet this goal. For the investors who seek capital growth, there are growth funds which invest in stocks of companies with prospects of better than average growth from new products, improvements in manufacturing methods, or new markets for existing products. The "middle of the road" fund objective is to increase both the value of your investment and your income from dividends over a period of time. Balanced funds provide better than average dividend income while trying to reduce investment risk. Specialty funds offer a diversified investment within a single industry or geographic area.

There are several convenient methods for investing in mutual funds. The outright purchase is a lump sum commitment of the total amount invested. Systematic "pay as you go" plans of share accumulation are available to investors who wish to invest small sums monthly or quarterly. For people who wish to invest a lump sum and receive a monthly check, a systematic withdrawal plan may be ideal. The mutual fund will redeem the shares at net asset value per share on any business day.

Your investment in mutual funds entitles you to many benefits not available in other investments. A specialized, full time management team is investing your money, constantly watching your investment, and making investment changes. These professionals are trained and experienced in analysis of investment values. Your money is invested in many different securities. This diversification, one of the most important features of mutual fund investing, hedges against the danger of depending on the success of one or a few individual securities. A mutual fund provides ease and convenience. The management team takes care of all the chores that go with ownership of individual securities — record keeping, collecting dividends, and attending to proxies, etc.

You can have an intelligently planned investment program with mutual fund shares. Shares accumulated can later be sold and the proceeds used to educate your children or as a retirement fund for your leisure years. An investment in mutual funds may be the solution to your long term investment problems.

Important Guy

Success of the recent Franklin County Fair pointed up a fact frequently overlooked. Farming is still big business in Franklin County.

Not long ago, Columbus was basically a city of state employes and college students. And, in those days, Columbus was in a census tug-of-war with Toledo.

Then came the boom of post World War II. Factories sprang up everywhere. Downtown sparkled and shopping centers blossomed in suburbs.

Toledo soon was outdistanced censuswise. Then Columbus went around Cincinnati and now only Cleveland stands in the way for the Number One spot.

The rush and bustle of the past two decades caused many of us to forget the folksy, rural atmosphere that once characterized Columbus.

The recent county fair at Hilliard reemphasizes the importance of farming to our overall economy. It will surprise some to learn that Franklin County, despite all the face-lifting, still is more than half in farm land. The average farm is 164 acres with an average value of land and buildings just over $700 an acre.

These farms produced crops in 1966 valued at $9.1 million; livestock and products valued at $6.8 million.

Movie House

By TED BEARDSHEAR

Columbus' downtown movie houses show a fairly good selection of shows . . . all the latest and everything.

But in taking in a movie the other evening, I was appalled at a few things. The first was the price of admission. Going out to a movie in Columbus is an expensive venture. One could easily, for the same price, sit in a tavern, have a sandwich and drink scotch. If the movie is lousy, there is the unshakeable conviction that the money could have been better spent.

Not only is the price of entertainment high in downtown movie houses, most seats are designed for the hips of Twiggy, leaving us with more ample proportions to squeeze in with the help of a crowbar.

Next is the between feature presentations. There is always a collection of advertisements for garages that offer discounts to patrons, radio station plugs and other assorted goodies. In addition to paying a high price to see the feature, a spectator has to be bombarded with boring ad plugs. How hokey.

Also at the movie I attended, there was a solicitation of funds for a charity. There was a blurb on the screen, the house lights came on and little ushers scurried around with little cardboard boxes for donations. If I wanted to be solicited, I'd go to a place where the program didn't cost so much for the privilege.

Then there are the concessions. Pop costs 30 cents for a small container. (Draught beer at The Clock costs 25 cents). Popcorn with butter costs 40 cents. And you get about five cents worth of popcorn. Candy bars are all in the large economy size and set you back about three times the amount and quantity you want.

So you go to be entertained and you pay through the nose, have to sit through commercials that are of poorer quality than TV's worst, get solicited for donations, sit in a seat that's too small with your knees hitting the back of the head of the man in front of you (that's embarrassing) and get taken at the concession stand.

The movies aren't bad. I don't mind paying to see a good movie. I just don't want the rest of the theater mishmash that goes with it.

If culture can be judged by the grace of presentation, then Columbus has had it. If the downtown movie houses are any indication of the city, then I wouldn't be surprised to see a man leading a cow across the corner of Broad and High.

A New Rhodes

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes made an awful lot of new friends last week by his performance at the Republican National Convention.

Rhodes had aroused the ire of many moderate Republicans and most Democrats four years ago when he released his favorite-son delegation on the first ballot, then stood back and calmly watched the suicidal nomination of Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Not so this year.

Jim Rhodes has worked hard in Ohio to project the image of the "simple boy from the Southern Ohio hills." And he has rubbed many urbanites — both Republican and Democrat — the wrong way doing it.

But he showed Ohio and the nation a tremendous store of political astuteness and integrity by holding the 55 Ohio delegates pledged to him through the first—and final — ballot even though it was obvious he could have put Richard Nixon over the top when his turn came in the roll call.

Rhodes held fast despite tremendous pressure from outside the delegation and particularly in the face of a mounting drive by members of the Buckeye delegation to "get with the winner."

Should Dick Nixon be elected, Ohio will most probably lose a lot of patronage for failing to go with Nixon on the first ballot.

But it was Jim Rhodes' feeling — and that of George Romney of neighboring Michigan — that there was no reason to nominate Nixon on the first ballot. Both leaned to Nelson Rockefeller, though neither ever said so publicly.

Both said that if Nixon was truly the choice of the party, he could certainly wait until the second ballot to be nominated.

Both stood firm while the Nixon bandwagon rolled over them.

And while a few party faithful may be mad at them, both came up smelling like roses in the eyes of the huge majority of American voters.

Letters To The Editor

Rights Violated

To The Editor:

The decision by the OSU Board of Trustees to fire David Green, Associate Professor of History, does not seem to be a sign that they have finally come off of "Cloud Nine." ("Off Cloud Nine," The Spectator, July 18, 1968). Rather, it seems that their decision is consistent with their many other "pontifical announcements," which infringe on the rights of students and faculty.

David Green's actions were meant to dramatize the choice that Americans must now make. When he spoke to students the day after Dr. Martin Luther King's assassination, he gave them two choices — violence or non-violence. If they chose violence, which he believes is the standard American way of dealing with dissident minorities, they should have contributed money so that the Blacks in the ghetto could be armed to defend themselves against the National Guard and police. If, on the other hand, the individual chose non-violence, he should have turned in his draft card in order to have made a meaningful commitment to non-violence. Green himself burned his draft card in order to show that he could no longer participate in a system which practices selective violence.

This is the violence which is justified by the government when used against the Vietnamese peasant, but which is condemned when the Blacks in the inner-city ghetto use it. Since Green chose non-violence, he [illegible] willing to burn his draft card in order to prove his commitment. He is one of the few who have the courage to act on their beliefs.

Because the Board of Trustees fired Green and so overruled a Faculty Committee report which stated that Green should be retained, they violated the rights of the faculty to choose its own members. The Trustees who have never spoken to Green, never heard him teach, never worked with him, and did not witness his "criminal actions" voted for his immediate suspension. They feel that the faculty is unfit to determine who should be among its members. It seems that men whose only profession is to teach are much better judges of who should belong to their group than a haphazard collection of industrialists, an ex-senator, a gentleman farmer, a former campaign manager, and a turnpike commissioner.

By firing David Green, the Trustees have denied the rights of free speech and the rights of the faculty. Perhaps, when a position on the Board of Trustees is not regarded as a political reward and men who have a genuine interest in education are appointed, incidents such as David Green's firing, the permanent expulsion of eight Black students, and the creation of strict rules designed to curb student demonstrations will cease to occur. At that time, maybe, the rights of OSU students and faculty will finally be respected.

Some Party Needs You

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

With the country's attention focused on the Republicans in Miami, little notice was given last week to the National Convention of the Concerned Citizens for Somebody.

The group is dedicated to "meeting the heartfelt demand of the American public in these trying times that Somebody be nominated for President."

"It is becoming increasingly clear," the new organization said, "that no political party is going to meet that need. Those of us who feel we want a real Somebody for President are going to have to find him and elect him ourselves."

Thus there was an air of excitement and purpose as the National Convention opened in Dubuque, Ill.

First item on the agenda, as at all conventions, was to open a Delegate Hospitality Louge. Second, was to form a fifth, or possibly 12th, political party. And third, was to name it.

This last was solved when a newly-arrived delegate walked into the Hospitality Lounge and said, as delegates usually do: "Hey, this is going to be Some Party!"

• • •

The work went slowly. Each speaker appearing before Some Party's Platform Committee detailed at length the complex, frightening problems the country faces today — thermonuclear war, race riots, Vietnam, poverty, pollution, inflation and chronic hypertension.

But in the end, through a stroke of collective genius, the committee adopted a platform that not only satisfied all factions, but, as one member proudly put it, "echoes the universal outcry of the American people to its leadership in these dangerous days of unrest and unease."

The platform, only two words long, said simply:

"DO SOMETHING!"

• • •

WITH THIS OUT of the way the Convention got down to the grueling task of listening to speeches about "The Man Who."

Speaker after speaker arose to say that Some Party must nominate The Man Who was not a political hack, nor a sycophant, a sore loser nor a racist, White or Black—the Man Who was intelligent, honest energetic and compassionate.

And, oh, how the delegates cheered. In this Nation of 200 million souls, they agreed confidently, there must be Somebody like that to lead us.

Unfortunately, after reviewing the present crop of candidates, they found none who qualified. So they adjourned without picking a nominee. But each signed a pledge to continue the search.

"In this year of crisis," the pledge said, "we cling to the desperate hope that Some Party will nominate Somebody who will DO SOMETHING!"

PART III OF A SERIES

One Man's Adventure In Search Of A Home

Editor's note: This is the third of a series dealing with housing discrimination in the Columbus area. Although this is a success story to a degree, the problems a Negro has in buying a home in an all-white neighborhood cannot be overlooked.

By NANCY STEPHENS
Spectator Staff Writer

It started as a business venture for Seth H. Washburn, executive director of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, but it ended as a challenge in the area of human relations.

The Bell Labs wanted to hire top-notch professional people to work for them. In May the position of assistant executive director for the Columbus branch was vacated and a replacement was needed. Washburn began looking over the records of prospective employes when he happened across the name of Richard Dennis.

Richard Dennis, his wife, Ann, and their two young sons lived in New Jersey at that time. After talking with Washburn he accepted the offer, sight unseen on both parts.

The Dennises arrived in Columbus the end of May where they met the Washburn family and subsequently became friends.

The Bell Labs give a family one week in which to find a home when they are transferred. The one week deadline applies to all — regardless of race.

The following account of the plight of the Richard Dennis family in its search for a home in Worthington was obtained by this reporter in an interview with both the Dennis and the Washburn families.

On Friday, May 17, Dennis called the Walter T. Krumm Realtor Company to make an appointment to see a few houses in the Worthington area. He only told them his name and nothing more. He was greeted very warmly and said he was told to meet agent Pam Sheridan in the parking lot next morning.

That morning Dennis said he went to the realty company, located at 867 High St., Worthington, and proceeded to wait as he was told. After about 10 uneventful minutes he decided to go in and find out what had happened. In the office he found Miss Sheridan and asked about the delay. According to Dennis, he talked to Miss Sheridan, then asked to see the man in charge. Walter Krumm was then on vacation and Dennis was taken to the sales manager. After another half hour of discussion, Dennis says he left with the understanding that Krumm himself would call and apologize for any inconvenience caused.

Dennis claims he never received any call.

Krumm, who returned shortly after the incident, says Miss Sheridan, discovering Dennis was a Negro, asked if he would wait while she phoned the owners in an effort to save any unnecessary embarrassment on both parts. Krumm says that Dennis did not wish to wait and left.

"The whole incident was an unfortunate misunderstanding on both parts," says Krumm.

The following Wednesday, May 22, Washburn submitted an ad for publication in the two daily Columbus papers and in the Spectator. The ad said: "My executive assistant wants to find a home for himself, his wife and his two small children, preferably in Worthington, without regard to race. If you can help, please get in touch with me."

Washburn admits he anticipated a few derogatory responses, but was amazed that only one call out of 50 was in any way negative. Dennis himself says the response he received from all over Columbus was favorable.

* * *

During the week, Washburn had called Krumm Realtors in an effort to find out why Dennis was not shown any homes. He was told that Walter Krumm would return his call. After a few days, Washburn wrote a letter to Krumm which said in part that since he had not heard from either Miss Sheridan as promised concerning her "refusal to show Mr. Dennis homes" or from Krumm concerning his "practices in the area," he assumed that they were "unwilling to fulfill the above commitments."

Concerning this letter, and others he has received, Krumm says he did not reply because he did not see the need to. He contends that Washburn, as others, did not check the facts concerning the other individuals and what their interpretation of the event was. Krumm also added that he did not refuse to show Dennis homes and that no employe of his would ask a prospective buyer to wait in the parking lot.

"If we had known Dick Dennis was a Negro, which we did not, and had wanted to dodge him, which we didn't, asking him to wait in the parking lot and then taking him from there to an all-white neighborhood would not have served our purpose," he contends.

The week was moving rapidly along and the Dennises were beginning to wonder if they would find a home. Prior to the placement of Washburn's ad, Dennis made the acquaintance of Robert Buell of Buell Realty. Buell decided to talk to a few area realtors concerning the sale of homes to Negroes. At this same time, Krumm had also decided some sort of 'gentleman's agreement' between the realtors should take place. Between the two of them, their companies, Colonial and Worthington Realty, decided to start showing Negroes homes on a mutual listing basis.

After seeing several homes on the east side of Worthington, they found the "perfect" house in Worthington Estates, which is west of High Street.

It should be made clear that apparently there are no Negroes living on the west side of High Street in Worthington.

The home was listed under Worthington Realty, and the owner was in Wisconsin at the time. Although Dennis did not meet the price asked, he placed an offer for it May 30. The owner let the time limit for his reply expire. A second offer was then made at a higher price, but the time limit here expired also. Buell says, "It was apparent that no offer would be acceptable to the owner."

The idea of the "third party" purchase was now seriously considered. The "third party" system is the process by which a white person buys the home with the knowledge that the papers will immediately be handed over to a Negro family.

Dennis said he could not do this because "it would be like buying the home through the back door."

So they waited once more. Then another home with the same floor plan was offered. It is also in Worthington Estates under Buell Realty.

Success at last. The home was bought July 2 and the Dennises have already met a few of the neighbors. At this point, the owners are reportedly happy with the sale, the Dennises are happy with their new home and Washburn says he believes this is a big step toward finding adequate housing for the kind of men Bell Laboratories are looking for.

PIN NEWS

Keglers' Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

Concentrate on every ball you bowl. Forget about everything behind you and on both sides. The only thing that matters is the target in front.

Remember that a frail little girl can knock down as many pins as the strongest man. Get your armswing, your footwork and your timing synchronized and forget about blasting the pins out of sight.

KEEP YOUR head down, so you can really see your ball pass over the markers. If you do, you won't have to guess at your adjustment.

Aim at those arrows (not at the pins) and try to roll your ball over the same arrow every time. If you do, you'll find that your average will start inching up—slowly but surely.

Avoid the "impossible" splits unless you must have a spare to win. Many games are won or lost by only one pin, so shoot for the one you know you can get.

DON'T FREEZE when you have one pin standing and you need it for a spare. Shooting for one pin is no different than shooting for a strike. You just start your approach from a different spot.

Worry about your own score, not the other fellow's. Keep your mind on how you're doing and forget how they're doing. You can't do anything about them, but you can hurt your own game if you don't concentrate on it.

Your armswing is most important. Keep your arm close in to your body. Develop the same swing forward, back and then forward again. Practice your swing with a towel folded under your arm. If it drops, your arm is not swinging in a perfect arc like a pendulum.

FOLLOW through with your arm. You won't get the right direction or good pin action with your ball if you don't reach out as far as you can and end up with your hand over your head.

Fishin' Facts

The old paraphrased idea that "fish are where you find them" has been worked to death. Most folks agree with the adage, while many promptly ignore it once they get in a boat.

When you see a guy flailing the same area for a long period without any encouragement by the fish, you're witnessing neglect of angling's basic tenant.

INSTEAD OF waiting for fish to come to you, go looking for them. Fish are not evenly distributed throughout a lake or river and time spent looking pays off better than just sitting and waiting.

While trolling is usually the best all-around fish-finder, other techniques may be equally good — depending on season, waters and species.

If you're a casting man, work the points for bass during the day, hopping to the next one down the shoreline when the first fails to produce after being explored. At night, work these same points again — but also probe back into the coves.

FOR WHITE bass (alias sandies or barfish) crank up the outboard and literally go looking. Cruise along at a good clip until you find a school creating mayhem with shad on the surface. Cut the motor and cast right into the middle of the activity.

Dry fly fishermen look for surface boils; muskie addicts look for weeds; crappie fans troll deep to discover hidden brush. Even on the vastness of the ocean, coastal charter skippers keep their eyes "peeled" for circling gulls working over a school of bait —game fish are nearby.

Keep moving. Keep your attention glued for the telltale signs that indicate likely fish hangouts. Then fish.

RICHARD (Dick) MacMaster was the field representative for the American Bowling Congress assigned to the Midwest territory.

At this dinner many dignitaries from the ABC and local bowling associations honored Dick for his many years of faithful service to the Congress and its associations.

Columbus stands to gain from Dick's retirement because he plans to bowl in local leagues and also spend time working with the local Junior Bowling Association. Dick gets a special "charge" working with the bantam bowler. In the past, when his work schedule permitted, he often directed the annual bantam team tournament.

TOURNAMENT direction is nothing new to Dick. Since 1955 he has run the annual Masters Tournament. The Masters Tournament is held annually during the ABC National Tournament and is for the professional bowler.

As director of this stellar event, Dick has rubbed elbows with the greats. Many of the big names in bowling are his closest friends.

As an active bowler, his best lane performance was in 1937 when he averaged 197 in a traveling league in Tennessee and North Carolina.

DICK ESTIMATES he has driven more than half a million miles on assignments for the ABC during his 21½ years with the Congress.

Dick's wife, Nelle, will tell you that all 11 of their grandchildren were born when Dick was in a bowling alley somewhere.

"I'm not so sure about this, fellows. The Congress might frown on it," is a common phrase of Dick's. "Let's discuss this thing a little more. I'm sure we can work out a solution without raising all the storm warnings," another one of his phrases that will be leaving the scene due to his retirement.

When asked of his reaction to retirement, with a twinkle of eye and wave of a cigar stub, he will say: "Really looking forward to it, but you must remember, I've had a wonderful life getting paid for working at my hobby."

Freeman, Snow Capture CMS Feature Events

Taking over the lead on the second lap, Dick Freeman rambled to his fifth-straight late-model feature victory at Columbus Motor Speedway Sunday — topping a persistent quintet of Dick Dunlevy, Ralph O'Day, Don Gregory, Neal Sceva and Jim Cushman.

Alan Donahue out-dueled Bob Hall for honors in the hobby-stock headliner with Dick Strickler, Bill Hirshey and Blanton Ferguson closing in hot pursuit of the pair.

Les Snow ran his '67 Plymouth to victory in the 100-lap ARCA feature Saturday with Benny Parsons ('68 Ford Torino), Andy Hampton ('67 Dodge), Iggy Katona ('67 Dodge) and Ralph O'Day ('67 Fairlane) following in that order.

The late-model and hobby-stocks return for action Sunday at the Williams Road raceway — time trials beginning at 7 p.m., the first race underway 60 minutes later.

The Columbus Yankees recently picked off the City Senior Knothole League pennant (6-1, in league, 14-7 overall). Team members include (front row, from left) Steve Parzinger, coach Charlie Sherman, Rich Gillilan and Chuck Ventola. Middle row: Roger Clayman, Jerry Pinoni, Tim Griffin and Lloyd Bixler. Back row: Ed Ryan, Willie Walton, Greg Jones, Phil Sachs and manager John Ryan. Missing was Mike Hinkel. Ex-West High standout Gillilan led team batting (.400) while Clayman (from Bexley) was the RBI (15) and runs scored (16) leader.

'Spectator Day' Setting: Final Clash vs. Leaders

A final "crack" at league-leading Toledo will be the setting for "Spectator Day" at Jet Stadium Sunday, Aug. 25 when the local IL contenders do battle with their intrastate rivals.

And The Spectator Newspapers are making it possible for Columbus fans to be on hand for this thriller with a special reduction in admission.

LOOK FOR the special coupon inside our "Spectator Day" advertisement on Pg. 10 in this newspaper, clip it out and receive 50 cents off the price of any seat in the Stadium on Aug. 25 by presenting it at one of the ticket windows on that date.

Adult ticket prices for the afternoon game (begins at 2 p.m.) are $1.50 (general admission), $1.75 (reserved seats) and $2. (box seats).

Admission for the youngsters (under 17) is 75 cents, $1.25 and $1.50 respectively.

JOIN US at the ball park — with your coupon — on Sunday, Aug. 25 for exciting International League baseball.

MAVERICK

WITH MUDDY SHOES

As August moons slide quietly across early evening skies and the blackbirds start to flock-up, many outdoorsmen start thinking of a big game hunt out west.

With the population explosion eating away at the western bad lands, more and more we have to go north into the Canadian Provinces and to Alaska to find the really fine hunting.

THE GAME list out of Alaska sounds like a full encyclopedia of wild life. This year, you may hunt black, brown, grizzly and polar bears. You may take deer, elk and moose if your preferences lean to hoofed game.

If you prefer mountain climbing to get your limit, there are goats and Dall sheep.

If you have a large family, try for bison, walrus or Musk ox. If your sleigh needs a new lap robe, go any time of year and get a wolf skin.

WITH 14 different game animals on the list, Alaska is head and shoulders above anywhere else in the Western Hemisphere. A mild winter and good habitat conditions spell excellent chances for all types of game.

In the Province of Alberta, you may hunt whitetails, muleys, antelope, black and grizzly bear, elk, moose, sheep, goats and woodland caribou. British Columbia offers the same bag with Dall sheep, cougar and timber wolf added.

Manitoba has a good supply of whitetails, black bear, moose, elk and woodland caribou. New Brunswick has good-to-fair hunting for whitetails, black bears and moose. Newfoundland has blacks, moose and caribou to offer.

THE NORTHWEST Territories say good-to-excellent for blacks and grizzlies, excellent hunting for Dall sheep and moose and just fair for mountain goat. Their caribou herd is reported to be the best in 10 years.

Closer to home, Ontario claims excellent supplies of deer, black bear, moose and wolves. Saskatchewan lists deer — excellent, antelope — fair, elk — fair, black bear — good, moose — good and woodland caribou — fair.

The Yukon Territory brags black and grizzly bear—good, moose (bulls only) — good, caribou — good, mountain sheep — fair and Dall sheep — good with Stone sheep listed as good.

THE ENTIRE list of license prices and hot spots is way too long to print here, but if you have specific questions, drop me a letter in care of this paper and as soon as I get your query, I'll be glad to tell you what I know.

If you have an empty wall in your home that is reserved for a specific head, better get out and hunt. Next year might be too late.

Jets To Host Wings, Chiefs Thru Sunday

The Columbus Jets conclude home stand number ten with a busy flurry of baseball which will see six games carded on four playing dates.

Rochester bows out of the visitor's dugout tonight after a single game (7:45) which marks "Family Night" at the Stadium (men admitted for $1, ladies for 75 cents and children free when accompanied by parents).

THE SYRACUSE Chiefs move into town tomorrow, breaking the ice with a twinight twin-bill (6:30).

The home series concludes with a single Saturday evening game (7:45) and a big Sunday doubleheader (1:30).

A short (three-game) road trip takes the International League pennant contenders to Buffalo before they return home a week from today to open a key four-game set with Toledo's Mud Hens.

Co-Leaders Topple In SMGA Playoffs

Opening round action in the Sunday Morning Golf Association's O'Shaughnessy playoffs was anything but kind to loop co-leaders Duratile and Southern Bowling and Billiard.

Your Father's Mustache trimmed the former (9½ to 6½) while Coventry Inn bounced the latter (11-5).

H-T Booster Club Drive Opens Today

The Hamilton Township Athletic Booster Club will conduct its annual membership drive opening today and extending through Aug. 31.

Big day in the drive is scheduled for Friday, Aug. 23 when athletes, cheerleaders and band members will canvass the Obetz, Reese, Lockbourne and Hamilton Meadows areas.

H-T 'Meet Team' Aug. 20

Hamilton Township High School will unveil its 1968 football edition Tuesday, Aug. 20 with a special "Meet The Team" program for Ranger parents and fans at the high school.

Little Buckeye Gridders To Register Tomorrow

Athletic Director Tom C. Krieger announces that the Little Buckeyes football team, 1967 Little Hula Bowl champions, will hold registration and tryouts tomorrow (Friday) at 10 a.m. at Barnett Recreation Center.

All boys—age 11 through 14 who do not exceed 130 pounds—are eligible to participate with the Little Buckeyes. In the event of rain, all candidates will meet inside the recreation center.

THE LITTLE Buckeyes will again have their annual Labor Day weekend of camping at the Big Brothers Camp in the Hocking Hills.

The youngsters participate in hiking, swimming, camp fires, etc. and hold their annual Red and White intra-squad game for their parents and friends on Labor Day.

The Buckeye coaching staff returnees will be Ron Allen (backfield), Doug Bedell (tackles), Bern Eichner (ends) and Tom Ellifritz (guards).

TO COMPLETE the specialization of the Buckeye coaching staff, Rod Donaldson will handle the centers for the 1968 season.

Police Cruiser Display Ready

Columbus Chief of Police Robert H. Baus announced the schedule of the Police Department's Community Relations Cruiser and Recruiting Display.

FIGHTING CRIME, TRAFFIC

Computer Revolution Could Help Cities

How many people ever have anything good to say about computers?

The layman thinks these machines of modern technology take over jobs, direct bombs or simply sit serenely around waiting for the day when they will rule the world.

Listening to a layman describe the computer revolution can be as frustrating as listening to a local politician talk about Red China's cultural revolution.

But to the head of Ohio State University's new department of computer and information science, the computer revolution is not so easy to categorize.

"It is almost a law of nature that nothing is all good or all bad. And it's the same with computers," Dr. Marshall C. Yovits, chairman of the new department, explained.

And while there are problems brought about by the computer revolution, the horizons of the relatively untested computer field are vast.

In the area of urban development and city planning, for example — an area which will concern American specialists more and more as the U.S. population becomes urbanized — computers may play a vital role.

In addition to providing background material for urban planners, computers one day may be used to fight crime and route city traffic.

"A large part of what's wrong with the city is how it processes information," Dr. Yovits believes.

Computers could also be extremely helpful in the registration and control of firearms, an area that no one seems to have solved yet. Dr. Yovits believes the firearms situation would have few problems if computers were used.

The cities have not yet fully used the capabilities of computers. "We are just beginning to scratch the surface," Dr. Yovits admits.

Computers, however, do raise some questions which philosophers and theologians have long debated.

Will computers make human thinking obsolete?

Dr. Yovits says it will be difficult to design a machine to do the thinking of people. "You could build a brain. But it's like the little machine we call the camera — the human eye is much more intricate."

Another problem raised by the computer is jobs — will it put workers out of positions, particularly the lower-income worker who handles an unskilled job?

Dr. Yovits says the computer is not to be blamed for this. Machines taking over the work of men is a reality as old as the Industrial Revolution.

"The real problem is not the computer," the OSU professor claims, "but people who don't know how to formulate problems."

Computers which help to forecast election results, for example, are still imperfect. The model used for predicting election results must be constantly worked on.

Dr. Yovits' own department of computer and information science will be officially called such Oct. 1. More than 150 undergraduate students have declared majors in this program, and there are more than 100 in the graduate program.

A Slum Landlord Tells His Story

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

No one would appear to need public relations experts right now more urgently than a group of Americans who are commonly called "slum landlords."

Often thought of as perpetrators of poverty, this class of Americans has come in for its share of criticism and abuse.

And one of them — who classes himself as a "Shylock landlord" has had enough of community condemnation.

The landlord, who asked that his name be kept secret because he fears reprisals from segments of the community, manages 15 properties in what could be classed lower-income areas. He owns most of the properties himself.

A labor man who says he believes in relief and has seen "children starving to death," this landlord has his own set of problems.

The first problem is money. Last month he says he took a $100 loss on properties, mainly because he claims tenants destroy property or leave without paying rent.

According to the landlord, income from four of his buildings last year should have been $3600. He says, however, actual income from the structures was $3180.

After paying for apartment upkeep, property taxes and other necessities, the landlord claims his net yearly income was $256.

"And this pays me for 400 hours of work during the year," he declares.

And he claims property taxes hurt him more than they do more affluent suburbanites. Twenty years ago, he says, he was paying $35 two times a year on one property. Now, he says he is paying $70 twice a year. "If you consider what we've got, that's too much."

According to the landlord, however, money is not the only problem.

Apartment damages, he claims, have ranged from pulling plugs out of the walls to leaving water run for as long as a month.

He tells the story of one tenant who plucked chickens in the apartment and then moved out, leaving the results of his trade on the floor.

He says his tenants "don't give a damn."

"There was this 17-year-old girl with a baby who was on relief. There was nothing for her to do. Why shouldn't she have to attend classes or something?"

Again, he cites the example of how his mother, who at 85 has collected clothes left in apartments by tenants. He claims his mother has sent a 250-pound parcel of clothes "overseas to the needy."

In keeping up properties, he says he must redecorate apartments four times a year because of damage and dirt.

Among other problems he lists are:

- Welfare workers can't make clients use money given for rent. He says this can be corrected by having some of relief funds ticketed for the landlord.
- He says city building inspectors push problems back to him instead of to tenants.

The landlord tells this story . . . One family living in a double house was asked to leave because they were not paying rent. After being served with the notice of eviction, the family broke 16 windows, tore out wall plugs and then called city building inspectors to say the landlord was not keeping up the property. He says he had to redecorate the apartment completely.

The landlord claims he is being made into a "villain by the city and the press. I'm not making money and I'm not sure I ever will. All I want to do is rectify the problem."

How would he do this?

"I don't even think the experts know," he says.

But he does suggest that there is a lack of caseworkers and that welfare clients should be required to take training for future jobs.

He says all he wants is for the poor to know "it costs someone to keep them."

While believing he is not "mistreating the poor," this slum landlord has a difficult task ahead of him in an age which has made him the villain.

PLANS FALL WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Edinger, 48 E. Welch Ave., have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Karen Ruth, to Sgt. Terry Allen Mitchell. Sgt. Mitchell, who is now stationed at Minot Air Force Base, Minot, N.D., is the son of the late Benjamin Mitchell, 653 E. Gates St. Both Miss Edinger, who is a receptionist for P. S. Truesdell Co., and Sgt. Mitchell are graduates of South High School. An open church wedding will be held Oct. 12 at the Maple Grove Methodist Church.

Retired Persons To Hear Talk On Lighting History

The Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company's illustrated history of lighting will be presented by William W. Woodward, curator of the Electric Company's collection of lighting devices Aug. 26 for the American Association of Retired Persons meeting at 1:30 p.m. at the Broad Street United Methodist Church.

Titled "Man's Pathway From Darkness To Light," the talk covers forward steps in lighting development over a span of 3,000 years ending in the mid 1800's.

One-sixth of the collection is now on display at the Center of Science and Industry as a part of the Electric Company's exhibit "The Story of Electricity."

Woodward, an independent life underwriter, collected the lamps and lighting implements over a 20-year period as a hobby, and sold them to The Electric Company in order to make available the entire collection for research and reference by students, historians and hobbyists.

Driving Class Is Scheduled

Have you wondered whether you would be able to handle all emergency situations which might arise while driving?

Would you like to learn how to handle many adverse conditions on the highway — including night driving problems?

If so, attend the classroom session being held Saturday, Aug. 17, from 9:30-11:30 a.m. in the Southern Hotel by the Columbus Auto Club Driving School.

All interested persons are welcome. There is no charge, and no advance registration is necessary.

SBA Moves To Involve Private Loans

The Small Business Administration moved recently to increase the share of participation in government loans to small business by banks and other lending institutions.

Regional Director Richard C. Sensenbrenner announced that effective Aug. 1, private lenders will be required to take at least a 25 percent share in all SBA/bank immediate participation loans made to small business. Previously the bank share could be as small as 10 percent.

The 25 percent share requirement applies only to SBA loans to small businesses made under Section 7 (a) of the Small Business Act. It does not apply to disaster loans, to Economic Opportunity loans, or loans to local development companies.

SBA plans to continue its primary emphasis on the Loan Guaranty Program, in which all of the funds are advanced by the banks under SBA guaranties ranging up to 90 percent of the loans.

The change in immediate participation loans is another step forward by SBA to obtain increased private financing in the small business sector of the economy, according to Sensenbrenner.

Barrett Opens For Registration

Students who have moved into the Barrett Junior High School district since June may enroll in classes at the school.

Ken Olbert, principal of the school, has requested students to register before Aug. 30 so they may avoid opening day rush.

School will open Sept. 4 and classes will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Pupils are to report to their homerooms at 8:30.

Students who were promoted to Barrett from neighborhood elementary schools and those who attended Barrett last year are already enrolled.

NROTC Exam Is Slated

John J. Spittler, local president of the Columbus Council of the Navy League, has announced that the 23rd annual national competitive examination for the Regular Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps (NROTC) will be given Dec. 14, 1968.

The regular NROTC program prepares a young man for a Navy or Marine Corps Commission while he is studying at one of 53 civilian colleges.

All tuition, fees, uniforms and books are furnished by the Navy, and the student receives $50 per month subsistence allowance for not more than four years.

During the summers between academic years, the student participates in at-sea training periods as a midshipman. After successfully completing a baccalaureate level college course and all military requirements, he is commissioned in the regular Navy or Marine Corps.

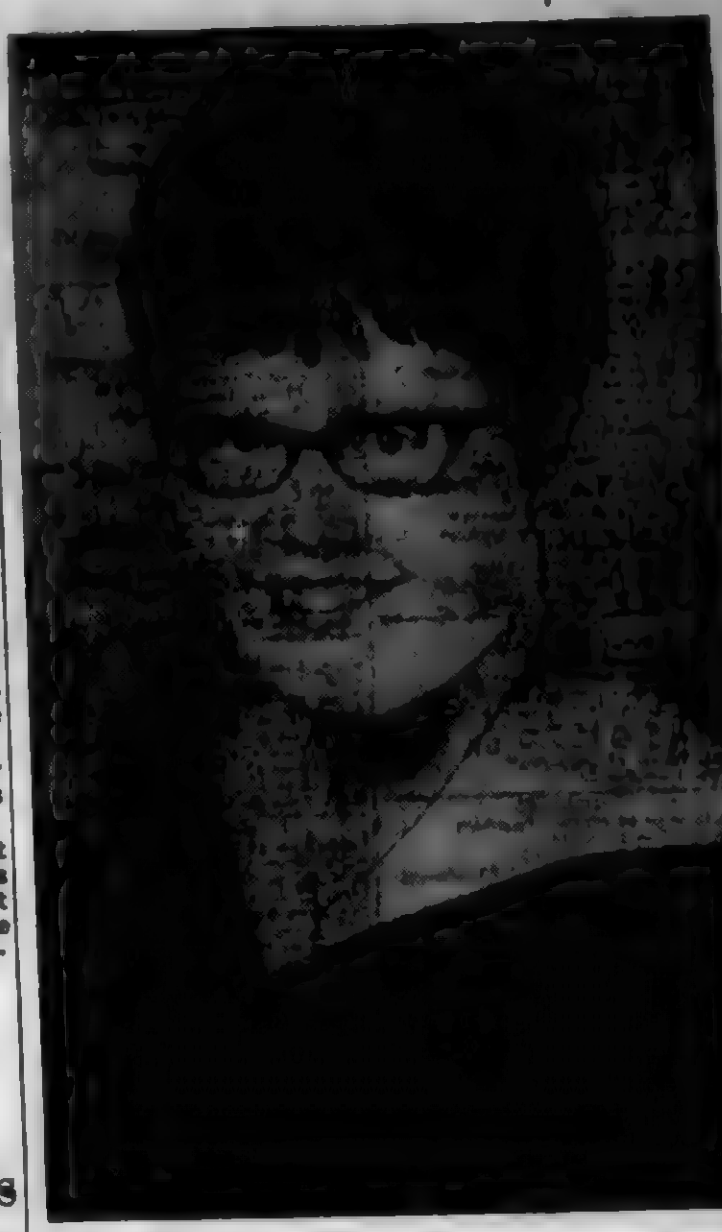
Application forms are available from high school counselors and Navy Recruiting Station at 74 E. Gay St., Columbus, Ohio, or from the Chief of Naval Personnel (PERS-B6411), Department of the Navy, Washington, D.C. 20370.



MISS BARBARA ELIZABETH STANLEY

Miss Stanley To Wed Jerome Allen Sommer

The engagement of Miss Barbara Elizabeth Stanley to Jerome Allen Sommer has been announced by the prospective bride's parents, Maj. and Mrs. Richard H. Stanley (USAF Ret.), 360 Kessler St., Groveport.

Mr. Sommer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Sommer of Greenville. A graduate of Greenville High School, he is a resident of the village of Lockbourne and is associated with Western Electric.

Miss Stanley is an alumna of Groveport-Madison High School and is presently majoring in elementary education at Otterbein College where she is a junior. She is a member of Rho Kappa Delta sorority.

Plans for the wedding have not been set.

Consumer Problems Tackled

A series of area meetings aimed at better protection of the public from consumer frauds is being planned by the office of Attorney General William B. Saxbe.

Primary goal of the meetings is to develop proposed legislation to put more power behind state and local efforts to prosecute consumer frauds.

Four main topics to be covered in the meetings are: legislation similar to the Federal Trade Commission Act as it now exists in other states but not in Ohio; possible legal ban on "referral selling;" mandatory licensing of door-to-door sales and inclusion of concellation right on certain contracts after a "cooling off" period.

The regional sessions will be held after the November election.

Fair Funds Hit Record

What does the 1967 racing season have to do with bigger and better fairs in Ohio?

Quite a bit, according to a report from State Auditor Roger Cloud.

Revenues derived from the '67 racing season, linked with legislative appropriations, have boosted the state's financial aid to 94 county and independent fairs to a record $1,077,763 during 1968.

Distributions to Franklin County from funds available was $13,376.

JIM MURRAY

The Bucs' Talking Mouse

MURRAY

Maurice Morning Wills, 35, the base burgler who has stolen his way into the Hall of Fame, picked up one of his larcenous shoes and pointed it across the locker room at a little player who was busy sharpening a bat with a beer can opener and asked:

"Why don't you do a story on him? No one ever does."

"THE CLUBHOUSE boy?" asked a reporter.

"No," said Maury Wills, "he won the batting championship two years ago, and was one point off second last year, and probably will win it again this year, and he couldn't get his name in the paper if he robbed a train."

It's true. Although he should be the most, Mateo Rojas Alou is the least visible good player in baseball today.

He'd be a bad guy to be caught in a fire with. In a game full of "holler" guys, he's a whispering guy. He talks as if he's telling you a secret.

BUT WORST of all, Matty's hits are hardly homeric—in any sense of the word.

Laid end-to-end, they wouldn't make a good triple off the bat of Frank Howard.

The only fence he ever hits is behind home plate.

HE CARRIES a bat up there so big it looks as if it should have a flag on it. Matty has to reach up to grab the handle.

"He'd have to shimmy to climb it," Don Drysdale says. "I think he'd have to cut the wires off it to use it."

Matty's bat is actually only about 40 inches long and Matty has at least a 20-inch height advantage.

THE REAL surprise is he doesn't have the flue to float it to homeplate, or have a guy in a mackinaw rowing on it.

He can pick it up without staggering only because he uses only the 25 top inches of it at the plate.

Matty is the only guy in the big leagues who, if he hit the ball on the label, might break two fingers.

"HE RUNS up on the ball like a guy throwing a javelin," Drysdale says.

If a pitcher takes too long a windup, Matty may hit the ball before he lets go of it.

Matty is only the second Latin-American in history to win a major league batting championship, and he is one of the extraordinary group of Dominicans the Giant scout picked up in the early fifties.

THE SMALLEST and fastest of the familiar Alou brothers, rumor has it the scout picked up Matty because he could come half-fare.

Matty didn't distinguish himself in Candlestick Park because he not only couldn't hit a ball through that wind, he could hardly stand up in it.

Matty got a bat so light he could have picked his teeth with it, and tried to pull the ball for the right field fence in those days when the Giants had so many Alous, the public address announcer sounded like a guy shouting into an overseas phone.

BUT THE only memorable thing Matty did in six years with the Giants was die on third in the 1962 World Series with the tying run in the final game.

Matty feels he would have been ever more memorable had he tried to score on that Willie Mays two-out double, because then he would have been known as the guy who died at home.

"I had no chance," he admitted the other night as he sat scraping his can opener over the handle of his bat.

TRADED TO Pittsburgh, he heard the Pirates' manager, Harry Walker, assure him, "Bat the way I tell you, and I'll add 50 points to your batting average."

Harry didn't. He added 111 points.

Twenty-three of Matty's hits were bunts, and the rest of them weren't much longer.

A 3.3 man going down the first-base line, Matty got more leg hits than a guy groping for a light switch in a crowded living room in the dark.

ON PITTSBURGH'S anthracite infield, he chopped down on some balls that went so high in the atmosphere, they came down charred. "If he hits a rock, he gets a home run," infielders grumbled.

Pitchers didn't know what to throw him: "He can foul off anything he doesn't like," Drysdale says. "You can throw up there and he'll beat it in the ground behind home plate."

If he wins the batting championship again (and he can par in to do that now), they may have a real live Popo Gigio on the Ed Sullivan Show this fall.

Culture And Status

This snow-white poodle, named oddly enough "Rusty," emerges from his bath and a stint in the dryer for final trimming and finishing touches. Left to right, Rusty proves the perfect customer, holding completely still as his whiskers are trimmed by Mary Myers of the "Tailwaggers," 327 W. Dodridge. In picture number two, however, he develops a case of nerves and quivers as his coif is combed. Owner Lee Myers commented that some dogs get so nervous "that it is like trimming a bowl full of jello." In the third picture, with his ordeal almost over, Rusty perks up considerably and consents good-naturedly to having his nails manicured and polished. These pampered pooches arouse envy even among attendants at the salon. Mary Myers indicated that she would be glad to change place with any one of the cared-for canines. In the final picture, Rusty, pampered, primped and polished, poses prettily for the camera. The final fillip here is a blue silk bow. Rusty is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Gregg N. Bedell, 2550 Welsford Rd.

A Dog's Life? . . . You've Got To Be Kidding!

By ROSE MARIE McMILLS

Whoever said it's a dog life was never inside a poodle beauty salon.

And whoever coined the phrase "dog days" to apply to sweltering heat has obviously never ventured into the air-cooled interior of such an establishment.

It is a conclusion I have drawn from this week's study of the elite (probably not too original) that very often they tend to be "way out" in some direction or other — to spend their money lavishly and often ridiculously on one thing.

So they wear a fabulously expensive chain mail dress if they are a woman or drive a Rolls Royce if they are a man or care for their poodle like no dog was ever cared for.

Spurred on by an interest in that theory, this reporter entered the perfumed interior of the "Tailwaggers" last week, pen and trusty note pad in hand, to record for you just how far the "filthy rich" will go.

So if those of you on the brink of richdom or that elusive quality known as "status" need some pointers on keeping up with the Vanderbilts, lend an ear.

First prerequisite is that you say over and over to yourself 50 times before going to bed each night, "A poodle is a people. A poodle is a people."

This is the basic idea, and once you have it firmly implanted in your mind, the rest comes a lot easier.

Now first off, Fifi must be properly clothed. Of course, you could just stick to a collar if you want the poor thing to catch her death. Collars start at $2 and go to $10 — naturally they are heavily laden with rhinestones.

For those rainy days when your catered-to-canine gets it into her fluffy head that she'd like an excursion into the outdoors, an all-weather coat with hood is strongly recommended.

This model starts at $13.95 — also available are rain boots.

In another month, however, when the leaves turn to burnt orange and red-gold, she'll want something more in keeping with the season.

A sweater is always nice — in colors to match the turning leaves. This is a useful item, too, since she can also wear it during those long, lazy evenings before the fireplace when winter sets in in earnest.

Sweaters start at $5 and go to $13.

When winter snow does begin to swirl around home sweet mansion, surprise Mimi with a winter coat, perhaps in wool or tweed. These are also available in fur. (Would you believe).

Next, remember that a full stomach makes for a happy dog.

To tickle your pet's palate, tantalize her with the number of treats now on the market. When she's turned up her nose at dog food and turned down dog biscuits, change her mind with a "pet turnover" in a variety of flavors.

No kidding, they look like they are straight out of the bakery.

Candy is always a big hit. I strongly suggest keeping these yummies out of the reach of small children though, unless you want them devoured by the little animals.

As the finishing touch please your pampered pooch by making her the epitome in pulchritude.

Detail the chauffeur to take her to the nearest beauty salon where she can spend the afternoon in luxury being fussed over by obsequious attendants.

Here she will be trimmed, shampooed, dried in a specially-made dryer and manicured.

Further frills are up to you. Paint her nails in colors to match her leash. (Lavender is especially pleasing to poodles. Kind of like red is to bulls, only backwards.)

Apply a product called "Maskara" around her eyes to keep tears from staining her face, place a bow in her coif, whoosh her with perfume ($3 a bottle) and she's all set.

Would that we were "going to the dogs."

Those Bizarre Fashions Of Society's Snobs

By ROSE MARIE McMILLS

It must be tough being one of the elite. It's hard enough just being a normal middle-class gal and keeping on top of fashion—think of the high society lady's problems.

She's got to be ahead as well as on top.

And lordie, the way-out fashions she has to wear to maintain her lead. Otherwise, how would she be distinguished from the common mob of lady shoppers?

Way back when, the socially elite lady was the first to carry a parasol, to sport a bustle (of all things!) and to raise eyebrows by raising her skirt above her ankle.

During the 1800's, she bared one breast and started a whole new fad.

Today she may "set the style" in a less dramatic way. Such an example is Jacqueline Kennedy's little sleeveless sheath, which was such a rage that department stores couldn't keep up with the demand.

Or she may flaunt her wealth by buying fabulously expensive dresses or by wearing fantastic outfits that make headlines.

But there are the hazards that go with them.

Take the new chain mail skirt. Wouldn't you make a lot of noise getting around and wake the baby? And wouldn't they be uncomfortable sitting? And what if you were in the sun for any length of time and that metal got hot!

And then, the new hip boots. They'd be great if a flash flood came up, but what to do if your foot itches.

And get this. Latest thing in decoration — moustaches for ladies. (If you don't believe me, see the August issue of "Vogue").

I wonder how you care for a moustache. I imagine it is something like a hairpiece, requiring occasional washing and setting and frequent brushing.

The new Nomad look — fur, fur all over, all kinds of fur trimming vests and big muffs and hats—has its problems too.

I envision the main trouble here comes with being followed either by dogs or spies from the House of Un-American Activities.

Vinyl and plastic always look so cold and hard and standoffish to me. One rather imagines that the little Vangilders don't run up and throw their arms around mommie's knees. First time they tried it, they'd probably get poked.

Just be glad you're middle class and your old tweed coat invites hugs. It's one of those things money can't buy.

Camel Hair Gives 'Class' To Wardrobe

If you've been searching for a fashion look with class that doesn't cost you a mint but looks like a million, camel is the answer.

Surprisingly, you can enjoy the luxury of camel hair creations at a very nominal cost.

For ideas along this line, we suggest you attend the "Trunk Showing" of the famous "Denise" collection now in its last three days at the Union stores.

SCHEDULE: Thursday at Town and Country—noon to 9 p.m.; Friday at Graceland —noon to 9 p.m.; Saturday at Northland—10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Rolls Royce: Status And More Middle Class Gives It A Spin

Today, as always, the Rolls Royce is a powerful status symbol but believe it or not, social barriers are breaking down.

This expensive make of automobile, once owned only by the "filthy rich," is now being driven by people from the upper middle and the middle class, such as engineers, doctors and even school teachers.

Rolls are bought today as much for the superb workmanship that went into them as for the "status" they afford. Motoring enthusiasts are foremost among the car's followers.

And, in the long run, the Rolls can prove to be one of the least expensive cars since it maintains a large percentage of the original cost.

Even Columbus has its own Rolls Royce dealer. From Konner's comes some interesting statistics on this costly car in the Columbus area.

Locally (within a 30 mile radius) there are 43 Rolls Royces on the roads. Twenty-seven of these are modern cars (from WW II on) that are driven every day. The rest are antiques, dating back to 1919.

The lowest-priced new car sells for $19,600 (sedan) and $31,600 (convertible).

The most expensive Rolls handled by Konner's costs a whopping $38,000.

Konner's delivers about 50 cars a year to all the states east of the Mississippi. They also service their cars.

A Touch Of Elegance

June meant a change from the indoor life to the outdoor life, and young brides have a range of ideas from Early American to psychedelic to decorate in this year.

The desire to have this important first home reflect the couple living there comes easily with the family donations and school treasures both have brought with them. No matter what your "style" choice, a touch of elegance and taste can fit in easily.

Colors are so perfect and varied this summer, and color brings each room to life and gives it personality. Let's use the bath as an example. If it's now dull and drab, perk it up with color.

Perhaps a touch of the Island colors, blue and green. Deep-pile carpeting comes easy to care for and at a price for young homemakers. Luscious towels and soaps and accessories—even tissue and paper cups — make your bath lush and nice to be in.

More easy elegance? Use lots of gold and white. Remember, too, that glass, clear and clean, adds sparkle to any room.

AUG 1968

This attractively-decorated room for a teenage boy doubles as a den for Dad when Junior is at college. Furnishings are selected with a view to the tastes and needs of both men. A room-sized orange Noxon carpet of Creslan acrylic fiber serves as a bright background for the wall units and can be rolled up for parties. Lots of storage space, for individual and joint treasures, is provided by versatile hutch-type cabinets.

Son's Room Doubles As A Den For Dad

Want to please the head of the house too when you redecorate a teenage boy's room? Plan ahead to turn the room into a den for Dad after Junior has gone off to college. He'll return to it with pleasure during vacations, and Dad will at last have the luxury of a space of his own.

Have the men of the house submit a list of requirements for their joint occupancy. Probably, you'll find their needs are very similar. Let them help select the furnishings, too. Men often make surprisingly talented amateur decorators.

Start by selecting the carpet. As the largest single area of color in the room, it will set the color scheme for other furnishings. Men like rich, vivid color, so a warm orange carpet made with Creslan acrylic fiber would be an attractive, and practical, choice.

Carpets made with this easy-care fiber resist staining and crushing, and require only vacuuming to keep them new-looking. A room-sized rug might be chosen with an eye to rolling up at party time.

The warm tones of wood furniture suggest the masculinity that is essential to the room. A grouping of wall units solves the storage problem, providing adequate space for both men's possessions.

When an interest such as music or stamp collecting is shared, the equipment can be arranged in a joint storage area, accessible to both.

Multi-purpose furnishings, such as a table that opens out to provide additional desk space, or a sofa that can provide extra sleeping room, are sound investments.

Be sure to provide plenty of good lighting, for home-work or hobby-work. Pictures and other accessories can carry the stamp of each man's personality.

Handsome really comfortable upholstered furniture is a must for both. It might be a good idea to have them "try on" chairs and sofas before you buy — a man's idea of comfort often differs radically from a woman's.

Throughout the room, strong colors and man-sized patterns dispel any hint of a clubby atmosphere. It will be a room that each of the men in your life will be proud to call his own.

TIPS ON MODELING — FROM A WINNER

Few girls in modeling start at the top. But Elaine Fulkerson did. This young lovely won her way to modeling fame as the first Model of the Year and began her career on last fall's top-rated Model of the Year television spectacular.

Now Stewart Models of New York has launched its 1968 national Model of the Year search and Elaine offers some winning tips for aspiring models all over the country.

For instance, Elaine recommends that girls experiment with several makeup "looks" before having photos taken for the contest then stay with the one they find best suits their personality.

"Remember," warns Elaine, "you can camouflage a lot of beauty faults with cosmetics but you can't hide a poor smile. A model's smile must be wide, bright and enthusiastic." In fact, in this year's Model of the Year search one endorser will award a special $15,000 TV modeling contract to the girl best qualified to become the Ultra Brite Girl. "She's the one with the wholesome, sex-appealing smile," Elaine explained.

When it comes to choosing the right hairstyles, Elaine's advice is to keep it simple. "Later, you'll learn how models create fantastic style changes with wigs, falls and hairpieces," she reports.

Elaine has some further suggestions to those girls who are lucky enough to make the next step: the interview. "Wear a simple, well cut shift with a colorful, knotted scarf, a suit or properly coordinated separates. Don't wear that darling number you bought for your girlfriend's wedding! Remember," Elaine continues, "you will be interviewed by New York professionals. They are seeking model potential. You'll just rule yourself out by cluttering yourself up with too much fluff."

Elaine should know! She went on to a trip to New York for test photographs, then went back again later as a finalist. Ultimately, she stood on the runway of a lavish television set while color cameras, lights, famous judges and an elegant audience swam before her eyes. Then, Elaine Fulkerson was announced Model of the Year — and the whole country saw it happen.

This fall, Elaine will pass her title to a new Model of the Year. Perhaps her winning tips will make you the girl who starts her modeling career at the top!

BLAH-H-H-H . . .

Curly Cues

In case you haven't noticed, curls are in, long droopy locks are out, but definitely!

The current trend toward the more feminine you, all dressed up in ruffles and frills, has naturally resulted in more lady-like hairdoes. And any gal who's worth her salt knows that men have always considered soft curls as indicative of feminity plus.

If your hair is naturally straight or even lacks body, a permanent is now a "must." According to Toni, women are discovering just this and the home permanent industry is experiencing a revival.

This is due, in part, to the fact that a new age group, teenagers, has suddenly discovered the benefits of custom-made curls.

LIME PIE IS COOL TREAT

Looking for a quick and cool summer dessert? A frozen beauty such as Frozen Lime Pie is the solution.

A creamy filling is frozen into a crumb crust for this particular summer delight. Dollops of whipped cream add that extra special flavor and eye appeal.

Flecks of lime rind are seen throughout the pie. They help to give that extra lime flavor, and add a decorative touch as well.

A lime gelatin base, made with nutritious fresh whole milk, is folded into whipped cream. That's about all the preparation that is necessary.

Serve Frozen Lime Pie this summer season, either as an afternoon refresher or as a cool dessert.

FROZEN LIME PIE

1 envelope unflavored gelatin

3/4 cup sugar

1/8 teaspoon salt

1 cup milk

1/3 cup fresh lime juice

1½ teaspoons grated lime rind

Few drops green food coloring

1 cup (½ pint) whipping cream, whipped

1 egg white

9-inch crumb crust

Combine gelatin, sugar and salt.

Add milk; heat just until gelatin and sugar are dissolved. Chill until mixture begins to thicken.

Add lime juice, rind and food coloring as desired. Fold in whipped cream.

Beat egg white until it holds soft peaks. Fold into gelatin mixture. Pile into crumb crust.

Freeze.

Hush My Mouth! Southern Treat Moves Up North

Oneupmanship for Columbus' would-be Scarlett O'Haras — bring back the flavor of the Old South (literally) this summer by experimenting with the land of jasmine and magnolia's favorite dish: grits.

For uninformed Yankees, it may come as a surprise that enriched white hominy can be used in a variety of gourmet dishes.

Quaker Oats' Home Economics Department has developed recipes for such exciting treats as grits au gratin, ham - cheese - grits ring, grits spoon bread, fried sausage grits and hominy croquettes — to name only a few.

Naturally it is still recommended as a vegetable with gravy or butter, or as a cereal with milk and cream.

TIDBITS

For an instant refresher, wrap some ice cubes in a washcloth and gently rub it over face, neck, elbows, knees and wrists. A cool feeling is the reward.

Gallery Players Release '68-'69 Season Schedule

Abe Green, newly elected president of The Gallery Players of the Jewish Center, recently announced the 1968-'69 season for this community theater group which is directed by Cultural Arts Director, Harold Eisenstein.

Edward Albee's Pulitzer Prize winning "A Delicate Balance" will kick-off the season when it opens Nov. 16. Tryouts will be held Sept. 3 and Sept. 5 at 8 p.m.

"Come Blow Your Horn," Neil Simon's comedy, will open Jan. 25 and will be directed by Eddie Kaye, followed by a yet to be announced experimental theater workshop production on Mar. 22.

The annual spring musical, Rodgers and Hammerstein's "South Pacific" is scheduled for a May 10 opening.

Also, included in this year's events will be the Annual Jewish Center Orchestra Concert, four international film epics which are followed by a critique and refreshments, the spring ballet recital and the summer Closing Curtain Party.

Open to the public, Gallery Players may be contacted at 231-2731 for membership information.

State Fair-Goers Will Need Roller Skates

Attendees are either going to have to have a pair of roller skates, a planned course of sight-seeing [illegible] survival kit to fully enjoy all of the exhibitions and events scheduled for [illegible] 12-day Ohio State Fair which opens at 6 a.m. with a formal ribbon cutting ceremony next Thursday.

Listed here are some of the events and exhibitions which you might overlook. This is easy to do when considering such names as Ed Ames, The Golddiggers, Johnny Carson, The Beegees, George Kirby, Roger Miller, The Smothers Brothers, Pat Paulsen, Allen & Rossi, Bob Hope and John Davidson.

Daily, every hour on the hour, will find the busiest and widest range of art occurring at the Arts and Crafts Building. For instance, electronic cooking will be exhibited daily, Aug. 22 and 23. The Homemakers' Cook-Off begins at 10 a.m., Aug. 22, while at 12:30 p.m. interior decorating ideas are featured.

The judging of baked goods begins at 1 p.m., Aug. 22, then a decoupage demonstration begins at 2 p.m. with a floral arranging demo at 2:30 p.m.

Bright and early, Aug. 23, the judging of baked goods continues at 8 a.m. There will be a Talent Show at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. At 10 a.m. the Homemakers' Cook-Off, with a rug making session at 11 a.m. The afternoon finds another decoupage demo.

On the third day, Aug. 24, the Homemakers' Cook-Off will be at 10 a.m., followed by frozen food judging and rug making. Sunday, Aug. 25, at 10 a.m., a display of Ohio Fruits and Vegetables Table Decorations and the Homemakers' Cook-Off. Floral arranging at 2:30 p.m. and then Johnny Carson and The Golddiggers at 4 p.m.

That takes you through just four days and one building. Still don't you think you should invest in a pair of skates at least?

Also in the Arts and Crafts Building will be displayed exhibits of antiques, sewing, knitting and style shows. Again, all of these events are taking place in one building. Most of the demonstrations will be repeated throughout the fair.

That's not all. The Columbus Junior Theater of the Arts, with 40 some children, will present "West Side Story" at 7 p.m., Aug. 22-24.

Then, Aug. 26-29 finds Prairie Players performing a one-act melodrama under the direction of Elizabeth Noblitt, 7 p.m.

The Cambridge Community Theater group will perform "Bye, Bye, Birdie" Aug. 30 and 31 at 7 p.m.

Next week there will be a listing of TV broadcasting, so that you can skate over to their shows.

This article, a futile attempt at listing events, assures me one thing: with all buildings offering as much and more for the eye and mind to perceive it shall be a long...hot...day at the Fairgrounds.

Stadium's 'Gypsy' Loses Glitter From Arena Style

A thought comes to mind concerning arena style and musicals upon seeing Stadium's final show of this season, "Gypsy."

That is, for all the finest in musical production through arena style, something goes unnoticed because of audibility and the ever constant feeling of waiting your turn to see the show.

What happens to three-quarters of the audience while the remaining one-quarter is entertained? The result is obviously the reason for not only this show, but "Patience" (season opener), losing impact and glitter.

This detriment to the overall show certainly could have been narrowed to a pin-point when "Gypsy" relates sketches of her life leading to her becoming a strip-teaser by the use of microphone. Why not the use of microphones from the top?

Or better yet, why not use the three-quarters of the arena for musicals? If selling more tickets is more important than entertaining, then Stadium goers should get one-quarter rebate. Then there is the cast, crews and directors who certainly deserve better conditions for presenting their talents.

Enough said, for after all, there was a fine production and credit is due. Charles Ritter, director, has pulled out all the stops and made "Gypsy" a colorful, momentous tribute to Stadium's long list of hits.

Mary Kostanden as the scheming stage mother is really another Ethel Merman, originator of "Rose," with only the brass missing which really permits Miss Kostanden to excel through a true portrayal and exquisite talent.

Nancy Dickson as Gypsy Rose Lee is truly the star. For a while "Rose's" role is the written lead, Miss Dickson demurely and child-like walks off with the show under at least five costumes.

The remaining members of the cast, of which there must be at least 30, have been wisely cast, superbly rehearsed and the best of each actor really turns on the show to brighten the arena with entertainment.

The show stopped when Zada Van Doorn, recuperating from a long illness, walked across the stage and delivered her line. Bravo, Miss Van Doorn.

Even with the opening remarks in consideration, "Gypsy" should be seen. Three-quarters is better than having not seen at all. This play just can't be held down. The tunes will be hummed for many a day . . . "Let Me Entertain You," "Everything's Coming Up Roses," "Small World," "You Gotta Get a Gimmick" and "Little Lamb."

"Gypsy" runs through Saturday evening at Gate 10 at Ohio State Football Stadium.

Don Reed Heads Bill At Bistro

Singer Don Reed, who two weeks ago headlined the coveted Gigi Room of the Hotel Fountainbleau, Miami Beach, opened Monday at The Bistro for a special one-week engagement which ends this Saturday evening.

The supporting act on the twin-bill will be the comedy team of Dalton and Thomas.

Their comedy, consisting of impressions, situation comedy and sharp one-liners, has already earned them appearance on the Mike Douglas Show, Steve Allen Show, Ed Sullivan Show and the Merv Griffin Show.

New Restaurant Boasts Of Columbus' Only Boardwalk

Atlantic City's Boardwalk, where supposedly the coney island was originated, will be the setting for families, teenagers and adults as they walk the boardwalk to Pete Smerles' Boardwalk Coney Island.

The interior, designed by Coburn Morgan, has taken five months to create. Mr. Smerles has, by hand, built two Gazebos which enhance ice-cream parlor tables and chairs. With a predominately red carpeting and white as the added touch, the Boardwalk Coney Island is certainly a delightful switch to approaching the business of coney islands.

Along the vinyl-textured strawberry walls sit more simulated marble top tables bringing to a total of 75 the seating capacity. Clean, charming and cozy inside, and strikingly wild on the outside, the Boardwalk is located at 3396 E. Main St. and will open Aug. 23 with daily hours from 11 a.m.-11 p.m.

Outside, the building is painted in black, avocado and gold. Sound gaudy? Owner Smerles relates that lawyer-friend George Lias suggested the colors. My thought . . . well you can't miss it.

The menu offers milkshakes, coffee, draught beer, cokes, shredded beef bar-b-que, fish sandwiches, shrimp, chili soup and, of course, coney islands.

A Greek recipe for coney island sauce will be used. Also, Mr. Smerles has a special called "3-Way Spaghetti" which has got to be tried to be believed.

A Columbus native, a graduate of South High School and OSU where he studied business organization, this is Smerles' first restaurant venture. It seems most Greeks turn to the art of cooking for their livelihood, according to Smerles.

So, Aug. 23, drop by the Boardwalk, sit under a gazebo and munch on Greek coney islands. That should certainly cool down these hot summer days.

'A New Star Is Born'

I've seen a star born.

That is the highest compliment to the star and the highest recommendation to you the reader, of which I am capable.

His name is Dave McCoy. He opened his first supper-club engagement Monday evening at the Desert Inn. It would come as no surprise if he were to be held longer than just this week.

When unexplainable tears come to the eyes, then the inner being has been reached. Simply, wholly and with soul, Dave McCoy creates this and much more.

The electricity of the debut filled the mammoth Aztec room. It was a once in a lifetime very true happening. The audience was completely mesmerized.

For this reviewer, having seen some of the top entertainers in many different forms of entertainment, it was an event that enveloped and enraptured beyond comprehension, for the tears came.

He received two standing ovations, one after each show. His act entitled, "The Now Composers" easily thrusts him to the NOW vocalist.

Dave McCoy sings the songs of Simon and Garfunkel, Bobby Hebb and many others . . . far better than they. He sings like I hope the angels do.

What more can I say? Nothing more, no amount of words can either recapture Monday night or any night Dave McCoy entertains. I will say this, since there is no cover charge or minimum, take some very comfortable shoes, for standing.

Heart Group Has Kit For Kiddie Carnival

Youngsters coming home from summer camp may return with a small menagerie—turtles, snakes, frogs and insects.

This miniature "zoo" could be an added attraction for a backyard carnival.

The Central Ohio Heart Association has compiled a kit of instructions to aid children in staging a carnival for the Heart Fund. The kit includes information on preparation for the carnival, suggestions for games and booths, fill-in posters to advertise the event, balloons and a check list for all the arrangements prior to, during and after the carnival.

With school a month away, this kit may provide a constructive activity for children.

To order a kit or for additional information, contact the Central Ohio Heart Association, 535 E. Broad St., 228-6327.

Tryouts Scheduled

"South Pacific" tryouts will be held this Sunday at 2 p.m. and Monday, and Tuesday at 8 p.m. for Independent Players' November 8 and 9 opening show at Veterans Memorial.

New directors have been hired. They are Lynn Morrow, staging director, Kirby Wyatte, overall production co-ordinator, Frank Corey, musical director and Brenda Flour, choreographer.

The TV Corner

Paul Dixon, host of the Paul Dixon Show, seen daily on the Avco Broadcasting stations in Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus, and Indianapolis at 9 a.m. begins a 90-minute program this Monday over Channel 4, changing the regular time slot of 60 minutes.

• • •

A story of what happens to our forgotten children, filmed in color at Fairfield School for Boys in Lancaster, on the streets of Cincinnati and at Scioto Girls' School in Powell, "The Invisible Child," is a touching story of Ohio's juvenile delinquents being presented by Channel 6 Wednesday, Aug. 21, at 8:30 p.m.

• • •

Host James Day discusses Bing Crosby's affluence, his family and his career spanning the years from the one-night vaudeville stands through the "big band" days to the present era of electronic entertainment on "Conversations" Tuesday, Aug. 20, over Channel 34 at 7:30 p.m.

• • •

Thomas H. Dawson, president of CBS Television Network, announced today that the network will inaugurate a late-night show starring Merv Griffin at the beginning of the 1969-'70 season. The program will be broadcast Monday through Friday at 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. ET.

• • •

"The Brass Incorporation" from the Delta Upsilon Fraternity of OSU will appear on Channel 6's nationally syndicated "Your All-American College Show" this Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The program which usually airs at 10:30 p.m. has been moved to an earlier time because of the Bengals-Buffalo Bills game at 8 p.m.

CORRECTION

In last week's preview of the North Branch YMCA's "Thurber Carnival," a performer's name was omitted and should be added for it was his singing voice that carried the show. His name is Charles Cheadle.

FINAL REMINDER

A final reminder comes from Village Little Theater that their tryouts for "On A Clear Day You Can See Forever" will be held this Sunday in the First Community Church, 1320 Cambridge Blvd., from 2:30 to 5 p.m.

POG Resurrects 'Separate Rooms;' Makes It Frolic

Playhouse On The Green will just go to any length to utilize talents.

This time, they dug way back to 1936 and came up with "Separate Rooms," which should have been the dud of the season.

It isn't. That's because Bruce Blaine and Jean Martinez really dig deep into their careers and talents to put this one across the boards.

Both performers, if there were ever any doubters to their ability, prove to be first rate. A comedy, and a farce at that, is extremely difficult, but these two geniuses make it look like 1, 2, 3.

The second act is a showcase of sight gags, punchy lines and whatever will be, to the point that laughter just rolls on and on.

Using her admirers to achieve stardom, then being tamed by her new brother-in-law, Jean Martinez was wisely chosen. She knows comedy, lives comedy and delivers comedy, much to everyone's delight.

Due to some changing of lines, a breath-taking set and real work on the part of the entire cast, Ted Pritchard, Gary Garth, Larry Kent, Mary Kay Williams, Rex Fuller and Deidre Owen, "Separate Rooms" is truly enjoyable.

POG deserves a salute and a medal of excellence for making this play a hit, in spite of its mothball existence.

The 1968 State Convention of the Women of the Moose, in conjunction with the Ohio State Moose Association, will be held Aug. 15-18 at the Sheraton-Columbus Hotel.

Registration will be in the Northeast Promenade from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 15.

Mrs. Anna Anderson is the registration chairman. The welcome party will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Venus Room. Columbus Chapter is the hostess chapter and Mrs. M. F. Winegar is chairman of the entertainment committee.

The opening session of the convention will be held in the Venus Room at 1 p.m. Friday, with Deputy Grand Regent Doris Trout of Coshocton presiding.

The invocation will be given by Mrs. Alice Kerk of Columbus, and the address of welcome will be given by Mrs. Clyde Cunningham, Columbus, general chairmen.

Official visitor, Marie Holden, director of chapter activities, Mooseheart, Ill., will speak at the ritualistic ceremony Saturday in the Venus Room at 2 p.m.

The state president's banquet will be held in the Saturn and Jupiter Rooms at 7:00 p.m. Saturday.

The closing session will be in the Venus Room Sunday at 10 a.m., Deputy Grand Regent Doris Trout presiding.

NEW GROUP

Mrs. Raymond J. Schneider, (Pat), 2526 Middlesex Rd., was hostess for a buffet luncheon Aug. 2 and a new group of Our Lady of Bethlehem Convent Clares was formed. Those attending were Rosemary Blessing, Mary Pulsinelli, Pat Shemenski, Roseann Cochrane, M. Iezzi and Eleanor Andres. The next meeting will be a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Shemenski at which time the officers will be announced.

VIOLET SOCIETY

The Columbus African Violet Society will have its "Tiptoe Through The Violets," Wednesday, Aug. 21. This is a visit to members' homes to view their violets.

Members will meet at 1 p.m. in the parking lot of the Gallery of Fine Arts and proceed in cars to the homes of Mrs. Elmer Lusk, 1173 Oakland Ave., Mrs. C. H. Grinstead, 1864 Berkshire Rd., and Mrs. LeRoy Tucker, 2812 North Star Rd.

Chairman is Helen Botti and the hostesses are Mrs. Howard C. Davis and Mrs. G. A. Rathgeber.

JOHN GILLIGAN TO SPEAK

John Gilligan, Democratic candidate for the U. S. Senate, will be guest speaker at the Blendon-Westerville Democratic Club Aug. 17. Democratic committee women Sally DeCenzo and Maureen Harrison announced that Gilligan will meet with residents to discuss key issues in the coming election. A rally will be held at the Otterbein Student Union at 7:30 p.m.

VETERANS PLAN PICNIC

Franklin County War Veterans Republican Club will hold its annual stag picnic from 4 to 10:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 19, at Oak Park, 5442 Sunbury Rd. Tickets are on sale at $2 per person from all club members. From left, club president John L. Inge, picnic chairman Tommy L. Thompson and county prosecutor C. Howard Johnson receive tickets from clerk of courts Joseph M. Clifford.

'Barefoot Days Passe' Health Doctor Says

.Barefoot days of summer are as passe as the horse and buggy and should never have been allowed to exist in those days, Dr. Ollie M. Goodloe, city health commissioner, has declared.

Bare feet are vulnerable to laceration injuries, he said, and should the cuts become infected, they can do more than spoil a child's summer—permanent damage can result.

Sharp objects like knives, razor blades, broken china or glass can inflict serious injury as can nails, tacks, jagged pieces of metal, splinters and pointed tools.

Parents, he advised, can prevent injury to their children's feet by insisting they wear shoes and by removing sharp objects that have been dropped around the home and premises which could penetrate the soft-sole type of shoe frequently worn by youngsters.

Air Traffic Control Class Is Scheduled

The Principles of Air Traffic Control will be the theme of "Operation Rain Check" to be conducted at the Federal Aviation Administration, Air Route Traffic Control Center in Oberlin, beginning Oct. 1.

A 12-hour course conducted over a period of four evenings, it will offer general aviation instrument pilots an opportunity to learn about the Air Traffic Control System.

A new class will begin each Tuesday through Dec. 17.

On The Alert For Kids' Day

The last Sunday in September may seem far away to most kids.

But, as anyone knows, an Air Force officer has to plan ahead.

AND NOW is the time for the youngster who wants to be a "Kid Commander" at Lockbourne Air Force Base on Air Force Kiwanis Club Kids Day Sept. 29 to taxi to the flight line.

The chance to go to TDY (temporary duty to you who aren't airborne) as AF "brass" can be shot down by any boy or girl between seven and 13.

The only thing necessary to get your mission off the ground is to write a letter to Kid Commander Contest, Office of Information, Lockbourne AFB, Ohio 43217 and brief the Kiwanis Club planning committee on why you want to be a commander.

THE LETTER which must be in before midnight, Sept. 6 should include your full name, address, age, telephone number and parent's name.

The eight command positions open include those of transporter, tanker, gunship, guard and base commander, fire and police chief and chief nurse.

The winners will "buddy" with their real life counterparts and also personally meet the world famous aerial demonstration team, the U. S. Air Force Thunderbirds.

LOCKBOURNE will be open to the public from noon to 5 during the open house with the mid-afternoon Thunderbird show highlighting the program.

EXECUTIVE SALES OPPORTUNITY

- A man who is now selling and feels that his position is not sufficiently challenging, without adequate income and advancement possibilities — or he is subject to transfer and does not wish to re-locate.

or

- A junior executive, school teacher, engineer, business owner, accountant or lawyer who may be economically disturbed.

or

- A young man out of college several years whose future is blocked because of the nature of his work, or the size of the organization . . .

Investigate this opportunity to qualify for the highest recognized level of selling to "business and professional groups." A two-billion-dollar company has retained a Career Consultant who will conduct an Executive Sales Aptitude Analysis*. Should you qualify, we will discuss with you the possibility of associating with us in Columbus.

A salary plus substantial commission to qualified man leading to permanent sales or management career. All inquiries and interviews will be held in strict confidence.

*This Sales Aptitude Analysis will be administered by appointment. Write: Vern K. Miller, 8 E. Long St. for appointment. This personal analysis will be made available to you free of charge.

Welfare Agency Study Disclosed

By JOHN MORGAN

A Health, Education and Welfare Department 1967 study of the Franklin County Welfare Department noted the county agency had not yet adjusted "to the sweeping changes" of new programs, requirements and a "staff seriously demoralized by recent personnel problems."

The August HEW study, conducted by the department's Assistance Payments' staff, advised against decentralizing the county agency until operations had been simplified and noted excessive staff turnover had had a "pervasive" effect on agency.

The HEW study was requested by the County Director of Welfare and centered on systems and procedures.

The highly technical report "describes the situation as we saw it in August, 1967, and not the current situation," a HEW spokesman in Chicago said.

The spokesman said HEW was aware that changes in procedures had been made as a result of the study.

The federal study seconded a 1965 United Community Council survey which found FCWD employes to be dedicated and competent. It also reported the local agency has within its framework programs needed for a "modern, forward looking welfare department."

Nevertheless, the federal study pointed out "hardships and problems" had been compounded by the following factors:

- Sweeping changes in operating methods and procedures.
- Initiation of new programs.
- Reporting requirements involved in new and expanded programs.
- State supervision necessitated by federal laws and by State House Bill 376.
- Top administrative staff who were inexperienced were employed at the same time these sweeping changes took place.
- A staff seriously demoralized by recent personnel problems.

The federal study noted that "primary attention now needs to be focused on improving internal operations of the agency."

The 1967 federal report also advised against decentralization of the department until operations were simplified and a casework staff with basic knowledge of agency programs developed. Decentralization has been a stated policy of the county welfare department.

In the area of staff turnover, the HEW report noted the annual rate of turnover has been 55 per cent since 1964. This figure is higher than the 20 to 30 per cent estimated turnover rate in welfare agencies across the nation. The report noted this turnover rate has a pervasive effect on the agency.

Citing a delay in the agency program of intake, the report recommended that individuals applying for assistance be given the opportunity to apply and be seen by an intake caseworker on the initial contact. At the time of the federal study it was noted that there was a lag of three to four weeks between a client's date of application and transfer to the district worker.

In terms of in-staff training, the report said more intensive programs were needed. The report added: "It is detrimental to the recipients, frustrating to the workers, and devastating for the agency when workers are called upon to administer a program without adequate training."

The HEW recommended an organized, on-going, in-service training program for all staff.

Staff development, the report noted, had been encouraged by the administrative position on educational leaves. But the federal report noted some inexperience was evident.

The 1967 report noted at that time that 16 of the Trained District Supervisors had been in that position for only one year and six had been there for about 2½ years. It noted that Division Chiefs had similar "limited experience" and most administrative staff had "little or no experience in administration."

Nevertheless, despite these problems the survey cited a November, 1966 FCWD plan for on-going, in-service training.

Optimistically, the report pointed out that a "completely new and inexperienced staff in the county training unit has moved a long way toward developing an effective training program." But it added that a management unit is needed for an "on-going analysis of systems, procedures and organization, primarily at state and county levels."

Wickes Promotes Two

The Wickes Corporation recently announced the appointments of Doyle G. Graf as manager of the Wickes Retail Center located in the Great Western Shopping Center at 3400 North Boulevard, and Guy M. Miller as manager of the Wickes Retail Center located in the Graceland Shopping Center at 219 Graceland Blvd.

Graf completed Wickes' Management Training Program at Grand Rapids, Michigan, and was assigned as assistant manager at the Wickes Metro Center in Columbus, until the time of his promotion to manager at the Great Western Center.

A native of Saginaw, Mich., Graf is a graduate of both Marion College, Marion, Ind., and Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind. He has accumulated seven years experience in the construction field.

Active in the Young Republican Club and a member of Wesleyan Methodist Church of America, Graf and his family will continue to reside in Reynoldsburg.

Miller, whose last Wickes assignment was as manager in training at Columbus, is a native of Moline, Ill., and a veteran of the U.S. Navy. Prior to joining Wickes he accumulated 17 years experience in the lumber and building business.

Active in civic, community and church projects, Miller and his family will continue to make their home in the Columbus area.

CROSS TOWN

Lots of people on the move in our town this week — moving out, around and up.

First there's John (Bill) Rhoads, well-known service manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. store on West Broad Street, who is taking over as plant manager at Goodyear's new Transmission Plant at 2128 Eakin Rd. Bill is one of those rarities — a life-long Columbus resident.

Moving up at Capital University is Lewis Holm, who switched from his post as director of public relations to the directorship of the new Special Projects Office. Lewis will be in charge of government and foundation relations—conducting research on foundations and preparing applications for all of Cap's government and foundation grants.

And on the way out of town is the Robert Lohr family, leaving their home at 138 Fernhill Rd. in Lincoln Village South for a new residence in Toledo. Bob's formerly with Lazarus.

Vacations are keeping many of our friends hopping . . .

Whitehall's Rodney and Debbie Coyle, 951 Elaine Rd., are back from Oak Ridge, Tenn., where they visited the American Museum of Atomic Energy's displays on peaceful uses of the atom.

Renee Wendt, daughter of Worthington's Dr. and Mrs. Robert B. Wendt, 57 Larrimer Ave., is back from a vacation in Michigan.

Michigan also lured Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bowers, own[illegible] Custom Cleaners at 500 N. Cassady in Bexley. They e[illegible] the warm days and cool nights of the Upper Peninsu[illegible] Lake Manistique and came up with five agates at Grand Marina on Lake Superior.

Two trips of a different nature are on tap for Reynoldsburg residents. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Buchheit of 225 S. Waggoner Rd. leave Sept. 3 for Garabandal, Spain, to take part in the Golden Jubilee celebration of the famed Padre Pio. And Robert John Goodyear, 6474 Red Coach Lane, leaves Aug. 19 for the seminary of the Holy Ghost Novitiate in Winchester, Va. He'll be a postulate until Sept. 7 when he receives the habit of the order.

One more vacation coming up. Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Hughes of Upper Arlington leave soon for a long-deserved vacation in Florida and the Bahamas. The Hughes' are the parents of The Spectator's own artist, Sandy Aska. And Sandy has more good news. Sister Pam Zebbe and her husband, Gene, are returning to Columbus. Gene will be a member of the Upper Arlington Police Force.

Secretary of State Ted Brown is in a sticky situation. Ted is chairman of the first annual Ohio State Fair Bubble Gum Blowing Contest slated for Aug. 27. Top prize — a five-year supply of bubble gum.

Speaking of the fair, three well-known Ohioans will judge the old-time hog calling competition. They are OSU Trustee John H. Dunlap, farm editor Bill Zipf and U.S. Rep. Clarence Miller of Lancaster.

Hard at work at the new Gold Circle Store across from Eastland is Ted Mackey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dorman Mackey, 3541 Maplewood Dr., Grove City.

And a celebrity is in our midst. Richard "Red" Holt, 2838 Alton-Darby Creek Rd., was featured in Landmark Co-operative's latest magazine. Red is the new Hilliard branch manager for Landmark.

That does it for this time, but we'll see you all next week Cross Town.

P.S. Don't forget Spectator Day at Jet Stadium on Sunday, Aug. 25. Our Jets take on Toledo in a key International League game.

OHIO PENITENTIARY: PART II

Inmate 'Justice' And The Search For Dignity

(Editor's Note: Rev. Tom Sagendorf, now director of the Interfaith Action Council in Flint, Mich., has spent time in clinical training at the Ohio Penitentiary and also was a summer intern chaplain there. This article went to press during the recent crisis. The story of what goes on within the Ohio Pen, therefore, is even more vital.

By REV. TOM SAGENDORF

We have already seen that "responsibility, self-discipline and judgment" are long-lost qualities within the ancient Ohio Penitentiary. But what about regard for justice and respect for the dignity of other persons? . . .

When an inmate is crowded into the closed world of the the Ohio Penitentiary, he is given an "Inmate Manual." This is a handbook of information and regulations governing men committed to the Ohio Penitentiary.

In the manual the inmate learns that there is an almost infinite number of violations—some of which are extremely petty—for which he can be "written up" by an officer and summoned to the institution court—called the "Summary Court . . ."

MOTIONED INTO the courtroom, the defendant inmate sits on a bench facing three guards who make up the panel of judges . . . Very seldom is an inmate found innocent—in fact an inmate may be given a "reprimand" (black mark on his court record) while still being told he "did the right thing" because, as one of the judges explained, the guard giving the ticket cannot be found wrong.

The sentence which the inmate may receive can be one or a combination of the following: a reprimand, loss of privileges, isolation, demotion or cell and job transfer, loss of good time or recommendation for additional time (on length of sentence), and referral to an outside court. Usually, however the inmate will at least be sentenced to one to 10 days in a "correctional cell" (or the "hole") . . .

If sentenced to the "hole," the inmate is ushered immediately out of the courtroom into an adjoining hallway where he is made to strip naked before a number of guards and to put on a pair of coveralls which have neither buttons nor zipper. Then he is led to one of the "correctional cells" where he is issued a blanket and cloth sandals and is made to spend out his sentence in isolation.

THE "HOLE" is a 5x7 cell with an iron bar door. There are no lights in the cell and no reading material. In a cell there is a mattress on a steel frame without bedding. The inmate in allowed no cigarettes, no soap, no toothbrush, no towels, no hot water and no shave.

He is allowed a shower once every three days. Each morning he is given a cup of coffee and two slices of dry bread; each noon he is given a bowl of hot, clear broth; every third day he is given one full meal without dessert . . .

The pangs of hunger, the darkness which makes you lose track of time — and the complete rejection which the hole symbolizes — the prisoner is subjected to what one inmate has called the "screw and rack treatment of years past becoming a mental reality in 1966" . . .

Sometimes an inmate is taken directly to the "hole" for several days of "cooling off" (perhaps after a fight) without even the benefit of the appearance before the Summary Court. Then, too, the inmates are always aware that they need not necessarily violate a rule to be "written up" by a guard.

THUS WITH a look at the disciplinary system within the Ohio Penitentiary, a rather bleak picture of justice and respect for the dignity of persons emerges. Neither of these qualities is being bred in those who are incarcerated because neither exists in their regimented world.

In the Ohio Penitentiary there is no such thing as respect for the inmate's justice or regard for his dignity as a person . . . The very qualities which have helped to lead to their incarceration are being propagated and emulated . . .

Hamilton Faces Plea For 13 Additional Mills

Members of the Hamilton Township Local School Board determined this week to ask the voters of the district for an additional 13 mills of operating levy.

Persons familiar with the voting habits of area residents question whether the faith of the board in the degree of support the community is ready to offer the schools is justified.

THE PRESENT operating levy is 17.5 mills and it is recognized that a hike of almost 75 percent in levy is not going to be too easy to sell to the public.

After considerable discussion (some board members wanted to postpone the decision for another week) the motion to place the 13 mill issue on the November ballot was made by Tim Gibbs, seconded by Joe Mace and passed with the support of Board President Bill Lares.

Mrs. Frances Shipley and Don Beggrow voted against the levy, with Beggrow expressing the opinion he believed a lesser tax would be more apt to gain approval at the polls.

THE ACTION came on the heels of a conflicting recommendation made by Supt. John Savel in a letter to the board reported last week. He urged the plea be restricted to 5.9 mills to support a budget that did not include improvement of salary schedules for either certificated or noncertificated personnel.

However, Savel informed The Spectator Tuesday afternoon that he was joining Lares in issuing a press release stating the decision was made in accordance with the views of the board, superintendent, principals and members of the Hamilton Local Teachers Association and representatives of the non-teaching employes.

Although no board member seriously questions the need for the $260,000 the levy can generate on the present $20 million tax duplicate, several members publicly expressed their fear the levy will not pass — one member admitting his wife would undoubtedly vote against it.

GIBBS TOLD The Spectator he pushed the 13 mill figure, believing that if public support is forthcoming, it will back 13 mills as readily as it would five.

The release issued by Savel and Lares states that Obetz Elementary School will be in operation during the 1969-70 school year.

Questioned by the Spectator on this statement which refutes information included in Savel's letter to the board recommending 5.9 mills for the fall ballot, Lares stated that in April of 1967 the board moved to convert the Obetz building to a kindergarten facility — and possibly administrative office area next year.

HE STRESSED that no further action has been taken, and that closing of Obetz, as reported in last week's paper, was not official action.

Gibbs added that Savel's recommendation to this effect was presented as a means for the school to operate on the 5.9 mills increase he felt advisable for the district.

Particularly interesting among the personnel assignments set by board action this week was that of Ed Nordin.

UNDER CONTRACT as an administrative assistant to Savel, Nordin was given the additional responsibility of building principal of Obetz Elementary with supervision of the kindergarten on Rathmell Road thrown in.

Lares stated the action was taken in the name of economy.

Thomas Martin was employed as instructor for Printing II which was okayed

From these young ladies representing their high schools, a queen will be chosen to preside over the 22nd annual Millersport Sweet Corn Festival which kicks off next Thursday at 6 p.m.

Sneak Preview To Open Millersport Corn Festival

The 22nd annual Millersport Sweet Corn Festival will formally open at 6 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 29, with a parade of bands and queens representing 17 high schools and climaxing with a massed band concert of 1,200 musicians and an amateur show emceed by Johnny Marin of WRFD.

However, a "sneak preview" will be held at the event sponsored by the Millersport Club on Wednesday evening with a $1 ticket providing rides all evening, a band contest and free dancing for youngsters.

THROUGHOUT THE four-day festival, which has gained world-wide attention, 75,000 "dipped in butter" ears of corn will be served garden fresh from refrigerated trucks and prepared in stainless steel with soft water.

Vying with the corn for gourmet attention will be everything from steaks to fried chicken and hot dogs.

Friday's activities will include organ music by Mrs. Gertrude Martin at 6 p.m., a performance by the Licking County 4-H band at 7 p.m., followed by an exhibition of Western square dancing by the Mound City Twirlers, a variety show presented by the Hempleman Dance Studio and the crowning of Miss Sweet Corn Festival at 10:30 p.m.

ON THE LAST day of the festival, a matinee opens at noon which will include a Kiddie Parade and an official baton twirling contest at noon, an appearance of Flippo the Clown at 2, a fast draw contest with boys six to 10 competing for Western outfits, a corn eating contest for boys and girls under 12, and all rides only 15 cents until 5 p.m.

The evening program will be highlighted by a two-part feature show with Little Jimmy Dickens, Carl and Pearl Butler, Johnny Darrell and The Country Boys at 7 p.m. and again at 9:30 p.m., with the band of the high school

Ashville To Enforce Curfew Ordinance

Ashville Council dusted off its curfew ordinances this week and determined that the latest is the most practical and determined to enforce it.

Youngsters 16 and under who find the provision that they must be at home by 11 p.m. objectionable can find some comfort in the fact that officials refused to try to enforce the first curfew legislation enacted a number of years ago.

ACCORDING TO MAYOR Harold Hartley, that law clears the streets by 8:30 p.m.

Hartley stated the hyper activities of youngsters on bicycles after dark is chiefly responsible for the crackdown.

"We decided we had better do something before someone is killed — and not afterwards," Hartley said.

HE STATED that anyone on a bicycle will be required to stay off the streets after dark unless his bike is equipped not only with tail light or reflector but with a headlight as well.

Other business at the brief meeting Monday included awarding the Char-Mar of Canal Winchester with the contract for the chlorine tank for the sewer plant on its bid of $14,000.

Terms of the bid demand that the tank, to be installed at the request of the State Board of Health to avoid further water pollution, must be completed within 120 days.

FURTHER STEPS were also taken to provide the homes under construction in the Kline-Kuhlwein Addition with city water. According to Hartley, three homes will be ready for occupancy by the time the water lines are extended.

Service For Kallies Boy Friday At 3

Service for Ronnie Kallies, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanton Kallies, Hendron Road, Groveport, will be held at 3 p.m. Friday at the Groveport United Methodist Church with interment at Glen Rest.

The youth was the victim of a fatal heart attack Tuesday while working at Swonger Shell Service Station in Canal Winchester. He is reported to have suffered from a congenital heart defect.

He is survived by his parents, a brother and two sisters. An older brother Steve was killed two years ago in an area traffic accident.

Friends may call at the Myers Funeral Home in Groveport.

Madison To Answer Millage Issue Monday

Members of the Madison Local School District School Board will meet at 8 p.m. Monday, Aug. 26, in the regular monthly session moved back from the second Monday.

Supt. Phillip Williams stated he anticipates the board will determine the amount of millage it will seek at the November election for operating expenses.

ALTHOUGH the board has faced the fact that an increase of around five mills is an absolute necessity, it is believed that more than this amount must be asked to keep education in the district at a level acceptable to the board, administration — and the parents of students in the community.

At a recent meeting called by Williams of residents of the district to determine the attitude of the community on footing the bill for additional millage, the consensus was that the administration and board are better informed on the actual needs than the average layman, and the decision should rest with them.

OTHER ITEMS of interest on the agenda now being prepared include adoption of time schedules and bus routes and awarding of bids for gasoline, milk, bakery products and insurance.

Winchester Registration This Week

Registration of students new to the Canal Winchester School District will be held through tomorrow from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Those in grades one to six are asked to come to the elementary office and those in grades seven to 12 to the high school office.

Kindergarten children will be registered Sept. 3, 4 and 5 at the elementary office.

Obetz Okays Pipe

Obetz Council okayed the use of asbestos-cement water pipe in Elk's Acres, the new subdivision on Alum Creek Drive where more than 500 mobile home units will be erected.

The action, sought by developer Clifford Elkins, was taken after the approval of the Franklin Engineering, Ltd., of Columbus which was hired as consulting engineers for the village Monday night.

ACCORDING to Mrs. Helen Hayes, clerk treasurer of the village, residents of neighboring McFadden Acres have dropped their proposal to seek transfer from the Madison Local School District to the Hamilton Local which other Obetz students attend.

Apparently residents decided the action would gain them little if anything in tax savings and that the procedures are too involved for the possible gains.

Their original intention which would also bring the residents of Elk's Acres into the Hamilton District has been watched with interest by both districts. In a time when schools are sorely pressed for space, the addition of several hundred students is—at best—regarded as a mixed blessing to a district.

Other business included the enaction of an ordinance changing the regular meeting of Obetz council from the first and third Mondays of each month to 7:30 p.m. on the first and third Thursdays.

The move was made to allow Mayor Ronald Perry to attend the meetings when he changes hours on his job with one of the railroads.

The new meeting date will go into effect at the first meeting in September, Thursday, Sept. 5.

German Village
noodlehead for Presider

NIXON AND HUMPHREY BETTER WATCH OUT

While major political candidates knock themselves out wrestling with problems ranging from war to poverty, Gus Husse is posing a "whitehorse threat" following his solemn announcement in a tent set up across from Schiller Park last week that he, known as "Der Noodlehead," is actively running for president of the United States. A member of the board of directors of German Village Products, Inc., Husse has come up with a platform promising a chicken in every pot (which will be filled with German Village noodles), substitution of noodles for bean soup in the Senate dining room, and the same noodles on the White House menu, and legislation leading to domestic tranquility making it compulsory for every husband to treat his family to German Village noodles weekly. He also promises the end of income taxes, 24 additional national holidays, each called German Village Noodle Day, six months vacation for everyone after one year of employment, and national cooking schools to insure the proper preparation of noodles. At the left he is shown with Miss Susan Knasel as he arrives at the scene of his pronouncement. At right he is pictured in a fireman's net — possibly rescued from the envy of his fellow politician Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner who was on hand to encourage Der Noodlehead.

Sites In Vietnam

Lance Corporal David A. Sites, 21, son of Frank W. Sites of 1708 Dewberry Rd., is serving with the First Battalion, 27th Marine Regiment, First Marine Division in Vietnam.

As a member of the battalion he helps capture or destroy enemy forces and is also engaged in civic action programs.

New Air Training Routes

Several sections of central and southeastern Ohio will be affected by new air training routes by subsonic military aircraft based at Lockbourne AFB.

The C-130 Hercules military transports will fly one-hour training courses at 500 feet and at various points the planes will climb to 2,500 feet.

Flight patterns have been planned by navigators to avoid private airports, heavily populated areas, schools, livestock yards and poultry farms.

The planes will fly one after another, 2,000 feet apart. Patterns will be rotated periodically to reduce the number of low-level flights over any given area.

The aircrafts will fly under simulated combat conditions to provide advanced training for the crews.

IT'S A SUMMER TREAT

Carl Hoofstetter of 5000 Columbus-Lancaster Rd., Canal Winchester, has a hobby that makes for a lot of good eating for the children of St. Vincent's Orphanage and other Catholic institutions of the area. It is that of raising picture-perfect tomatoes and giving them away. Here the retired gentleman, who works harder in his garden than many persons who punch a time clock, poses with the crates ready to go to St. Vincent's.

Hamilton Schools Will Open Sept. 4

Hamilton Local Schools will begin classes Sept. 4.

Kindergarten pupils will attend the Kindergarten Center, 1105 Brentnell Rd., next to Hamilton Central Elementary School. Youngsters from Lockbourne AFB will attend afternoon classes from noon to 2:30 p.m. All other kindergarten pupils will attend the morning session from 8:30 to 11.

Kindergarten and elementary pupils living in rural areas (Obetz, Reese, Shadeville and Lockbourne) and those from the extreme southwest corner of Hamilton Meadows (Olympia Drive, Guthrie Road, Guthrie Court, Rampart Road from Premier Drive to Edgeview Drive, and Edgeview Drive from Premier Drive to Rampart Road) will be transported to school.

All other students from Hamilton Meadows will not receive transportation.

Senior high pupils will attend school from 7:45 a.m. to 2:14 p.m. Junior high students will attend classes from 9:30 a.m. to 3:51 p.m.

Elementary school students will attend classes from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

All school cafeterias will operate the first day. Student lunches will be 30 cents for those in grades one through six and 35 cents for grades seven through 12. Half-pints of white milk will be sold for three cents and chocolate milk for four cents to students with sack lunches.

Some 3,800 students are expected to be enrolled in Hamilton schools this year. Last year's enrollment was 3,710.

For more information, parents may telephone building principals.

last week after months of controversy.

MARTIN HAS 14 and one-half years in the trade and was offered the position after William Hartman of Canal Winchester declined the post. Hartman had originally intended to take the job but changed his mind following the board's delay in okaying the addition to the curriculum.

Other personnel matters included accepting the resignation of Mrs. Mary Wilson as a Central Elementary teacher and Savel's report that he believes the final opening in the school — that of industrial arts instructor, will be filled this week.

Civic Leaders Attend Party

A lawn party to meet civic leaders was given by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Mitchell, 1510 Deshler Ave., on Aug. 16.

Civic leaders who attended were Judges Charles R. Petree and Donald Breckenridge; Howard Johnson, prosecuting attorney; Joseph M. Clifford, clerk of courts; Alba Whiteside; Don Craven, county engineer; John R. Williams, county recorder; Jake Shawan, county commissioner, and his son, Scott Shawan.

Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. John Martin, Ruth McCloud, Ann Mitchell, Helena Maeder, Otis Meyers, Thelma Heffner, Anna Bussant, Laura Marion, Dana Thompson, Martha Ferguson, Edna Brantner, Mildred and Ollie Wood and Irene Nobile.

This Beats Thumbing

Transportation to the State Fair is being furnished this week to students of Hamilton Township.

Through Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization, buses are scheduled to pick up children between nine and 12 years old at the Lockbourne Lutheran Church and at Obetz Elementary School at 8:30 this morning.

On Friday morning a bus will be at Hamilton Township High School to pick up children who are at least 10.

Parents are needed to chaperone the field trips.

Each youngster must provide his own "food and fun" money, and file a permission slip signed by a parent or guardian. These slips are available at the three summer recreation centers.

Unitarians Call Pastor

First Unitarian Church, 93 W. Weisheimer Rd., will have a new minister in September.

Rev. George C. Whitney of Studio City, Calif., a member of the Mayor's Advisory Committee in Los Angeles, is expected to take up residence in Columbus within the next month.

Presently serving a Studio City Unitarian church, Rev. Whitney has been a minister, journalist and part-time chaplain in the Tucson, Ariz. Federal Prison.

Over $19,000 Raised For Center Here

The first auction and dinner sponsored by the Women's Service Board of the Center of Science and Industry this spring raised more than $19,000 for the Center of Science and Industry.

W. F. Laird, president of Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., and general chairman of the affair, made the announcement.

Laird said funds would particularly benefit thousands of school children who visit the center annually.

"The money will provide for additional science and history programs and facilities, film programs, much-needed classroom equipment and development of new exhibits," Laird said.

Watch UA?

A Watch United Appeal Committee, headed by Robert Leppert of Gahanna, has issued a statement clarifying its reasons for seeking an "impartial inquiry" into the use of United Appeal funds.

Calling itself a "pro-community group" the committee lists three of its basic beliefs:

- Community donated funds must be used only for the purpose for which they were solicited.
- There funds must not be used to support or oppose any controversial proposal (the committee lists welfare programs, birth control, open housing, Vietnam, etc.)
- Any organization which has failed in its activities or its ability to convince citizens of the sincerity and dedication; and thus are involved in civil suits, should have their community funds discontinued.

The committee's statement closes: "We truly have only the interests of the community at heart."

While recognizing the right of protest groups to exist (something the Watch United Appeal Committee has yet to do completely), we would suggest that Mr. Leppert and his group meet with United Appeal officials privately and iron out differences.

The UA is not against an investigation of its funding, if such action is possible. Boards and audit teams are constantly reviewing funding.

It appears to us that middle-class values are being used to judge areas of Columbus which are not middle-class. If poverty, welfare, war are key community concerns in certain areas, why shouldn't a community group confront them?

Granted there may have been some pressure applied to employes of certain firms to contribute to UA. But this is not United Appeal's fault.

May we suggest two avenues open to the Watch United Appeal Committee?

1. Deal privately with UA officials, agency workers and those who can bring about change. A public discussion only hurts the 69 UA agencies.

2. Visit the UA "FanFair" booths in September to see exactly what United Appeal is doing.

Meeting Crises

There is something peculiarly American about the way we meet a crisis.

Before an explosive problem there are only a few, lonely voices crying out in the wilderness.

Suddenly a crisis shouts out for action — there is a riot, a fire, a symphony of harsh words.

The study commission forms, a task force is initiated and funds begin to appear from places never thought of before.

Somehow there must be a way for America to meet a crisis before it reaches the emergency stage.

The Federal Riot Commission Report spelled out problems in the urban ghetto, but even this data was collected after the crisis. Of course, other commissions had pointed out the root causes of riots long before the federal report — but no one had paid any attention.

Locally, of course, voices have been raised for some time about conditions at the Ohio Penitentiary or at Columbus State Hospital.

America seems bent on ignoring history. Instead of acting to avoid potentially explosive situations, it rolls out the workers and the funds to meet a crisis after it has taken place.

Somehow we must learn that a potential crisis situation must be faced in its infancy—and not when it has grown up.

'Greatest Show'

By JOHN MORGAN

All the Republican National Convention needed to make it "The Greatest Show on Earth" was 50 live elephants marching to "To Dream the Impossible Dream" on the convention hall platform and Ed Sullivan as master of ceremonies.

The convention hall platform was obviously much stronger than the written GOP platform, which would crumble under the mighty paws of a timid mouse. The language of the platform was so middle-of-the road that General Franco of Spain would feel comfortable running on it.

I realize good entertainment is difficult to come by these days. But the eventual winner of the nomination was so certain that the GOP spectacle would have lost out in the ratings to reruns of Richard Nixon's television debates. Nelson Rockefeller's chances appeared as dim as H. Rap Brown's at a Ku Klux Klan meeting.

I've heard one network plans to cancel the 1972 GOP Convention because of its ratings. They plan to rerun the old series "Truth or Consequences."

* * *

I'm no television critic. All I can say is that the GOP missed some great entertainment chances. They could have rerun an old Ronald Reagan movie, showing that at least in movieland the good guy finishes first. Or Sen. George Murphy could have performed a song-and-dance routine. And where was Shirley Temple? For that matter, where was Bill Cosby?

About the most entertaining performance of the whole convention was the choice of Gov. Spiro Agnew of Maryland, who lent a comic touch to the proceedings by confessing to newsmen that his name was hardly a household word.

I suppose all this was necessary — I mean, what would happen if they gave an election and nobody ran?

But I don't think the delegates were very excited, except when they had a chance to put on those funny hats and dance to music of the hired bands. During many speeches, television cameras caught delegates talking, sleeping, reading the latest poll in The New York, Times, eating, making faces at the cameraman and being asked the same old questions by eager reporters.

* * *

It really was exciting.

Personally, I'd rather watch half-time at a football game. Once I saw basketball star Wilt Chamberlain outside the convention hall and hoped he would demonstrate his famous "dipper-dunk." But he didn't.

The best part of the convention was the television commentators. David Brinkley pulled a classic when he said about Harold Stassen's nephew nominating him that "now we've had favorite sons and a favorite uncle." I wish Brinkley or Chet Huntley had made a last-minute move to secure the nomination.

I suppose it's good for Americans to get away from the serious problems of our time — and the GOP convention certainly supplied this needed relief.

The most striking performance was the closing words of a 21-year-old delegate from Ohio when he ended his seconding speech for Harold Stassen by saying to the delegates: "Thank you for your inattention."

I think he should have repeated this to all America.

Looking Down Wall Street

By LARRY GOLDBERG
Saunders, Stiver & Co.
Investment Securities
221-4331

The over-the-counter market derives its name from early days in the colonies when securities actually were traded over the counters of the various dealers in face to face transactions. The over-the-counter, or OTC markets, in which security houses act independently as brokers and dealers, are far more important in total dollar volume of business than all the organized securities markets together. The OTC markets handle 100 percent of the transactions in U. S. governments and state and municipal bonds.

The OTC markets serve three functions: Making a market for securities already outstanding, distribution of new issues of securities and secondary distribution of large blocks of outstanding securities.

Prices of OTC stocks range from those selling for fractions of a dollar to some selling for hundreds of dollars a share — from little-known, unproven, speculative stocks to guilt-edged giants of American industry.

The OTC markets are principally a negotiated market without a central market place. OTC securities are bought and sold through a network of thousands of dealers in large and small cities linked together by telephone and telegraph. They negotiate prices on the most favorable terms they can achieve.

Leading financial pages of the nation's newspapers daily carry quotations on OTC stocks. The quotations are gathered by committee members of the National Association of Security Dealers who supervise the quotes published. The NASD is an association of security dealers organized for the purpose of self-regulation. The NASD is permitted to establish rules to prevent fraudulent and manipulative acts and practices, to prevent unreasonable profits and commissions, and to protect the public interests. Censure, fine, expulsion or other penalties will be imposed for violations.

The OCT markets provides great opportunities for investors seeking primary public distributions of corporations' securities; in securities of young, unseasoned companies or in older well known corporations. A whole spectrum of investment possibilities is available to the alert investor, through his broker, most of whom deal in both listed and unlisted securities. A great many of the securities now listed on various exchanges began their public life as OTC distributions.

REIDER

Welfare has become a nasty word in Franklin County.

The program here is mired in controversy, personality conflicts, charges and counter-charges. It has become more than a political football. It has degenerated to the butt of almost every frustration imaginable.

Welfare has been in the news so much that many people have grown weary reading and hearing about it.

Not that the public is against it. Nearly everyone recognizes the problem and the need. Much of the deplorableness can be attributed directly to lack of understanding, an absence of communication.

Somewhere along the line there has been a bad breakdown.

People have a tendency toward distrust in situations they don't understand.

The recent naming of Gene Perine as public information director for the department was a wise and timely move on the part of Dean Phillips and his advisory board.

Perine is an able man, experienced in the art of dealing with news media. He won't be able overnight to correct all existing misconceptions.

He personally can't be expected to put an end to the bickering between the department and county commissioners, the public quarrels with state and federal agencies, or flareups within the county agency itself.

But it is reasonable to expect that the public in the future will be more knowledgeable and have a better understanding of the welfare department and its troubles.

The Perine appointment is an applaudable move in that direction.

Self — Preservation

By TED BEARDSHEAR

The Spectator is, as you know, running a series on conditions at the antiquated Ohio Penitentiary. It is also planning a series on conditions at Columbus State Hospital.

Both the pen and the hospital are governed by the state's Bureau of Mental Hygiene and Correction, headed by Martin Janis.

The picture at both places is bleak. Brutality, neglect, understaffing, underpay, lack of understanding, the supression of human dignity and human rights are all part of the picture.

And from Rhodes, Janis and the heads of various institutions comes the excuse "There is no money; we are doing the best we can."

The Spectator series on the pen and the hospital will point out clearly the inhumanity of a system that treats prisoners and patients like cattle.

It is time to censure an administration that allows such conditions to exist. It is time to oust a governor who boasts proudly about jobs and the "Wonderful World of Ohio" when thousands of human beings, every day, are being abused.

What kind of administration do we have that permits cruelty to a fellow human?

After all, these people are human beings. There is no excuse for denying them the rights guaranteed by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. These documents are valid for ALL Americans. The dignity of the individual is a right on which Western Civilization is based.

Read our series. Read what is happening to thousands of Ohioans.

Then act. Act at the ballot box. Act by writing to your congressmen and representatives.

Put an end to Ohio's version of concentration camps.

Act. Organize. Investigate. Read. And DO.

After all, statistics prove that there is a good chance YOU or one of your loved ones will be affected.

Ohio's treatment of the convict and the mental patient needs a revolution . . . not a reform.

As a Christian people dedicated to the American way, put an end to a disgraceful situation.

It may be a matter of your own self-preservation.

Monkey — Making

By BOB TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

Ah, politics.

So they must have learned their lesson, right?

Wrong.

Apparently all they learned was the gentle art of monkey-making themselves. (Well, they didn't just learn it. But they picked up a few pointers).

Here in town, County Democratic Chairman George Twyford offered ample evidence.

Following Monday night's caucus of the Ohio delegation to the upcoming Democratic National Convention, Twyford (a Hubert Humphrey supporter) told a TV newsman that he reckoned those who voted to remain uncommitted only wanted to be wined and dined by the McCarthy forces once they got to Chicago.

Twyford didn't say anything about wining and dining by the Humphrey people. Heaven forbid.

He also didn't bother to consider the distinct possibility that there are delegates who simply haven't made up their minds — who want an open convention —and who realize that an awful lot of things can happen in just two weeks.

Twyford's remarks are the type that have led to a mass movement by the voters away from both political parties. The voters — God bless 'em — are realizing in ever-increasing numbers that party labels mean nothing and that politicians are beginning to mean just about as much.

State Democratic Chairman Pete O'Grady said in another interview last week that while the Democrats would have some fun at their convention, it would be far more serious than the circus at Miami Beach.

For the sake of the Democratic party, let's hope he was right.

Because the voters may not be willing to sit through another performance like that.

Letters To The Editor

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

Consider McCarthy

To The Editor:

I am sending the following letter to some of the Democratic delegates to the National Convention.

It appears to me the GOP Party suffers from a desire to kill itself in the next election, a wish they shall probably have with Richard Nixon's nomination and the naming of a vice-presidential candidate whose name I cannot remember.

Now I am particularly worried about your vote in the upcoming convention. A great number of people here in Columbus cringe at the thought of Hubert as president. They mistrust him; and they cannot believe [illegible] or will divorce himself from the present administration.

I urge you to consider fully the nomination of Sen. Eugene McCarthy. The people did not speak at the GOP convention; the backstage conclaves and the shallow party mentality did. America is tired and needs hope, not party politics.

Sen. McCarthy has proven himself in the primaries and at the polls. He is a believable candidate — and the credibility gap is just as wide for Mr. Humphrey as it is for President Johnson. I believe the Democrats must draw heavily among youth, black people and the urban centers in order to win — and I believe Sen. McCarthy can do this.

Personally, I feel the present party method of selecting candidates is unrealistic and does not reflect the will of the people. But even under the system, the nomination of Hubert Humphrey will be as disrespectful of public opinion as was the nomination of Richard Nixon.

The Making Of A Vice President

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

The creation by Mr. Nixon of something called a Spiro T. Agnew as his running mate stunned the Nation. Most stunned of all was the Democratic hierarchy.

It's no secret that the Democratic National Committee's Research and Development Division, Vice Presidential Section, has been working for months on a running mate for Mr. Humphrey. And the unveiling of the competition's Spiro T. Agnew model created a scene of controlled panic.

* * *

Scene: A vast laboratory filled with humming machines and bubbling retorts. Mr. Humphrey and such skilled Vice Presidential makers as John M. Bailey and Richard Daley are viewing a movie screen.

Bailey (snapping off the projector): Well, there you have it, gentlemen, the first film clips of Spiro T. Agnew.

Daley (gloomily): It's a first-rate job. Silver temples, square jaw and a veritable treasure trove of meaningless statements. It looks and sounds like a perfect Vice President.

Bailey: And the name! Our polls show it has the prime prerequisite — not one person in the country has a thing against a Spiro T. Agnew.

Humphrey (optimistic as always): Never say die. Surely, with all your experience, you can make an ideal Vice President.

Daley: Oh, we keep trying. In fact, our 17th pilot model is about ready for unveiling. But I'm afraid it's going to have one little flaw.

Humphrey: Lack of loyalty? Above all else, an ideal Vice President has to be loyal.

Bailey: No fear of that. We transplanted the heart of a faithful dog who, no matter how cruel its master, crawled back to lick his hand.

Daley, Then we sewed on a tuggable forelock, filled the knee joints with Humble oil and inserted the sad and adoring eyes of a champion basset hound.

Humphrey: Sad? But an ideal Vice President should be cheery.

Bailey: No worry there. We've been breeding Cheshire cats for years and the smile is guaranteed fade-proof through adversity, disaster or nuclear holocaust.

Humphrey: What about the brain? It must be tremendously difficult to . . .

Daley: Oh, that's the easy part. We always install the finest echo chamber on the market. And this model's programmed to talk for three hours and 47 minutes without saying a thing.

Humphrey (happily rubbing his hands): I fail to see the cause of your concern, gentlemen. You've obviously made an ideal Vice President.

Bailey (uneasily): Well, let's unveil it. But if it's like the first 16 pilot models . . . (He pulls a cord).

Humphrey (ecstatically): Why, that's the most beautiful thing I ever saw!

Bailey (shaking his head): It's no good, Hubert. Every time we make an ideal Vice President, it looks exactly like you.

THE GADABOUT

By PRISCILLA LENOX 444-1051

With most of the vacationers safely back home again, it is nice to know where our friends and neighbors have spent their respites from the workaday "toil and moil," so in capsule form, here's the ones we know . . . Lana and Lorraine Itskin toured 6000 miles in a southwest and western direction with Mexico, Estes Park, HemisFair and Mt. Rushmore just a few of the spots visited.

Also viewing the west, en route to California, were the Donovans, Phyllis, Dick Terri and Tim.

Florida was the goal of the Turner family, 160 Colton Rd., the Davidsons, 223 Amsterdam Rd., the Conleys 21 Fornof Rd. and the Steffers, 3162 Lee Ellen Place.

Not quite so far south were [illegible] vacation spots chosen by [illegible] Craggs, who elected to try fishing and swimming [illegible]able in Tennessee this year, rather than going to Lake Erie; and the Spiellmans, 1644 Moler Rd., who enjoyed the activities of Fontana Village, N. C.

Niagara Falls

The ever-present charm of Niagara Falls and Canada were the lures for the Fairchild family, Norma and Chuck Myers and the Bill Zwilling family. Rev. and Mrs. Donald Sickbert, with their family, sojourned in Michigan. A "Wolverine" vacation was also had by the Cowans, 1409 S. Fifth St.

Traveling east this year were Pam and Jay Heilman who cavorted at Ocean City, Md. The Unroes, 535 E. Frebis Ave., visited Gettysburg, traveled Skyline Drive and toured caverns for their vacation. The John Gramelts and the Frank Gusas visited Virginia and Tennessee as a family group. The John Tabors spent their vacation in Pennsylvania, visiting relatives and touring spots of interest.

The family of Carl McPeek managed a trip to Chicago, despite the increased activity caused by moving from one house to another. Mack, Phyllis and Conchietta Hayes spent their vacation in the Smoky Mountains.

Buckeye Lake

The Paul Ranft family took a short trip to Buckeye Lake for summer recreation. Nearby southern states were the goal of the Tolliver family.

The Lenox family entertained relatives from Pennsylvania and California, for a reverse flow of traffic. The Keystoner was Dorothy Kite, and Aletha Bennett was the Californian.

Birthdays

'Tis the season when mothers are dismayed at the rate of growth shown by their youngsters, so these birthdayites are apt to receive gifts of "clothes for school" this week: Jeff Ashmore, Joey Brown, Gina Cregger, Jo Anna Pratt Michael Booker, Timothy Thompson, Tina Backus, Brenda Fout, Doris Nelson, Alice Wishon, Keith McClain, Tawnya Clark, Cathy Ellis, Joyce Dowden Gay Gray, Gregory Cunningham, Judy Ann Keller, Charlotte Crites, Kathy Brumfield, Darlene Ward, Carlene Ward, Clara Bogen Jennifer Gramelt and Joyce Dorn.

Continuing the teen-time habit are Denise Skeen, Jim Dayton, Tommy Gall, Gary Rogers, Linda Fullen, Alice Dorn, Kathy Houston and Carol Plank.

Anniversaries

Anniversary celebrants include Mr. and Mrs. Howard Henry. Diane and Lowell Moore, Ruth and Duane Pelkey and Marie and Harry Esselstein.

Weddings

The segment of the population that will soon have wedding songs in their ears and rice in their hair includes these young folks . . . Patricia Dunne, 786 S. Ohio Ave. and Airman 1/c Donald Schneider, St. Louis, Mo., who will wed Saturday, Aug. 24, in St. John the Evangelist Church. Margareta Frisch, 561 Wilson Ave. will become the bride of Philip Lee, 551 E. Deshler Ave. Saturday, Aug. 24, in Old First Presbyterian Church. A teacher in Southwood School, Ann Marie Chiandussi, will become Mrs. James Wollenberg, in Youngstown Ohio, Saturday, Aug. 24. Saturday, Aug. 24, has also been selected as a wedding date by Barbara Thompson, 1933 Berkeley Rd., and Pvt. 2/c Richard Young, 312 Rumsey Rd. Gary Reynolds, 1541 E. Moler Rd. will wed a Lancaster girl, Jeanne Taylor, Sunday, Aug. 25, at the Church of Christ in Christian Union, in Lancaster. Emmanuel Lutheran Church will be the setting for the wedding, Sunday Aug. 25, of Marjorie Clemons and Thomas Kraus.

Recently-weds include Yvonne (Heemskerk) and John Niklas; Roberta McCalla) and Robert Fannin; Jean (Berger) and James Luse; Dianne (Wells) and Donald Lowery.

Hodge-Podge

Hodge-podge hop-scotch . . . The Junior Fellowship of the Washington Avenue Methodist Methodist Church will tour the Pepsi-Cola plant, Thursday, Aug. 22, at 10:30 a.m. The church's VBS picnic and program will take place Friday, Aug. 23. The Youth Fellowship has planned a Historical Tour for Saturday, Aug. 24.

A reunion of former members of the BYKOTA C. E. members, of the Southwood Church of Christ has been planned for Saturday, Aug. 24 at the Buckeye Lake cottage of Mr. and Mrs. John Tope, starting at 1 p.m.

Charlene Strauss will present a music recital at Hughes Hall, OSU, Sunday, Aug. 25, at 8 p.m.

A community welcome is extended to Rev. William Mills and his family, who will soon be in Columbus ministering to the congregation of the Southwood Church of Christ.

Mrs. Raymond W. Bethel, 3177 Dale Ave., is entertaining the executive board of the Women's Service Board of Grant Hospital at her home Thursday, Aug. 22 at 10 a.m.

TOASTMISTRESSES

The Columbus Toastmistress Club will meet at the Jai Lai Restaurant at 6:30 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 28, with the newly installed president, Mrs. Jane Lindquist, presiding.

Mildred Tucker will act as toastmistress for the evening, presenting the program on the theme of "Physical Fitness," and introducing the following speakers: Mrs. Virginia Cherry, Mary Jo Cusack and Mrs. Ruth Dillon.

Mrs. Jane Chester, the general evaluator, will be assisted by three critics, Marilyn Amhyrst, Mrs. Frank Shepherd and Mrs. Bea Thurell.

HEART ASSOCIATION

The Executive Board of the Women's Board of the Franklin County Heart Association will meet Tusday, Aug. 27, at 10 a.m. at the home of the president, Mrs.. Raymond W. Bethel, 3177 Dale Ave. Plans for the coming year will be discussed.

Fine Funds Hit Record

Fines and bond forfeitures arising out of highway patrol cases resulted in record collections of $5,921,366 during 1967, State Auditor Roger Cloud reported.

Of total receipts, the state received 45 percent or $2,664,615. Local governments received 55 percent or $3,256,751.

The courts in Franklin County turned over to the state during 1967 fines totaling $40,526 as the state's 45 percent share.

ARE EASTER SEAL CAMPERS

Mary Martin, 11 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Martin of Redwood Rd., Columbus, visits with two of her fellow campers at the "meeting stump" at Camp Pittenger near Tiffin. Richard Jackson of Niles and Beverly Parker of Rushsylvania chat with Mary during an afternoon break during the special children's sessions sponsored by the Ohio Society for Crippled Children and Adults (the Easter Seal Society).

UCC Head Of Research Is Named

The appointment of G. Robert Whitcomb as research director of United Community Council has been annouced by Walter R. Tarpley, UCC executive director.

Whitcomb holds a bachelor's degree from Springfield College, Springfield, Mass. and a master's degree in social work research from Ohio State University. He is working on his doctorate in sociology at OSU in the area of community analysis.

As a part of his graduate school field work, Whitcomb worked with UCC in 1965 and again this year. He previously was a research associate with the Kentucky Child Welfare Research Foundation.

In 1967, Whitcomb was research coordinator for a 21-[illegible] survey on family plan[illegible] for Planned Parenthood [illegible]ation.

[illegible]comb, his wife and th[illegible] two daughters live at 767 Whitethorne Ave.

Law Officers Get Training In Juvenile Cases

University certificates were presented to 80 law enforcement officers who completed 64 hours of study in "Law Enforcement With Juveniles" at the University of Toledo.

Joseph L. White, acting deputy director of community services, Ohio Youth Commission, made the presentations.

Students at the seminar were law enforcement officers from all over Ohio who work with juveniles. The purpose of the seminar was to help the officers improve their skills and provide them with a better understanding of juvenile problems. Speaker for the occasion was Keith McNamara (R-Columbus).

Fall Antique Show To Feature 'Cossack'

The first annual Columbus Fall Antique Show in Veterans Memorial Building, Sept. 6 through 8, will feature a rare and valuable oil-on-wood painting, "Cossack," by Adolph Schreyer.

Schreyer, born in Germany on May 9, 1828, studied art in both Germany and Paris, developing his own distinctive style during his Paris years. But he found his favorite subjects in his travels to Hungary, Russia, Turkey, Egypt and Syria, becoming famous for colorful portrayals of battles, horses and peasant life.

The "Cossack" painting which is to be on sale at the new Columbus Fall Antique Show-Sale is a signed work, exquisitely framed in gold Florentine, set in a velvet lined shadow box. The painting will be brought to the Columbus Fall Antique Show by Edward Sweeting of Carriage House Antiques, Rochester, New York.

"Cossack" was part of the private art collection of Governor F. W. Higgins, Governor of New York State, 1904-1909.

Besides this famous work of art, the Columbus Fall Antique Show will offer an unparalleled variety of furniture, china, art glass, silver, pewter, brass, lamps, ancient firearms, clocks, coins, toys, primitives, dolls, tools and a large display of Oriental rugs. An old fashioned candy store will have creamy fudge and crisp peanut brittle, freshly made from old, old recipes.

The Columbus Fall Antique Show, in Veterans Memorial Building Sept. 6 through 8, will highlight the week of Sept. 1, Labor Day week.

Afternoon and evening show hours of 1 to 10 p.m. combine with easily available parking, adjacent to the show site, to serve the convenience of show patrons.

Childbirth Education Meet Set

The Columbus Association for Childbirth Education will hold its next program Tuesday, Aug. 27, at 8 p.m. at the Columbus Health and Safety Center, 181 S. Washington Blvd.

The program will include a film and panel discussion of parents who have attended classes and how they benefited by knowing what to expect during labor and delivery.

The widely accepted LaMaze Technique is also now available in Columbus and instructors, Mrs. Ruth Nelkirk, R.N. and Mrs. Elaine Schroeder, R. N., can teach these methods.

All expectant couples of the community are invited to attend.

County Welfare Decentralization Begins Aug. 26

First step in the Franklin County Welfare Department's move to decentralize its operations will be taken Monday, Aug. 26, when some 55 staff members will be assigned new working quarters.

The employes, all in adult service units, will be moving into newly-remodeled facilities at 857 W. Broad St. Previously they had been housed in the welfare department's headquarters building at 46 E. Fulton St.

In a joint announcement with the Franklin County commissioners, Welfare Director Tom Brittenham said the moving step will take two days and will be handled by the department's maintenance and building crews.

With the general aims of making department operations more efficient and improving services, the reassignments also will involve other moves within the East Fulton Street facility. The latter will permit the intake department, previously extremely crowded for space, to take over most of the first floor.

Two Teams Tied For First Place In A. K. Race

With one game left to play in the regular A.K. Softball season, Friedman-Cummins-Stern and Feitlinger Realty are sharing top spot honors.

Feitlinger defeated Hot Bagels, 18-11. Dr. James Tennenbaum, with five hits, Harvey Hoth with four hits and Larry Cunningham with three hits, led the attack for the winners while Hal Block with three hits and Dr. Jerry Burman with four were the high hitting men for the losers.

Friedman - Cummins-Stern outscored Acme Brake 16-6 to tie up for first place in the second round. Key Oldsmobile upset Martin's Market one of the big contenders, 13-4.

Ray Hock, with two hits and a home run, Joe Sanders with four hits, Irv Pass and Stan Vogel with three hits each, led Key Oldsmobile to victory. In the end of the regular season an elimination tournament will take place.

Leibensperger Named Lion Zone Chairman

William P. Leibensperger, 4217 Edgehill Dr., Upper Arlington, has been named chairman of Zone 4, District 13-F of Lions International, according to Lion District Governor Keith Pontius.

Leibensperger has been a member of the Hilltop Lions since 1952, and is immediate past president. He has served on that club's board for the past nine years.

Agency manager of Bankers Life Company, 720 E. Broad St., he is the immediate past president of the Life Managers and General Agents Association of Columbus. He is also active in a number of other insurance organizations.

He attended Southwestern College and Franklin University, and was a pilot with the Eighth Air Force during W.W. II.

He and his wife, Ruth, have four children, two in college and two in junior high school.

Lion District 13-F is the largest in the state. It is made up to 36 clubs in five counties—Franklin, Madison, Delaware, Morrow and Marion—consisting of 2400 active members.

YWCA Offering Aides Workshop

A "no charge" Library Aides Workshop will be offered at the Central YWCA, 65 S. Fourth St., Sept. 16 and 17, 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

In cooperation with the Division of Continuing Education for Women at Ohio State University, the Young Women's Christian Association is offering a concentrated training course for women interested in serving as library volunteers in elementary schools in the inner city.

The two-day training will cover all phases of simple library procedure. Participants commit themselves to volunteer their service one half day a week for the school year, Sept. 23 through the first week of June 1969.

The registration is limited in number. Call the YWCA, 224-9121, for further information and registration.

Pilot Club Plans Annual Fashion Show

Pilot Club International will hold its second annual "What's New in Fashion" at a 12:30 p.m. luncheon in the Athletic Club Sept. 21.

Miss Joan Wernz will serve as the narrator. Proceeds will be used to finance the club's projects at Rosemont School for Girls, Hannah Neil Mission Home for Children, Ward 20 of the Columbus State Hospital, Courage Inc., and Gladden Community House.

Proceeds will also be used toward a scholarship for a young woman in business school or nurses training.

Tickets may be obtained by contacting Miss Blanche Waggener, 1676 Westwood Ave., 486-3349.

Fair Traffic Routes Given By Police

"The coming Ohio State Fair will create a large volume of traffic again in the area of the exposition grounds," Chief Robert H. Baus has predicted.

Baus reminded Columbus motorists that effective 6 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 22, and extending through Monday, Sept. 2, no through traffic will be permitted on 17th Ave. between Clara Ave. and Korbel Ave., as this portion of 17th Ave. will be closed from 6 a.m. to 1 a.m. each day for the fair.

Chief Baus stated no through traffic will be permitted during this period on Velma Ave. between Maynard Ave. and 17th Ave.

The Cleveland Avenue bridge at First Ave. will be closed for the duration of the fair.

All motorists not going to the fair are requested to use Fifth Ave. or Hudson St. during this period to avoid traffic delay.

Saxbe Office

The official opening of Franklin County campaign headquarters for Attorney General William B. Saxbe, Republican candidate for the United States Senate, took place Monday, Aug. 19, at 168 N. High St.

Happiness is a litter of kittens, and even feline mothers are glad to let visitors examine their babies. This mother cat, who is a boarder in the Cat Welfare Association, was quite insistent that good, stable homes be found for her offspring. The association has many other kittens for adoption.

Cancer Society Plans Treasure Hunt

Mrs. Charles E. Stover, 397 Elwood Dr., Hilliard, who has been Norwich Township Branch Chairman for the American Cancer Society the past four years is heading up the third annual Treasure Hunt.

Only event of its kind in the county, the Treasure Hunt provides an evening of hunting clues which are devious and devilish, and in many cases leave the "hunters" disheveled.

"We warn the people who go on the hunt to wear their old clothes, and to be certain each has a flashlight in good working order," Mrs. Stover explains.

"We do not permit children under college age to participate simply because this is geared for adults: we want three couples in a car, and we do not permit any cars of all-men, or of all-women. It is strictly a 'fun-evening.'

"And the prizes handed out to the three cars which finish on top are not terribly valuable. It's more the thrills of out-witting each other that counts. Last year the 18 prizes were worth $72. We will continue in the same vein this year," said the mother of two.

"One of the tricks a veteran 'treasure hunter' learns is that when he finds a clue, he doesn't yell out 'Here it is.' The smart ones quietly pick it up, roundup the others in the car and drive away. Each clue leads to a location on a map we furnish—sometimes the clue is merely a number, sometimes it is a 'place name.'

"What the game amounts to is trying to outwit the committee and doing it faster than the other cars," Mrs. Stover added.

On the Treasure Hunt Committee, of which she is chairman for the third year, are Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Howell, 434 Weymouth Lane; Sanders A. Frye of 145 W. Home St. in Westerville; Mrs. Kenneth Bidwell, 543 S. Terrace Ave.; Mrs. Duane Pearsall, 2187 Suncrest Dr. and Mr. and Mrs. William A. Floyd 225 Deerfield Rd.

Ames To Appear At Penney's

Popular television and recording star Ed Ames will be at Penney's Eastland Thursday from 1-2 p.m. for an autograph party.

Ames will appear in the record department of the store to autograph copies of his latest album and chat with fans.

Formerly lead singer for the Ames Brothers, Ed hit it big on TV as Daniel Boone's Oxford-educated Indian sidekick, Mingo, and has become one of America's most popular male vocalists.

Traffic Court To Get Award

The American Bar Association, due to the annual inventory of traffic court activities, will present an award to The Franklin County Municipal Court, according to Judge Dean Strausbaugh, presiding judge.

The award will be presented for the improvement in procedures and practices in the handling of traffic court cases during the year 1967.

HEART ASSOCIATION

The Executive Board of the Women's Board of the Franklin County Heart Association will meet Tusday, Aug. 27, at 10 a.m. at the home of the president, Mrs.. Raymond W. Bethel, 3177 Dale Ave. Plans for the coming year will be discussed.

Kids' Day Commander Applications Now Ready

Kiwanis Kids' Day is coming to Lockbourne Air Force Base flightline Sunday, Sept. 29, and eight "Kid Commanders" are needed to take charge of the base for that afternoon.

Interested? If you are between seven-13 years of age just write to the Kid Commander Contest, Office of Information, Lockbourne AFB, O. 43217, and explain why you want to be a commander.

The contest will end midnight Sept. 6. Winners will be selected by the Kiwanis Club planning committee for the Air Force/Kiwanis Club Kids' Day open house.

To enter be sure to include your full name, address, age, telephone number and your parent's name.

The U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds will perform a mid-afternoon air show. Besides the show, many military aircraft will be on display for a close look.

Contest winners will be introduced to their real life counterparts and will also get to meet the Thunderbird team personally. The Thunderbirds have performed before more than 70 million people in over 40 countries of the Free World. They last appeared at Lockbourne in August 1966.

RUMMAGE SALE

There will be a rummage sale, sponsored by The Greek Ladies Philoptochos Society, in the educational center of The Greek Orthodox Church, 536 N. Park St., Friday, Sept. 6, from 9:30 a.m. to 7 p.m., and Saturday, Sept. 7, from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. There will be new merchandise donated by a downtown department store.

HOMES ARE NEEDED

'Cat Crisis' Is Brewing

By NANCY STEPHENS and JOHN MORGAN

You may have heard about the population explosion. But have you ever considered the "cat crisis?"

Some Franklin County feline lovers are upset over treatment of stray cats. And, although the Cat Welfare Association is doing all it can to meet the crisis, it appears the final solution is up to the goodness of county pet lovers.

The Cat Welfare Association, located at 736 Wetmore Ave., is loaded to the brim with a variety of fuzzy creatures. A 1967 storage-room addition to the building is presently being used to house cats, as is another room designed for exercising cats.

CAPACITY AT the facility is 25 cats. There are now 38 cats waiting for adoption and, including feline boarders, a total population of more than 50 cats is housed in the building.

A visit to the Cat Welfare Association is similar to going into another world reserved for children and those who have never lost their love of animals.

A cat-clock hangs on the wall, as a steady drone of "meows" swells in the background. Catnip, cat posts and cat pictures sit on a front table (the articles are sold to help support work) as cat calls in the background urge prospective owners into the inner chamber.

Just as most persons can tell when there's understanding in a home, it is possible to sense the concern for cats in this agency.

All cats receive excellent care, including shots, enough square meals a day and a clean cage. Some cats have a recreation period, including one orange stray which spends his time bounding a pingpong ball across his cage.

The association has no set charge for services, but it does ask the prospective owner to give a donation.

One reason the association receives so many calls for help is the excellent care cats receive there. Another reason is the fear of cat lovers that sending their pets to the Animal Shelter is similar to sending a friend to the gallows.

Although the Animal Shelter tries to find good homes for wayward cats, a spokesman at the shelter said sadly that he "couldn't be responsible for what would happen to cats."

President of the cat association is Ralph Barnett, 3893 Riverview Dr. The organization was incorporated in 1952.

Anyone wishing to find out about adopting a cat should contact the association at 268-6096.

Following the state standards for education of the emotionally handicapped, the program will involve children with an IQ of 80 or above who can profit from the instruction and class size shall be from six to nine students per room.

STAFF requirements include a building principal and assistant principal, 11 teachers (each fully certified with the personal characteristics fitting him for work with the disturbed child) and two "crisis aides" to help in the physical care of children during time of emotional stress. It is suggested that these aides could be neighborhood nonprofessional persons of "strong character and understanding."

Part-time personnel will include a school psychologist, school nurse, and a visiting teacher assigned to Leonard two days a week.

In addition a school psychiatrist and clinical psychologist will serve on a consulting basis.

A HOT LUNCH will be served to the children and transportation provided by taxi and school-board owned vans.

"Hey, buddy, get your paw out of my cage," one small kitten seems to be saying to a fellow roomer at the Cat Welfare Association facilities. The paw was extended in friendship, however. Both these cats await adoption at the association.

Ohio State Fair Titled 'Excitement '68'

The Ohio State Fair, which will be held from 6 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 22, through Labor Day, Sept. 2, has been entitled "Excitement '68."

Fair officials expect 1.8 million people this year.

If your pleasure is livestock, you can see 350 goats, 3500 rabbits, cavies and chickens, 310 draft horses, 300 4-H saddle horses, 3,000 sheep, 3,500 hogs, 2,900 cows, 2,000 beef cattle, 2,200 show horses and 300 harness and race horses.

That's 18,360 animals competing for premiums and honors set at $250,551.

In other departments, there's 1,400 fine art exhibits, 5,000 Junior Fair exhibits, numerous household arts, agriculture, floriculture and horticulture exhibits.

Also included are the 300-piece Boys' Band, 300-voice Youth Choir, 200-piece Symphony Orchestra and 100 high school marching bands.

Farm, industrial, and commercial exhibits include a five acre farm tractor exhibit, the Sinclair Dinosaurs, Cinesphere Chevy Show, armed forces missiles, short-line equipment, antique and hot-rod show cars, state department exhibits, Ohio Processed Foods Exhibit and others.

The free entertainment program headlines Bob Hope, Johnny Carson, Ed Ames, John Davidson, The Smothers Brothers and Ohio television stars.

There will be a circus with performances twice a day and in the five acre natural resources area, fly casting, retrieving and other demonstrations will run continuously.

The midway has been moved to the east side of the race track near the Buckeye Building. All amusement rides have been reduced up to one-half price until noon during the eight weekdays and all children under 12 will be admitted free of admission charge on weekdays until noon.

There will also be a 7-UP National Hot-Air Balloon Race.

Conveniently located in Columbus, the 360-acre state fairgrounds is located adjacent to I-71, Ohio's north-south artery.

Admission is $1.50 for adults 12 and above and 25 cents for those under 12.

Ohio Garden Clubs Convene Here

The 38th annual Convention of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs met in Columbus recently, with more than 600 delegates representing the association clubs throughout the state.

In official sessions at the Sheraton Columbus, delegates held a series of study clinics on various subjects of the association. Mrs. Paul Wendall Reed discussed the Flower Show Awards; Mrs. Dorsey Bumgardner spoke on State and County Fairs; and Mrs. Gordon Elam introduced guest speakers Dr. R. C. Allen, Dennis Hoffman and Mrs. Clifton Reams to discuss Horticulture.

The Roadside, Civic-Sears Beautification Program was introduced by Mrs. C. E. Weaver with special speakers Glenn Spoerl, Wilbur J. Garmhausen and Prof. Victor H. Ries.

Nature and Conservation topics were covered by Mrs. Jean T. Craig with Robert R. Paton as guest speaker. Other discussion groups included, Garden Therapy by Mrs. Hobert Daniels; Junior Garden Clubs by Mrs. Robert Workman; Flower Show Schools and Judges, Gilbert Cullen; Radio and Television, Mrs. Carl Schmid; Kodachrome Slides, Mrs. Harry C. Nehring; Yearbooks, Mrs. Alfred E. Hanenkrat; Publicity Books, Mrs. Joseph Kraewinski and New Releases, Mrs. Jack E. Anewalt.

The delegation toured Columbus and Grandview on the Garden Bus Tour and ate a picnic lunch prior to attending the Flower Show that afternoon. The homes visited on the tour included the Victor Ries home, featuring rare rock plants, wild flowers and unusual shrubs and trees; the James Wilson home, a rustic, fountain-type pool featuring ledges, fish and lilies, using 400 cobblestones as a border; the Dr. Charles McKittrick home, 1966 winners of the Junior League PLAN award, with a natural wooded area incorporating an oriental garden with pebble stones and a vegetable garden.

Special arrangements were made by Mrs. Dale Chapman, convention co-chairman, for display booths by the American Rose Society, exotic plants from McComb Greenhouse in Columbus, the Orchid Society and a display of Lilies by Jan de Graaf.

The Flower Show entitled "Under Ohio Skies," was dedicated to the many projects of the association for the past year. The show theme was "Achieves" Honoring the efforts of the OAGC.

Speaker at the banquet was Dr. Francis DeVos, director of the Chicago Horticulture Society. The banquet was the scene of the Sears Award, the Victor H. Ries Outstanding Garden Club Award, Master Gardener Award, Daisy Stickel Conservation Award and Regional Outstanding Gardener Award presentations.

Dr. DeVos chose the topic "New Ornamentals Through Plant Exploration" embracing the account of how, through plant exploration, new plants have been introduced into American Horticulture. Slides were included picturing his plant exploration trips to Nepal, Sikkim and West Bengal, India.

Mrs. Dwight DeVoss of Harrisburg was the convention chairman with Mrs. Dale Chapman of Carroll as co-chairman. Mrs. Berkley Roach of London is secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Richard Kochensparger of Grove City directed the convention publicity.

Mrs. James Bates of Reynoldsburg was chairman of the luncheon committee with the Reynoldsburg Council working in cooperation with the convention planning committee, with the Prairie Gardeners of Columbus planning and presenting the official reception under the chairmanship of Mrs. Robert Lohr.

Mrs. Kenneth Wright of Grove City served as convention ways and means committee chairman, with Mrs. Albert Vitek of Columbus and the Terra Garden Club serving the delegate registration.

Mrs. Albert C. Pool of Marion, president of the OAGC, presided at the convention in her official capacity prior to election of officers in the final business session.

Contractors Pick 1969 Officers

The Heating and Air Conditioning Association of Greater Columbus (HACAC) has elected its officers for the 1968-69 fiscal year.

James Gouhin (Columbus Air Conditioning Corp.) has been appointed president; Wayne Gilliland (Crawford Heating and Cooling) has been named vice president; and Bill Favret (The Favret Co.) has been elected secretary-treasurer.

Casey Luczak remains as Executive Secretary.

Ohio Youngsters Get 'Fair Fare' August 26

Over 1,500 mini-guests will get the royal treatment as they visit the Ohio State Fair, Aug. 26, for the third annual Orphans' Day sponsored by Zion Lodge of B'nai B'rith.

Gov. James A. Rhodes has proclaimed "Orphans' Day at the Ohio State Fair" and fair officials are giving full cooperation to make the day one to remember.

The VIP's, residents of Ohio Orphan homes, will begin arriving that Monday morning by bus from all over the state and will be escorted by members of Ohio B'nai B'rith Lodges.

Members of the three Columbus B'nai B'rith Women's chapters and teenagers from the B'nai B'rith Youth Organization will escort the youngsters when they arrive at the fairgrounds.

Free rides, tours of the exhibit buildings and free entertainment in the grandstand are just a few items on the day's agenda. Lunch on the fairgrounds will also be provided.

Orphans' Day was inaugurated in 1966 and has grown each succeeding year. Chairman for this year's program for the Zion Lodge is Joel Mirman.

WILL LIGHT UP PLAYGROUNDS

DODGERS WIN HTLL TITLE

MAN-MADE FUR–FEMININITY PLUS

Essential to the well-dressed woman's wardrobe this fall is the luxurious look of man-made fur. The collection pictured here is from the famous Russel Taylor line, available at the Union. Russel Taylor was once a furrier and now designs and manufacturers man-made furs. The coat at the left is the "Borgana" (look of beaver). This beauty is available in different silhouettes and exciting new colors such as green, navy and plum, PLUS brown, black, beige, oyster and nutria. The coat in the middle is the "Bagdad" (the look of the lamb), available in short, three-quarter length or full-length coats. Large stand-out figure is wearing a perennial favorite — the jungle print. Popular is the cheetah, tiger, and jaguar. For the young swingers (right), the college fun crowd who want the unusual, Russel Taylor has designed fun shaggy looks, like the fur-like polar bear and panda bear. Choose your own look for fall.

Modern Mother's Dilemma: Home, Career, Or Both

By ROSE MARIE McMILLS

Every mother in America today faces a dilemma. To work or not to work—that is the question.

Since World War II, when women out of the necessity of a national emergency ventured out into the ranks of the employed, liked it and elected to stay there, THE question has faced every new bride.

Central to the crisis that every woman confronts at least once in her life is the difficulty of being successful at two jobs — work inside the home and out in the business world.

Some women can manage [illegible] well. Most cannot. One [illegible] up being a part-time [illegible] and the home often loses out.

A gab session among graduating college coeds, many of them already engaged, often centers around this dilemma and reflects the deep-seated fears that soon become stark realities when they leave school.

A typical discussion includes comments such as:

"What will happen to my music when I have kids and have to stay home? I don't want anyone else raising my kids, but still — I'll stagnate!"

"Yes, but isn't a woman's true calling in the home? If you blow raising your kids, you've really lost out."

"I'm a person on my own though. Don't I have a right to have an identity aside from being Tom's wife and Johnny's mother? I could have a career and meet people and really grow inside. There must be more to life than waxing floors and wiping noses."

"But being a mother and making a home for the man we love — isn't that where a woman's fulfillment lies? Isn't that what we're meant for?"

These fears that coeds discuss openly over cokes in the student center, after they are married soon become something they worry about in private as they fold clothes in the laundromat and watch working girls wait for the bus or punch keys in an office and think about unmade beds and Billy down with the measles at home.

The tension is always there as the modern woman is pulled two ways — afraid she will either neglect her role as a mother and wife or slight her own sense of identity and forsake her dream of a career.

The biggest danger here is that her ultimate decision will not be her own — what is best for her — but simply her weary response to pressure from one source or the other. For unlike her grandmother, today's young woman is subjected to pressures from all sides.

In grandmother's day, being the lady of the house was an honorable and gratifying profession. "Home Sweet Home" was the favorite slogan and mom was fondly remembered as first of all, always there, puttering around humming in a big warm kitchen that smelled of just-baked bread.

Whether grandmother was really happy with her lot, we'll never know. Today's feminists say she just didn't know there was anything else.

This century's most militant feminist, the last of the bloomer girls and proud of it, is Betty Friedan, author of the controversial best-seller "The Feminine Mystique."

Thoreau has said that most men live lives of quiet desperation. According to evidence collected by Mrs. Friedan in this impressive and well-documented work, this is true of today's housewife.

Convinced either by sentimental hogwash or advertisers or whatever that her place is definitely in the home and nowhere else, the modern woman suffers from "housewife's syndrome."

In her book, Friedan emphasizes woman's talents and abilities and urges housewives to seek an identity outside the home.

The trouble with free-swinging feminists such as Friedan is that they have made any housewife content in her role ashamed that she isn't out improving society or being creative or making a niche for herself in the business world.

One of the few articles that has come out in defense of the housewife's role is a spunky attack on the feminist philosophy by Ann Landers which appeared in "Family Circle" in February entitled "Are You Ashamed To Be A Homemaker?"

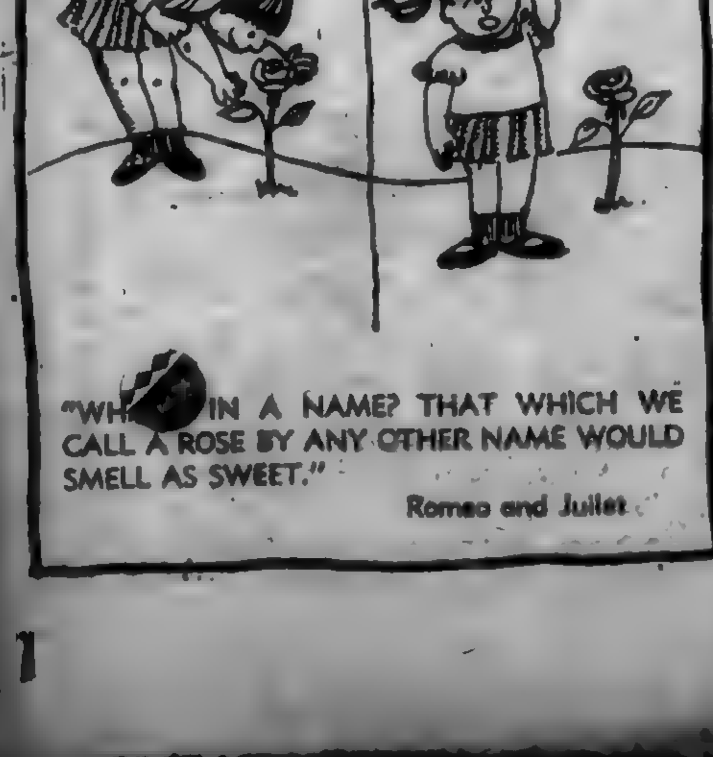
Reminding her readers that "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world," Miss Landers takes a strong stand on the other side of the fence.

She calls the nesting instinct ". . . a lovely thing— It's what woman is all about" and commenting that she is "sick and tired" of hearing about the educated woman's obligation to get out and "do something" in society she adds:

"In my opinion life's classic cop-outs are the women who have abdicated their responsibilities to their husbands and children, and to society, because they lack the maturity to stay home and do the job they bargained for."

The important thing for the schizophrenic housewife is to make her own decision. No one can tell her what is best for her.

Important, too, is the realization that you can't have your cake and eat it too. Either choice is going to have its drawbacks.



"WH[illegible] IN A NAME? THAT WHICH WE CALL A ROSE BY ANY OTHER NAME WOULD SMELL AS SWEET."

Romeo and Juliet

A MAN'S VIEW

Working Mothers

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Some of my best friends are working mothers.

In fact, my wife used to be a working mother — and she's one of my very best friends.

I really don't see why a creative woman cannot compete in the labor market and still run an effective household.

After all, housewives have more coffee breaks and less pressure on their working hours than a beachcomber in the Virgin Islands.

Now before the housewives of America stage a protest march on my front lawn, let me make myself clear.

A housewife's work is never done. I appreciate this fact. But a typical housewife is her own boss. She can take a break when she wants to without some supervisor complaining. She can sit down and watch television or read a new magazine.

A creative housewife, moreover, can use her leisure time to some cultural advantage.

She can read, listen to good music or engage in controversial topics with neighbors. Leisure, it has been said, is the handmaiden of progress and art.

I would like to ask, however, what do housewives do with their leisure time? Do they really read good books —or do they glance at the jokes in "Reader's Digest"?

Do they listen to good music — or do they turn on a popular radio station?

Do they have in-depth discussions with neighbors — or do they talk about the weather, their children or a new dress?

Wasted time is man's (and woman's) greatest sin.

Why shouldn't a woman use her time more effectively by becoming a contributing member of the labor force as well as a housewife?

Besides, no husband will ever refuse the extra income from his wife's job.

TIDBITS

New mothers who find their hair "falling out in droves" need not be too concerned. About three months after childbirth there is a tendency toward hair loss. New hair will soon replace it.

Sugar Cones Come Of Age

The good old-fashioned flavor of ice cream sugar cones is now available in a modern convenient cup shape.

New "Sugar Cups" from Keebler Company now make it possible for ice cream fans to enjoy sugar cone flavor with the added convenience of being able to set cups down while serving or eating.

Miniature Meat Loaves

HAM LOAF, A FAVORITE with most families, offers a wonderful way to use up the last of that whole or half ham. For a change, make Individual Ham Loaves in muffin pans. They are especially easy to serve and can look very festive when you tuck a little fruit into each pan before adding the mixture of meat, seasonings, and 40% bran flakes. Glazed carrots make a pretty platter garnish.

INDIVIDUAL HAM LOAVES

- 3 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon butter, melted
- Lemon slices
- Maraschino cherries
- 1 cup Post 40% Bran Flakes
- ½ cup milk
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- Dash of cayenne
- 4 cups (1 lb.) ground cooked ham

Combine brown sugar and butter. Spread a little of mixture in bottoms of 6 medium muffin pans. Place a section of a lemon slice and a cherry in each pan, if desired. Combine cereal, milk, eggs, and seasonings; mix thoroughly. Add ham and stir until well blended. Pack ham mixture firmly into muffin pans. Bake at 350° for 1 hour, or until browned. Invert onto warm serving platter. Makes 6 servings.

Union Shows Sycamore Line

Next week marks the date for the Union's fall trunk showing of the Sycamore line, Aug. 26-31.

(A trunk showing includes a designer's whole line of styles, giving customers a wider selection than just those chosen by a store's buyer).

At this showing the Union's entire stock plus Sycamore's complete sample line of coats will be available to customers. Michael Goodwin, Sycamore's representative, will be at the Kingsdale and Town and Country stores to help ladies with their selection.

Miss Alice Hollinger, coat buyer for the Union, will be on hand at all stores.

During this one-week period, additional hem, sleeve or fabric length will be available at no extra charge.

Especially appealing and feminine are the fur-trimmed coats enhanced with mink, beaver or chinchillette. As an added bonus, all fur-trimmed coats will have the August coat sale price on them.

Untrimmed coats start at $100 and run to $130. Fur-trimmed coats start at $155 and run to $300.

'Poisemakers' For Parties

Self-confidence in meeting a new situation is sometimes hard to come by. But there are certain "poisemakers" we can adopt as our own means to achieve it.

Dorothy Carnegie, in the September issue of "Family Circle," points out that self-confidence is grounded in sincerity, the desire to make yourself agreeable, to help others enjoy themselves.

Here are some tips she gives for building self-esteem when, for example, attending a social gathering you are unsure about:

Wear clothes that you feel comfortable in. Maybe you feel comfortable in a gray or brown dress because it makes you less conspicuous. But remember, people today are very responsive to color. Once you learn to feel comfortable in colors that have an exhilarating effect on others, social expression becomes that much easier.

DO SOMETHING to put others at ease. If you're alone and new in a group, develop compassion for others who may be feeling insecure. Look about you to find those who may feel out of place — often the elderly or sometimes a younger person in a group of mature people.

Set another at ease and you feel at ease yourself.

SHARE THE stage willingly. Don't try to be the life of the party. Being stage-center all the time isn't really normal. The popular people are often the quiet people who contribute pleasure to others in the group.

BE RESPONSIVE. Become interested and ask a few polite questions, and you'll find it's not so difficult to draw people out. True, it may take some time to make people immediately feel at home with you.

LEARN TO LISTEN. One mark of a good listener is that he or she keeps looking at the person who is speaking. There is nothing more exasperating than talking to someone whose eyes are wandering around the room.

Concentrate on what the person is saying and, when you respond, comment on what he has said and ask a question that leads him on. With attention outward-bound, you won't be worrying about the kind of impression you make.

HAVE SOMETHING to say. It's ideas that make conversation interesting. Friendly gossip is fine in its place and so are reminiscences. But once you think of conversation in terms of ideas instead of personalities, your conversation becomes interesting.

But you may ask, "What ideas do I have? I spend all day around the house and with the kids."

Well, if you have children, you must have ideas about child care, about education, community problems. If you've read a book or a magazine or a newspaper, you have ideas about what you read. You may even have ideas about a better way to package food or make a vacuum cleaner. Think how many successful men have picked up good business ideas from homemakers who've sat next to them at the dinner table!

"Self confidence doesn't come to anyone overnight," concludes Mrs. Carnegie, widow of Dale Carnegie who influenced so many people with his book, "How to Win Friends and Influence People" as well as with his courses in public speaking. "We keep building it because there are always new people, new situations, new experiences to enjoy."

Women IN THE KNOW

By Jean Kingsley, Women's Consultant, The Travelers Insurance Companies

On the Move

If you're going to move soon, you're in good company. More than 40 million Americans will change their home address this year, mostly during July, August and September when the children are out of school.

Actually, most moving families—about two-thirds—stay fairly close to their old addresses. Those who do move out of state favor California, Florida and Texas—in that order.

Whether you're moving across the street or across the country, moving is a hectic experience. However, with a little careful planning, women in the know can minimize the fuss and bother. A pocketful of lists is common of any moving family, but these handy reminders really do the job. Tack one up and assign each family member a set of chores. As each is completed, check it off.

One mistake common to moving families is that they do more than is necessary. For example, most moving companies are happy to roll up rugs and mattresses free of charge. Families who sling their clothes loosely over boxes or tuck clothing into odd corners usually end up paying double—once for the moving, once for the cleaning bills. It's so much easier to inform your moving man in advance to bring cardboard wardrobes so you can hang clothing neatly.

Too often in the hustle-bustle it's easy to forget all those who should be notified of your new address. Besides the utility companies, magazines, stores and the post office, you should also tell your Traveler's insurance agent.

Whether you're moving to larger or smaller quarters—whether your new address is more plush than the old—a reexamination of your insurance program should be a consideration of any move. Your Traveler's agent will be delighted to help you determine if you have the proper coverage at your new address.

Cottage Cheese— A Versatile Dish

How do you most often serve cottage cheese? If you're like the rest of us, it is considered a salad food. Cottage cheese with its creamy refreshing goodness makes wonderful salads, but it is also useful as an appetizer, main dish or dessert food. Cottage cheese as an ingredient produces creamy and protein-rich products.

A very important point to remember when planning casserole main dishes is that the amount and quality of protein the dish contains is adequate for the number to be served.

Worries are over with Crab and Cheese Casserole! In addition to the crabmeat, there is an ample amount of milk and cottage cheese. Both of these dairy products contain high quality protein, minerals and vitamins.

To complete a menu around the crab and cheese casserole, plan to include buttered green beans, a tossed green salad, hard rolls and butter, milk and peaches jubilee over ice cream.

CRAB AND CHEESE CASSEROLE

5 ounces (2½ cups) medium noodles
1/4 cup butter
2 tablespoons minced onion
½ cup finely diced celery
1/4 cup flour
½ teaspoon mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 can (7½ oz.) crabmeat
2 cups (1 lb.) creamed cottage cheese
½ cup buttered crumbs

Cook noodles in boiling salted water only until tender; drain well. Melt butter in saucepan over low heat; add onion and celery and cook until tender but not brown.

Add flour and seasonings and blend well. Add milk and cook stirring constantly, until thickened. Add lemon juice stirring briskly.

Combine noodles, sauce, crabmeat and cottage cheese. Pour into a two-quart buttered casserole and sprinkle buttered crumbs over top. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, 30 to 40 minutes or until mixture is thoroughly heated and crumbs are lightly browned.

Makes six servings.

'For Love Of Ivy' Lovable Little Ditty

Many of you and this reviewer have been pondering what will come next via the movie screen.

How about two steps backward and one step forward?

This is the conclusion drawn after having seen "For Love Of Ivy" now showing at the RKO Palace and Cinema East.

[illegible] two steps backward are [illegible] story and second, act- [illegible] story, written by the [illegible] Sidney Poitier, is a simple story of love. A well-to-do family is about to lose their maid, "Ivy," when the hippie son and swinging daughter devise a scheme to keep her at home by supplying a boy friend.

A happy little ditty with a bit of spice and an even happier "Cinderella" ending is "For Love Of Ivy." A step backward. No, because going back to this type of story is refreshing.

But the other step backward is a definite one. There isn't one actor, excluding Mr. Poitier, that even comes near delivering a polished performance. All are inexperienced and it shows. But for the love of "Ivy" this doesn't deter from the warm feeling created.

Mr. Poitier is not as finely developed in the role as in the past, but America's number one box office star has a problem in that his co-stars never get the ball rolling. One actor cannot be a total show.

The step forward is that it is about Negroes . . . how they react to love and awkward situations via two white teenagers unconcerned and ignorant of diplomacy.

Many people are going to be surprised. Others will be disappointed. "For Love Of Ivy" is just a lovable little ditty about love with added spice to keep the adults in their seats. Well worth seeing. It will give you something to talk about.

Odd Couple at POG Fits Like An Old Hat

This area has been well saturated with Neil Simon's hilarious "Odd Couple," yet Playhouse On The Green's second encounter, within as many years, is an ironclad hit.

Like a vintage wine, "Odd Couple's" hold-over cast members have added a bit more sophistication, adding to the humor of two bachelors (via divorce) struggling to survive "marriage."

When one has seen a show five times within a year, it is like putting on an old hat. You know how it fits and looks . . . But the glow never falters. "Odd Couple" fits into this realm.

Each performer is a panorama of perfection, both talent and ability. No cast member detracts, but is a show within a show. Each is the star. They are, in order of appearance, Gary Garth, Larry Kent, John Crawford, Gerald L. Ness, Bruce Blaine, Ted Pritchard, Mary Kay Williams and Dierdre Owen.

This is the final production at POG and runs through Aug. 31. For a rollicking, refreshing theater outing, "Odd Couple" is a sure thing at 8:30 p.m. under the canvas shelter, north of Worthington.

What a befitting curtain call for an outstanding 14th season at POG. Sallie Jones Sexton makes a final speech which will be repeated for years to come.

Wait 'til you hear her comments about the competition "Odd Couple" is getting this week and next . . . she received the loudest roars of the evening and I'll even go further and say all season.

Around Town

ROLAND SUNKER

Personality plus, mixed with a rare combination of dancing and powerhouse song material, is the only way one can describe DeLois Phillips. Appearing nightly at the Everglades Restaurant, Miss DeLois and her Music Men have proven to be a great crowd pleaser.

Not since Les Paul and Mary Ford played the West Broad Street restaurant several years ago have there been such large audiences night after night.

DeLois incorporates songs and dances she has gathered from her appearances all over the world. In one evening she delights her audiences with Syrian, Hawaiian, Afro-Cuban and a dance one doesn't see in a night club any more, a good old fashioned tap dance.

Besides being talented, DeLois also rates high in the beauty department. With her impish grin, sparkling eyes and great personality, Miss DeLois is truly a stage rarity.

The Christopher Inn is known as the round building on East Broad Street. There is nothing square about it, including the entertainment in the cocktail lounge. The Bob Allen Trio is exactly what the architect ordered for this room. Seldom does one sit in a cocktail lounge and actually listen to the entertainment. But this is what you will do, because the Bob Allen Trio is a powerful, commanding outfit.

The trio, comprised of Bob Allen on piano, Vince Evans on bass and drummer Ray Racie in the greatest group of musicians you'll find anywhere. Their arrangements show imagination which borders on pure creative genius. All three have a style that complements each other making for some great sounds and pleasing moods.

This is not a far out group. They are three musicians who are masters of their work, which enables them to blend style, class and ability into one delightful melody. For breath-taking piano artistry, catch the Bob Allen Trio at the Christopher Inn. There's none better anywhere.

Columbus stages are going to be very busy in the weeks to come. As soon as Ed Ames, Bob Hope, Johnny Carson and all the other stars vacate the fairgrounds, Ben Cowall Promotions has an all-star lineup for fall. Beginning with the Guy Lombardo show on Sept. 19, Ben has booked the Holiday on Ice show, Aretha Franklin, Peter, Paul and Mary, Liberace and "Fiddler on the Roof." This is just the beginning for what promises to be another busy, star-studded entertainment season.

Skipping Around Town . . . Currently at the Knave's Cave at the Imperial House Arlington is Bea Bea Benson, America's most exciting songstress, pianist and risque comedienne. She is considered another Rusty Warren . . . Playhouse on the Green closes its season with "The Odd Couple." Curtain is 8:30 nightly . . . This week at Kenley Players is Ethel Merman in "Call Me Madam" with Richard Eastham and Russell Nype . . . For after theater entertainment don't miss the always swinging Joe Dunlap Quartet at Benny Klein's, along with two lovely dancers, Scheherazade and Amaya.

Ohio Artists To Be Featured At State Fair

A special exhibit by Ohio artists that is on permanent display at the Akron Art Institute will be a feature of this year's art show at the Ohio State Fair.

Marion Ryan, art show director, said that the exhibit will be representative of Ohio painters for the past 100 years and will include works by Charles Birchfield, Frank Duveneck, John Twactman, Clyde Singer and many outstanding contemporary Ohio artists.

The showing will consist of 37 paintings from the Akron Institute's permanent collection.

State Fair Manager Jerry L. Kaltenbach said that this marks the third consecutive year that an invitational showing of Ohio artists has been a feature of the world's largest state fair art show.

This year's show had over 2,100 entries of which 1,000 pieces of work will be on display in the James M. Cox Art Center during the run of the state fair — Aug. 22 through Sept. 2.

WMNI Plans Western Music

WMNI will have a mobile stage located just south of the Administration building on the Fairgrounds and will present well-known country and western stars in hour long performances.

Aug. 22-24, The Willis Brothers: Aug. 25-27, Merle Travis: Aug. 28-30, Joe and Rose Lee Maphis, and Aug. 31-Sept. 2, shows with the Nashville Sound as the backup band.

Show times are 3 p.m., and 7 p.m. with the first 15 minutes of each show to be aired over WMNI Radio.

Also WMNI will feature intermittent fair broadcasts and news during their regular radio programming.

There will be an exhibit of Western Square Dancing sponsored by WMNI.

Anyone wishing to enter and for further information phone the station at 221-1354.

Bistro's 'Spice Racq' Pretty Bland Offering

Somewhere, I got lost. The Bistro, without saying, is Columbus' swingingest night club, but what I encountered Monday evening was a boisterous, inaudible, highly overrated rock and roll format entitled "The Spice Racq."

Five hard working entertainers, banging, screaming and girating to a sound familiar to teenagers will be at the Bistro through Aug. 31.

The two girls are cute and obviously are the reason the act is an act. They are Jenny Soule and Gloria Jean Goione. As for their singing talents, they screamed. What is enjoyable is their dance routines, figures and adorable [illegible]

Only one member of the three males, Cliff Reynolds, shows natural talent, but even he is overshadowed by the format.

The other two, Paul Matthew Tabet and Lynn Ready look and act the part of a rock and roll group.

The most I can say is, it is an education, and something you won't forget for a long time.

To quote them, if you'd like to "freak out" or get lost as I did, the Bistro is the place . . . and it shouldn't be.

Mershon Announces Schedule

Lyric soprano Roberta Peters is the featured vocalist on Mershon Auditorium's Great Artist Series for the 1968-'69 season.

Miss Peters will be heard in concert, April 15, 1969.

Other performers and groups on this season's scheduled series are Eugene Istomin, pianist; the New York musical, "Man of La Mancha"; The Cleveland Orchestra; Erica Morini, violinist; the Tyrone Guthrie directed play, "Lamp at Midnight," starring Morris Carnovsky; Columbus Symphony Orchestra with 400 voice OSU Chorus performing Mozart's "Requiem"; Rudolf Serkin, pianist and the Harkness Ballet.

Season book sale is now in process, until Oct. 7. Information is available at 293-2354.

NOW AT MARAMOR

Guy and David are currently appearing at the Maramor. Booked for one night on the Joey Bishop Show, they were such a hit that Joey brought them back for eight consecutive nights. They are compared by many as a new Sandler and Young.

Here's TV Fare At Ohio State Fair

Television stars, crews and equipment will be bountiful throughout the Ohio State Fair, now in session through Sept. 2, thusly, providing an at-home visit to the fair and providing an opportunity to see TV in action while visiting the fair.

Channel 4's coverage includes: A free first-day attraction of the Ohio State Fair, today, Aug. 22, when Host Lloyd Thaxton tapes an NBC special which will be seen nationally Sept. 3 at 8 p.m. The noon taping session will present a large cash award and a contract with a major recording company to the winning act chosen from a field of 10 hopefuls.

The Nick Clooney Show will begin TV 4's more than 50 hours of color programming with eight live broadcasts from the WLW Building beginning today at 10:30 a.m. The show has been extended to 90-minutes during this period.

TV 4's Jerry Rasor will host 18 hours of fair entertainment, with a special variety show during the 12 day duration at 5 p.m. entitled "State Fair." Rasor will also host two hour-long editions of Dance Party, to be aired Saturday, Aug. 24 and 31, at 12 p.m. Two special two-hour State Fair Dance Party programs with Rasor will be aired at 1:30 p.m., Aug. 25 and 11:30 a.m., Sunday, Sept. 1.

Also Avco's Paul Dixon Show and the 50-50 Club will be broadcast live the week of Aug. 26 at their regular air time, 9 a.m. and noon, respectively.

The popular 22-year-old Midwestern Hayride will originate both Aug. 24 and Saturday, Aug. 31 at 6:30 p.m.

Channel 34 will present a potpourri of fair events throughout their Premiere Week of Aug. 26-30 at 6:30 and 10:30 p.m.

Channel 10's theme for their coverage is "Excitement '68" and includes: "Fair Farmtime," featuring Bill and Dick Zipf from 7-7:30 a.m., daily; Central Ohio's most popular children's show, "Luci's Toyshop," will be broadcast from the Fair each day at 9 a.m.

Later on in the day, Chet Long will host the hour-long Variety-Audience Participation show, "Fairtime," weekdays at 2:30 p.m. and on weekends at 12:30 p.m.

Flippo the Clown will be on hand to inject some of his unique madness into the proceedings along with Johnny Ulrich providing the musical background.

Channel 10 will wrap up the Fair viewing day with "Today At The Fair" with a 15-minute summary of the day's events, each night following "Eyewitness News."

Zoo Gets Black Bear

Thousands of visitors thronged the grounds of the Columbus Zoo recently for the first BBF Day at the Zoo when officials were presented the "big black bear," donated through the efforts of the children who had been saving their BBF emblems since June and depositing them in the barrel at the Zoo's entrance.

Columbus Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner and Dr. James Savoy, director of the Zoo, accepted the American Black Bear from Milton Lustnauer and Roy Tuggle, BBF owners, and Jim Near, vice president in charge of operations for the restaurant chain.

Academy Theaters Fare Set

Dick Van Dyke, Edward G. Robinson and Dorothy Provine star in Walt Disney's "Never A Dull Moment," a gangster spoof now showing at the Clinton and College Cinema Theaters.

Co-feature is another Disney film, "The Shaggy Dog," starring Fred MacMurray. A weekend matinee is scheduled for 1 p.m.

"The Devil's Brigade," which is a story of the famed Green Berets, is now showing at the Esquire and University Theaters as a single feature.

Truman Capote's "In Cold Blood," starring Robert Blake and Scott Wilson, is showing at the State as a single feature while at the Markham "Kissin' Cousins," starring Elvis Presley is being co-featured.

Dean Martin's "The Ambushers" is the co-feature at the National Auto, South and 17th Ave. Drive In theaters with "In Cold Blood."

VLT Auditions Set For Aug. 25

Final auditions for Village Little Theater's opening production, "On A Clear Day You Can See Forever," will be held Sunday, Aug. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln Road Chapel at First Community Church, Cambridge Blvd.

Male and female lead roles, chorus and dance participants are needed.

Production dates are Oct. 17-19 at the church theater.

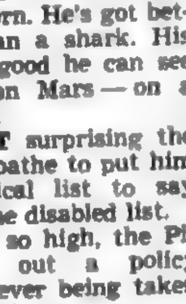
JIM MURRAY

'The Late Roberto Clemente'

Roberto Walker Clemente, baseball's walking wounded, is such a practicing hypochondriac that when a Pittsburgh manager once put a lineup card on the dugout wall, a teammate penciled in at the cleanup spot "The Late Roberto Clemente."



MURRAY

A rival watching him go 4-for-4 one night sighed and allowed, "Think what he would do if he were alive."

ROBERTO perpetually has one foot in the bucket and the other in the grave.

He has more ailments than the Reader's Digest.

When he plays, you don't need a scorecard, you need a fever chart.

HE'S THE only guy in the history of the game to catch malaria in New York in the winter.

He's got a body so chunky hard it looks as if it were mined, not born. He's got better teeth than a shark. His eyes are so good he can see the canals on Mars — on a cloudy night.

IT IS NOT surprising the Pirates are loathe to put him on the critical list to say nothing of the disabled list.

He batted so high, the Pirates took out a policy against his ever being taken down well. They encouraged him to stand in drafts.

They did everthing but stash roller skates on the top step of his home or send him into typhoid epidemics.

NATURALLY, Pittsburgh was overjoyed when Roberto showed up at spring training this year complaining of a fall off his patio railing (faulty carpentry made it come loose when he tried to vault over it and it tumbled him down a cliff and into a rock).

They figured if Roberto had a fractured skull, they might begin printing World Series tickets.

Instead of calling a doctor, they called a caterer. The situation called for a party.

IT WASN'T long before they found out this was one time something was clinically wrong.

You didn't need a stethoscope or a spatula, all you needed was a pencil. They didn't need a diagnostician, but a statistician.

Roberto's pulse rate was fine. It was his batting average that had leukemia. He had a virus in his swing.

IT WAS like Paderewski stumbling around on the keys, Heifetz getting catcalls out of his violin.

Roberto Clemente hitting .260 was like Van Gogh doing sidewalk portraits.

Roberto explodes when asked about it. His feeling is, for all the exposure his accident, which occurred in February, got, he might as well have dropped a note in a bottle in the Indian Ocean marked "To Whom It May Concern."

"LISTEN," he seethed in the dugout the other night. "I shouldn't even be playing

"I showed up at spring training and I told the ball club about my accident. I said my shoulder had been damaged and the ballclub said, 'Sh-h-h, don't talk so loud. Somebody might hear you. Now, don't tell anybody about this.' They said, 'I don't want to know about it.'

"Well, I tell you, it hurts me to hit a ball, it hurts me to swing a bat and, when I know it's going to hurt, it bothers me mentally and I do not swing the same and I wince when I think of hitting the ball.

"I SHOULD be home, not here in the dugout, because I would rather play even if I am cripple than to sit and watch a game."

The Pirates, of course, were plunged in dismay — to say nothing of the second division.

Their chronic out-patient who had batted .351, .339, .329 and .357 with malaria, sacroiliac, insomnia, dyspepsia and misplaced vertebra.

BUT THE depressing thing was, he was now to be believed.

Instead of asking to spend the winter working among the lepers, they could now make reservations at the Mayo Clinic.

And, if he said he was A) hurt or B) sick, they still wouldn't send a doctor. They would send a pitcher.

"THROW HIM four curve balls," they would say. "If he only hits one of them, rush him to a hospital."

Fishin' Facts

To the Indians of northern Canada, a soft carpet of green moss on the forest floor has value far in excess of its esthetic beauty.

Besides being an excellent insulating material for chinking log cabins and serving as a low-cost (yet effective) substitute for diapers, this spongy vegetation has the ability to keep fish as cold and fresh as the most modern refrigeration system.

SINCE IT'S seldom available to anglers south of the 49th parallel, the fishing experts suggest several other ways that fish should be handled to insure they arrive on the table sweet and flavorable.

Ideally, fish should be cleaned and placed on ice right after being caught. Unfortunately, most fishermen postpone the cleaning ritual until day's end and with discouraging results much later.

If you are in this category, take special pains to care for the catch as it's boated.

A STRINGER or live net is satisfactory only as long as the fish are alive and healthy. Since prolonged soaking spoils flavor and texture of meat, it's wise to check the stringer frequently, removing from the water any fish that have expired.

To keep these fish reasonably fresh, place them in a shaded spot between loose layers of dampened grass which provides cooling by evaporation. Though fish boxes are commonly seen, avoid those that have tightly fitting lids; the more air passage permitted, the better.

Moistened burlap or excelsior (when obtainable) makes excellent packing material.

IF FISH have been cleaned, keep them cool as above, and keep them dry and separated until final washing for eating or freezing.

Even if you don't have access to the north country's natural refrigeration, you make do with what's on hand. Just remember to care for the catch as you catch it—and avoid a smelly mess at the end of the day.

Amateurs Test Boxing Ability At State Fair

Top amateur boxers from around the State of Ohio will participate in the first annual Ohio State Fair Boxing Tournament, which gets underway Saturday, Aug. 24 at 6:30 p.m. The finals will be held the following Saturday, Aug. 31.

Cincinnati has entered a strong team and is expected to make a strong bid for the Open Team Championship Trophy. The Cincinnati team is led by Roy Dale, 1968 National Golden Gloves 165 pound Champion and Johnny North, 1968 National G.G. runner-up in the 132 pound division.

Toledo's nine-man team is led by the Hawthorne brothers (Allen, Howard), both were 1968 Toledo G.G. champions.

The strong Columbus entry is led by Thurman Holiday, 1968 Champion G.G. 165 pound champion and Boxer of the Year, Harvey Wilson, 1968 bantamweight champion and heavyweight J. D. McCauley.

The Columbus Novice team will be led by heavyweight sensation, Mike Smith who will be making his first start. Teams are entered from the following cities: Akron, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Dayton, Toledo, Gahanna, and Zanesville. Over 100 youngsters are entered in the State Fair Tournament.

Worthington Troopers Bow In Legion Play

Central District Legion Champion Worthington was within walking distance of the State Baseball title before Lancaster zipped past them 8-3 in the semi-final round of the annual Ohio American Legion tournament.

The defending District title-winners managed a stroke further on the double elimination scale this time around but former Legion star Cincinnati Bentley Post appeared a dab better than the field in annexing its fourth title.

WORTHINGTON HAD its best game in the opening firing with a 2-0 besting of Euclid under the steaming arm of Whetstone standout Dale Ross, who returns to the Braves diamond camp this season and hence back to the Leasure-Blackstone Post fold next summer.

But John Fleeman, the youthful Ohio University senior who has guided the Worthington entry into the State Tournament the last two seasons, found the road a little headier in the next few days before Lancaster sidelined them. His 1968 Worthington edition finished with a commendable 27-7 overall record.

THE BOYS that brought Worthington into impressive tourney set including Ashtabula, Marietta, Sidney, Kent, Ashley, Hillsboro, and Findlay are as follows:

John Biddle, Rich Clouse, Bill Grossman, Jon Davies, Charlie Sachsel, Paul Breen, Terry Frisby, Skip Peltier, Dale Ross, Jim Shields, Dwight Reinstettle, Bob Stein, Dave Sivinski, Larry Davis, Dwight Miller, George Efta and Bill Hauck.

PIN NEWS

Keglers' Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

Here are some of bowling's most common mistakes—and some suggestions for correcting them to help you boost your score:

Going over foul line: Go back to your first step and make it a short one. On that first step, the main object is to get the ball in motion in a smooth start of your approach.

Out of balance at foul line: Slow up your approach so you can concentrate on the release of the ball and not on maintaining your balance.

Dropping the ball: It may be that the holes in your ball are too large, or it may mean you should have the finger holes pitched so that the ball will hang on them until you are ready to release it. It is also possible that the ball is correct but that you are not concentrating on getting the ball out over the foul line before releasing it. Other possibilities are that the ball is too heavy or the span too narrow.

Failure of ball to hook: This is an ailment which puzzles many of the better bowlers who insist they rolled the ball exactly the same way twice and it failed to hook once. The answer could be that the bowler allowed his elbow to go out from his body. This is called "side-arming," and his thumb is at about 8 o'clock when he releases the ball, instead of at 10 or 11 o'clock.

Lofting the ball: Lofting, or throwing the ball out on the lane, could be caused by holding onto it too long, either from habit, or because the holes are too tight. Then too, you may be too erect at the line. Your left knee should be bent at the release.

Leaving pins on pocket hits: This happens to the best of bowlers but if it happens to you too often, it may be because of several factors. If you roll the ball with too much speed, the front pins slide off the deck upright so they don't take out the rear pins. A slower ball mixes the pins. You may leave pins if your ball is backing up as it hits the pocket. This may be because of a poor or insufficient follow-through. If the No. 5 pin stands on an apparently good hit, the ball is definitely fading and not going into the 1-3 pocket solidly.

'Father Pete' Golf Invite Set Aug. 24

The 17th annual edition of the "Father Pete (McEwan) Invitational" golf tourney will unfold at Thorn Apple Country Club Saturday, Aug. 24.

Among those in the anticipated 200-plus field will be a long line of former District winners like Carl Mengali, Dick Rhyan Sr., Barney Hunt, Art and Harold Todd and Steve Jupinke.

Also expected are local hot shots like Jim and Mike Gallicchio, Red Nadalin, Pat Mathias and Gene Riccardi.

This year the tourney will go back to its original plan, including both family and friends of the competitors.

Upsets Dot Golf Loop

At Bridgeview Golf Course, the semi-finals in the Sunday Morning Golf Association's O'Shaughnessy play-off, saw two upsets. Coventry Inn and Acme Brake who finished in the league in sixth and seventh place respectively, came out on top and will meet next week for the championship.

Coventry Inn defeated Your Father's Mustache 10½ to 5½ and Acme Brake downed Sokol Broher's Insurance 11½ to 4½.

Next Sunday will also have the association's play-off between Southern Bowling and Billiard and Duratile Company plus a two-man tournament for the entire league.

Jets Home For Four Games

The Columbus Jets will be home tonight to open a short four game homestand with the Toledo Mud Hens, current International League leader.

The Jets will have four single dates starting Thursday and continuing through Sunday, a date slated as Spectator Newspaper Day at the Stadium.

At Last--Eye Makeup Cut Down To Size

Eye makeup today is a matter of many basic products and a variety of brushes and applicators with which to put them on.

Fine! . . . when you're sitting at your dressing table with plenty of space at hand. But how do you touch up or re-apply eye makeup throughout the day or evening as you do your lipstick?

Aziza has devised a compact, purse-carrying case to take care of your eye makeup needs from eye shadows to cake liner to mascara, with appropriate applicators included.

It's called the TOTE-ALL EYE KIT.

For fall, '68, Aziza likes the complete softness of the all-of-a-hue look for eye makeup so that each TOTE-ALL EYE KIT — and there are four in all—is based on one color: Blue, Green, Burgundy or Gray.

The Pressed Powder Lid Shadow sets the color pace, is echoed by an iridescent highlighting shadow for the brow bone, is deepened for the Cake Liner and the matching Cake Mascara.

LET'S PLAY Cowboys and Indians. With leather (or the washable imitation that looks so real) skirts and weskits, rodeo shirts and scarves. Or fringed jerkins and hairdos banded with colorful scarves.

The warpaint here: colors to match your shirts and scarves. (The basic leather-and-suede tones tend to be natural or brown or gray, need colorful eyes to pick them up).

Or try the Gray with a gray or natural suede.

LET'S PLAY FORTIES. A trip back to the decade of pompadour hairdos and sweater girls, of broad-shouldered, small-waisted suits. Back, as a matter of deeper transparent color to your lips — and the jewel-fact, to the decade when AZIZA introduced colored eye makeup to American women. (Green Mascara began it all).

Try it again this Fall in a TOTE-ALL kit. And burgundy in eye color kit? You'll never know till you try; if you're thinking about buying a costume suit or a coat with big fur collar, or heathery tweed suit.

LET'S PLAY a Love Set. If your fashion thing is NOW rather than Nostalgia, then you're ready for the Romantic Look.

Consider a velvet dress this fall, jewel-toned, trimmed perhaps with a rush or lace or organdy.

What else?

A wraith of a hairdo (you'll need an old-fashioned curling iron to keep those tendrils springy), perhaps a tone of the velvet echoed on your eyelids and lashes.

Blue, green or burgundy eye makeup to match your dress — or contrast with it. Try blue or green (depending on the color of your eyes) with black velvet; burgundy with brown.

To use with these colors; a double-ended applicator, with a foam rubber tip for use with the shadow tones and a fine eyeliner brush at the other end, and a wee spiral brush with which to twirl on your mascara at $3.50 a set.

Bliss Posts Honor List

Three east area students attending Bliss College were named to the spring quarter's dean's list with one being chosen for the "Student of the Quarter" list.

Susan Beth Gurevitz, daughter of Isadore R. Gurevitz, 1672 Quigley Rd., received a four point average for the term which qualifies her to be named for the special student list.

John Paul Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Jones, 1650 Adair Rd., and Charles William Murvay, son of Bert D. Murvay, 6577 Shenandoah Dr., in Reynoldsburg also were chosen for the honor.

These students both had 3.6 averages.

MAVERICK

WITH MUDDY SHOES

By Richard L. Pough

Ohio's hunting season is right around the corner, so don't forget to buy your 1968 license.

With it this year, you will receive a full color folder that describes — in detail — the game of Ohio.

SQUIRREL season opens Sept. 6 and runs through Nov. 2 on private lands and Dec. 28 on public hunting areas. You may kill four each day.

Ohio's quail hunt begins Nov. 15 and runs until Jan. 4 only on private lands under agreement with the State. The daily bag limit is six.

Cottontail bunnies are huntable from Nov. 15 through Jan. 25 on public lands and until Jan. 4 on private lands. The daily bag limit is four.

ONE OF the toughest small game birds in all the world is our ruffed grouse. You may start hunting them on Oct. 11 and the last day — the 22nd of February, you might hit one.

Getting the daily bag limit of three grouse is much akin to getting a hole-in-one on a par five.

The most majestic bird to grace Ohio's farmlands — the pheasant — is to be sought from Nov. 15 to Dec. 14 on private lands and until Jan. 25 on public hunting lands. You may take two birds each day.

THERE IS A bonus hunt in pheasants for the 16-and-under youths who have passed a hunter safety course. They may hunt the Delaware Wildlife Area on Oct. 19 and 26 and Nov. 2 — if accompanied by a licensed but non-hunting adult.

This gives the young buffs an early chance at unhunted land and I think it's a fine idea.

The raccoon and opossum season opens statewide on Nov. 1 and runs until Jan. 31. The daily bag limit of each is four with no possession limits. You must hunt between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. and carry a white light visible for a quarter mile or more.

YOUR HUNTING license also entitles you to trap coon, possum, mink and mu[illegible]. The season opens Nov. [illegible] extends through Jan. [illegible] traps must have your [illegible] and address on a waterproof tag.

Please don't forget, anything not specifically mentioned on your hunting leaflet as legal game should not be bothered. Many hundreds of dollars are paid in fines each year by careless hunters shooting eagles, hawks and owls.

It has been proven many times that these birds are of great value because of the rodents they consume.

A FINAL word of caution — wear bright red or orange on your jacket and head. Every year lives are lost because someone was mistaken for game.

Don't let it be you.

Esper Tops Powell's Sr. Knothole Card

Franklin Esper won the Powell Senior Knothole Tournament last week with a 9-2 win over Linden.

Franklin posted two shutouts including a no-hitter by Mike Wiley en route to the final game before relying on heavy lumber of grand slam hitting Dave Evans to save the day.

It was a very evenly matched tournament, all teams had good pitching. Franklin Esper owned Mike Wiley, Bob Lee and Bob Grossman; Linden with Myron Williams; Olentangy with Mike Lazar; Yankees with Jerry Pinoni, Bob Griffith, and Steve Parzinger.

The two big highlights of the tournament were Mike Wiley's no-hitter against Linden Friday and the game last Thursday between Arlington and the Yankees that went extra innings and lead changing hands five times with the Yankees coming out on top 7-6.

Home runs were hit by Mike Andrews of Olentangy (two), and one grand slam home run by Dave Evans of Franklin Esper in the finale game against Linden.

The leading RBI man for the Yankees was Phil Sachs with five and Dave Evans of the champion Franklin team with six. The leading batters for the champion Franklin Esper team were Bob Lee, .455; Fred Schmidt, .416 and John Costella, .380.

EXECUTIVE SALES OPPORTUNITY

If you are a self-reliant, persuasive individual who enjoys active contact with the public, seeking a career, not a job, and who may be:

- A man who is now selling and feels that his position is not sufficiently challenging, without adequate income and advancement possibilities — or he is subject to transfer and does not wish to re-locate.

or

- A junior executive, school teacher, engineer, business owner, accountant or lawyer who may be economically disturbed.

or

- A young man out of college several years whose future is blocked because of the nature of his work, or the size of the organization . . .

Investigate this opportunity to qualify for the highest recognized level of selling to "business and professional groups." A two-billion-dollar company has retained a Career Consultant who will conduct an Executive Sales Aptitude Analysis*. Should you qualify, we will discuss with you the possibility of associating with us in Columbus.

A salary plus substantial commission to qualified man leading to permanent sales or management career. All inquiries and interviews will be held in strict confidence.

*This Sales Aptitude Analysis will be administered by appointment. Write: Vern K. Miller, 8 E. Long St. for appointment. This personal analysis will be made available to you free of charge.

OPEN DAILY [illegible] SAT. [illegible] SUN. [illegible]

If your want ad is in this paper, people are reading it today!

It is the lull before the rush begins. There are no cars at the pumps, so the busy filling station manager takes a break. Seated at his desk, he opens his copy of The Spectator to the Want Ad pages. Through the years he has come to recognize this feature of The Spectator as a market place where many articles of interest to him may be found.

Perhaps it is a good used pick-up truck which he can use on service calls, or some tools for his repair shop, or perhaps an appliance or a piece of furniture for his home. The needs of the people like him who read Spectator Want Ads span a wide range.

Whatever you may have that you wish to sell, the good people who read Spectator Want Ads every day furnish you with a big, ready-to-buy market. That is why a low cost Spectator Want Ad gets such quick response for those who advertise.

To place your ad, dial 274-1155 and you will be assisted by a helpful, friendly Ad-Visor. Placing your ad will be a pleasant experience.

Leukemia Bowl Tickets Available

Richard Sensenbrenner, chairman of the ticket sales for the fourth annual Leukemia Bowl announced that tickets are now on sale at various public offices.

Columbus and Franklin County residents are urged to support this event.

All funds raised will be used to eradicate this dreadful disease.

The Bowl Game will be held Sept. 7, at Northland High School Stadium. The first game starts at 7 p.m., between the St. James Bisons and the Northland Packers.

Second game is at 8 p.m., between Clintonville Shamrocks and the North Linden Pirates.

Play by play will be by Bill Brown, the voice of the Columbus Speedway. Entertainment will be furnished by the Northland High School Band and the North American Clowns.

Vic Janowicz and "Hop" Cassady will be on hand to present the trophy to the winning team.

Sceva Wins Motor Feature

As the fans say, "Give that Neal Sceva an inch and he'll take a mile."

And Neal Sceva did just that in last Sunday's late-model 10-mile feature as he went into the lead on the 12th-lap and stayed right there until the finish.

For his valiant victory, Sceva received $750 of the night's purse and he also earned the distinction of snapping Dick Freeman's win-streak at five. Freeman was forced out of the feature with a blown tire and Ralph O'Day almost had his car demolished as he went into the fence on the backstretch on the 12th-lap and ripped out the entire right side of his fast 1967 Fairlane.

Bob McElroy was the victor in the 20th-lap hobby-stock main-event, with Don Dennison, Bill Hirshey, Jerry Stuller and Alan Donahue following in close order.

This coming Sunday, both the late-models and hobby-stocks will return to the Williams Rd. Raceway for a minimum of nine-events. Time trials will get underway at 7 p.m. and the first race will roar into action at 8 o'clock.

Easter Seal Camper Extends Gratitude For Moose Association Program Support

Joyce Parker of Defiance met another challenge in her life when presented to the delegates of the Ohio State Moose Association and its Auxiliary Chapters at the annual organization meeting in Columbus Aug. 17.

She extended a personal note of thanks to the members for the provision of camping funds for handicapped adults in Ohio through the state Easter Seal program.

Miss Parker attended Camp Easter Seal at Camp Pittinger near Tiffin, for the first time last year and is awaiting the return to the Sandusky River campsite again next week.

The camping sessions for physically and neurologically handicapped adults is sponsored by the Ohio Society for Crippled Children and Adults with the major portion of the financial obligations underwritten by local chapters of the Moose Association and its Auxiliary Chapters. Miss Parker was crippled by polio at the age of 10.

The adult program was originated four years ago under the chairmanship of Richard Wolfe in his capacity as Civic Affairs Chairman. Twenty nine adult campers attended the first session and approximately $380 was contributed by the local affiliates to assist the program.

Wolfe, now president of the State Moose Association, has reported that $3,442 has been contributed by the local affiliates and the camping program is filled to the capacity of 60 campers.

Thirty seven of those registered for Easter Seal Camp this year are confined to wheel chairs and many will experience their first trip to camp and the independence granted by the week long vacation.

In ceremonies following Miss Parker's presentation, Richard J. Heckler of Dayton, currently serving as Civic Affairs Chairman made an honor presentation to Mr. Wolfe for service. On behalf of the Easter Seal Society, Miss Parker then presented Mr. Heckler with the Society honor award.

As a handicapped young adult, Miss Parker stated that she has been greatly impressed by the support and continuing encouragement given by the Association, and is now serving her community through the Defiance County Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

The Society camp program is supervised by Gary Corn of Cincinnati, with Linda Miklas of Youngstown serving as assistant director. Both Corn and Miss Miklas are former counselors at the Easter Seal camp at Pittinger, and Corn is the former director of Camp Allyn at Batavia.

Thirty college are graduate and undergraduate students serve the Society as counselors for the camping program which includes two sessions of children's camping during the early summer months.

The children's program, composed of two weeks of residential camping in each session, includes the regular camp activities as geared to the limitations of the handicapped child.

In the adult session, river trips and pool activities are the order of the day, with rainy day movies and popcorn parties supplementing the crafts, sports and nature programs of the camp.

The Moose Association activity and Easter Seal Camp program is now under the direction of Mr. Heckler.

Ghetto Children See Country Life First-Hand

How many children do you know that have never been outside the city limits of Columbus?

There are many more than you think. The Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization is conducting trips to the country for many of Columbus' impoverished youth.

The trips are part of the War on Poverty program to bring cultural enrichment to the ghetto.

The outings are held twice-weekly on a farm 10 miles south of the city. Walter Cook, who became interested in CMACAO's summer program last year, acquired the land for the children.

The children represent the seven CMACAO service centers in the Columbus area. Each trip numbers 30 to 40 youngsters who, in a few short hours, are thoroughly absorbed with country life. They romp through the woods and fields, fish, play softball and touch-football and target shoot with bows and arrows.

For lunch, the children roast hot dogs over an open fire. Paul Bucher, of Bowman Dairy Products, provides milk and ice cream for each outing.

The children have a lot of fun on these outings, and plans are being made to include as many children as possible this summer. Walter Cook says, "Since the children are especially interested in driving my small tractor, I would like to build a Go-Cart track."

Many of the boys enjoy archery, and efforts are being made to train them for competition on a local, national and possibly an international level.

This project is an example of the concern that is needed to relieve the fears and frustrations existent among ghetto children.

Rummage Sale Planned By ARC

A rummage sale will be held at 910 Mt. Vernon Ave. Saturday, Aug. 24 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The sale is sponsored by ARC 9, and all proceeds will be donated to aid retarded children in Columbus and Franklin County.

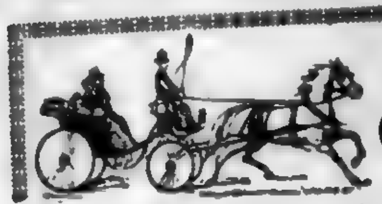
Many back-to-school items will be featured, as well as adult clothing, children's toys and games, shoes, hats, small furnishings and odds and ends.

Mrs. Robert Patterson, chairman of the event, says that all terms will be cash and free coffee will be served by the members of the organization throughout the day.

Mental Health Plea Presented

A plea to continue and enlarge the federally supported comprehensive community mental health center program was given to the Democratic Regional National Pl[illegible] Committee by a mental [illegible] expert.

Mrs. Marion S. Wells, executive director of the Ohio Mental Health Association, told members that a greater program of federal assistance to the states in the area of mental health was needed.



CROSS TOWN

It's a boy — twice — for the Geoffrey Dopps (he's manager of the Indianola Avenue B. F. Goodrich Store). Patricia Dopp presented her husband with twin boys at a Covington, Ky., hospital. Nicholas Gilmer weighed in at six pounds, seven ounces. The smaller edition, Mark Haines, weighed a tiny three pounds, 10 ounces, and required incubation before he came home to the family residence in Forest Park.

Promotions are the order of the day at Ohio State University. William Whitesides was promoted to associate voice professor in the school of music and Dr. Larry Anderson is the new academic vice chairman of the chemistry department.

Welcome to Dr. John Sheller, who has opened his office for general dentistry practice at 495 E. Main St. in Groveport. Dr. Sheller will serve the growing East - Southeast area.

Mrs. Odella Welch, 1051 Rosewood Ave., is the new administrative assistant to State Auditor Roger Cloud. Mrs. Welch is former administrative secretary to the Ohio Youth Commission. She'll handle research and public relations for the auditor's office.

Cross Town's congratulations to three area residents who have completed their work toward a certificate in cosmetology. They are Ronald Benton, 1807 Oak St., Donzella F. Hall, 1367 E. Deshler, and Dora Moore, 183 N. Central.

Everyone must be out of town — slow news week. But they'll all be back for Spectator Day at Jet Stadium on Sunday. You be there, too. Get your coupon inside this week's Spectator.

Columbus Public School Conference Slated Aug. 29

"The Human Landscape: Challenges and Commitment" is the topic for the 15th annual Pre-Opening Conference for Columbus Public School teachers and administrators.

The opening session for the 1968-69 school year will be held Thursday, Aug. 29, at Mershon Auditorium on The Ohio State University campus.

The all-day program for more than 4,000 teachers and educators will feature morning addresses by Phyllis Yampolsky, New York City, and Dr. Kenneth R. Johnson of the University of Southern California, Los Angeles.

Dr. Harold H. Eibling, beginning his 13th year as superintendent of schools in Columbus, will bring greetings to the moring assembly of educators.

Afternoon activities will include a panel of local professional and business representatives discussing educational challenges and commitment in Columbus.

The keynote speaker, Phyllis Yampolsky, has served as a constultant to Title III Prototype for Junior High School and Pre-School Experiments, Long Island University Education Department. She was the designer and producer of "Impact 1968"—a four-week experimental school for multi-media, sponsored by the New York State Board of Education. Miss Yampolsky is noted for her creative talents as an art director, cartoonist, illustrator, muralist, poet and teacher.

Dr. Kenneth R. Johnson, an instructor in the School of Education, University of Southern California, since 1967, has had extensive experience as a consultant and teacher across the U. S. in such school systems as Chicago, San Jose and Los Angeles City Schools. Mr. Johnson earned his Ph.D. from the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, in August, 1968.

His speciality is research on Negro dialects and teaching disadvantaged pupils in socio-linguistics, Dr. Johnson has led a number of seminars and professional meetings for the entire staff of Title I programs in the Columbus Public School System. He has published a number of articles in periodicals and in professional newsletters.

OSU To Honor Local Residents At Ceremonies

Two Columbus residents are among those receiving the Distinguished Service Award at Ohio State University's summer commencement Friday, Aug. 30.

Christine Y. Conaway, 1230 Glenn Ave., dean of women from 1944-1967, will be one recipient of the honorary award.

She is a native of Columbus and a 1923 graduate of OSU. She also received her M.A. degree at OSU in 1942.

Mylin H. Ross, 1876 Coventry Rd., began his career at OSU in 1947 in the dean of men's office.

Ross is past president of the Ohio Association of Student Personnel Administrators and has served on the board of directors of the Franklin County branch of the American Cancer Society

NAACP Begins Voter Sign-Up Drive Locally

The Columbus branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is sponsoring a voter registration drive.

The drive began Aug. 14 with a fulltime coordinator, secretary and community canvassers.

A grant from the national NAACP office is underwriting these drives.

According to local NAACP president, William Davis, the scarcity of black GOP delegates was due to the lack of black voters at the polls and black workers at the precinct levels.

A CONTINUING SERIES: PART III

Ohio's Prisons: Symbolic Of A Backward State?

By REV. TOM SAGENDORF

Some people still think that a prison is a place for punishment.

The idea is to lock the felon behind the steel and stone to "get even" with him for his crime. Not only is he punished by being removed from free society and all his human relationships, he is punished each day behind the walls by cruel treatment . . .

AT THE END of this kind of agony, society will have collected its "eye-for-eye," the inmate has been hurt enough to "pay" for his crime, and everyone is supposed to be happy . . .

Obviously (take a look at Ohio prisons) this kind of thinking sounds great to a lot of people. But there's one drawback: it doesn't work.

Somehow, after years of cruel and dehumanizing treatment behind the walls, the inmate doesn't emerge with a clean slate and a whole new outlook on life, ready to become a responsible, law-abiding citizen. Just the opposite is likely to happen; he's likely to be returned within a matter of weeks for the same kind of anti-social behavior which earned him his first descent into the "Horrible World . . ."

BUILDING BRIDGES

Were a reasonable approach taken in Ohio to the huge problem of penology, it would be quite obvious why the "get even" approach doesn't work. Other countries and more progressive states have made this discovery long ago.

PUT SIMPLY: if you have a socially sick person — sick enough to commit a crime, you would be foolish to treat him in such a way as to contribute to his sickness — or make him even sicker . . .

That is why many states have progressed from the "punishment" approach to a "treatment" approach . . . There must now be a bridge between the prisons and the total community effort in dealing with these people and their social problems.

It would appear that the federal government, several states, and even some large cities are sincerely interested in rehabilitation instead of revenge. And why not? Less recidivism presents more protection to society; and dealing with social problems is more humane to prisoners . . .

NEW YORK PROGRAM

In this vein, it's worth noting some of the programs and attitudes of the New York City Department of Correction . . . which plans to undertake a "work-release" program for some of its prisoners.

AFTER A SCREENING of inmates and prospective employers, certain inmates will be allowed to leave the prison daily to work in private industry on the "outside."

The inmates will be treated like other civilian employes, wearing the clothes normal for the job, taking a normal lunch hour and working a normal five-day week.

Though no attempt will be made to hide their convict status from the other employes, there will be no surveillance by prison guards at the place of employment.

PRISONERS WILL be strictly on an honor system in such matters as returning to the prison at night. The money the inmates make will be divided between their family needs, saving in preparation for their final release and spending money in prison . . .

It also includes intensive counseling and job placement for those not on work-release programs; it includes an open appeal to the city's universities to help in rehabilitation programs; it includes new attitudes of prison officers as they "assume a much broader role to help to repair the prisoners' lives"; it includes a willingness to experiment in rehabilitation even without immediate results; and it includes a man at the top whose goal is "concentration on personalized attention" for every prisoner.

BACKWARD STATE?

But that's New York. What about Ohio?

As we have seen before, this picture puts Ohio in the "backward state" category again. Still a punitive philosophy in Ohio . . .

WHY IS OHIO so far behind?

Why is it that Ohio maintains a penal system which is dtstructive to the inmates and to the public?

Why is Ohio penology caught in a maelstrom of dehumanization and cruelty to the prisoners and hyper-paranoia, incompetence and lack of vision at the administrative level?

Could it be, in part, that the Christian Church in Ohio hasn't heard the gospel and hasn't really cared enough to insist on a penal structure which would free people with social problems to be human and whole instead of preventing this very thing?

Where does the responsibility really lie?

(Editor's Note: Last week's inmate rebellion at the penitentiary, in which a number of prisoners were killed, lends an ominous note to this continuing series by Rev. Tom Sagendorf, who was an intern chaplain at the Ohio Pen and also completed clinical training there. Rev. Sagendorf's articles, written two years before the most recent crisis, nevertheless point out some of the underlying problems involved.)

IT'S ADIEU TO SUMMER FUN

There comes a time in a young man's life when he must lay aside his ball and bat, rod and reel, bike and swim trunks and pick up the text books that will keep him busy during the next school year. Kerry Dobbins, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dobbins, 881 Kingsland Dr., Hamilton Meadows, has a word of cheer for Rags, who has been his constant companion this summer — "We'll still have our fun on weekends."

HAMILTON LEVY VOTE PROVES TO BE INVALID

The report in last week's Spectator that residents of Hamilton Local School District will be asked to approve a 13 mill operating levy was false — or at least premature.

After a three-two majority of the school board voted Monday, Aug. 19 to place the millage on the November ballot, the motion was declared passed.

BY WEDNESDAY, it was ascertained that a rather monumental goof had been made.

It requires a two-thirds majority vote to place an operating levy on the ballot.

It remains something of a mystery as to who first woke up to this fact as Clerk Al Knodel, Supt. John Savel and several members of the board are all taking credit for recognizing the error).

Board President Bill Lares hastily reconvened the board, which met in special sesson Wednesday evening, for the express purpose of revoting on the issue.

This meeting established a record in brevity.

FOLLOWING A motion made by Mrs. Frances Shipley and unanimously passed to correct the minutes to show that the previous effort to approve the operating levy had failed, Joe Mace made another motion to place it on the ballot. (Mace had voted in its favor last week).

And then the fun began.

Mrs. Shipley, who had uttered a vehement "No" to the proposal last week seconded the motion. Lares again voted "Yes," Don Beggrow repeated his "No" and Tim Gibbs who a week ago had made the original motion, switched to the negative.

ONCE AGAIN the four votes necessary for the issue's passage had not been obtained.

At that point the meeting adjourned upon the move of Mace.

Supt. John Savel was not present (he was attending a Reserve meeting) but it is doubtful if he would have shown much pleasure at the vote.

HE HAD SENT word by Lares that he hoped there would be unanimity in the board's action. (A written recommendation previously submitted by him to the board asking the levy be set at 5.9 mills had received little attention).

After the meeting, board members indicated there was little chance for such unanimity.

Beggrow stated that he could never vote for 13 mills which he feels has little or no chance for passing, and Lares was equally adamant that he would not vote for less than the 13 mills which he considers mandatory for school operation.

LATER IN THE week, Gibbs explained the reversal of his vote on the matter.

He stated that he felt Mrs. Shipley had changed her vote only upon the persuasion of Lares, and he believes efforts by one board member to influence the vote of another to be improper.

Inferring that such action and other similar action on the part of the board in recent months were more fitting to "a bunch of kids playing marbles" than to elected officials serving the public, he said, "I'm just sick and tired of it."

GIBBS ALSO was highly critical of what he believes is an almost complete disregard of Savel's recommendations by some members of the board.

"We pay him well to give us professional advice. We should certainly listen to it," he said, referring to Savel's recommendation for a 5.9 millage.

He implied his original motion for 13 mills was made in anticipation of its defeat to clear the air and to allow dis-

'Kid Commanders' Needed To Take Over Lockbourne

Eight "Kid Commanders" are needed to take charge of Lockbourne Air Force Base Sunday, Sept. 29.

The take-over will be sponsored by the Kiwanis Club and youngsters between seven and 13 years of age will fill eight base positions. There's even one for young ladies—chief nurse.

Interested youngsters should write to the Kid Commander Contest, Office of Information, Lockbourne AFB, Ohio 43217, and briefly explain why they want to be commander.

Be sure to include full name, address, age, telephone number and parents' name.

The contest will close Sept. 6 at midnight. Winners will be selected by the Kiwanis Club planning committee for the Air Force/Kiwanis Kids' Day open house.

Madison Asks Voters To Okay 8.5 Mill Levy

By unanimous vote, members of the Madison Local Board of Education approved placing an 8.5 mill operating levy on the November ballot.

Fully recognizing this millage will be a jolt to taxpayers, the board took the action only after deciding they could not, with conscience, ask for less money than school operation will require.

SUPT. PHIL WILLIAMS broke down the intended use of the $340,000 the millage can generate if approved as follows:

- 2.2 mills which were spent this year from a now depleted [illegible]
- 2.5 mills for cost of living pay increases for both certificated and non certificated personnel.
- Normal expense of educating 500 additional children a year in an inflated economy.

"None of this money can be spent for new or improved programs," he emphasized. "This is merely the amount that will allow us to keep our doors open with the same program we have."

"TO ASK FOR a lesser millage would mean that something would have to go, and no one believes the present curriculum should be chopped."

He added that the first step in the effort to gain passage of the levy will be a campaign urging voter registration.

A recent move of the State Board of Education assures that the levy will be the only school issue facing Madison voters Nov. 5.

THE DECISION expected early in September on whether Madison will receive favorable action on its request for state building assistance has been postponed until the State Board sits in October. (The work of establishing priorities among the 30 districts that have applied for aid when money is available for only a half dozen cannot be completed until then.)

Approval of the $6,000,000 request would require the district bonding itself to capacity (about an additional $275,000) and passing a 22 year .5 levy.

With the October decision coming after filing deadline, the possible bonanza from the state will involve a special election, if it actually materializes.

PARENTS OF kindergarten children can be happy with one recent state action that will allow Madison to provide two-way transportation for such students.

With state subsidy now available for kindergarten busing, Madison will run such routes at noon this year. (In the past parents were responsible for bringing morning students home and taking afternoon class members to school, with the school board providing only morning and late afternoon transportation.)

Williams anticipates the new routes to be put into effect by Sept. 9, and possibly earlier.

BIDS AWARDED Monday night included those to Sinclair Refining Co. for gasoline, Pioneer Mutual Casualty Co. through Murray Hughes Agency for bus insurance and Harmony Farms for ice cream and milk.

Williams reported no action has yet been taken on two zoning requests watched with interest by the Board.

The applicant for rezoning of 26.2 acres at Munks Corners to allow apartment construction asked that the hearing be postponed. He is considering a revision of plans which may be submitted anytime before the public hearing now set for Sept. 11.

THE APPLICATION for rezoning of the 19 acres just east of Madison Elementary was withdrawn at the hearing held Aug. 15 as the applicant has optioned additional adjoining property.

Harrison Smith, attorney, has asked to meet with the Madison board after a new proposal is developed and before Madison takes a pro or con stand on it.

Other action included election of Lott Smith as vice president of the Board to succeed Bob Barker who is on overseas assignment.

ACCORDING TO Williams, the Watkins Road farmer also won the appreciation of the Board when he brought an irrigation set up to water the new football field at the junior high site.

"I really think Lott saved our turf," Williams said.

Groveport Demands New Postal Facilities

Within a few hundred dollars of the $14,000 necessary to buy the property for off-street parking in the business area, Groveport Council took steps this week to bring a new post office to the village.

Recognizing that the present post office and parking area are currently inadequate to serve the community, Council is requesting the Postmaster General to establish new facilities as soon as possible.

AS OTHER neighboring communities have been successful in such efforts (Ashville and Canal Winchester, namely) it is anticipated that the Postmaster will look kindly upon Groveport's request.

One of the favorable factors involved is that little outlay of federal money is involved as it has become postal policy to buy only the land and to lease new construction, built to government specifications.

(The lease is given to the private investor who bids the lowest 10 year rental figure.)

Short only $415 of the money which will establish a parking lot south of Main Street, Council held the first reading of the ordinance banning head-in parking on the south side of Main Street between Crooked Alley and Wirt Road.

THIS MOVE MAY well be the spur that will raise the last dollars needed, as it is recognized that without parking, local merchants might as well close their doors.

As energetically as Mayor Roger Higgins and council have pushed the parking lot, they balked this week at providing the balance with city funds for a facility they consider a direct benefit to the businessmen of the community.

The second piece of parking legislation came with a ban on parking (either head-in or parallel) on the north side of Main between College and Mohr.

OTHER ORDINANCES passed employed Joseph Chandler as a fulltime police officer and Roger Pennell as a street maintenance man.

Pennell was assured of a few idle hours this winter when street chairman Wayne Boyer was authorized to purchase, piecemeal, the machinery and parts necessary to build a tar distributor.

The new maintenance employe, who has considerable experience as a mechanic, be-

Naming Of Miss Canal Winchester To Kick Off Labor Day Festivities

Canal Winchester beauty shops are swamped and mothers are as nervous as their daughters as local lasses from six to 18 ready themselves for the annual search for Miss Canal Winchester and her three counterparts in "economy sizes."

The pageant in the high school auditorium at 8 p.m. Saturday, to the strains of the Joe Marlee Trio will be preceeded by dress rehearsal Friday afternoon at 4.

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Norman Hyduck, pageant chairman, nine high school girls over 15 years old will compete for the title of Miss Canal Winchester. The queen will receive $50 from the Huntington National Bank, a hair piece from DeLuca's Salons, a dinner for two at King Arthurs, a make-up kit from Fashion 220 and cosmetics from Avon and Vivian Woodward.

Fourteen young ladies from 13 to 15 are vying for the title of Junior Miss Canal Winchester. The prizes in this category include $25 contributed by the Winchester Mauser Sausage Co., a Junior Playtape, hairstyling by the Old Canal Beauty Shoppe, Dinner for two at Shades and cosmetics by Avon and Vivean Woodward.

Both Little Miss (nine to 12) and Tiny Miss (six to eight) will receive shoes from Elkins, $5 and transistor radios.

IN ADDITION, the 22 youngsters in the former will vie for a trip to Jane's Beauty Shop and dinner at the Wigwam, while the 28 wee contestants will parade for a chance at dinner at Love's and a session at Lexie's Beauty Shop.

Sunday has been declared Community Day and Canal will keep the Labor Day observance going with church service at the school at 8:30 a.m. and adult square dancing in the Huntington National Bank parking lot during the evening.

The big parade will roll at 2 p.m. Monday led by the four queens and their courts.

JUDGING WILL be held on the high school football field with the Labor Day committee providing cash prizes for floats and individual en-

SE School Superintendents Anticipate 12,000 Students

Local school superintendents are predicting a record enrollment of at least 12,000 when students answer the opening bells in Canal Winchester, Groveport-Madison, Hamilton and Teays Valley Districts next week.

Most of the increase in anticipated enrollment lies within the Groveport-Madison District where Supt. Phil Williams is guestimating pupil population at 4,500, more than 500 over that of last spring.

HOWEVER, WILLIAMS states the opening of three additions (nine rooms in Madison Elementary, five in Dunloe and five at the Junior High) will preclude any serious problems in student housing.

He reports that the staff of 195 (20 more than last year) is filled, 24 buses ready to roll and the bus service garage in operation.

Williams added he is particularly pleased with the summer program of maintenance carried out by the custodial staff.

TIME SCHEDULES announced for Madison are: Groveport and Madison elementaries, 9:15 a.m.-3:45 p.m.; Asbury and Dunloe elementaries, 8:45 a.m.-3:15 p.m.; junior high, 8:08 a.m.-2:40 p.m., and high school, 8 a.m.-2:25 p.m.

School will be dismissed 45 minutes early on opening day, Wednesday, Sept. 4. (All Southeast schools open Wednesday except Teays Valley, which opens on Tuesday).

Carl Miller, superintendent at Canal Winchester, anticipates a stable enrollment in the neighborhood of 1,070.

HE STATES the new 13-room elementary wing is ready for operation, and assures the crowded conditions of recent years when it has been necessary to use library and other non-academic areas for classroom space are over.

The new teachers have been added, bringing certificated staff to 49.

The Canal Winchester schedule is: grades one through four, 8:40 a.m.-2:40 p.m.; grades five and six, 8 a.m.-2:40 p.m.; grades seven through 12, 8 a.m.-3:26 p.m.

ALTHOUGH enrollment at Hamilton is not expected to rise above the 3,900 of last spring until later in the year, faculty and classroom cutbacks are expected to boost pupil-teacher ratios.

According to Supt. John Savel, the increase will be particularly noticeable at some elementary levels where as many as 35 pupils per room are anticipated.

The cutbacks, necessitated by a tight budget situation, involves reducing certificated personnel from 174 to 163 and loss of five classrooms.

THIRTEEN board-owned buses and four leased buses will be in operation.

Savel stressed that enrollment in Hamilton is always speculative with the number of dependents from Lockbourne Air Force Base personnel hard to accurately forecast.

The Hamilton time schedule is: senior high, 7:45 a.m.-2:14 p.m.; junior high, 9:30-3:51; elementary, 8:30-3:15 p.m., and kindergarten (morning) 8:30 a.m.-11 a.m. and (afternoon) noon until 2:45 p.m.

AN ADDITIONAL 100 students at Teays Valley, according to Supt. Benis Lutz, is expected to bring enrollment to 2,500 with the resulting elementary classroom pupil-teacher ratio pushing 40 to one.

One elementary teacher has been added to staff the classroom area created by conversion of the Ashville elementary music room and bringing the certificated personnel total to 100.

The dual bus routing initiated last spring during the last six days of school will be followed and Lutz suggests all students be at pickup points early the first week to allow drivers to make necessary adjustments.

..THE HIGH school and elementaries will follow the regular schedule of 8:45 and 9 a.m. opening respectively Tuesday but will dismiss one hour ahead of the customary 3:45 and 3 p.m. closing time.

Eastland Vocational Will Open Wednesday

It's been a race against time, but Supt. David Martin states the Eastland Joint Vocational School will open its doors Wednesday.

Although certain areas of the new $3.5 million facility designed principally to serve students from Whitehall, Canal Winchester, Reynoldsburg, Madison and Jefferson Local districts will not be ready to use, Martin and his staff have made arrangements to accommodate each of the 500 pre-registered students.

All of the labs except that of the Distributive Education are operable and the only apparent real inconvenience will be the lack of five academic classrooms. It is anticipated the general contractors, Mason and Isabel, who started with an open field only a year ago, will have these rooms, the cafeteria, the Health Center and the main lobby ready for occupancy later this month.

A flag raising ceremony will be held shortly before classes open at 8:25 a.m. and the first assembly is slated at 10 a.m.

The staff, Martin reports, of 50 including 37 certificated personnel has been filled.

Opening enrollment includes tuition students from Bexley, Westerville, Southwest Licking, Licking and Pickerington school districts and the Bishop Hartley parish.

lieves he can build the street maintenance machine for $1,000 to $1,200, a fraction of what even second hand equipment would cost.

AS CONTRACT tarring is an expensive business, Council anticipates the distributor will pay for itself in less than a year.

A report by Councilman Bill Hamler on water tests indicates that local residents who have been complaining about hard water aren't imagining anything.

The tests show that it is virtually untreated and the degree of hardness classifies it as mere "well water."

THE TROUBLE stems from the fact that to keep up with the demands on the overtaxed system, it has been increasingly necessary to totally bypass the softener.

Following Council meeting, Higgins expressed the belief that a $125,000 expansion of the water plant is in the offing.

On the more optimistic side for local residents was the prediction by Higgins that the pending report on sewer financing by Burgess and Niples will recommend a reduction in sewer rates.

THE REPORT is due Oct. 1, and although no official word has been given, Higgins stated he is confident that at least a small cut is in store for the village. He bases his assumption, at least in part, on the fact that the sewer reserve fund is almost double the $30,000 required by law.

Other business included authorization for Clerk Opal Rohr to attend the Cleveland meeting of the Ohio Municipal League and the report that the floor of the shelter house in the park has been poured and the building should be completed in time for fall wiener roasts.

Once the shelter house is finished, it is the intention of Council to solicit local help to clean up the recently acquired Lock area east of the park.

COUNCILMAN Marshall McGuire reported to Council that the state has indicated to him that local efforts to beautify the Lock area will lead to additional canal land being turned over to the village.

Other highlights of Monday's program include the Garden Club Display at the Methodist Church, the talent show and garden tractor pull which will begin as soon as parade judging is complete, and introduction of the C-W gridironers.

Barbecued chicken will be the piece de resistance at the refreshment stands and tables which will open from parade time on.

Juanita Rausch, left, and her sister, Ramona, do not associate the raising of the Stars and Stripes with a football game. To them it is an every-day event when their mother, Mrs. A. R. Rausch, flies the flag on the mast installed on the lawn of their East Columbus home.

Columbus Woman Seeks Others To Share 'Pride In America'

Like most housewives, Mrs. A. R. Rausch follows a morning routine of dish washing, bed making and room-straightening.

But she differs from many in an additional task to which she is completely dedicated.

FEW DAYLIGHT hours are allowed to pass before she raises her country's flag—or "Glory" as she refers to it—in front of her home at 2800 Eastminster Rd.

Long an advocate of displaying the U.S. flag, Mrs. A. R. Rausch has recently become affiliated with an organization which shares with her the old-fashioned concepts of patriotism.

It is the "Pride in America Committee" of which Dwight Eisenhower is honorary chairman.

THE ORGANZATION, which was formed a year ago to encourage flying of the Stars and Stripes, opening and closing of meetings with the Pledge of Allegiance and other simple acts of respect and pride in one's nation, has named Mrs. Rausch its local representative.

And she is making a double-barreled approach toward her responsibilities as a local committee woman.

She sees the movement toward a flag flying over every home and business on national holidays as a potential gold mine to PTA's, church groups and other social and civic organizations in their fund raising efforts.

MRS. RAUSCH has secured a wholesale price on flags which such groups can sell, upon order, at a reasonable profit.

Any non-profit organization interested in bolstering its budget and hoisting "Old Glory" over the city at the same time is urged to call Mrs. Rausch, 231-8176, for further details.

She'll even furnish you the Washington address of "Pride in America" so you too can become a member of the patriotic committee.

Hellerman Lions' Guest

Will Hellerman, Nationwide vice president and president of the Board of Trustees of Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Committee, spoke when the Hamilton Township Lions held the August meeting.

According to George Robinson, publicity chairman, his insight to the social and economic problems facing Metropolitan Columbus led the group to seek a return engagement at Hellerman's earliest convenience.

Dinner was served by the members of the Hamilton Township High School chapter of the Future Homemakers of America.

Former Spectator Carrier Relates Story Off SS Help

Richard Williams has had his share of bad luck since the days when he was a Spectator news boy.

Williams, 380 Innis Ave., is allowing the Social Security Administration to tell his story to help reach others with similar troubles who may be unaware of recent changes in the SS laws that may help them as he has been helped.

HIS ORDEAL began in March of 1967 when he lifted a washing machine off a coworker who had fallen on a set of stairs.

Subsequent pneumonia and temporary paralysis developed with a diagnosis of tuberculosis of the bone leading to extended hospitalization.

Although Williams was under 24 years old at the time, six quarters of SS coverage qualified him for disability benefits and a rehabilitation program that will allow him to return to work.

ACCORDING TO the Administration, persons like Williams who were ineligible for disability benefits before amendments to the law are urged to contact the local office of Health, Education and Welfare, 170 N. High St.

Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, August 29, 1968

The Other Side

It sounds like Franklin County Welfare Director Tom Brittenham is being made the scapegoat for the problems of the whole public assistance system.

County Commissioners suspended Brittenham for 15 days Monday and appointed director of personnel services Michael Seidemann as acting director until further notice.

In a five-page listing of charges against the welfare director, commissioners claimed county taxpayers have lost money because of administrative errors.

The commissioners' charges contained key wording—such as "poor management and indecision" and "dissatisfaction with policy and supervision" — which probably explains factors other than financial behind the suspension.

But while commissioners have documented their case—and the Welfare Advisory Board and Mr. Brittenham have not yet—we believe there is another side to the story.

County Commissioners would like the county to believe Brittenham is responsible for present difficulties. And they seem to have the ears of the press.

But neither Tom Brittenham nor the Welfare Advisory Board have been fully informed.

We believe commissioners must also assume some share of the guilt for present problems—and that they are trying very hard to blame Brittenham for a crisis they have blundered as well.

How can our welfare department be termed a county venture when the commissioners refuse to consult fully with the advisory board? Moreover, even if the advisory board returns a decision contrary to the three commissioners they will probably go ahead and fire the welfare director anyway.

Commissioners criticize Brittenham for failing to comply with state welfare standards regarding a reduced general relief caseload. But wasn't it the commissioners who were partly responsible for the crisis? They helped to remove professionals from the welfare department who could help do what they want. Their attitudes have also prompted a high staff turnover.

In reality, it is not Tom Brittenham who is on trial. He has made some mistakes—but not as many as a system which denies dignity to those human beings on relief.

We wonder if Tom Brittenham's situation is so cut and dried that the commissioners think no reservations about their decisions are possible. We ask: Will they at least listen to recommendations from the advisory board?

We wonder if they will find a qualified director to replace Brittenham—particularly since they have alienated the professionals who could have helped?

We wonder if it is not now time to take welfare policies out of the hands of those who have neither the time nor the professional understanding to handle problems?

While commissioners are naturally concerned about fiscal problems, they appear indifferent to the cost in human lives of a system they have helped to stagnate.

New Horizons

Ohio Dominican College — formerly College Of St. Mary Of The Springs—officially celebrates its name change this coming Sunday with appropriate ceremonies.

The occasion is a red-letter affair in many respects with three of Ohio's distinguished sons receiving honorary "Doctor of Humanities" degrees and newly-installed Bishop Clarence E. Elwell giving the investiture address.

It will be one of Bishop Elwell's first public appearances since becoming Bishop of Columbus and the historic event will honor comedian Bobe Hope, one of the most successful entertainers of all time; Charles Y. Lazarus, president of the F. & R. Lazarus Company, who is widely recognized for his many contributions to the community; and Edward F. Wagner, vice-president of Nationwide Mutual Insurance Company and prominent in Columbus civic affairs.

Great growth is in promise for Ohio Dominican. Five new scientific buildings are being planned among other lofty goals for this fully accredited, coeducational institution of higher learning.

Sunday's ceremonies fit the pattern and congratulations are due all around.

Sister M. Suzanne, president of Ohio Dominican, aptly remarked: "Our college has had many notable days in its 57 years. Certainly, Sept. 1, 1968 will be one of the most historic."

Greater Columbus and all Spectatorland share the pride and joy linked to this wonderful occasion . . . . and join with Ohio Dominican College in looking to bright, new educational horizons in the exciting years ahead.

Keeping The Faith

By JOHN MORGAN

You can see them sitting on a wall at a campus restaurant near Ohio State University or on the steps of an apartment building on High Street. Long, dangling hair and "love beads," square glasses and dirty blue jeans — they sit and talk as passers-by glance at them in obvious disgust.

"The only thing these guys fear is soap," a man told me as a nasty sneer brought dimples to his cheeks.

These young "love-children" I found myself talking to were the children of the children of the depression, the products of the Bomb-Freud-Technological Age.

STILL UNDER 30, I could be trusted. And the story they told me I have heard before. I heard it first in my own generation. But it was only a dim cry.

• • •

My generation followed that group of young Americans classified as the "Silent Generation." My generation began to get more vocal. We put our bodies under the blunt strokes of the billy club in Mississippi. We marched down back roads in Alabama, where the hot sun and the mocking townspeople bore down on our souls. We joined the Peace Corps, and marched off to lands to suffer with the people, to build hospitals and construct irrigation systems.

Pious generalizations and words without meaning made us sick. We were, to use the old cliche, INVOLVED.

BUT WE BEGAN to see our involvement was mistrusted, misused and misunderstood. We rebuilt a bombed-out church in Mississippi and two months later found out it had been bombed again.

We participated in voter-registration drives only to discover the same political faces in office. We protested a war only to find it escalated each day. We found our heroes — and they were shot to death.

Of course, there were many in my generation who were not concerned — this always makes up the largest percentage of any new movement. We saw them finish their degrees, join the armed forces or assume their pleasant vocations as we bled on the streets of New York City or Birmingham, Ala. And we resented them for their indifference.

Then my generation merged into the American dream. We got married, had children and settled down to the brutal, agonizing task of making this a better world. But this was never an easy task. We could not rest at peace with a world in which so much suffering continued. We "did our thing," but we never rested secure that we had made the world safe for human habitation.

• • •

And then a new generation of young people came along. They reacted against what we had done. Instead of turning outward toward the world, they "tuned in and dropped out." They turned to drugs, to Indian sages, to obscure poetry, to secret cults.

AND THOSE OF US who were the children of John F. Kennedy were at first shocked, until we remembered what had happened to our dreams — bruised and battered in the streets of the city and in the rice paddies of Vietnam. And we understood this new generation, even if we did not fully agree with them. Maybe it was a time to withdraw, to take stock of ourselves, to find peace.

Today, the cycle of youthful history has again turned. The love-children have turned to violent-children. We hear their bitterness in the ghetto; we see their hopelessness spilled out in senseless acts of intimidation and force.

IF WE CANNOT approve of their violence, we do sense their anger and frustration. For there have been times in our generation when we wanted to hit back, to strike the Confederate flag-carrying spectator spitting out his venom or the massive policeman clubbing a black woman in Alabama.

None of us knows where history will end. We do not know if it will judge us harshly — for, after all, we also made mistakes. We fought for civil rights in the South, and sometimes missed segregation in our own backyard. We struggled against a war overseas and missed the developing crisis in our own nation.

Nevertheless, in these three generations there have been common battle cries. We all have been alienated, cut off from the mainstream of American life. We all have felt disinherited, adrift in a universe we did not create and could not for the life of us control.

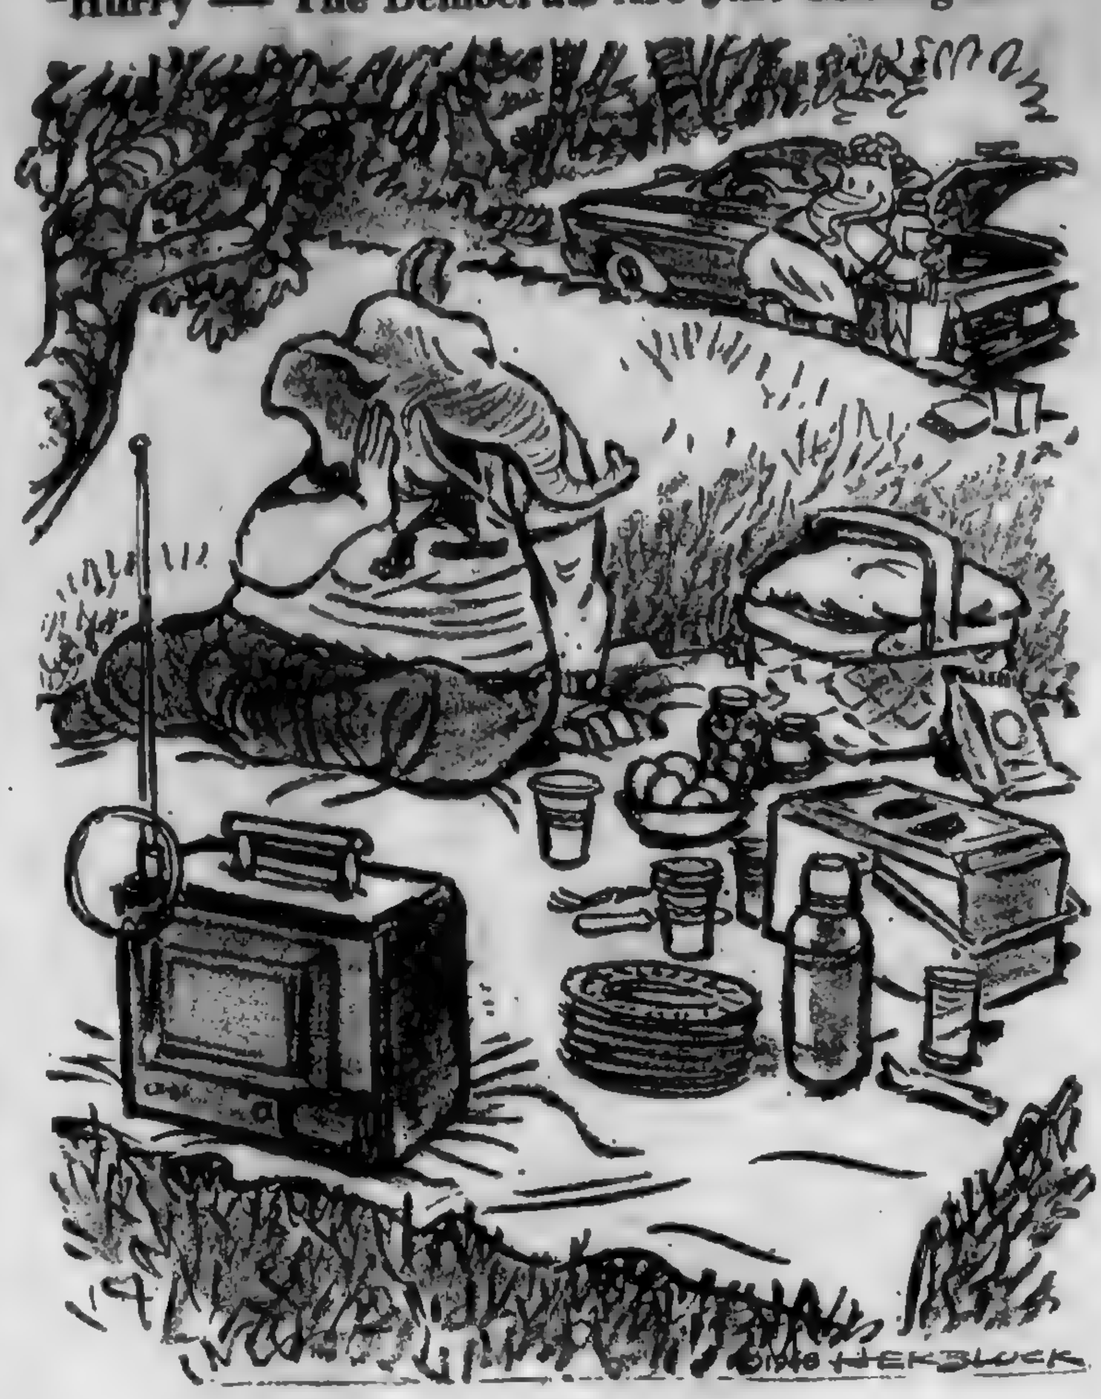
• • •

And now my generation is alone. We understand the bitterness and the harshness, but it is not our bitterness any longer. We have either grown up or sold out, depending on how you see it.

But we have not yet quit. We still have faith — we believe that America can be what it says it is — a land open to the possibility of freedom for every man, black and white; a country where a man can be judged on the quality of his life and not the quantity of his possessions; a home for the alienated and the poor.

We still believe this — as I think millions of Americans do.

"Hurry — The Democrats Are Just Coming On"



Excedrin Headache '68

By ROBERT W. REIDER
Editor and Publisher

REIDER

CHICAGO — Ponder the plight of Ohio Democratic Chairman Pete O'Grady and his aides.

One of their biggest Excedrins has been an attempt to satisfy members of the Ohio delegation with convention guest tickets.

With more than 300 delegates and alternates on hand, the clamor for tickets has been deafening. As the convention opened, a spokesman for the Buckeye delegation hopefully opined "we may get as many as 50 tickets — if we're lucky."

That figure seemed overly-optimistic amid reports that only 14 had been allotted to Michigan.

Many Ohio delegates brought wives and other members of their family. Even if O'Grady became "lucky" and received an allotment of 50 ducats he couldn't begin to satisfy the delegates' needs. Not to mention requirements of congressmen, candidates for congress and other ranking party members who, now that they are here, are frustrated at the prospect of watching the proceedings on television from their hotel rooms.

How did the Democrats get into such a dilemma?

One explanation is that convention plans were made long before LBJ took himself out of the presidential race. At the time it appeared that the 1968 gathering would be a routine affair, attracting little interest or attention. There was a feeling in some quarters that the Party might even be embarrassed by a lack of attendance.

Consequently, delegate quotas were raised to assure a crowd. Arrangements were made for approximately 5,000 delegates and alternates, leaving accommodations for 1,900 guests. At the time and under the circumstances this seemed ample.

Then came LBJ's sudden withdrawal and the subsequent wide open fight involving Humphrey, McCarthy, McGovern, et al.

Suddenly from a lack-lustre, uninviting convention the 1968 event developed into the exciting free-for-all affair that has ticket handlers talking to themselves.

They'll probably survive this crisis as they have others in the past. But when this convention is over, O'Grady's ticket dispensers, Phyllis Blake and Dicksie Bradford, will be qualified either for service with the diplomatic corps or ready for a long session with their favorite psychiatrist.

Cop Out

By TED BEARDSHEAR

I have a television set.

It is an 11-inch portable which can get only one station but it's mine and I love it.

Back in my youth, I was crucially interested in the vital issues of the times. I read literature voraciously; I read a lot of philosophy and history and most of the liberal education fare. I wrote stories of man finding himself in present day society . . . the struggle of the young to find identity and place.

I was on the road before Jack Kerouac wrote about it, before the Beat Generation came into being. I was a Bohemian in New York's Greenwich Village before the Hippies. I wrote unintelligible poems.

But now I'm over 30 and I've copped out. I have a steady job which I like and I am part of the "Establishment" I spent 10 years defying.

And in the evening, away from the stresses of the office, I like to watch my 11-inch portable that gets only one station. I like to be entertained.

So what happens? Last night, Walter Cronkite was replaced with the U.N. and its debate on including the Czech crisis on the Security Council agenda. Much of the proceedings went on in French.

I wanted to hear the news.

Besides, I've become jaded with the effectiveness of the U.N. to handle any problem — much less one which concerns a super-power.

Besides, I got a "D" in French and couldn't understand half the proceedings.

Next, "Lost In Space" was replaced by an hour-long news special commenting on the Czech crisis. It was a hasty hodgepodge of things, mainly [illegible] ed with what the crisis had to do with candidates' chances at the upcoming Democratic Convention.

I wanted to watch "Lost In Space." I've copped out, I tell you. I want to be entertained. I like the robot.

I like Ellie. She's prettier than Nixon.

It's not that I'm unconcerned with these events. It's just that I feel after a hard day's work I'm entitled to enjoy some relaxation and I resent being thwarted.

Nixon is running for office. O.K., let him speak on the news programs. The Czechs have been over-run. O.K., it's a matter for Walter Cronkite and the news. The Dems will have their convention and we will have to watch ALL the proceedings. O.K., let Cronkite handle the preliminaries.

What about all us Americans who just want to sit unintelligently in front of the boob tube and be entertained?

I've copped out, I tell you. I've had my concern and my interest and my rebellion. I watch the news every night because I want to be informed.

But that doesn't require me to be harassed with the mishmash last night's fare offered.

I've copped out, I tell you.

They Said It

"There have been extraordinary acts of violence throughout the nation and this pattern . . is no doubt due in part to the constantly recurring acts of violence . . . in our waging an undeclared war in South Vietnam."

WUAC Replies

To The Editor:

May I respond to your lead editorial in the August 22nd edition?

I have personally visited United Appeals headquarters and the net result was not a candid discussion of the pros and cons of our protests, but rather an attempt by U.A. officials to discredit and halt our actions.

Your editorial further states "If poverty, welfare, war are key community concerns in certain areas, why shouldn't a community group confront them." May I suggest that certain areas and certain citizens are negatively concerned with "open housing," "birth control," "school busing," and other controversial subjects. Does the Spectator advocate the use of community funds to confront these problems?

WUAC does not advocate nor condone the use of public funds to influence public opinion, regardless of the cause.

Your editorial also states, "Granted there may have been some pressure applied to employees of certain firms . . . this is not United Appeal's fault." I am surprised that the Spectator did not immediately assume this was a violation of someone's "civil liberties."

A final comment: It was most interesting to note your "two-sided" approach to community problems.

Editorial #1—"Watch UA?" "A public discussion only hurts."

Editorial #2—"Self Preservation" (dealing with the Ohio Pen).

"Act, Organize. Investigate. Read. And DO.". .

It seems to be — not a matter of principle: but your agreement with the cause.

How We Averted World War III

By ARTHUR HOPPE

It can now be told how World War III was narrowly averted on the night the Russians invaded Czechoslovakia.

As is well known, Secretary of State Dean Rusk abruptly left a meeting of the Democratic Platform Committee, where he had been defending our Vietnam policy, to attend an emergency session of the National Security Council.

• • •

What has not been revealed is the transcript of that unrecorded session:

THE PRESIDENT: Come on in, Dean. I was just saying that this here is a case of aggression, pure and simple.

MR. RUSK: Just what I've been saying myself, sir. And I say firmly we must honor our sacred commitment to freedom by employing our full military might to teach these Communists that aggression never pays.

THE PRESIDENT: In Czechoslovakia?

MR. RUSK: Oh, no, sir. In Vietnam. But let me add that the whole Free World supports the popular government of this brave little nation in its struggle.

MR. PRESIDENT: We finally got a popular government in Vietnam? That's mighty fine news.

MR. RUSK: Czechoslovakia, sir. But on that score, let's not forget the lesson of Munich. If we let the Communists gobble up one small nation, the Domino Theory tells us which one will be next.

THE PRESIDENT: Yugoslavia?

MR. RUSK: Thailand. This time, let's stand up to Hitler.

GENERAL WHEELER: You mean Mao Tse-tung. But speaking for the Joint Chiefs, Mr. President, we have long felt it would be a disaster to get bogged down in a land war.

THE PRESIDENT: In Asia?

GENERAL WHEELER: In Europe. And remember your promise, sir, that you'll "never send American boys to fight a war that Czechoslovakian boys should fight themselves."

THE PRESIDENT: I think I said Asian boys. But I did pledge to ""seek no wider war." And Czechoslovakia is sure wider. (Hopefully) Maybe the Russians will fail in this foul act of blatant intervention.

MR. RUSK: Don't count on it, sir. Look at history. The last time troops were sent in to topple an unfriendly government, they did it in no time.

MR. PRESIDENT: You mean Hungary?

MR. RUSK: No, I think the last time was the Dominican Republic.

THE PRESIDENT (angrily): Are you denying my right to call up troops to put down political troublemakers?

MR. RUSK: In Czechoslovakia, sir? No, that's the Russians. Oh, you mean Vietnam.

THE PRESIDENT: Anywhere, dang it. (More calmly) Of course, let's remember we've already got [illegible] million boys committed. So I say let's take a firm stand, condemn the aggression and dump the whole [illegible] in the U.N.'s lap.

MR. RUSK: Vietnam, sir?

THE PRESIDENT: Czechoslovakia, damn it. Stop asking fool questions. The time's come to be realistic.

MR. RUSK: About Vietn . . . Excuse me, sir. I almost asked another fool question.

Oh, about World War III. That almost occurred when General Wheeler misread his understandably-confused notes and thought he'd been ordered to "call up troops" to "put down political troublemakers."

He couldn't recall whether the President wanted them shipped to Czechoslovakia or Vietnam. And he didn't want to ask a fool question. But fortunately, after much thought, he sent them to Chicago instead.

Staff Workers Tell Of The Real Gladden House

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Any organization which tries to reach people where they live is open to controversy and criticism — particularly when that group deals with the troubled environment of the city

Gladden Community House, 183 Hawkes Ave., has come in for its share of negative comments recently — and according to staff members this criticism has centered only on certain limited facets of programs at the community house.

Reading recent accounts of Gladden activities would lead an unknowing person to conclude that the community house is a center for questionable teenage activities and controversial topics.

Staff members contend rather angrily that the real work of Gladden has gone unnoticed in the press.

"We really are a clearing-house of options," community organizer Grover Banks explained. And he backed up his analysis with a listing of self-help programs Gladden has sponsored.

These programs, which have gone unnoticed in the recent stories about Gladden, include: a credit union which helps neighborhood residents manage financial affairs, a neighborhood newspaper, team work projects, clean-up campaign, Christmas care program, emergency assistance, work with councils, loans and grants program, housing rehabilitation, getting junk cars removed and sewers cleaned.

Banks sees three objectives of the community house:

- Helping people to live in the American system.
- Teaching people to survive in the system.
- Helping people to change the system.

Both Banks and another community worker, Mrs. Hellen Dowden, feel criticism of their programs has centered in areas where change has been tried.

"We've been called Communists and atheists. There is a bias against us. We've been looked upon by some as agitators," Mrs. Dowden declared.

She believes these charges have centered around controversial issues. "It's safe to talk about street lights, but not welfare," she adds.

According to Banks, approximately 25 per cent of the community Gladden serves is directly affected by welfare problems. He believes Gladden has an obligation to serve this segment of the community, whether it be through leadership training or through involvement in welfare organizations.

"We want to get at the underlying causes of poverty — race, economic structures, schools," Banks commented, "and what greater service can we give a community than getting involved here?"

While some Gladden workers have been criticized for participating in the Poor People's Campaign, Banks pointed out that approximately eight neighborhood people went to Washington for the campaign.

Gladden is trying to change attitudes, and although staff members confess they are not always successful they believe the task is a top priority.

How does Gladden go about changing attitudes?

Staff members had some ideas:

- Through structural guarantees — by allowing people the right to live.
- By confronting many attitudes and trying to reach common understanding.
- By making people aware of their own identity. "Once you're sure of yourself you're not threatened," Mrs. Dowden says.
- By bringing people with different values together to share ideas.

Gladden's programs are directed to a diversified community, sometimes separated by race, economic status and age. According to staff members, the community house must try to reach all these segments.

Mrs. Dowden, made the object of some criticism because of an article in a local paper which discussed her involvement in controversial issues, is more involved in programs to help teens reach some understanding of themselves.

Her groups have engaged in camp programs, outings to Ohio State, theater discussions and team-work programs. She says she has raised questions with the teens, but she finds most of them responsible.

Junior programs at Gladden have included day camp, swimming, handcrafts, ceramics, fishing and outings to the zoo, parks and the Center of Science and Industry.

Staff members feel programs have helped youngsters to become aware of the world around them.

These programs, which often go unheralded because they do not make exciting reading, are nevertheless felt to be vital to the community.

One staff member felt the community house was understaffed. But she said she believed they were really "trying to meet problems."

Using a description of another settlement house in Columbus, Banks spelled out what he believed to be Gladden's purpose:

A group work agency, serving as a center where people with common problems can meet and organize to search for solutions. The community house is interracial and nonsectarian. Its goal is to cut across the separation of race, color and creed to welcome the richness of differences.

While focusing on controversial issues may sell newspapers, staff members apparently feel their focus should remain on the community.

Keglers' Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

Leagues are forming, rules and prize lists voted on and schedules prepared.

It is certain that all decisions made at all league meetings will not please every person. Human nature assures that no individual gets his own way 100% of the time.

SPORTSMANSHIP is often described as the ability to lose as gracefully as you win and most often is applied to actual play and winning or losing games.

But sportsmanship actually starts at the organization meeting. So a rule passes that does not please you. You have several things you can do:

You can walk out in a huff —that will force the league to hunt a new member and that will pay them back for not listening to you, or—

YOU CAN continue your league membership and gripe all year, and if by chance that rule does cause a problem, you can say "I told you so"—or—

You can call the ABC or WIBC city association secretary and complain, or—

You can bowl, living with the disliked rule as well as you can and prepare your lucid arguments for next year's annual meeting.

WHICH IS good sportsmanship?

Bowling should be fun and only a calm attitude allows enjoyment. So if you really want to have fun then don't let problems or personalities get under your skin. You don't have to agree with everything but you can be agreeable.

The question often comes up as to the meaning of "scratch" and "handicap."

A "SCRATCH" score is a score which reveals the actual number of pins knocked down.

A "handicap" is an advantage given to lower average bowlers to try to equalize the opportunities of all bowlers to win.

A handicap is figured on a percentage of the difference between the average and a certain predetermined figure.

THUS A LEAGUE might choose a 50 percent of 180. A 120 average bowler thus would have a handicap of 30 pins. This is figured by subtracting the 120 average from 180 and divide in half.

The bowler goes into the game with the 120 average and a 30 pin handicap. Suppose the bowler now bowls a 130 game. He is given a 160 handicap score for the one game. The same method works for each game.

At the end of the match the bowler's new average is figured and next week the bowler's handicap will be based on the new average.

Spectator To Publish Harmon FB Forecast

In addition to forecasting the results of some 170 games each week (as well as the New Year's Day bowl games), Harmon will rate the top 20 college teams in the nation each week beginning with his forecasts for Sept. 28.

STARTING his twelfth year of grid forecasting, Bob Harmon has seen the publication of his prognostications grow from three newspapers in 1957 to over 200 newspapers (dailies, weeklies and college publications) in 47 states.

Harmon uses a formula to arrive at the rating for each of the more than 650 football teams that he follows each fall.

The score that is predicted is simply the interpolated difference between the numerical rating of one team and the numerical rating of its opponent.

HIS PROVEN accuracy over the past 11 years stands between 75.2 and 77.9 percent.

Look for the Harmon Football Forecasts — another new addition to The Spectator, your biggest newspaper value all week long.

WITH MUDDY SHOES

ALL ..... dima.. .. RF

Representatives of various Ohio organizations and divisions have just returned from the annual meeting of the Mississippi Flyway Council.

At this meeting each year, it is decided how to apportion the duck hunting seasons. There are 14 states in the Flyway — Ohio the easternmost state.

IT SEEMS to me there should be a better way to apportion the country to benefit the hunters. Minnesota — also in the Mississippi Flyway — kills more ducks in one day than Ohio does in all the season. Where is the fairness in making both states equal in number of days?

It begins to look like the Flyway aspect is going to die a well-deserved death and make way for a better system of ascertaining seasons. Louisiana, the southern-most state in the Flyway, divorced itself abruptly from the system and will face the Federal Government on its own.

This year, Ohio will have a duck season of 26 days with a limit of two per day. When you consider there will be three Sundays subtracted, we face a bleak fall in the duck blinds.

I DEARLY wish there was one legislator who would have enough intestinal fortitude to stick a bill in the hopper allowing Sunday hunting in Ohio on public hunting lands and in the duck marshes.

Apparently, it's too hot for our armchair lawmakers. Should such a bill ever come to a vote, there would be approximately 132 absentees.

The real moving force behind the duck hunter today is a non-profit group known as "Ducks Unlimited."

IT'S PRACTICALLY an extension of Ohio wildlife people. The most important benefactor is Henry Schmidt of Cleveland. The Executive Director is ex-Wildlife Chief Dale Whitesel, the secretary is Ken McCreary (former Spectator outdoor columnist) and two of the regional directors are Ben Anderson and Jack Kamman — both ex-wildlifers under Whitesel.

All year long, Ducks Unlimited has kept a careful watch on duck populations in the Canadian Provinces. They reported last month that the 1968 season should be much better than previous years.

This — they reported—was due to a mild spring and moderate rainfall over the potholes.

IN THE face of this news, Ohio's season was cut once more along with the bag limits.

Perhaps, in the face of all this adverse action, Ohio might be wise in separating from the Mississippi Flyway Council and going our own way.

We couldn't do any worse.

The Pros Say 'Bye-Bye'

Well, I see where the tour golfers have left home and taken their clothes with them.

The strolling players of sports are putting the show on the road — for good. They're leaving the PGA.

FOR YEARS, they've gotten along like husband and wife who can't stand each other's families and now they're both consulting lawyers.

MURRAY

The PGA is charging desertion, the golfers incompatibility.

The PGA claims its side of the argument has not been presented adequately to the disaffected players.

PERHAPS not. They've only had since 1916.

The PGA has been the governing body of golf since the days when there were only about a dozen guys in the country willing to admit they took money for playing.

It has 6,000 members now and more vice presidents than the William Morris Agency.

ALL BUT 200 of the 6,000 spend their time cleaning clubs, selling alpacas and teaching doctors' wives how to break 100 from the red tees.

They are not remotely concerned with the problems of the tour.

As far as they are concerned, the tour glamour players are just institutional salesmen for the game of golf.

THE TOUR'S only effect on the home pro is that, if Palmer wins a tournament playing with shafts made out of tungsten, the pro will be able to sell all the tungsten sticks he can stock for the next seven months.

If Doug Sanders shows up in vermillion shoes made out of imported boa constrictor, the home pro can get $5 more a pair for them from then on.

The tour players have grown increasingly restive under absentee management.

THE ONLY PGA staffers they regularly see are guys like Jack Tuthill and Steve Shabala, fellow gypsies who go around the courses with two-way radios making rulings on free drops and playable lies.

And they see Bob Gorham, the demon press agent, who counts putts, conducts interviews, is on the course with the first dew-cutting threesome, and gets to go home at night through the fairway sprinklers.

The players contend that having the playing tour run by an organization of home pros and their elected representatives is like having truck drivers running Indianapolis, sporting goods clerks running baseball, and high school coaches running pro football.

THEY SEE no reason why a bunch of guys who haven't been in a sand trap in years should be making decisions for guys who have to empty out their shoes every night.

The tournament committee, which consists of Gardner Dickinson (chairman), Jack Nicklaus, Doug Ford, Frank Beard and four guys in ties and pocket handkerchiefs, is, to the golfers, like a par-5 with out-of-bounds on both sides and a 200-yard carry over a lake to the green.

There's no way to play it.

THE BIGGEST schism developed when the committee wielded its veto power a year ago to erase a $200,000 Frank Sinatra tournament which some of the players had assured Sinatra he could have.

But the players and the lawyers have been throwing dishes at each other over a lot more than that.

The players have publicly displayed their distaste for sites chosen for the PGA championship itself in several recent years — courses designed more to huckster real estate than to test golf.

"THE PGA would schedule us on an aircraft carrier if the price was right," a top player once complained to me.

Scheduling its own championship the week after the prestigious British Open and putting on a $100,000 tournament in the dairy belt in the same week has smacked to some golfers, Nicklaus among them, of going for the jugular of the British Open.

I suppose in an era when the Czechs are not going to let Red Square run them anymore, when college students tell the dean, "Don't call us, we'll call you," it's normal for the pro golfers to fire the caddie.

From now on, they'll read the breaks themselves.

IT'S ALSO normal for the PGA to stand behind the ropes and jeer, "Yah! You'll never break a hundred on your own. You'll underclub yourself all around. You'll be begging us to pack for ya [illegible]fore ya make the turn."

The pros are making [illegible] they get enough strokes on the first tee, however, so they won't have to press the bet coming up 18.

They propose to have a second tour, a minor league tour. This effectively blocks any PGA hopes to lure away the second flight of players and build them up into matinee idols.

THE PROS are prepared to underwrite this second tour against loss. And, with all 200 certified approved players in its flight, the players can now turn sweetly to the PGA and say, "Ok, fellas, it's your shot. You're away."

Fair Amateur Boxing Finals Scheduled This Saturday

Thurman Holiday, '68 Columbus Golden Gloves champ in the 165-pound division, will square off against Roy Dale ('68 National G. G. champ from Cincinnati) in the finals of the Ohio State Fair Amateur Boxing Tourney Saturday.

The 18-bout windup (nine open champs, eight novice champs to be crowned) will get underway at 6:30 p.m. at the Out-door Arena located at the southwest corner of the Fairgrounds.

Standouts in last weekend's eliminations were Columbus Thompson's "Irish" Tim Sullivan (took split verdict over '68 Cincy G. G. champ Henry Williams) and Gahanna's Mark Harris (scored first-round K.O. over Marietta's Howard Davis).

Here's Saturday's finals card:

Jerry Snider (Cols. IBC) vs. Mike Davis (Thompson); Eddie Temple (Gahanna) vs. Lawrence Clarke (Toledo); Steve Gregory (Barack) vs. Willie Bankston (Toledo); Mike Porchetti (Cols. IBC) vs. Lester Woods (Cincinnati); Terry Woods (Cols. IBC) vs. Gregory Daniels (Cincy); Ronald Neal (Cincy) vs. James Darby (Toledo), Anthony Wilder (Cols. IBC) vs. Jerry Franks (Akron); Harvey Wilson (Beatty) vs. Wally Riggins (Sunshine); Chuck Gregory (Barack) vs. Greg Whaley (Cincy); Tim Sullivan (Thompson) vs. Mark Harris (Gahanna); Sherman Stewart (Cols. IBC) vs. Merrie Jerdan (Cincy); Steve Harris (Gahanna) vs. winner of first bout; Butch Herren (Gahanna) vs. winner of bout two; Thurman Holiday (Cols. IBC) vs. Roy Dale (Cincy); Alan Hawthorne (Toledo) vs. Verble Garland (Toledo); J. D. McCauley (Thompson) vs. Jim Farley (Marietta)*.

*indicates open division (all other novice).

Ban-Tam Loop Slates Preview For Tomorrow

The Ban-Tam Boys Football League will open its third season of competition with a preview look at all eight loop members tomorrow (Friday) evening (7:30) at Huber Park in Reynoldsburg.

The Ban-Tams (six to 12 years old, 60-65 lbs.) are represented by teams from Linden, Lockbourne, South Franklin, West Mound and two each from Grove City and Reynoldsburg.

Regular season play gets underway Sunday, Sept. 1 with the following schedule: Linden Eagles vs Reynoldsburg Mustangs (1 p.m.), S. Franklin Raiders vs G-C Warriors (noon), W. Mound Rams vs G-C Panthers (2 p.m.) and Reynoldsburg Ponies vs Lockbourne Falcons (4 p.m.).

CFFL To Open Fall Campaign On Sept. 8

The Columbus Flag Football League will open its 1968 season Sunday, Sept. 8, at Wolfe Park with each of its six teams playing each other twice during the 10-week campaign.

Western Division teams include Franklin Sports Center, Berwick Party House and Plumbers-Fitters Local 189.

IN THE Eastern loop, Kitsmiller Motors, Bell-Haven Big Red and the Bon-Aire Buckeyes form the trio.

League Commissioner Doug VanHorn, playing with the NFL New York Giants this fall, has turned over duties to Dave Lenning.

FRANKLIN would appear to be the team to beat in the CFFL's Western Division — the team playing last spring under the banner of the "Has-Beens," defending loop [illegible]ons.

[illegible] problem will be finding [illegible]ement for quarterback Joe [illegible]ugh who will be playing at [illegible] U. this fall.

Outstanding players returning for Western Division play are Randy Walker, Dave Franz, Ray Stewart, Tony Delewese, Jerry Groves and Jay Haut.

NEW FACES on West squads who bring impressive high school and college credentials are Ron Roeb, Ron Daubitz, Jack Wenger, Clint Allen, Marc Blackstone and Jack Haut.

More balance should be evident in the Eastern Division with Kitsmiller likely a pre-season favorite on the basis of sparkplug Ken Ramsey, the CFFL's leader in scoring, rushing and passing last spring.

Bon-Aire, a combination of Buckeye and Warhawk units of last spring, will be improved as will be the "Big Red" which showed a potent offensive machine but finished dead-last in the defensive department last spring.

"New faces" include standouts like "Beef" Malone, Nick Cooper, Dick Wilson, Pat Richards, Jerry Keffer, Scott Duncan and Rocky Sunderland.

SEPT. 8 SCHEDULE

Bell-haven vs. Franklin (11 a.m.)
Berwick vs. Bon-Aire (1:30 p.m.)
Kitsmiller vs. Local 189 (4 p.m.)

Has your league adopted a set of rules for 1968-69?

Sometime this month or perhaps in early September, many leagues will be launching another season of competition. Before the first ball is rolled there'll be, of course, the all-important league meeting.

CERTAINLY one of the key topics of discussion will be league rules. There'll be a number of questions from members such as the following:

How will new bowlers be admitted who don't have an average?

What averages will be used to start the season?

Will we limit the number of players on team rosters?

WILL MEMBERS be required to bowl a certain number of games to qualify for individual and special prizes?

Will a member be allowed to qualify for more than one special prize?

Have we decided on any special playoff rules if there is a tie for the championship?

Who will be eligible to substitute? Will roving substitutes be allowed?

WILL WE allow a team to pick up new players in the latter part of the season?

These are questions that should be answered by your leagues rules. Sooner or later, even in the most efficiently operated leagues, there'll be a difference of opinion on one or more of the aforementioned items.

The only way they can be settled harmoniously is by having an adequate set of rules to which members can refer.

THE ABC Rule Book's chapter on "Suggested League Rules" provides the answers to the above questions.

A few minutes are all that are needed to study the "suggestions" and adopt them to the particular desires of your league. Most of the rules are standard and will apply in any case. Only a few offer options.

You have merely to exclude those that do not fit your league. When you have done this and your board of directors has voted on them, you have a comprehensive set of rules that will take care of nearly any situation that may arise during the course of the 1968-69 season.

CMS Plans Labor Day Card Sunday

Dick Freeman moved back into the winner's circle Sunday at the Columbus Motor Speedway—edging out Don Gregory, Ron Dolen, Jim Cushman and George Glick in the 30-lap late-model feature.

Don Dennison outlasted 30 starters in the 20-lap hobby-stock headliner, topping Dick Burns, Dave Justus, Bill Hirshey and Dennis Huhlken.

The Williams Rd. raceway will host its annual Labor Day Championships for both late-model and hobby-stock divisions Sunday.

The late-models will be featured in a 60-lap main attraction—the winner taking no less than $750, of the guaranteed purse of $3,000.

Time trials begin at 7 p.m., the first race carded one hour later.

'Leukemia Grid Bowl' Scheduled For Sept. 7

The Central Ohio Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America, Inc., (Auxiliary No. 2) will sponsor the fourth annual Leukemia Bowl, Saturday, Sept. 7 (7 p.m.) at Northland High School Stadium.

St. James Bisons, under the coaching staff of Mike Meyer and winner of last year's bowl game, will take on the Northland Packers, coached by Fred Lappert at 7.

THE CLINTONVILLE Shamrocks, coached by Ed Ford, and also a defending champion from last year, will take on the North Linden Pirates (coached by Bill Sweet) at approximately 8:30 p.m.

Bill Brown, voice of the Columbus Motor Speedway, will do the play-by-play for each game and ex-OSU All-American Vic Janowicz, will present trophies to the winning team of each game.

Trophies are being donated by Southern Bowling and Billiard Company.

THE NORTHLAND High School Band and the North American Clowns will provide entertainment at the half times and between games.

Richard Senaenbrenner is acting as ticket chairman and Mrs. Howard J. Gallant and Mrs. Madelyn Acree are co-chairmen of the event.

Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. Tickets will be available at the gate.

THIS YEAR'S bowl goal is two thousand dollars.

Last year's net gain was $1,620.99 — 40 percent of which was used for medication and lab fees in Franklin County and surounding areas and 60 percent going for International research programming.

IT WAS A SWINGIN' EVENING

The asphalt area of Alum Crest Elementary was alive with jive recently when, through the efforts of Alum Creek Boosters Club and Alum Creek Civic Association and the cooperation of Bill Moss of WVKO and James P. Reilly, president of Suburban Motor Freight, a community party was held. At the left, youngsters of the neighborhood respond to the sound of rock 'n roll. Above are Mrs. Charlotte Fisher, principal of Alum Crest, and John Murphy, president of the Boosters Club, and Mrs. Murphy. The sound truck contributed by WTVN was manned by Moss, Curt Bishop, Les Brown and Chuck Harris, WVKO disc jockeys. Also on deck to keep the show moving were the Showpushers Band and Bruce Nutt Dancers.

KAY'S LEARNING – SLOWLY

THE GADABOUT

By Priscilla Lenox 444-1051

A little black notebook, found during a bout of house-cleaning, brought back floods of memories and gave a subject for our "Remember When" series.

The black book contains "pieces" we had to learn when we took elocution at the Wynters School of Expression, which was run by Miss Mary and Miss June Wynters. That we were in grade school is readily noted by the fact we lettered "Electioun" on the notebook.

IT'S AN ART

For any young readers who wonder what elocution might be — it is "speaking pieces, with gestures." Youngsters enjoyed it then like their descendants enjoy dancing, baton-twirling, etc., today.

We had begged for years to be allowed to take the subject, so finally the parents LaRue gave their consent, on condition that we pay for it personally. With mixed emotions, we withdrew our whole fortune of $12 from the school savings program to fulfill our part of the bargain. The sum had gone into the bank at five cents a week, the five cents being our week's allowance for helping to keep the house clean, doing dishes and keeping everybody's shoes polished! The course was $10; we bought a raincoat with the surplus. Time has erased such details as length of the course but it must have been at least six months.

SISTERS REMEMBERED

We're sure the sisters Wynter were dismayed at the tall, awkward, shy pupil who hailed from Morrill Avenue but they tried — at least Miss Mary did. We remember Miss June as imperious and the type who "toadied" to pupils who were more affluent, so do not remember her with the same affection reserved for her sister.

The "pieces" were poems from the world's literature, or some composed by Miss Mary. They were sold for 10 cents each, so a bit of profit was made there. We do not know how many classes they had, but there were 10 to 15 in our class of beginners. Classes were held in their home, incidentally, which was on 10th Avenue, if we remember correctly.

The elocution students performed at schools, churches and clubs, singly or in groups. The highlight of our brief career was appearing in the old Memorial Hall, in some sort of play depicting the evils of drink. As the make-believe child of a drunkard, we crossed the stage with a ragged shawl around our bony shoulders, and rubbed our nose, while speaking but one line: "Gee, my nose is cold."

We'll never know if we would even have rivalled Sarah Bernhardt, because this was when our funds gave out . . . alas!

Recalls a Favorite

One of our "pieces" extolled the virtues of Ohio, and it was one of our favorites, as we declaimed, with appropriate gestures, this final verse: "Oh the sun comes down in Ohio, and the rain comes down in Ohio, But they have nothing on me you know, For I (emphasis here) came down in Ohio!"

There was just one error in this fervent declamation, for the stork had delivered us in Pennsylvania, so we could be with our parents!

The end of August, or the first days of September, are extra special to the youngest group of birthday celebrants: Mike Schirtzinger, Terri Weaver, Lyn Hutchins, Michael Duncan, Jeffrey Hoyt, James Pence, Frederick Cross, Brenda Bowman, Terry Fields, Michelle Williams, Denise Tayner, Cindy Baesman, Connie Dempsey, Ralph Alles Jr., Scott Stewart, Steve Boros and Patricia Smalley.

Teens Celebrate

These teens gain a year just as school is about to start: Patrick Whalen, Kathy Jahn, Chuck Skeen, Cindy Jacks and Renee Jividen.

Also on the birthday cake with candles list are Leidra Zwilling, Della Strait, Liz Kramer, Marie Myers, Rose Day, Jon Ellefritz, Lovena Everman, Mary Claar, Roberta Cataline, Gerry Ross, Helen Souder, Wilma Fisher and Edith Hicks.

Late summer weddings of past years are now observed as anniversaries by these couples: Mildred and Russell Leist, Barbara and Ed Cuckler, Mr. and Mrs. James Voss, Esther and James Anderson, Betty and Louis Poczik, Shirley and Jack Leslein, Garnet and Clyde Casto and Virgil and Dellie Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Seymour recently celebrated a 63rd anniversary.

A wedding ceremony in the Southwood Church of Christ, Saturday, Aug. 31, will unite Carla Jividen, 197 Frebis Ave., and Roger Peer, 1316 Studer Ave.

Hodge-podge hop scotch . . . The annual "Labor Day Work Weekend" held at Camp Wyandot, the Camp Fire Girls' camp, Friday, Aug. 30, through Monday, Sept. 2, will provide periods of fun even though the camp site will be readied for the winter season.

Potluck Planned

Mary Circle Trinity Lutheran Church will meet Wednesday, Sept. 4, for a noon potluck. Hostesses will be Mrs. Forrest Irwin, Mrs. Dale Fuller, Mrs. William Zimmer, Louise Boge. Mrs. Alfred Henkelmann will lead the Bible study. Rebecca Circle will meet at the church Tuesday, Sept. 3, at 7:45 p.m. Hostesses will be Peggy Hickel and Isabelle Smitley.

The business meeting of the Schiller Park Golden Age Club will be held at 1 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 3.

The Young Adults of St. John's United Church of Christ will hold a retreat at Pilgrim Hills Friday, Aug. 30, to Monday, Sept. 2.

The Junior Fellowship of the Washington Avenue U.M. Church will take the final tour of Columbus establishments Thursday, Aug. 29, at 4:30 p.m., when they tour the Dan-Dee Co.

The Gleaners Circle, RLDS Church (Reinhard and 22nd Sts.) will meet Wednesday, Sept. 4, in the home of Louise Kreuzer, 211 Williams Rd. June Anderson will present the lesson on "Sacrifice and Citizenship" in the absence of the teacher, Norma Kirkendall. President of the group is Nancy Cassis.

The members of the group have a monthly sacrifice project and in past months have worked for children of Vietnam, Peck O' Wee Ones Nursery, Friends' Home for Unwed Mothers, in addition to other projects.

WHO'S AFRAID?

When the annual Lantern Parade marched at Schiller Park last week, no entry was more colorful than "The Red Monster" constructed by Keith Morris, 10, representing Stockbridge Playgrounds. The parade, sponsored by the Columbus Recreation Department, was one of six in the city, the others being held at Linden, Franklin Park, Westgate, Whetstone and Goodale.

CAUTION DRIVE WITH CARE... SCHOOLS OPEN SOON!

FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN'S SAKE

DRIVE with CARE

School will be opening soon. This means that a tremendous number of children will be going to and from school, either waking or waiting on their school buses. It also means an abundance of extra traffic, parents driving their children to and from school, school buses and teachers driving to and from their schools. The large number of Children, Parents, Teachers and this Extra Traffic calls for just one thing. Complete cooperation in Driving Safely from every individual driving on City and Suburban streets and roads. Drive slowly, obey all traffic signs and signals. Stop, Look and Listen. Above all, drive defensively. Watch out for the children — They may not be watching for you.

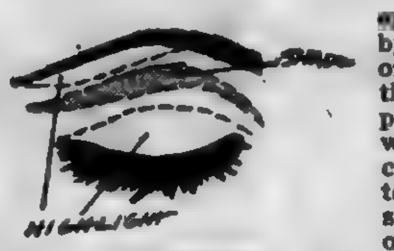
Makeupwise -- Problem Eyes Cut Down To Size

Nothing expresses you, your moods and your personality more perfectly than your eyes. And when it comes to your beauty routine, nothing deserves more attention or should be played to more advantage than those lovely "mirrors of the soul."

The first step to eye beauty begins with eye shadow. The most versatile of all eye make-up, eye shadow can echo the color of your eyes or your costume . . . create eye dimensions in mysterious depths, contrasted by sparkling highlights. With a change of eye shadow colorings subtle daytime eyes can go dazzling at night.

Before applying eye shadow, decide if one of these eye shapes best describes your own eyes. If so, you may want to use one of the eye shadow patterns designed to create the illusion of perfect eye beauty.

These tips from Merle Norman Cosmetic Studio.

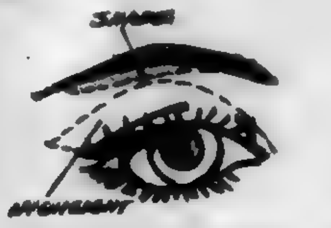


THE DIMENSIONAL EYE

A study in shadow play, light against dark, the dimensional eye is today's fashionable way to make the most of beautiful eyes. And here's how —

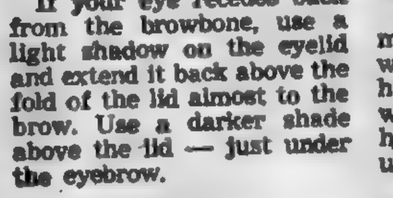
First apply a light foundation over your entire eyelid using any light shade of creme eye shadow such as beige or "greige" (beige and gray blend) or white fluid eye shadow.

To give your eyes the illusion of depth, select a darker shade of brush-on eye shadow such as luminous brown and apply above the eyelid forming a curved arc from the inner to the outer corners. Blend carefully over the light shadow so that no hard edges of color are obvious.



DEEPLY SET EYES

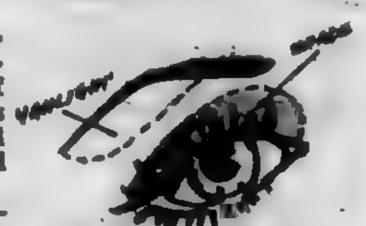
If your eye recedes back from the browbone, use a light shadow on the eyelid and extend it back above the fold of the lid almost to the brow. Use a darker shade above the lid — just under the eyebrow.



CLOSELY SET EYES

If you have closely-set eyes they will be separated by less than the width of one eye. Remedy the situation by starting shadow approximately one-third of the way back from the inner corner of the eye and extend approximately the same distance beyond the outer corner.

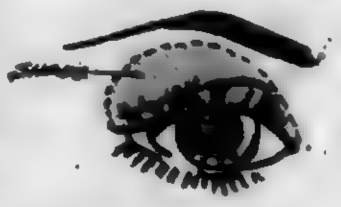
Closely-set eyes will appear more widely-spaced if lightened around the inner corner of the eye, keeping deeper color toward the outer edge of the eye.



WIDELY SPACED EYES

If this is your problem it means that your eyes are separated by more than the width of one eye. Start shadow just past the inner corner of the eye and end before the outer corner.

To bring eyes closer together, darken the area around the inner corner of the eye and keep the lightest color toward the outer edge.



PROMINENT EYES

If your eyes protude, use a darker shade of shadow over the entire eyelid and up to the eyebrow. Place shadow only in the middle of the eyelid, slightly inside the inner and outer corners of the eye.

Daring Decorating In The Kitchen

By ROSE MARIE McMILLS

While a man's home may be his castle, a woman's kitchen is HER domain over which she holds absolute sway.

Because of the amount of time she spends there, it is important for the homemaker's mental well-being that the kitchen be a bright, cheery place and a true expression of herself.

So cut loose and decorate like mad. And don't be afraid to use your imagination — you may be surprised with what you can come up with to perk up your little "office."

Decide what needs perking first and go to work on it. If you live in an older house your problem may be not enough color because back aways kitchens were white, stoves were white, counters were white. The end result? Blah!

Paint walls, cabinets, baseboards — sunny yellow or the new avocado green or anything with a little pow.

Woman's page artist Sandy Aska, who is always good for an idea or two, has one whole wall in her kitchen painted with foot-wide sunflowers. If you're artistic, try it. If not, buy huge stick-on flowers and attack a wall.

If your problem is drab-looking appliances, even that can be remedied. I have a neighbor who disguised an old gray-white refrigerator with paisley Contact paper. The effect is fantastic.

Lastly, don't underestimate the ability of elegantly-curtained windows to brighten your little dungeon.

Pictured at the top left is a simple inexpensive treatment for the window over your sink. One panel of sheer, crisp material is mounted in the center to let in the morning sun. Two side panels are of a heavier material and gaily-patterned.

Window at the bottom left is given a cafe curtain treatment. Cafe curtains on the bottom, hinged wood shutters on the top. Shutters may be painted if desired.

For those double kitchen windows over your breakfast nook (upper right) use two adjustable cafe rods with matching rings.

Mount as shown in the illustration above with three cafe panels on top and one using matching material extending the full length at the mid-point of the windows.

TIDBITS

Breakfast butter spread perks up breakfast menus when served on hot toast, English muffins or bran muffins. To make the spread: combine equal parts of soft butter and brown sugar, white sugar or honey. Flavor with grated orange or lemon rind, cinnamon or instant coffee.

TIDBITS

Make quick and easy after school drinks by adding a favorite flavoring to cold milk. Orange, maple, chocolate and peanut butter may be combined with milk for flavorful, nutritious refreshers.

A MAN'S VIEW

Why Women Control The World

By JOHN MORGAN

God gave man dominion over every facet of creation in the ancient biblical story.

And then he created woman and reversed the process.

I don't know why it is men think they rule the world. They die younger, have more ulcers, fight more wars, pay more taxes and have less control over the universe than any woman.

Women are the only creatures I know who while disclaiming any pretension to glory hold the power of life and death in their hands.

While men are boys it is their mothers who shape their destiny.

While men are young men it is young women who control their thoughts.

While men work to support a family it is the wife who raises and instructs the children.

While men grow old, women draw on some hidden reservoir of youthfulness and appear eternal.

Perhaps it is the nature of man to want to believe that he is supreme, the unconquered hero who sweeps the world under his mighty fist.

Not behind, but within every man there's a woman. And through the subtle art of deception she controls the lives of men.

I know my fellow males will label me a turncoat or traitor to the cause. But I'm just telling it like most men really know it is even though they won't admit it.

"Why can't a woman be more like a man?" the fictional Henry Higgins asks in "My Fair Lady."

If a woman were more like a man she'd be a nervous wreck by the age of 30, buried in debts by 40 and dead by 60.

Men may fight the world, argue with the world and agonize over the world. But only a woman enjoys the world.

Women are the creatures who, when they are told about the urban crisis or war, can straighten out their minds by buying a new dress.

Or, in the middle of a life-and-death argument, women are the only human beings who will take time to make sure their dresses are pulled down far enough over their knees.

Women bear pain and despair much better than men. If a man had to endure childbirth he would go out of his mind. I can't even stand to have my teeth cleaned.

Maybe the secret of womanhood is not sex (as the modern age would say), but the quiet determination to survive and keep "tuned in" to the common world.

Man may be the hunter, the adventurer, the romantic.

Women are just quiet human beings who go about the daily tasks of life and still manage to rule the world.

Weight Watchers -- A Ray Of Hope

By ROSE MARIE McMILLS

There must be as many ways to lose weight as there are fat people. And all of them work—for awhile.

For most of the 79 million Americans in the United States who are overweight, a large percentage of them are dieting in one way or another most of the time: Dieting and splurging again, losing and gaining in a vicious circle.

The reason fat people stay fat is because crash diets and "gimmicks" don't go to the source of their problem.

Fads concentrate on whittling away at the effects instead of rooting out the cause and solving it.

And the CAUSE is that overweight people are compulsive eaters — just as alcoholics are compulsive drinkers.

But within the last four years, a new group has extended hope to the obese everywhere.

Directors Edie Levy (left) and Mona Adams (right) share in Mrs. Joy Rubin's pleasure at her 100 pound weight loss. Joy was present at a recent meeting of Weight Watchers to receive an award for her achievement. She demonstrated the loss to other Weight Watchers by putting on an old dress that "fit me tight" less than six months ago. Both instructors are also successful Weight Watchers — Edie lost 88 pounds and Mona lost 35 before they began actively helping others.

Weight Watchers go on an entirely different theory — amazingly successful — which has already claimed 500,000 converts in the United States.

In New York City alone, 300 classes are being conducted a week.

Following much the same basics that produce results for Alcoholics Anonymous, Weight Watchers admit they are "compulsive eaters" and that they must change their eating habits — for the rest of their lives.

Weight Watchers meet in special "group therapy" sessions once a week, where they are weighed in. After the weighing in, each in her turn talks freely in front of other Weight Watchers about her weight problem and is applauded and encouraged by the group for her weight loss that week.

Following this session, a class is conducted by a trained Weight Watcher. The instructor of each class knows what she is talking about, having been a weight watcher who has reached her loss goal.

Like Alcoholics Anonymous, Weight Watchers help each other. "Call me if you want to eat," they tell each other.

Weight Watchers is the brain-child of Jean Nidetch, a stunning blonde, who latched onto the eating program through a New York obesity clinic after someone asked her one day when she was due to deliver.

"I wasn't pregnant," Mrs. Nidetch recalled.

Today, 72 pounds slimmer and a lot happier, she spends her time lecturing to overweight people all over the country.

Jean, who says she was such a "compulsive cookie eater" that she used to hide cookies in the clothes hamper and eat them when her husband wasn't around, went from a size 44 dress to a size 12.

But to get down to basics, just how does this miracle program work?

In the first place, there is no starving. Weight Watchers are REQUIRED to eat three meals a day.

And the food they can eat is unbelievable — beef, fish, fruit, orange juice. One long list of foods they are allowed to eat, whenever they wish, in large quantities if they are fighting hunger pangs.

The secret is that Weight Watchers eat foods high in protein. The high protein intake attacks the fat, which is turned into liquid and is eliminated.

And that fat STAYS off.

One lady who was receiving a special-award pin for a 100-pound loss indicated why she joined Weight Watchers.

She smiled, "Well you know, I lost 100 pounds last year on Metrecal, but I gained it all back. This retraining of your eating habits you can keep up a long time with no sweat — I mean, you can't live all your life just eating Metrecal."

What Is OCTA? Our Editor Reports

Ten years ago someone asked me if I'd like to attend an OCTA conference.

At that time OCTA meant nothing to me and I could have cared less. It sounded like a glorified theater event wrapped up with gaudy bangles and beads.

So for the next five years I acted, worked backstage, attended plays wrote publicity and generally was foot-loose and fancy-free.

Believe me, I should have let it go at that. But fate, which can and has moved mountains, took care of this sand dune in a real big way.

Back in 1965, I found out that OCTA means Ohio Community Theater Association by grabbing a program as I paraded around in an oriental costume from "The Emperor's New Clothes," for Curtain Players.

I talked with many people from such places as Van Wert, Chagrin Falls, Troy and Peninsula. I didn't even know Ohio had so many towns.

The fire was lit, or more precisely curiosity was aroused. The next year a working knowledge of OCTA was acquired by helping here and there. In 1966 Carolyn Lane who was and is regional representative for this area, nominated my name to OCTA for election to the board.

As of Sept. 6, 7 and 8, I begin my final year of a three year term which began in 1966. In these past two years, I have filled my basement with a mimeograph machine, three files, three tables, literally thousands of papers, OCTA manuals, displays and more time than I care to admit.

Also I have attended board meetings which have lasted an average of six hours without a break. I have written more letters to the other 30 board members than I have written home in 10 years.

This has just been a part of the involvement. Learning through participation is a rewarding experience. If culture is this, then culture runneth over in my basement.

At present, I am now working on an OCTA display, selling advertising for the "Call To Conference Program" and handling registration for the annual conference to be held Sept. 6-8 at the Columbus Sheraton.

That is what OCTA is . . . work spelled OCTA. But, there are 30 some board members who have worked just as hard to bring to the 89 member groups, guest speakers, workshops, competition and social events. Each event has been designed to educate theater participants as they meet with theater people from other areas.

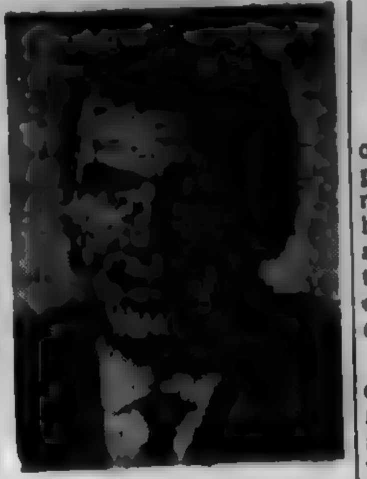
Anyway what I'm trying to tell you is that OCTA is 89 member theater groups communicating and educating through an annual conference. Theater involves every environment, avocation and vocation.

I invite you to come visit us. We are having a costume ball on Sept. 7 and don't forget to grab a program. Just call Carolyn Lane for information; she has an extension in her basement too.

As you can see, I have found that the OCTA conference was never a social event. It is there to learn about people, theater and our world.

Actually, attending the conference gets me out of the basement. Fate has really made a mountain of papers at my home, but the mountain consists of enthusiasm and devotion.

Ten years was a very long time ago.



DENNIS JAMES

Columbus Gal Competes

"Your All-American College Show", staring Dennis James is seen on Channel 6, Saturday at 10:30 p.m. The program, which started this summer, has already had two representatives of OSU, "The Brass Incorporation" and Nancy Dickson. Nancy won her first time around and will compete in the semi-finals Sept. 7.

Each week, four acts compete against each other before a panel of three "big name" show business judges for a weekly prize of $1,000. Weekly winners then compete in the semi-finals for another $1,500 prize. Then these winners take part in the finals for another $2,500.

So let's all pull for Columbus' own Nancy Dickson on the Sept. 7 show.

Official Ohio Song Contest Still Open

The search for an official state song for Ohio has reached a mysterious impasse, according to Donald R. Streibig, executive director of the Ohio Arts Council.

Among the more than 150 entries submitted to the special panel created at the request of the 107th General Assembly is an impressive set of lyrics which turned up one day in the Council offices without music and without the author's address.

"My Ohio" is the title of the song, credited to a Lawrence C. Downing. Who or where this possible musical paragon may be has the contest judges in a quandry.

For information as to entering a song, contact the Ohio Arts Council at 50 W. Broad St., Columbus, Ohio, 43215. Oct. 1 is the deadline.

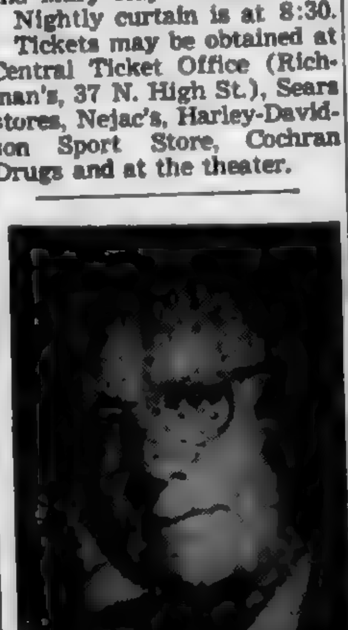
'Odd Couple' Continuing At POG

Neil Simon's bouncy comedy, "The Odd Couple," continues through this week at POG as the final production of the season.

Members of the cast include Ted Pritchard, Deirdre Owen and Mary Kay Williams.

Nightly curtain is at 8:30.

Tickets may be obtained at Central Ticket Office (Richman's, 37 N. High St.), Sears stores, Nejac's, Harley-Davidson Sport Store, Cochran Drugs and at the theater.



NAMED

Paul J. Lynch, 2976 Schwartz Rd., has been named director of the Columbus Central Branch YMCA's Helping Hands Project. The program is for neglected boys from the ages of 14 to 18 who will be referred to the YMCA program by Columbus, Franklin County and state agencies.

BBB Comments On Mail Goods

The Better Business Bureau of Central Ohio, Inc., said the practice of sending unordered merchandise to prospective buyers continues to flourish and advised consumers that they are not obliged to return or pay for goods they didn't order and don't want.

Edward L. Hughes, president of the local Better Business Bureau, said the rights and obligations of consumers with regard to unordered merchandise are spelled out in a recent policy statement issued by the Federal Trade Commission, which reported that the recipient of unordered merchandise has on obligation to return or pay for it, unless he uses the merchandise or wishes to purchase it.

The TV Corner

Avco Broadcasting's zany Paul Dixon, who kids his way each morning through a 90-minute, four-station show, has turned author. His book "Paul Baby" has already exceeded the 35,000 mark. The introduction was written by Bob Hope and the content of the book includes discussing the performers he works with, the company he works for and the audiences he plays to in a cheery, sometimes irreverent manner.

A silent film made in 1927, starring Clara Bow and with authentic background music, "Dancing Mothers" will be aired over "The Toy That Grew Up" on Channel 34 at 9 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 3.

Names Chairmen

Richard McCracken, candidate for judge of the Franklin County Court of Domestic Relations this fall, announced the appointment of George W. Bernhard Jr., attorney at law, as chairman of the Young Republicans for McCracken Committee and Richard S. Donahey, attorney at law, as chairman of the Young Democrats for McCracken Committee.

Around Town

Conducted By

ROLAND SUNKER

The initials B. B. usually stand for Bridget Bardot. But, B. B. B. stands for a bold, bombastic, blowtorch approach to comedy by a gal named Bea Bea Benson in the Knave's Cave of The Imperial House-Arlington. This girl is without a doubt the hottest, most sational entertainer to hit this old town in many a moon. Bea Bea is a comedienne in every sense of the word.

Bea Bea Benson

She is billed as another Rusty Warren. Her material, while very risque, is unique and clever. Bea Bea's act is not for Sunday School teachers, yet she is not vulgar. You never hear an off-color word in Bea Bea's routine.

Not only is her material terrific, Bea Bea knows what to do with it. She knows how to sell herself. Possessing good delivery, mixed with an excellent sense of timing as well as a strong change of pace with her material, produces a very funny comedienne.

This grandmother of two weeks, who hails from St. Louis, is also a fine singer. Having started out in show business 26 years ago as a vocalist has given Bea Bea much poise.

With a repertoire of what seems like a million jokes which she delivers one after another with no let-up, adds up to a dynamic show. Bea Bea releases her laughing gas nightly in the Knave's Cave. Inhale a few whiffs and you'll go home laughing for hours afterwards.

MARTY'S TO OPEN

Draw a red line around Thursday, Sept. 5. This is when Marty Mellman opens his newly decorated club, Marty's La Mancha, with the Frank Sinatra Jr. show. It's the same club on East Broad, but with an entirely new decor inside and out.

According to Marty, "The whole decor has been changed." The long bar in the center of the main room has been removed and put back against the east wall, where it belongs. The front lounge has been redecorated. It is now called the Cortez Room and will also feature nightly entertainment with a cocktail hour beginning at 4 p.m.

Besides the new decor, there is new personnel at the club. Coming from the Sheraton chain is general manager Jim Barr. Chef Enrico, who once cooked for the Queen of England, is the new man in charge of the kitchen.

UP A TREE

The Tree House, the nicest country and western place Around Town still has the great Dick Wolford and his Ramblin' Rangers. Dick and the gang have worked on all of the well-known country and western radio and stage shows throughout the country.

Playing all types of music from country-western, western swing to polkas and rock, the Ramblin' Rangers are composed of five talented musicians. Besides Dick Wolford, who plays Chordo-Vox and guitar, there's Bobby Jasper on lead guitar, Art Utly playing steel guitar, Wayne Smith with the drum sticks and the bass is handled by Lucky Castle.

Leader Wolford deserves to be compared with the best of the country and western stars. He has a good voice, lots of personality and talent. You ought to hear him yodel. He's great.

If you like this type of entertainment, be sure to catch the Ramblin' Rangers every Tuesday through Sunday at the Tree House, 1521 W. Fifth Ave.

EXPLORING

The Explorers, 1080 Dublin Rd. has undergone many improvements during the two years that George Roberts has owned the popular restaurant. The interior has been completely redecorated, including new murals and the addition of new carpeting of the entire restaurant. There have been improvements in the menu and also the quality of food in the last two years.

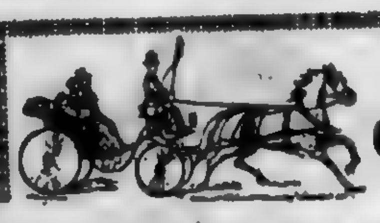
Serving excellent food for breakfast, lunch and dinner, at popular prices, the Explorers is open seven days a week. Roberts, who has brought years of experience to the Explorers, has inaugurated many new policies. He has a special menu for children and all pastries are baked fresh daily in their own oven. Roberts also offers a new, fast, convenient carryout service. You can now drive right up to the kitchen door and pick up your order. There is no exploring at the Explorers Restaurant. You know the quality of food and service that awaits you.

AT THE MARAMOR

Danny Deeds' Maramor is presenting this week another new and fresh act, The Inn Keepers. Known as the keepers of the In Crowd, these three young fellows play and sing songs which fall somewhere between the listenable folk music and modern day rock.

Discovered by Danny Deeds on his last trip to New York, they are considered one of the hottest new groups in show biz today. Both Columbia Records and RCA are interested in signing these boys.

Catch them at the Maramor this week. They may be stars by next week.



CROSS TOWN

How can a Dairy Queen look like a bank?

Manager Bangs of the Worthington D.Q. knows. Area boys line up at his counter on hot days and borrow from each other so fast that the boss wonders how they ever remember who owes what to whom?

And if you're hunting for a wig you sent for cleaning at Kay Sallee's Wig Shop, better check information. Kay moved her shop but forgot to post her new address at the old location.

Hairdressers are busy getting ready for fall. Margaret Pratt of Village Green Salon is back from vacation. Perrie of 800 E. Granville Rd. has the shop decorated with huge posters of Flapper Age movie stars to go with the Flapper look in hair-dos. Also ready for the fall onslaught is Terrence of Worthington Proper.

Watch for a complete line of produce from Ohio's Amish and Mennonite colonies at Economy Grocery, 2403 W. Broad St. Economy is a good neighbor and a long-time Spectator advertiser.

Otilio of 2392 E. Main St. is back in town after a gift-buying trip to Mexico. Her husband, J. M. Marina, is back at his post as professor of engineering at West Virginia Institute of Technology. The Marinas, Cuban refugees, begin their eighth year in the U.S. with new citizenship papers.

See you all next week, Cross Town.

State Fair Menu Runs The Taste Gamut

Excitement or pleasure at the once-a-year extravaganza dubbed the Ohio State Fair comes in all sizes, shapes and forms.

After having walked hither and yon, looking for something unusual to tell you about (aside from the usual unusuals) food, out of need, hit me right in the face. As a matter of fact, there is no way to escape the signs or the smells coming from restaurants, stands and the like.

The regulars are there including pop concessions more numerous than chairs, hot dogs ranging from normal to a foot long, hamburgers in baskets, popcorn in bags and boxes, colorful cotton candy on sticks or take-home bags, sticky carmel and candied apples, slushy sno-cones, and best of all the regulars . . . ice-cream in cones, shakes or sundaes.

Hungry for what the State Fair should have in the unusual category? Well how about hot dogs on a stick, roasted corn, lemonade shakes, Vitamin-C in a glass, apple cider, pizza, fish, steak, chicken, ham, Belgian waffles, chili, roast beef and last, the winner of the most unusual, chocolate covered bananas.

Yet with this variety of food, which is probaby only a meager portion of what is available, nowhere is there a bromo sign.

Also, there are candies, nuts, cheeses, sausages and all kinds of goodies available to enjoy in the comfort of home.

What's so enjoyable about this, considering it all takes money? The atmosphere of the fair, the people and the limitless displays certainly offer something for everyone. one.

The food is a necessity to survive this rigorous event and it is a part of fair time . . . oh, yes . . . why is it that every time one is about to consume food, there is no place to sit or they are already occupied?

Spectator's '68 High Grid Previews

Cruisers Pin Hopes On Mobility, 10 Vets

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

New Groveport mentor Bob Starr isn't promising Cruiser grid fans the Mid-Eight title in his maiden season.

But Starr does look for improvement on Groveport's 1-8 '67 standing — hoping mobility, 10 returning veterans and a break in the schedule can help achieve that goal.

BOB'S BIGGEST headache at present is developing the Cruiser forward wall where the graduation scythe (15 of [illegible] starters gone) hit [illegible].

[illegible]ping into the full-time quarterback role will be junior Mark Boyer (5-10, 165, also defensive back) with letter winners Paul Palsgrove (junior, 5-9, 170) and Larry Stinson (junior, 5-9, 160) most likely halfback choices.

At least one side of the front wall can be lined with lettermen — junior Dennis McKinster (5-9, 150) at split end, senior Don Stokes (5-10, 195) at tackle, junior Frank Balsimo (5-10, 175) at guard and senior Andy Lyles (5-9, 165) at center.

From that point on, however, (with the exception of 5-10, 175-pound junior middle guard Steve Skaggs) it's "try 'em and see" for Starr.

MOST PROMISING of prospects to fill in the vacancies to date have been end candidates junior Mike Featherston (5-9, 155, also safety) and senior Steve Jacklin (5-10, 165), sophomore defensive tackle Jim Feucht (5-9, 225), soph guard Spencer Balsimo (5-8, 155), junior tackle Forrest Jackson (5-11, 175) and senior center-middle guard Rick Bierie (6-0, 185, move-in from S. Carolina).

Starr, who rates backfield speed as "good" and line size "fair" on his 62-man (excluding frosh) squad, will unveil a new pro-type offense for Cruiser fans Sept. 6.

"We lack good size but are quick," relates Starr in explaining his switch to the pro-type attack.

"RIGHT NOW, our blocking needs work and we must develop our passing game. If we can do that, we'll be throwing a lot. We've got some real fine receivers," the Cruiser coach adds.

Starr sees London as the Mid-Eight grid strongboy, rating Hilliard and Bexley next in line.

"We won't be a contender this season but we could surprise a few people.

"THE IMPORTANT thing is to get a couple of wins under our belt early. We don't play Hilliard and London until the end of season. If we can build up a head of steam by that time, who knows?"

M-F Eyes 'Bridegroom Role' Finish Via Vet Line, Depth

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Any grid coach with a contending 11 who talks championship possibilities is known in sportswriting circles as a "sandbagger."

But it would be difficult to insert Marion-Franklin's Jim Harper in that class — even if he tried to hem-haw his way around CL title chances for his Red Devils this fall.

BUT FOR four loop setbacks in as many seasons, (the most recent a final-night upset win by South last season which transformed an unbeaten campaign into an 8-1 count), Harper and crew would be lining up their fifth straight City flag.

Undaunted by fickle fate, Harper contends "we'll be tough to beat again this season."

The more faint-hearted of his coaching relations might be hesitant to go that far out on the limb — in the light of 15-of-22 departed starters (including leading ground gainer and scorer Willie McClure and fellow All-Leaguers Eddie Reeves (QB) and Alvino Milner (safety).

BUT GENIAL Jim sees more than a little promise in 11 returning lettermen, an experienced line and the biggest drink of depth he's had in six seasons at M-F.

Despite the loss of his All-City QB, the Devil grid boss is losing little sleep over the pe[illegible]rmance of his successor [illegible] 165-lb. junior Lloyd [illegible] also doubling at line[illegible]).

In fact, Jim sees little unrest by M-F fans accustomed in the past to such stalwarts as Reeves and Dave Darnell at the field nerve center.

"LLOYD'S AN excellent passer and could be one of our best," Harper beams.

Two senior letter winners are available in halfback Clarence Jeter (5-7, 165) and flanker back Rick Austin (5-10, 175).

TOP FULLBACK prospect looks like Bill Harris (5-10, 175) with George Burgess (5-7, 145), Marty Donley (5-10, 165) and soph Bill Taylor (5-11, 160) other top HB contenders.

Anchoring the line is '67 All-City choice Steve Grabovich, a 5-10, 180-lb. senior. At one guard Harper has Wendell Fellure (sr., 5-11, 205) back with seniors Dan Wright (6-2, 215) and Otis Ross (6-0, 210) able at tackle and Mike Nicely (sr., 6-0, 175) and Ross Stewart (5-10, 165, also linebacker) stationed at end.

HARPER'S TWO remaining senior letter winners — Roy Keys (5-9, 160) and Barry Stewart (5-11, 165) — appear ticketed for defensive duties at halfback and linebacker respectively.

Top prospects putting the heat on the veterans are guard Mike Clark (6-2, 200), end Roy Enyart (5-10, 160), tackles Roger VanOver (6-0, 185) and Larry McDowell (6-2, 210), defensive guard Mark Trivonvich (6-2, 180) and safety Norman Johnson (5-10, 175), the latter a transfer from Central.

The Red Devil coach is encouraged by both backfield speed ("should be best all-around we've ever had") and line size ("experienced and plenty of depth").

..MAJOR CONCERN is the defense at present.

Jim lists Eastmoor (with Tucker-Pettorini combo) as the CL's number one contender with Central, South and Whetstone showing the most improvement.

"Balance and depth should be the keys to our success," Harper concludes. "Injuries shouldn't hurt us as badly as they did last season."

Can Gary Put 'Topping' On Hamilton Twp. Cake?

"We consider ourselves one of the better teams in the (Metropolitan) league. But we'll have to beat West Jefferson and Franklin Heights to go all the way."

So says new Hamilton Township grid boss Bruce Burnham, looking ahead to '68 prospects for his Ranger football 11.

"WE'RE A young ball club but a reasonably experienced one. We lack depth (35 candidates reported) and injury to key personnel would really hurt us," Burnham continues.

"But the attitude of these kids has been great. They'll be second to none in enthusiasm and desire."

The H-T coach isn't kidding himself, however, about problems — like finding replacements for 12 of 22 starters who helped the Rangers to a 4-6 log last fall.

TOUGHEST to replace will be graduated quarterback Ernie Spires whose shoes most likely will be filled by 145-lb. sophomore Bob Koontz.

"We expect our passing game to be more effective than last season," Burnham says. "Bob (Koontz) throws a softer pass which is easier to catch. He's an 'A' student and shows a lot of promise.

"But he is a sophomore and needs some experience before he'll be able to transfer the promise into results," Bruce added.

HOWEVER, if Koontz works rapidly into Burnham's new straight or wing-T offensive system, the new Ranger mentor should have most of his backfield problems solved.

Three of H-T's ten returning lettermen return to backfield spots — senior John Cunningham (170) and junior Jim Gorczyca at halfback and senior Gary Topping (200) at fullback.

Topping will be the key — the swift, powerful runner proving to be Hamilton's most productive ground gainer last fall.

GARY'S JUNIOR brother, Jerry, provides Burnham with an able safety man and a second quarterback possibility. A 155-pounder, the younger Topping missed all but the opener last season via injury.

The guard and end spots look well supplied with juniors John Neidigh (155) and Mike Malkowski (155) returning to the former and seniors Steve Mathis (175) and Russ Pinion (160) available at the latter.

Flemming's running mate at tackle could be Mike Blair, an 185-lb. sophomore.

Top defensive prospects look like Larry Wiggins (soph., 195), Dick Coogan (sr., 160) and Bill Estep (jr., 185) — all linebackers — and defensive end Gene Grubb (jr., 165). Another backfield prospect is 145-lb. sophomore halfback Vic Pinion.

..BURNHAM considers his backfield speed as "average (Topping — a 10.1 100-yd. dash man — is exceptionally fast)" with line size "light" ("we hope our quickness will make up for lack of size").

Spirit, desire and quickness are team strengths, according to the H-T coach while improving the defensive unit is the primary concern to date.

Explaining the shift to the new offensive system, Bruce relates, "We'll be aiming for fundamental basic execution. Our system will be no great secret — just block and tackle, and do it well. The really good teams just 'out-execute' you, that's all."

ASSISTING Burnham have been Wes Mirick and Frank Peters, ex-Hamilton standout who will be captaining Ohio U's grid forces this season.

'Rookie' Mohawk Plans CL Juggling Act

By BOB WHITMAN

Newcomer Mohawk could create quite a stir in the City League this fall as they rode a partial varsity season to a 5-2-1 record last year and return 17 letterwinners for their first try in the venerable City circuit.

One of the important aids in helping the Indians to a fine first effort was the Lewis Hale-to-Al Harris passing combination that rated observations from a lot of people last fall.

THAT PLUS A rugged running "T" formation could cause some difficulties around the league; at least that is the thinking of a couple of veteran CL coaches.

Second-year Mohawk mentor John Butler is figuring speed in many of his backs and linemen as the strong points of his contenders along with the passing act, but realizes that the defense may bog down early in the season.

"WE WILL have to improve the defense because of a lack of experience in many of the performers," notes Butler.

Besides Hale, a 170 pound QB, and Harris, a 180 pound end, Jim Pearson (155-QB), Jerry Lipsey (145-back), Sam Hancock (155-back), George Palmer (180-back), John Linville (135-back), Eric Robbins (140-back), Bob Burnett (150-E), Gerald Strother (175-LB), Marion Causey (200-T), Joe Anderson (260-T), John Ebron (190-E), [illegible] Palmer (160-C), Henry Heal (175-G), Charles Rogers (220-T) and Charles Trimble (180-G) round out the lettermen list.

Jitterbug Maurice Cox has delighted the staff at Mohawk with his speedy work in the earlier sessions to rate Butler's "best soph prospect" label along with Roger Hunt (190-T).

"I THINK we can be contenders in the City League race this year," said Butler, "but we will be able to tell better after our league opener with Linden."

Butler looks for the top dogfight to be between Eastmoor, Linden, Marion-Franklin and South (dark horse).

Rebs Lay 'Payne-ful' Path For CL Foes

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Veteran South High grid mentor Bob Jackson hopes to parlay a three-pronged attack —new "I" formation offense, overall backfield quickness and All-League quarterback Leslie Payne — into improvement on the Bulldogs' 3-6 '67 record this fall.

"We're definitely green defensively and small on the line for City League play," says Jackson, who lists the bulk of his graduation departures (16 of 22 starters lost) from the defensive unit.

HARDEST TO replace will be defenders like Andy Jacobs; George Jones and Myron Ware and offensive tackle-punter Bob McCoy.

Bob would rather dwell on the backfield outlook where speed will be improved and QB Payne (jr., 5-11, 165) returns.

"We believe he's (Payne) the fastest quarterback in the league," Jackson says, "and our new offensive formation will open up our game considerably and give him more of an opportunity to pass," the Rebel mentor adds.

SOUTH FANS will be treated to more of an aerial show this fall and Payne showed a good completion record last campaign although the Bulldogs threw only about 25 per cent of the time.

Of Jackson's 10 remaining lettermen, only one looks like a backfield starter at present —senior fullback Herb Jones (190).

Senior John Vick (165) had moved into the number one tailback spot but injury has clouded his future this season.

..BACKING UP Payne at quarterback (and playing safety) will be another letterman — senior Jerry Driggs (170).

Best looking of Jackson's backfield prospects are reserve graduate Barry Jones (jr., 150, tailback, who's fast and has good moves), John Alexander (jr., 140, transfer from Florida, good hands and speed at flanker back) and converted guard Paul McCamey (jr., 175, fullback).

Keying the line forces will be two-way veteran tackle Don Caldwell, a 225-lb. junior.

A pair of letter winners are currently vying for the starting center nod — senior Nick Ferguson (170) and junior Steve Ryerson (165).

Other top line prospects among non-lettermen are tackles Vincent Hendrix (jr., 175) and Jim Washington (jr., 185) and guards Steve McVey (sr., 165) and Gary Blackburn (sr., 160 lost during '67 season with broken arm).

AN ADDITIONAL defensive possibility is junior Bill Keeney (160).

Jackson sees defending City co-champ Eastmoor as the loop's strongest for '68 with Linden right behind. "There should be some pretty good balance the rest of the way down the list," Bob relates.

The Bulldog mentor lists three big "if's" for his squad: if—the defensive unit comes along quick enough, if — the new offense jells early and if —South gets past its date with Upper-Arlington in good physical shape.

CL's best in '68?

Stingy Defense, Healthy Carpenter Bolster Winchester Football Hopes

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Canal Winchester coach Mike Locke will be missing one element which vaulted his '67 Indians to a 6-2-1 mark and made them the "talk" of the Mid-State circuit.

That element is "surprise" —a quality which helped jump C-W from its post as loop doormat to sure-fire contender in one brief campaign.

ALTHOUGH Mid-State foes will be looking for the Indians this fall, Locke hopes to counter with a gritty defense and a healthy Chuck Carpenter.

Also helping to buoy the Winchester mentor's optimism is one of the largest grid turnouts in C-W history (58) and "more spirit this early than any team I've ever coached."

But with 14 of 22 '67 starters departed, Locke faces some pretty large holes to plug — especially on the line where stalwarts like end John McClain, guard John Sayre and tackle Jim Wynkoop are missing.

ALSO GONE are block-busting fullback Dave Cook and halfback Dennis Padgett, who filled in so abiely during Carpenter's long absense.

But 11 returning letter winners provide Locke with a solid necleus.

Spearheading the crop of vets is Carpenter, the 165-lb senior two-way halfback who was enroute to the Greater Franklin County scoring title (eight TDs in first three games) before a knee injury sidelined him for the duration.

ALSO BACK is regular '67 quarterback Chris Hanners (sr., 150) and seasoned backfield mates like seniors Gary Kemmerling (170, HB-LE) and Stan Smith (FB-LE).

A pair of backfield speedsters — both out for football for the first time — are sure to bolster C-W's scoring machine.

The duo is junior Scott Hartman (150, two-way HB) and senior Doug Beaty — the latter a 10.1 100-dash 150-pounder.

Contending with Smith for the fullback nod is another newcomer, 6-0, 180-lb freshman Ralph Steen.

THEY INCLUDE: junior guards Keith Babbert (160, also middle guard) and Keith Schiller (150, also linebacker), senior tackles Don Richardson (190, also def. end) and Eddie Haughn (200, both ways), soph defensive tackle Mike Griffith (190) and senior ends John Dawson (160) and John Durbin (170.

Tim Wynkoop (jr., 170) looks like the top center prospect with Mark Hanna (jr., 140) and Carl Weiser (6-0, 200, jr.) sure to see plenty of duty at linebacker and defensive tackle respectively.

Locke lists his backfield speed as "good" and line size "average."

THE SECOND-YEAR Winchester mentor's biggest problems at present are improving his Indians' pasing game ("we should have a good attack, it just hasn't clicked as of yet") and line blocking ("our pass blocking needs work").

"If our young tackles can mature fast enough, we should have a real fine defensive unit," Locke adds.

As far as the Mid-State title race goes, Locke sees the same kind of dogfight as the one which marked '67 play.

"I DON'T think anyone's weak. Everybody seems to be boasting about how good they're gonna' be," Mike says. "I think we'll be in there too."

Police Chief Outlines Child Protection Steps

A lifetime of mental injury can be caused by one experience with a child molester, Columbus Police Chief Robert H. Baus said.

To assist parents in dealing with this problem—and to help the Columbus Police protect the children of this city—Chief Baus outlined the following four basic precautionary measures parents should take for the protection of the city's youngsters:

FIRST, children should be warned never to enter an automobile at the invitation of a stranger or, for that matter, to accept any invitation whatsoever from a stranger. The usual pattern in this type of case involves an offer by the deviate of money, candy or other inducements to lure the child into a vehicle or secluded place where he or she cannot get help from a passerby.

SECOND, parents should report any suspicious stranger to the police by calling 221-1166. Get his license number, if he is driving a car. Be prepared to describe his physical appearance. Too often, child molestation attempts, even though unsuccessful, are not reported—perhaps from wanting to protect the child against publicity or embarrassment. This failure to report leaves an offender at liberty to prey on other children.

THIRD, parents should know at all times where their child is and what he is doing. Children should not be allowed to roam the streets aimlessly without adult supervision.

FOURTH, parents should instruct and impress upon their children that suspicious acts by strangers must be reported either to their parents, their teachers or a policeman, so that the streets can be kept safe not only for them, but for their play and schoolmates as well.

Leukemia Bowl Tickets Available From Hall, Simon

Richard C. Sensenbrenner, chairman of ticket sales for the fourth annual Leukemia Bowl announced that Sheriff Stacy Hall and Columbus Public Safety Director Fred J. Simon, have joined the list of community leaders selling tickets for the event.

Tickets may be purchased at Sheriff Hall's office in the Court House or Safety Director Simon's office at City Hall. All funds raised will be used to eradicate this disease.

The bowl game will be held September 7, at the Northland High School Stadium starting at 7 p.m.

MUST RE-REGISTER BY SEPT. 25

77,384 County Residents Remain Unable To Vote

Some 77,384 residents of Franklin County are going to be disappointed on election day if they don't take action by Sept. 25.

The 77,384 figure represents the number of county residents who voted in the 1964 presidential race not eligible to vote for the 1968 president unless they re-register by Sept. 25.

These residents must re-register because they have not voted during the past two years.

Fred J. Milligan, president of the Ohio Information Committee, brought out these statistics in a speech this week to the Linden Heights Kiwanis Club.

Milligan said more than one million Ohioans living in counties where voter registration is required are similarly affected because Ohio's election law requires re-registration for anyone who fails to vote two consecutive years.

"As a practical matter," Milligan said, "although more than four million ballots will be cast for president in Ohio on Nov. 5, and millions will be spent in campaigning during October, the election will be decided on Sept. 25, which is the registration deadline."

Milligan continued: "There are going to be many unhappy people in Ohio who expect to vote on Nov. 5, but will be unable to do so, simply because they failed to re-register by Sept. 25."

Meanwhile, the Franklin County Board of Elections announced extra registration hours will be established because of an unexpected high voter turnout.

Office of the board will be open through Sept. 25, according to the following schedule: Week days through Sept. 18—8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.; Sept. 7, 14, 21—8:30 a.m. until noon; Sept. 19, 20, 23, 24, 25 — 8:30 a.m. until 9 p.m.

Monday, Sept. 16, all precinct polling places in Columbus and Franklin County will be open for registration only from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m and from 4 p.m. until 9 p.m.

Those who are presently registered electors of Franklin County but who have moved within the county since last voting must also give notice of the change of address to the Board of Elections — either in person or through the mail.

No new registrations or reports of address changes will be accepted after 9 p.m. on Sept. 25.

Additional information on voting can be secured by phoning 228-5531.

Legislator Urged Ohio Pen Investigation In April, 1967

State Rep. Robert Jones (R-Columbus) is somewhat puzzled by a plea from a fellow legislator for a federal investigation into Ohio's penal system.

"I made a public statement about penitentiary conditions a year ago," Jones declared.

Last year Rep. Jones toured the Ohio State Penitentiary. He says he "came out quite upset with conditions."

Jones says he asked the legislative body to study the penitentiary situation then. The Columbus legislator says he was the initial sponsor of House Resolution 58 on April 12, 1967.

On Aug. 26 the resolution was adopted by the house, but due to time pressures, a legislative study commission turned down the possibility of such an investigation.

Jones is not vindicative about the setback. "I've had my say. I told them a year ago what had to be done. Now we've got to do something."

Jones said he wanted a "complete study" because he believed the penitentiary represented "16th Century penal methods in the 20th Century."

He recalls remarking to a fellow representative last year that the penitentiary situation could explode at any time.

State Rep. C. J. McLin (D-Dayton) last week called for a federal study of the Ohio Pen, specifically centering on the recent disturbance in which five inmates were killed.

The Dayton legislator sent a telegram to Gov. James Rhodes expressing his belief that the convicts should not have been killed. He said the first resort should have been tear gas.

Jones commented on McLin's telegram: "He's doing now what I did a year ago."

The Columbus lawmaker thinks a study of the penal system will be made now, since "the legislators realize the need for it."

Jones, however, was not critical of the Legislative Service Commission. At the time his resolution came up, he says, the commission had 38 resolutions presented to them and only had time to consider 16 of them.

The Franklin County Prosecutor's office, however, is asking for an investigation into the penitentiary situation.

Contrary to local newspaper reports, the investigation will be conducted only on criminal aspects of disturbances and not on conditions at the Ohio Pen.

Federated Stores Report Decline Due To Surcharge

Federated Department Stores, Inc. (Lazarus of Columbus is a division of Federated), reported that sales in the first half of fiscal 1968 set new records while profits declined from the comparable 1967 period.

The profit decline was entirely the result of the 10 percent Federal income tax surcharge.

Chairman Ralph Lazarus and President J. Paul Sticht said that sales for the 26-week period ended Aug. 3 were $775,942,846 compared with $710,654,638 in the first half of 1967, an increase of 9.2 percent.

Net profits in the first half of 1968 were $24,209,200, or 56 cents per share, compared with $26,397,700, or 61 cents per share the preceding year. (Results reflect the two-for-one stock split effective in July, 1968, and the 10 percent income tax surcharge retroactive to the beginning of the year).

For the second quarter alone (the 13 weeks ended August 3), sales were $393,737,170 against $362,889,543 in 1967, an increase of 8.5 percent.

Net earnings were $1[illegible] 730, or 26 cents per [illegible] compared with $13,35[illegible], or 31 cents per share in the comparable 1967 period.

For the "trailing year," or the 53 weeks ended Aug. 3, sales were $1,746,035,163 compared with $1,593,155,781 and earnings were $81,065,257, or $1.87 per share, against $75,753,026 and $1.76 per share for the 1967 trailing year.

Five Women Get CPS Rating

The Columbus Chapter of the National Secretaries Association, International, will award certificates to five Columbus women who attained the Certified Professional Secretary rating in 1968.

The certificates will be presented at the monthly meeting of the association to be held at the Imperial House North on Thursday, Sept. 19.

The new CPS recipients are Mrs. Flora A. Andrews, 2555 Eastcleft Dr.; Mrs. Nancy Jo Handel, 3120 Polley Rd.; Mrs. Wanda Hewitt, 4428 Keeler Dr.; Mrs. Frances A. Meighan, 1850 N. Star Rd., and Shirley J. Santo, 1590 Frebis Ave.

A Certified Professional Secretary is one who has met the educational and experience requirements and has successfully completed the six parts of a two-day examination administered annually by [illegible] Institute for Certifying [illegible]ries.

[illegible] six sections of the examination include business law, business administration, accounting, human relations, secretarial skills, and secretarial procedures.

Complete information concerning the CPS program may be obtained by calling Mrs. Nedra Freitag, CPS, at 221-1141 or 263-6823.

CPS Children Urged To Register Early

are now open to register children new to the school district or children starting school for the first time.

C. L. Dumaree, assistant superintendent of administration, reports that all 124 elementary school principals are on duty to answer questions about registration and to assist parents in preparing youngsters for the opening of school, Wednesday, Sept. 4.

To avoid long waiting lines or other delays, parents are urged to register their children as soon as possible.

Entrance age policy for 1968 is Sept. 30 for both kindergarten and first grade pupils. The new entrance age policy, approved Aug. 15, 1967, means that children five years old on or before Sept. 30 should be registered for kindergarten as soon as possible.

The new entrance age requirement for first grade means a pupil must be six years old on or before Sept. 30. Dumaree urges parents to direct any questions about registration or enrollment procedures to the school principal in their neighborhood.

Fair Features Fashion Expert

Virginia Blauvelt, nationally known fashion consultant-lecturer, returns to the Ohio State Fair again this year with her "Fun with Fashion" program.

A resident of Hamilton, O., she has been doing fashion programs at the state fair for six consecutive years, and her show is considered a highlight in the Arts and Crafts Building.

An impressive speaker, "Ginny" is a recognized leader in the fashion field, and it is her belief that every woman has a beauty potential and that every woman can be well dressed — she demonstrates how in her twice-daily show at the state fair.

The "Fun with Fashion" show started Aug. 25 and will continue through the end of the fair, Labor Day, Sept. 2.

New CPS Teachers To Get Orientation

An all-day orientation program for 320 Columbus Public School new teachers is scheduled for Aug. 30, at Central High School.

The workshop for the new teachers who are assigned to priority schools is designed to provide insight into the child, the community, the school and the curriculum of the inner-city.

Sixteen discussion groups of 20 teachers each will consider "Do's and Don'ts of Discipline," "Language Patterns" and "Methods of Classroom Organization and Management."

The keynote speaker for the day is Dr. Kenneth R. Johnson, assistant professer, University of Southern California. His topic, "Cultural Deprivation as a Factor in School Learning," will highlight the theme of the entire workshop program.

Dr. Johnson's thesis for the Friday workshop is an "Overview of the basic characteristics of the child's environment which help develop his values, his mores, and his customs."

A third feature of the orientation is a three member panel discussing "the Community, the Child, and the Curriculum." Panel members include Leonard N. Napper, CMACAO, Richard Brown, Douglas Elementary School, math teacher, and Edward Willis, principal of Champion Junior High School.

State Patrol Offers Tip On Safety

"We are asking all Ohio drivers to use an extra measure of care on the highways during the coming Labor Day weekend," Ohio State Highway Patrol Superintendent Col. Robert M. Chiaramonte said.

Colonel Chiaramonte listed a few tips for drivers to follow over this holiday weekend:

1. Be alert to all signs, signals, and surroundings.

2. Don't speed . . . it's the leading cause of accidents.

3. Wear seat belts at all times, and shoulder belts if available.

4. Don't drink if you drive. Approximately 50 per cent of all traffic fatalities in this country last year were alcohol-related.

5. Use your lights at dusk and at night.

6. Don't rely on the other driver's judgment, he may be wrong.

"Although there will be hundreds of patrolmen on the road, we cannot shoulder the safety responsibility for every driver," the Colonel said.

State Plans To Purchase Riot Unit

The state is planning to purchase a mobile command unit to be made available to local law enforcement agencies in riot situations, Attorney General William B. Saxbe has announced.

In a report to Gov. James Rhodes, Saxbe said the mobile unit will be maintained by the State Highway Patrol.

"The vehicle will have a comprehensive and flexible communications capability," Saxbe said.

It will also be equipped with weapons and protective gear.

Saxbe's announcement was made as chairman of the Interim Ohio Law Enforcement Advisory Commission, created by Rhodes in July to enable Ohio to qualify for federal funds under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act.

Project HOPE Ball Chairmen Are Selected

The Women's Division Project HOPE of Central Ohio and the Men's Division announce the honorary chairmen of the Second Annual Project HOPE Ball.

Named is Frederick W. LeVeque of 11,000 Africa Galena Rd., Westerville. Also named is the new Men's Division chairman for the second ball, Frederick H. VonStade, 189 N. Parkview.

The Second Annual HOPE Ball will be held at the Sheraton Columbus Saturday, Sept. 21, with all proceeds from the ball and Ad Journal going to the medical teaching ship S.S. HOPE.

Personally delivered invitations on a silver platter will be handled by the members of the Women's Division Aug. 29, under the direction of Mrs. R. W. Bethel and Mrs. Orland Rader, president of the Women's Division.

Mrs. Frederick Baker Jr. is ball chairman.

WORSHIP KNOWS NO CALENDAR

Some select Sunday as a day of worship. Others prefer Friday or Saturday. But the solace of worship knows no boundaries—temporal or spatial.

Some find their God in church. Others see him in a spring sunrise, or in a fresh-mown meadow at dusk. Children oft find peace in an evening prayer.

Each seeks peace in his own way. All place their trust in a Supreme Being and worship as conscience dictates.

Why not join them? You, too, can find solace and guidance in prayer.

Five Women Get CPS Rating

The Columbus Chapter of the National Secretaries Association, International, will award certificates to five Columbus women who attained the Certified Professional Secretary rating in 1968.

The certificates will be presented at the monthly meeting of the association to be held at the Imperial House North on Thursday, Sept. 19.

The new CPS recipients are Mrs. Flora A. Andrews, 2555 Eastcleft Dr.; Mrs. Nancy Jo Handel, 3120 Polley Rd.; Mrs. Wanda Hewitt, 4428 Keeler Dr.; Mrs. Frances A. Meighan, 1850 N. Star Rd., and Shirley J. Santo, 1590 Frebis Ave.

A Certified Professional Secretary is one who has met the educational and experience requirements and has successfully completed the six parts of a two-day examination administered annually by the Institute for Certifying Secretaries.

The six sections of the examination include business law, business administration, accounting, human relations, secretarial skills, and secretarial procedures.

Complete information concerning the CPS program may be obtained by calling Mrs. Nedra Freitag, CPS, at 221-1141 or 263-6823.

CPS Children Urged To Register Early

are now open to register children new to the school district or children starting school for the first time.

C. L. Dumaree, assistant superintendent of administration, reports that all 124 elementary school principals are on duty to answer questions about registration and to assist parents in preparing youngsters for the opening of school, Wednesday, Sept. 4.

To avoid long waiting lines or other delays, parents are urged to register their children as soon as possible.

Entrance age policy for 1968 is Sept. 30 for both kindergarten and first grade pupils. The new entrance age policy, approved Aug. 15, 1967, means that children five years old on or before Sept. 30 should be registered for kindergarten as soon as possible.

The new entrance age requirement for first grade means a pupil must be six years old on or before Sept. 30. Dumaree urges parents to direct any questions about registration or enrollment procedures to the school principal in their neighborhood.

Fair Features Fashion Expert

Virginia Blauvelt, nationally known fashion consultant-lecturer, returns to the Ohio State Fair again this year with her "Fun with Fashion" program.

A resident of Hamilton, O., she has been doing fashion programs at the state fair for six consecutive years, and her show is considered a highlight in the Arts and Crafts Building.

An impressive speaker, "Ginny" is a recognized leader in the fashion field, and it is her belief that every woman has a beauty potential and that every woman can be well dressed — she demonstrates how in her twice-daily show at the state fair.

The "Fun with Fashion" show started Aug. 25 and will continue through the end of the fair, Labor Day, Sept. 2.

New CPS Teachers To Get Orientation

An all-day orientation program for 320 Columbus Public School new teachers is scheduled for Aug. 30, at Central High School.

The workshop for the new teachers who are assigned to priority schools is designed to provide insight into the child, the community, the school and the curriculum of the inner-city.

Sixteen discussion groups of 20 teachers each will consider "Do's and Don'ts of Discipline," "Language Patterns" and "Methods of Classroom Organization and Management."

The keynote speaker for the day is Dr. Kenneth R. Johnson, assistant professor, University of Southern California. His topic, "Cultural Deprivation as a Factor in School Learning," will highlight the theme of the entire workshop program.

Dr. Johnson's thesis for the Friday workshop is an "Overview of the basic characteristics of the child's environment which help develop his values, his mores, and his customs."

A third feature of the orientation is a three member panel discussing "the Community, the Child, and the Curriculum." Panel members include Leonard N. Napper, CMACAO, Richard Brown, Douglas Elementary School, math teacher, and Edward Willis, principal of Champion Junior High School.

State Plans To Purchase Riot Unit

The state is planning to purchase a mobile command unit to be made available to local law enforcement agencies in riot situations, Attorney General William B. Saxbe has announced.

In a report to Gov. James Rhodes, Saxbe said the mobile unit will be maintained by the State Highway Patrol.

"The vehicle will have a comprehensive and flexible communications capability," Saxbe said.

It will also be equipped with weapons and protective gear.

Saxbe's announcement was made as chairman of the Interim Ohio Law Enforcement Advisory Commission, created by Rhodes in July to enable Ohio to qualify for federal funds under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act.

State Patrol Offers Tip On Safety

"We are asking all Ohio drivers to use an extra measure of care on the highways during the coming Labor Day weekend," Ohio State Highway Patrol Superintendent Col. Robert M. Chiaramonte said.

Colonel Chiaramonte listed a few tips for drivers to follow over this holiday weekend:

1. Be alert to all signs, signals, and surroundings.

2. Don't speed . . . it's the leading cause of accidents.

3. Wear seat belts at all times, and shoulder belts if available.

4. Don't drink if you drive. Approximately 50 per cent of all traffic fatalities in this country last year were alcohol-related.

5. Use your lights at dusk and at night.

6. Don't rely on the other driver's judgment, he may be wrong.

"Although there will be hundreds of patrolmen on the road, we cannot shoulder the safety responsibility for every driver," the Colonel said.

Project HOPE Ball Chairmen Are Selected

The Women's Division Project HOPE of Central Ohio and the Men's Division announce the honorary chairmen of the Second Annual Project HOPE Ball.

Named is Frederick W. LeVeque of 11,000 Africa Galena Rd., Westerville. Also named is the new Men's Division chairman for the second ball, Frederick H. VonStade, 189 N. Parkview.

The Second Annual HOPE Ball will be held at the Sheraton Columbus Saturday, Sept. 21, with all proceeds from the ball and Ad Journal going to the medical teaching ship S.S. HOPE.

Personally delivered invitations on a silver platter will be handled by the members of the Women's Division Aug. 29, under the direction of Mrs. R. W. Bethel and Mrs. Orland Rader, president of the Women's Division.

Mrs. Frederick Baker Jr. is ball chairman.

WORSHIP KNOWS NO CALENDAR

Some select Sunday as a day of worship. Others prefer Friday or Saturday. But the solace of worship knows no boundaries—temporal or spatial.

Some find their God in church. Others see him in a spring sunrise, or in a fresh-mown meadow at dusk. Children oft find peace in an evening prayer.

Each seeks peace in his own way. All place their trust in a Supreme Being and worship as conscience dictates.

Why not join them? You, too, can find solace and guidance in prayer.

Fair Housing Hopes Rise

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Open housing received a shot in the arm from the Air Force this week.

Lockbourne Air Force Base officials reported optimistically that most spokesmen for rental facilities responded favorably to a policy declaring no military personnel may enter into a lease with a person or agency not listed with the base's Housing Referral Office.

Officials report only eight housing facility units were put on a restrictive list made up of rental agencies or landlords refusing to comply with open housing for military personnel without regard to race.

The armed services' order, announced by Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford some time ago, apparently placed off limits to service personnel all housing of four or more units where racial discrimination is practiced.

The order became effective Aug. 1, and also included rental facilities within an hour's drive of the base.

Lockbourne officials confessed they first misinterpreted the Defense Department order and attempted to contact over 290 rental facilities throughout Columbus.

Out of the 290 letters sent out asking for compliance with the open housing directive, only 43 would not comply.

Later, however, base officials contacted only the 93 apartment or trailer court rental facilities already listed with them. Out of 93, only eight refused to sign up with the base office.

An Air Force spokesman said that the eight "flatly refused to rent to military personnel without regard to race."

Lockbourne officials some weeks ago had invited officials of the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce, Board of Realtors and representatives of large rental agencies to the base to explain the new policy.

The economic impact of the new order was then thought to be considerable, since base personnel would be renting between 1500 and 1700 apartments at any given time.

The open housing advocates recently urged the Columbus Board of Realtors to end housing discrimination in Franklin County by July 31. They extended this deadline when they learned the realtors had appointed a special committee to examine their case.

Commenting on the extension deadline, Mrs. Bettie M. Johnson, a member of the open housing group, said this was a "reasonable and logical step for the board to take."

The fair housing plea, which won the support of the Chamber of Commerce, the League of Women Voters and eight lending institutions also gained support of a Worthington church.

The official board of the Worthington United Methodist Church voted approval of an "uncompromising policy stand in favor of open housing practices by realtors, lending institutions, individual homeowners and renters."

The policy statement, passed at an Aug. 19 meeting, said access to housing "regardless of race, national origin or religious commitment is an urgent need of our community, a basic right of American citizens and a responsibility for socially conscious Christians to bring into being and practice on an individual basis."

The open housing advocates, however, also took a surprising swipe at the predominantly Negro real estate dealers this week, urging them to end "racially slanted advertising."

The group asked the Columbus Association of Real Estate Brokers (realists) to eliminate such wording in ads as "open to all" and "all welcome."

The group charged this wording implied housing could be purchased by a Negro.

ORGANIZATIONAL NEWS

American Business Women To Meet At Hayes Hotel

The Rose Capital Chapter of the American Business Women's Association will meet Sept. 3 for a 6:30 p.m. dinner at the Hotel Fort Hayes. A 5:30 p.m. cocktail hour will precede the meeting. Reservations are due by Sept. 1 to Margaret Ryder.

Women Voters Have Leaflet For The Public

Members of the League of Women Voters step lively in an election year, as they work to keep the citizenry well supplied with non-partisan information prior to the November balloting.

A particularly timely leaflet just published by the League of Women Voters of the United States is "Get Ready to Vote!" — a special election year publication that includes facts and figures—state-by-state — on registration, elections (when - what - who), and absentee voting.

"Get Ready to Vote" costs 15 cents per single copy or 10 copies for $1 (quantity prices available on request) and may be ordered from the League of Women Voters of Metropolitan Columbus, 65 S. Fourth St., Columbus, O. 43215.

Christmas Seal Workers Needed

They are on the 58 million Christmas Seals that were recently delivered to the TB Society of Columbus and Franklin County.

Come Christmas Seal time, they'll all go out to homes in Columbus and Franklin County.

Right now, the TB Society needs groups of volunteers to prepare sheets of seals for mailing and help with other activities.

Anyone interested in helping may call Mill Keller at the TB Society at 228-6704.

Crime Wave Soars High

America's crime wave soared upward, according to a report released publicly Tuesday by Attorney General Ramsey Clark.

In a year when crime increase is seen as a potentially explosive political issue, the FBI's 1967 Uniform Crime Reports dropped like a bombshell.

According to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, there were over 3.8 million serious crimes committed in the United States in 1967, a 16 per cent increase over 1966.

The number of violent crimes exceeded 494,500, a 16 per cent rise over the previous year. Crimes against property totaled more than 3,307,700 offenses, up 17 per cent over 1966.

According to the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports, in 1967 robbery increased 28 per cent, murder 11 per cent, aggravated assault nine per cent and forcible rape seven per cent over 1966.

From 1960 to 1967 the volume of serious crime in the United States climbed 89 per cent with the violent crimes up 73 per cent and crimes against property up 91 per cent.

THE OHIO PENITENTIARY: PART IV

Playing The Game Of Survival Comes First

(Editor's Note: This week, the path of a 17-year-old boy in the Ohio Penitentiary is outlined by Rev. Tom Sagendorf, who was an intern chaplain at the penitentiary and also completed clinical training there. Rev. Sagendorf, who wrote this series two years ago, now is director of the Interfaith Action Council in Flint, Mich.)

By REV. TOM SAGENDORF

... It appeared on a secluded page in a large Ohio news-[illegible]r, near the bottom of the [illegible] and with no fanfare.

Obviously, it was thought to be a very insignificant news item; you could easily miss it, and most people obviously did. The front pages of the newspaper were celebrating another story of violence in the way newspapers usually do: Leaving you wondering whether they really abhor violence as they claim or if they really enjoy every daring move, every crushing blow, every cry of pain, every drop of blood.

BUT IN A secluded corner appeared the short news item: Judge sentences 17-year-old boy to life imprisonment in the Ohio Penitentiary for murder.

You can tell by the address given that the boy came from a poor section of the city . . . What's so important about an insignificant 17-year-old getting life in the Ohio Penitentiary? Who really cares what happens to him?

A DEAD END

This item appeared in the paper some time ago. By now the 17-year-old is a resident of the "Horrible World" . . . He has been immersed into the boiling oil of hate and suffering and eternal damnation and nobody has heard the screams of pain — how can you hear cries of pain through a stone wall which is 32 feet high?

JUST AS THE newspaper spared you the trouble of reading the account of the sentence as you scanned through the priority news items, so the huge stone walls have cooperated by assuring us that we'll never have to see the face of the enemy again. . . .

But despite the cooperation of the newspapers, the hard indifference of the walls and the silence of those men whom we hire . . . despite all these, let's take a look at the future of a 17-year-old in a world which distinguishes itself in providing no future. . . .

STAYING ALIVE

Being a 17-year-old thrown into the "Horrible World" of the Ohio Penitentiary is like being thrown to the lions — you stand a real good chance of being torn apart. . . .

HE MAY PROTEST all this depravity which smells of death, but he had better not protest too loud. This is the way things are in the "Horrible World" and the system doesn't like protestors.

Furthermore, the lions who are prowling for new prey have sharp claws—real sharp. They come in the form of knives which can be bought for six or seven packs of cigarettes and they willing cut and even kill those who don't cooperate or those who get in the way. . . .

So he's got to play the game to survive. He's got to consent to playing the role of the dead carcass for the flies — that's what he's worth now. . . .

THE COAL PILE

But let's suppose that the 17-year-old has survived to this date. Where is he now?

Chances are good, if his skin is the right (or the wrong) color, he has been assigned to the coal pile. Here he can do two things: He can shovel coal all day and learn an occupational skill which is sure to prepare him for "tomorrow's" jobs; or he can learn racial hatred.

NOW AND THEN, as a letup from his vocational and hate training at the coal pile, he might get a chance to tug at one of the long lines as he and his fellow "students" pull a loaded railroad car filled with coal from the huge gate where it has been unfastened from the diesel engine. . . .

HOME, SWEET HOME

But let's talk about "home, sweet home." It's that 9 by 8 by 7-foot cell which the

FOUR LASSES WERE CROWNED

Miller Acreage Again Slated For Subdivision

Ashville council members learned this week that the Jake Miller property west of Jefferson Street is once again slated for residential housing.

According to sketchy information reported by Mayor Harold Hartley, John Brinker, local real estate broker has picked up the option formerly held by Guy Leatherwood and plans apartment housing for the area.

STATING THAT $300,000 in financing has already been secured for the development, Hartley added he has been informed construction will hopefully begin later this month.

This is the same property for which Leatherwood dropped plans for a mobile home development when residents of Jefferson Street protested what they considered a glorified trailer camp as a neighbor.

With Ashville finances once again on a relatively steady keel, council appropriated $3,000 for tar and chipping of East Street, Park Street, Plum from the elementary school to Circleville Road, Maple from Main to Gary and all of Rich Street.

ALTHOUGH AWAKE that residents feel "a slight disgust" for this type of street improvement (blacktopping is preferred) council took the action as the only feasible one with available funds.

The problem of financing the $8,000 extension of waterlines to the Klein-Kuhlwein addition near Teays Valley High School is apparently proving more complicated for the finance committee.

It will be ultimately paid for by assessment but the immediate problem of paying for the materials on order for the extension is up in the air.

WITH BANK interest high, the village would like to use idle reserve funds on hand and is investigating the legality of such a step.

Obviously smarting from interest rates now being paid, council instructed Clerk Ann Leatherwood to honor only a six percent interest rate of the statement from a local bank.

Councilman Gary Thropp states that Ohio law protects a municipality from a higher rate. Although Mrs. Leatherwood expressed some concern about the reaction to this move, members indicated they were on firm ground, armed with the information that the 90 day note dated in 1964 is now actually only a moral obligation, and not a legal one.

AN OKAY was given to the Firemen's request to hold games in the village park on Thursday nights to raise money to pay for the new grass fire fighter. They will be charged only for electricity used.

However, the request to use the park for a camp meeting was turned over to the discretion of local ministers.

Council believes a revival without local sponsorship — and supervision — could provide problems.

MAYOR HARTLEY reported that his repair of "that funny street light", long a village landmark at Long and Main Streets is almost complete and will be reinstalled soon.

According to Marshal Glenn Clay, the temporary replacement of the light has been a matter of concern to many who believed the change was a permanent one.

Mrs. Shipley Dennies Lares Had Influence On Vote

Mrs. Frances Shipley has taken exception to fellow boardman Tim Gibbs' comments on her recent voting on placing millage before the voters of Hamilton Local School District.

It was reported in last week's Spectator that Gibbs believed Mrs. Shipley had reversed her position from neg[illegible]e to affirmative on a 13 [illegible] operating levy upon the persuasion of Board President William Lares.

SHE EMPHATICALLY denies that this is the case.

"No one changes my vote," she stated. "I am solely responsible for the positions I take."

To further explain her recent voting record, she reviewed her actions at the last two board meetings (Aug. 19 and 2!)

AT THE FORMER, she stated she was asking that the administration provide the board with a new budget which would precisely detail what expenditures would be curtailed with less millage than the one submitted to the county auditor in July which was based on 13 mills.

(Under new state law, any millage that MAY be asked for must be budgeted, or it cannot be collected even if it is later placed on the ballot and okayed by the public).

MRS. SHIPLEY states this matter was under discussion when "out of a clear blue sky" Gibbs made the motion to place the entire 13 mills on the ballot.

'I did not believe this was the time for a vote, although I realized we must have additional funds. I am not against millage, and was not then. My vote was simply to delay action until further study could be made."

The vote was 3-2 in favor of the 13 mills and Mrs. Shipley assumed the matter was closed until Lares called her the following day asking for her attendance at a special board meeting on Friday for a revote on the matter.

(THE BOARD president, clerk and school superintendent had suddenly realized that a two-thirds majority is needed to place an operating levy on the ballot).

Mrs. Shipley told Lares that she would not be in the township Friday, but would be glad to comply with his request either before or after her being away from home.

The meeting was then set for Wednesday.

SHE MAINTAINS that Lares did not know how she would vote at that meeting, adding that she herself often changes her mind on an issue after hearing the presentation made at the meeting at which the vote is taken.

She also says that she cannot remember Lares asking her what her vote would be.

Asked why she did change her vote to the affirmative when the motion for 13 mills was again made (this time by Mace) she explained that she was greatly concerned about the need for additional income for the district and believed her switch would provide the fourth vote necessary for the motion to pass.

SHE SAID she was also influenced by the belief the filing deadline was closer than Sept. 15—the actual date.

(Her "four vote" stand is difficult to justify as Don Heggrow and Gibbs had already vote "no" before her turn—with the roll called in alphabetical order).

Mrs. Shipley asked that it be clarified that she could not go along with Supt. John Savel's recommendation that only 5.9 mills be requested.

"THIS PROPOSAL would be feasible only with closing Obetz School," she said. "This the board does not intend to do."

State To Sell 1.7 Acres In Groveport

A 1.7 acre tract on Rt. 665 near Rohr Road in Groveport will be auctioned by the Ohio Department of Highways Thursday, Sept. 19, at 11 a.m.

The property lies between the intersection of relocated 665 with Rohr Road and a point southeast of the limited access right of way line of Ohio 665.

The purchaser must waive any and all claims of right of direct access to and from 665.

The property cannot be sold for less than two-thirds of appraised value and sale expense. A deposit of $100 payable to the Treasurer, State of Ohio, will be required of the successful bidder at the time of a sale.

The right to reject all bids is reserved.

Jim Stevenson Wins Jr. Fair Sweepstakes

Jim Stevenson, 5910 Ebright Rd., went to the Ohio State Fair with 34 pigs, 12 sheep and the determination to bring back the Junior Fair Sweepstakes for himself and the Groveport-Madison Chapter of Future Farmers of America of which he is president.

The 17-year-old senior brought back the Sweepstakes which he won as top moneyman among junior Fair exhibitors, 20 blue ribbons, a Reserve Champion in the Chester White Barrow competition and a silver tea service presented by the Borden Co. in recognition of his being named Sweepstakes winner.

THE $330 he earned in cash prizes brought his 1968 Fair winnings (State and Franklin County) to $900.

According to the chapter advisor, Franklin Miller, this is the fourth time in the chapter's history that a member has taken the Sweepstakes. Previous winners were Lee Watkins, David Schleppi and Walter Kuhlein.

Another of the chapter's 18 exhibitors, David Barnhart, brought special recognition to the chapter when his poultry, in competition with 150 pens, was named Reserve Champion.

THIS EARNED him an all-expense paid trip to the Poultry Fact Finding Congress in Kansas City next spring. His scholarship was awarded by the Ohio Poultry Improvement Association.

The Farm Mechanics Class of Groveport-Madison also won a $75 special award to be used for attendance at the National FFA Convention in Kansas City the week of Oct. 15.

Miller stated that this is the 14th time the class has received this award.

TOTAL CHAPTER earnings at the two fairs top $2,000.

Topic At Faculty Orientation School-Community Relations

William Stoltz of the Field Service Division of Ohio Education Service spoke at the orientation meeting held Tuesday for the members of the Hamilton Local School District faculty.

His subject was "Positive Relations Between School and Community."

The program began with coffee and donuts and a welcome by Supt. John Savel, County Superintendent Fred Daniel and an address by Virginia Lloyd of the elementary division of the State Department of Education who spoke on "The Middle School Concept."

FOLLOWING the workshops for teachers of K-4, 5-8 and 9-12, the teachers attended a dinner at the Hoover 'Y'-Park.

An orientation meeting held Friday was for the 22 teachers who are new to the district this term.

Following a morning social hour and workshops at which school rules and regulations were explained, a tour of the district was made with lunch served at the Officer's Club at Lockbourne Air Force Base.

TEACHERS also visited the buildings to which they are assigned.

AND UP SHE GOES

Bernie Grebus, construction superintendent on the job of the new middle school of the Hamilton Local School District points to progress made. According to John Savel, Hamilton superintendent, one-fourth of the outside construction is finished, although the building is not scheduled for completion until late summer, 1969. Grebus, of the State Construction Co. which holds the general contract for the facility on Rathmell Road east of Parsons, states that he would be further ahead than he is, but [illegible] strikes and bad weather have necessitated a slow-down on this job to concentrate on contracts with much earlier completion dates.

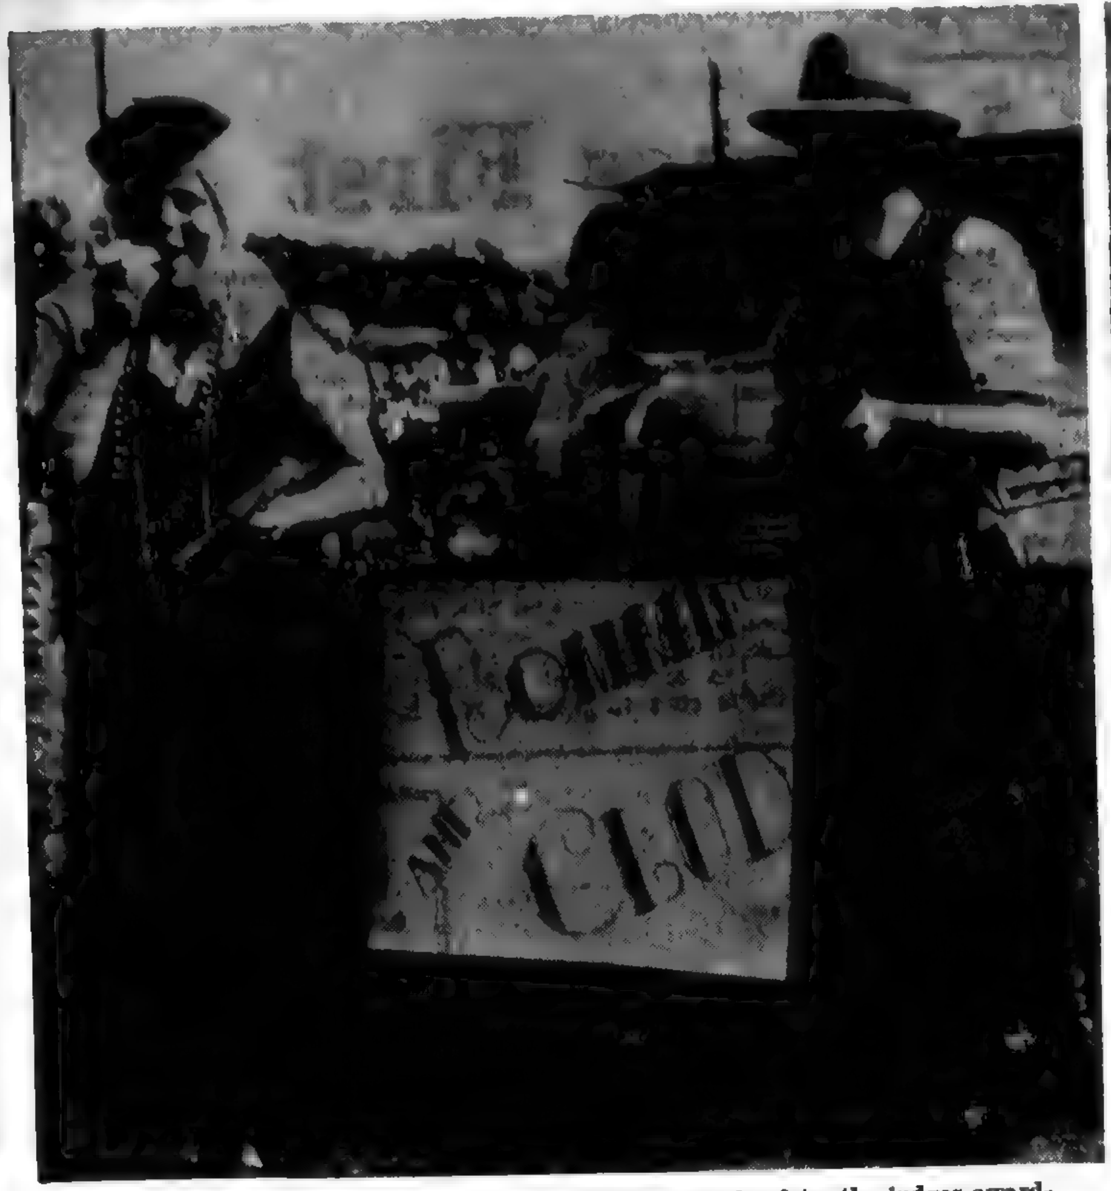
Canal Winchester Parade Provides Labor Day Hoopla



Apparently with complete disregard for personal safety, the judges awarded "Bommie and Clod" only second place in the individual competition. "Bommie," right, also known as Marcella Taylor, and "Clod," or Jo Weibel, were heard muttering they may not take this insult sitting down—any more than their cohort in crime, Linda Doan, who was hiding out when the picture was taken.

The elaborate float constructed by the residents of Fairfield, Beaty and Trine Streets was first in the classification reserved for local neighborhoods. Entitled "The Wizard of Oz," the float featured the castle and the key characters of the classic tale.

Taking first prize among out-of-town floats was that entered by the Southwest Groveport Young People who billed themselves as the Only Genuine Original Family Band. Their leaders, pictured at the back of the float, are Mrs. Beulah McCracken and Jim Swartzlander.

Few people needed two guesses to establish the identity of "The Big Daddy" of the Canal Winchester version of Hell's Angels Monday. As usual, Art Day led the members of the Cornservatory Club to victory in the individual competition. The other "Thespians" are Sallie and Bill Fagen, Lee and Mary Thomas, Bill and Patty Spires and Sam and Marilyn Rush.

Food Study At Mershon

Three Marion-Franklin High School seniors have been named to attend the "Youth and Science — The Personal Equation" conference Saturday, Sept. 21 at Mershon Auditorium.

They are Catherine Halsey, Steve Johnson and Gary Mathias who will be accompanied by Mary Beth Elmore of the M-F faculty.

To be attended by 2,000 outstanding high school science students from throughout Ohio, the conference is designed to enlighten the state's high-ability high school students regarding the world food problem.

Look Forward . .
. Look Spectator

Among the more dignified carloads riding in Monday's parade, which included local officials as well as beauty queens and clowns, were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gearhart, squired by Tom Moore. Gearhart, president-elect of District 10 Kiwanis, is director of personnel of Columbus Public Schools.

17-year-old will share with three other men.

There's the cold running water in the sink which is sulphur water. There's no hot water but the cold water is good if you want a drink and can stand the smell.

Then there's the toilet. If he sleeps on either bottom bunk, it will be about two feet from his head. The only trouble is that the rules say you're not allowed to cover this toilet (it doesn't have a seat).

IT HAS TO be left open. But treat it with respect: When you eat in your cell it may be your dining room table — you just put a checker board over it and sit on your bunk and "zap" you have a table for your meal. And it is also your laundry facilities. . . .

Let's suppose that the 17-year-old survives enough years of being treated like a rotten carcass to be placed in the "honor dorm" and even given the honored position of being a chauffeur at the governor's mansion. . . .

One such was recently caught usurping this priceless freedom to indulge in some irregular activities. . . . He was quickly "busted" — not only from the chauffeur position but from the honor dorm also —straight into the "hole."

He's no longer around — he hung himself in the hole. How? By tying his coveralls around the bars of his cell and around his neck and folding his legs under him. He could have stopped it any time just by putting his legs down.

But he didn't.

Miss Susan Olney Becomes Bride Of Mr. Frazier In August Ceremony

Miss Susan Lynn Olney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Olney, 1831 Mareco Place E., became the bride of Mr. Leon Frazier in a recent ceremony at the Emmanuel Lutheran Church performed by the Rev. Carlton J. Sutorious.

Mr. Frazier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Frazier, 388 Woodrow Ave.

The brideamaids were Miss Susie Humes, 51 Southwood Ave., and Miss Peggy Doyle, Koebel Rd. Their blue dresses were identical to that of Miss Parsley.

A cousin of the bride, Sandra Kay Weber, 101 Meline Ave., Obetz, dressed in a short blue silk with lace overlay, served as flower girl.

Mr. Gary Van Robinson acted as best man and Mr. Gary Jenkins and Mr. Solt Swisher were ushers.

Mrs. Frazier is a graduate of Marion-Franklin High School and is a receptionist for Dr. R. D. Lausa. The bridegroom is an alumnus of South High and is associated with the Columbus Milpar & Mfg. Co.

The newlyweds will be at home at 1045 Crown Ave., Columbus.

Mrs. Leon Frazier

Code Of Ethics?

Some of our major metropolitan area mayors who are advocating shooting looters during civil disturbances should read the Law Enforcement Code of Ethics.

While a law officer is responsible for upholding the law and maintaining control over lawlessness, he is given no badge to use unnecessary force or violence.

The code of ethics flies in the face of those who want to turn the police force into a militia.

"As a law enforcement officer, my fundamental duty is to serve mankind; to safeguard lives and property; to protect the innocent against deception, the weak against oppression or intimidation, and the peaceful against violence or disorder; and to respect the Constitutional rights of all men to liberty, equality and justice . . .

"I will enforce the law courteously and appropriately without fear or favor, malice or ill will, never employing unnecessary force or violence and never accepting gratuities."

Old Trick

The Franklin County Republican organization is trying to pull an old political trick on the voters.

County Commissioner Glenn Myers has announced his resignation, partially for business reasons and, admittedly, partly for political reasons.

Politically, his resignation is a shot in the arm for the candidacy of Jacob A. Shawan for a seat on the commission. For, lo and behold, who else but Shawan has been named to fill Myers' unexpired term.

In other words, Shawan now runs as an incumbent, with all the implications of experience, etc., that go along with it.

The Spectator has yet to make its determination as to who will get its endorsement in the commission races.

But we do feel that the voters should be given an even break and be given an unprejudiced opportunity to view the candidates as just that — candidates.

Remember that when the posters go up urging you to "Retain Shawan."

Looking Down Wall Street

[illegible]

The public ownership of corporation stock in the U.S. is estimated to be in excess of 20 million shareholders, compared to six and one-half million in 1952. This widespread ownership of American business is due to the growing awareness of informed people that surplus income can be put to work in investments. The economic picture of our economy is always changing. The ability of common stock to reflect these conditions is their greatest advantage and also their greatest risk. The risk involved is the ability of the individual corporation to cope with these changes and still continue to earn a profit. In the world of finance there are no "sure things." The future carries no guarantees that today's prosperous companies will prosper tomorrow. A corporation's ability to meet the constant pressure of the past is in the records; often this is an indication of its ability in the future.

Dividend payments are not always the same from quarter to quarter or year to year. But there are 87 corporations listed on the New York Stock Exchange that have paid dividends for 50 to over 100 years, 106 that have paid for 35 to 50 years, and 380 from 20 to 35 years. Of the 1,127 common stocks on the NYSE that paid dividends in 1966, 849 made larger payments per share than in the preceding year, 46 paid less, and 232 paid the same amounts both years.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reports cost of living has doubled since W.W.II. In the same period Standard and Poor's index of dividends paid by common stocks has quadrupled. In 1939 a small Chevrolet cost $700. General Motors paid $3.50 dividend a share in that year. Ownership of 200 shares would allow you to enjoy a car "on the company." Since then GM has split 2:1 and 3:1 leaving you with 1200 shares paying dividends of $5460.00 in 1966, which would buy you a car. In 1967 a General Electric 18" color TV, table model, cost $380, which is only 40 percent more than the smaller black and white TV set cost in 1950. However, income from the stock increase 129 percent.

American News Co. since 1864 and Pullman, Inc. since 1867 have paid dividends every quarter for over 100 years. The following listed well-known corporations have paid dividends every quarter for over 50 years: ATT (since 1882), Burroughs (1906), E.I. duPont (1905), Eastman Kodak (1902), G.E. (1899), Parke, Davis & Co. (1897), Procter and Gamble (1898), R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (1901), Texaco (1903), & Union Pacific R.R. (1907).

These are just a few examples of corporations that have had the ability and foresight to keep pace with our fast changing economy. Not only have they stayed in business, but prospered and continued paying dividends every quarter for extended periods of time. For individuals interested in investing in America's businesses which will provide a steady stream of income, there are well-tested issues to choose from.

For further information concerning corporations with long histories of paying dividends, write or call me at Saunders, Stiver and Company.

Child As Father

By JOHN MORGAN

> "The child is father > to the man."
> (William Wordsworth)

A Buddhist parable offers an interesting twist on the life process.

Wouldn't it be better, a sage commented, if people were born old and then gradually got younger until they finally reached death?

Think what wisdom a young man would have then if in his youth he were able to draw upon the knowledge of an old man.

I have begun to see, however, that age is relative.

There still is a child in each of us, something from our past which refuses to die.

The dreams of children never disappear. We think our childhood is dead; but it is merely transported into the flesh and bone of the adult.

I was made aware of this fact last week at the Ohio State Fair.

At a special press preview of the fair, representatives of the news media ate dinner and then were told to assemble outside the Youth Center where shuttle buses would take us to a giant slide.

My imagination was kindled.

* * *

I remembered the inner city of Philadelphia where I grew up and managed to survive. No one called my neighborhood a slum, although today it would be classified as such. I was not "culturally deprived," even though the environment would not have been selected by child psychologists for creative living.

A child's imagination cannot be thwarted by lack of money or conditions considered intolerable. Recall the Nazi concentration camps and the almost unbelievable art work that children produced under the most terrifying environment yet conceived by man.

My friends and I roamed the ancient streets of Philadelphia, amid the stockpile of old homes and garbage-lined alleys. If we had no basketball courts, we made them behind factories. If we had no modern playgrounds, we played stickball in the alley. If we had no child psychologist to talk to, we visted the grocery store and talked to the owner.

* * *

As the shuttle bus let us off at the giant slide, all those memories of my childhood returned. And I wished the old Philadelphia friends had been with me.

Luckily, the slide ride was free with my press pass. I never could have afforded the 25 cents as a boy.

Imagine my delight. A monstrous slide, bright and ready for the assault to the top. Never in my wildest childhood dreams had I envisioned such a moment.

We climbed up the stairs leading to the slide, my two small daughters clinging to my arm.

At the top of the slide we looked down to the bottom of the ride, where a crowd gathered to watch us descend.

I felt like Moses at the top of the mountain. I was John Glenn orbiting the world, a mountain climber planting a flag on the peak, a high-jumper clearing seven feet.

All the way down the slide I remembered my days in Philadelphia.

It only took a few seconds, but it seemed an eternity.

My childhood rode with me and I dreamed of the past.

Where were my old friends now? Where was Michael, who used to be the best stickball hitter on the block? Where was Bruce, who used to help me capture pigeons and put them in the homemade cages? Where was Ellen, who always turned out to be our pitcher by default?

Suddenly it occurred to me they were not dead.

They existed within me, within the buried life of my childhood.

And I realized the continuity of life and saw a vision of the life process at work.

The child is father to the man.

Pollution

By ROBERT W. REIDER
Editor and Publisher

REIDER

Both candidates for the United States Senate—Democrat John J. Gilligan and Republican William B. Saxbe—have taken strong positions on pollution control.

For many years, the state government has given only token recognition to the problem.

The legislature, session after session, has considered proposals intending to deal with the issue. Many died in committee. Some were passed. Those that did find their way to the statute books generally were harmless and ineffectual, principally due to the hatchet work of industrial lobbyists. Shortsighted industry considered compliance too expensive. The old tale of being penny wise, pound foolish.

The state's attempts to enforce pollution control were feeble at best.

Today, though, there are strong signs that industry realizes its past folly and now joins the general public in a demand that all forms of pollution be eliminated or controlled.

The Rhodes administration as usual does a great deal of talking, but actually has done little.

It should be a comfort to Ohioans to know that both candidates for the U.S. Senate are aware of the increasingly serious menace of pollution and want to do something about it.

The World Watched

By BOB TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

"The whole world is watching."

The chant rose above the streets of downtown Chicago, drowning out the smack of the billy clubs, the report of the tear gas cartridges and the ugly screams of pain.

"The whole world is watching."

Some of them were Hippies and Yippies and those bearded, unkempt youth who often hurt the very cause they espouse.

But others were plain old average Americans who believed. And bystanders who were in the wrong place at the right time. And newsmen desperately trying to overcome the most brutal censorship seen in this country in decades.

And they chanted.

"The whole world is watching."

The world, indeed, watched as Mayor Richard Daley's helmeted troops put on a show that made Hitler's SS seem tame by comparison.

The world watched as they waded into the crowds, billy clubs flying in a senseless, mindless, savage wave of brutality.

No commission will have to investigate the brutality charges this time.

"The whole world is watching."

The world, indeed, watched Mayor Daley surround his delegation with police and plainclothesmen, sealing himself off from the delegates to what was supposed to be a democratic Democratic convention.

And it watched, more closely, as this arrogant, self-appointed "Mr. Democrat" rose like a spoiled child and lustily booed a United States Senator who dared criticize his benevolent host's police.

"The whole world is watching."

They cried on, as their volunteer medics tried to stop the flow of blood and police interfered with their lifesaving efforts.

Their cry will not be stilled.

Not by billy clubs, or tear gas, or Mayor Daley or Chairman Albert or George Wallace or the old political system.

Because this time it wasn't just the Hippies and Yippies and Peaceniks.

It was the whole world.

Watching . . .

. . . and crying.

Loneliness

By TED BEARDSHEAR

Loneliness.

You see it on the faces of people at Broad and High . . . all kinds of people . . . men, women, girls and boys. People rushing from nowhere to nowhere. People without purpose or direction. People yearning for a kind gesture or another human being to talk to.

They sit in bars to converse with people whom they will never see again. They drink to forget the four walls they face when they return to their hotel room or rooming house or apartment.

Single men and single women roaming the streets of Columbus, unable to make contact.

Loneliness.

The din of silence descending upon one in the prison of four walls.

Loneliness and quiet desperation. A yearning for human contact, human warmth and human companionship.

The city teems with loneliness. The city breeds it. It is cold and impersonal and alone.

Those faces at Broad and High are in a crowd but they remain alone.

And in the final analysis, we are all alone. Even with friends, spouse or children, we remain utterly alone.

This is a fact of life.

What man has not sat down in the middle of his accomplishments and his "success" and discovered that he is alone.

What woman has not sat down in her house after her husband and her children have retired and discovered that she is alone.

We stand naked in the world.

And we must summon the inner strength to withstand it.

Faith is the answer. In faith, there is strength. And one must make a leap to faith.

Some have faith in God. Some have faith in other things . . . a cause, a purpose, an interest.

But the secret is to have faith in something outside oneself.

We are all together but we are all alone. That recognition is part of growing up.

Without faith, the tragic sense of life consumes; the four walls become a jail; the crowds and the smiling faces become a mockery of life.

Faith is a matter of survival.

To The Editor:

In reference to your editorial of Aug. 22, [illegible] titled WATCH UA?, I wish to clarify one point. The Planned Parenthood Association of Columbus is the only agency within Franklin County promoting family planning or birth control. There has never been any United Appeal funds spent for birth control programs in this county. This is not to say that many United Appeal agencies do not cooperate with our agency. Many health and social welfare agencies within Franklin County, and indeed throughout the nation, have recognized the need for family planning information and services in order to assist their clients in their efforts to achieve a better way of life.

I also wish to make it clear that Planned Parenthood's failure to receive United Appeal funds is based on a mutually recognized possibility that our application for funds might cause some dissension within the community. Therefore, even though we solicit our funds separately, Planned Parenthood and United Appeal agencies work very closely together whenever appropriate.

I believe that Mr. Leppert and his group should diligently investigate the activities of UA. I am sure that this investigation will result in their becoming much more knowledgeable about the activities of these agencies and will convince his group that their contributions are well managed and are being wisely invested in [illegible] welfare.

Timely Series

To The Editor:

Hats off once again to The Spectator Newspapers. Your current and continuing series on "The Ohio Penitentiary," personal observations by the Reverend Tom Sagendorf, surely could not be more appropriate than at this time. The courage and conviction of The Spectator to make the information and observations available to the general public symbolizes uniquely in Central Ohio what can be accomplished with responsible journalism. You alone in recent months have stood for the "Voice of the People."

Those others of us now "in the lonely crowd" agree with you that there is more to Ohio than its state fruit so proudly displayed at the Fair. Education, public welfare, housing and human rehabilitation and dignity are those other precious commodities which our elected and administrative officials will surely come to recognize, we hope, in the trying days ahead.

Congratulations to The Spectator for its taking the leadership consistently in focusing on these favorite products of Ohio, too.

Some Party Makes Sense

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

Some Party, which aims to meet the desperate need of the country by nominating Somebody for President, will open its National Convention at 8 p.m. on the third day, it was announced yesterday.

"The third day of what?" asked a reporter.

"The third day of the convention," replied Some Party Wheel, John M. Barely. "After observing the Republicans and Democrats, it's obvious the first two days of any convention should be eliminated."

As the press broke into spontaneous applause, Barely said the events of the first two days would be encompassed into one minute and 32 seconds.

"We open with the Mayor saying, 'Hello,' (.8 seconds), the Governor saying, 'Welcome,' (.9 seconds) and a bark from Lassie (1.2 seconds) to show the movie stars are on our side."

"What about the keynote speaker who strikes the keynote?" asked a reporter uneasily.

"I'll strike it myself," pledged Barely, "F sharp above middle C. And all who wish may join in our theme song, 'Everybody Needs Somebody Some Time.'

* * *

"So much for the first day. The second day is traditionally for saluting old party leaders. We'll salute ours in precisely 1.2 seconds." And he demonstrated a snappy one modeled on the Marine Corps. "A list of nominees will then be read."

"Why, it'll take you but ten minutes," cried an admiring reporter, "to reach that dramatic moment — the first ballot."

"The third ballot," Barely corrected him. "We're also eliminating the first two ballots. This obviates all the long-winded, inaccurate speculation about which States will swing which way on the first two ballots. Thus, you may confidently predict it'll be Somebody on the third ballot."

"And whom," inquired the New York Times, "will Somebody select for the Vice Presidential nominee."

"Nobody," replied Barely firmly, "a real Nobody in keeping with our cherished American heritage. Somebody and Nobody, that's the ticket."

"Then you'll close with acceptance speeches on the fourth night?"

"Yes, the fourth night will begin immediately following the third night's balloting. Both candidates arise; say, 'We accept, thank you,' and we should [illegible] home for the 10 p.m. news."

* * *

"But won't the delegates object to traveling thousands of miles for a two-hour convention?"

"Heavens!" said Barely. "The delegates won't attend. They'll ballot by mail."

"But won't they miss a lot?"

"Oh, no. We're advising each to steam up his bathroom and lock himself therein for five days with a case of whiskey, the sound track of War and Peace and six amplifiers — so as to create the proper ambiance while he flushes $20 bills down the drain."

A grizzled reporter, tears in his eyes, stepped forward to shake Barely's hand. "I always had faith," he said in a choked voice, "that some day Some Party would hold a sensible convention."

C-W Edges Shadywood In Whitehall LL Tourney Finals

Canal Winchester went two extra innings to edge Shadywood One, 6-5, and then win the recent Whitehall Little League tourney title.

Stacy Bond doubled in singling Jeff Black with the deciding run in the ninth frame.

WITH UNBEATEN C-W trailing, 5-2, in the seventh (and last frame) of the game, Gary Harden walked with one out, Dallas Beller singled, Black tripled home both runners and scored the tying marker himself as Marc Williamson singled.

Shadywood forged threats in both the extra frames (runners at third and second in eighth, at second with nobody out in ninth) but failed to capitalize — despite the fact they out-hit the winners, 13-11.

Williamson (three-for-four, including two doubles) and Black (two hits) paced Winchester slugging while Joey Karpowicz (three-for-five, inc. homer), Steve Winslow, Kari Heibel and Paul Spencer (two hits each) paced Shadywood.

One of Spencer's hits was a home run.

BOBBIE HARTMAN went the first eight frames for C-W, fanning the Shadywood batter with two runners in scoring position in the eighth.

Black pitched the ninth, striking out the last two batters after yielding a lead-off double.

Vikings Shoot For 'Plus' Campaign Behind 14 Lettermen, New Offense

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Sports Writer

"We are young but learning," observes new Teays Valley Coach Dick Kidwell. "Each practice marks an increase in our spirit and defensive ability."

So things might be looking up for the former assistant coach at Wilmington who takes over the Ashville position with 14 lettermen back and a squad of prospects which numbers 51 - - mostly holdovers from last season's rusty 2-7 effort.

"THE LETTERMEN and a fine sophomore class gives me hope for a winning season this year. Although we're young, the schedule is more our size," says Kidwell.

First areas of business for the hot summer sessions (besides learning a new system) were patching up a woundable pass defense and forging an effective passing game, according to Kidwell.

THE RUNNING game might be fairly sound compared with the past as three dandy sophs bolster the fullback slot in OSU variety.

Bucking for the first start tab are Champ Henson, a 6-2, 180-pounder, Bob Tucker, a 6-0, 160-pounder and Ron Crosby, a 5-11, 175-pounder.

That trio will have its work cut out for it since Kidwell plans a belly and fullback-type running offense but bemoans the lack of line size to cover such an offensive attack.

A PARTIAL guard will come from letterman Mark Leatherwood and Eastmoor transfer Mike Buckingham who are vying for a quarterback slot which will dote on a rollout passing game.

The Vikings lost 13 seniors and Rex Gregg (transferred to Whitehall where longtime T-V cage coach Russ moved to take over a new job).

The returning lettermen and top prospects are Ron Bell (FB), Jerry Nichols (QB), Leatherwood, Ken Parsons (FB), Mike Schiff (C), Elmer Brumfield (G), Mike Mapes (T), Rick Stewart (T), Don Stir (T), Dean Forson (T), Chuck Jackson (G), Ed McCord (E) and Mark Brinkman.

"All of these kids are strong boys but we have only two boys with any size in Stir (187) and Forson at (196)," notes Dick.

But the veteran coach has some praise for the defense by acclaiming the quick pursuit that has marked it thus far.

"The competition on the team is keen all around and the boys are all eager," he concludes.

'Remodeling' Theme For New CCL Entry Wehrle

Wehrle's new football coach Paul Nestor is going through a remodeling period trying to regroup some 50 boys into a new system before Friday's opening game.

"Nothing is sound right now," notes the veteran Nestor, "but we are gaining strength in some areas of attack."

WEHRLE, WHO enters Central Catholic League warfare for the first time this season, has to improve on two main areas, according to Nestor.

"First, we have to get quicker and sharper on offense and secondly, we have to learn to become disciplined to defensive responsibilities."

In order to perform the tasks, Nestor has 27 top flight prospects to do the job. All return from last season's 0-9 crew.

PAT SERGIO (150), Kerian Astley (170), Jerry Graves (145), and Steve Apisa (160) will be vying for the guard spots in both offensive and defensive areas with the tackle positions being between Dave Bobo (220), Dave Maurer (215), Rick Gabbard (190) and Frank Alexander (180).

WALLY CARLILE (135), Don Plank (140) and Craig Baumann (150) are currently vying for the safety spot.

Nestor insists that the Wolves have only average speed in his returning backfield aces because somebody thought we had to be big at the cost of speed. Consequently, we are about average on both scores.

In the CCL race, Nestor sees a three-team run with Watterson getting the nod over Hartley and DeSales.

15 Vets Boost Wildcats Into Contender Position

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Sports Writer

Another vintage season may be in the cards for '67 Mid-Eight champion Westerville, who closed last year with an unbeaten 10-0 mark.

However, the Wildcats won't be defending the Mid-Eight title since they've changed leagues during the year and will have to place their considerable talents on the line in the newly-formed Ohio Capital Conference.

FIFTEEN letter winners adorn the roster (along with two pretty fair newcomers) but veteran coach Chuck Burner feels that two problems must be bridged to get the '68 Westerville squad on the right track.

"We have to work on the defensive backfield since all except one graduated there and the middle offensive line will have to be reworked," reasons Burner.

FIVE SPEEDY and impressive backs highlight the 15 returnees in Steve Traylor (165—WB), Steve Brokas (175—TB), Rick Cline (175—QB), Mike Beck (155—QB) and Jim Beatty (165—FB).

Key backfield loss was Trevor Newland, now on athletic scholarship to Miami University. Newland ripped for 14 touchdowns during the '67 campaign.

Other returning letterwinners include Chuck Lehman (155—C), Jim Taylor (150—G), Dale DeLong (185—MG), Dale Landis (185 — DE), Keith Hutchinson (145—LB) and Tom Ranny (175—LB).

ROCKY WHITE (185—DE, transfer from Gahanna) and Jim English (150 — sophomore) are the new men in the Westerville cloth.

"The key point in our attack is speed in our backfield because we are small and won't be running over anyone," Chuck notes.

Another major item in the Westerville attack has to be passing with receivers like Fagan, Traylor (37 receptions —eight touchdowns) and Selby (25 receptions—five touchdowns) — and an improving flipper in Mike Beck.

Billy Carroll Is Graduated In Vietnam

Marine L/Cpl. Billy M. Carroll graduated recently from Non-Commissioned Officer's Leadership School at Camp Books, near Danang, Vietnam.

The school is aimed at supplementing leadership skills usually gained by several years' service in the Marine Corps.

The corporal is the son of Mrs. Clyde Parson, 3232 Amsby Rd.

Al/c Tennant At Pleiku AB

A 1/c Charles L. Tennant is on duty at Pleiku AB, Vietnam, as an aircraft mechanic following assignment at Charleston AFB, S.C.

The Hamilton Township High School graduate is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurren J. Tennant, 1031 Montcrief Ave.

His wife is the former Judy A. Ferderber.

Wins Stripe

Alvin L. Baldree has been promoted to private first class while serving with the Third Marine Division in Vietnam. Pfc. Baldree is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Baldree, 168 Hinman Ave.

Lettermen Level High For New Mifflin Coach

Fourteen letter-winners are back at Mifflin for the 1968 grid plans under the direction of new coach Buddy Epperson with 15 newcomers from last season's reserve and frosh teams being counted on to lend support.

Epperson is preparing the Cowpunchers for a home opener against Canal Winchester next Friday and the Sunbury Road school may be hoping to follow last year's surprise baseball script to football power in a Mid-Eight League that welcomes new members Grandview and Bexley for the first time this season.

THE RETURNING letter winners are Doug Richards, Bob Lamneck, Frank Merz, Ron Scott, Paul Grey, Rick Cooley, Don Gallentine, Bill Linden, Cecil Beasley, Tom Hans, Brian McCreary, Kendall Lewis and Bob Fairchild.

Eleven frosh stars are Bob Bland, Jerry Davis, Jerry Sharrock, Roy Pierson, Bill Merryman, Erick Lehner, Dave Will, Bruce Mills, Gary Hannebert, Mike Pierce and Dan Hicks.

Presutti's Serving Meals From Champion Lamb

Now until Sept. 15, Presutti's Villa is serving various meals prepared from the Grand Champion Lamp they purchased at the Ohio State Fair.

The 106 pound Suffolk was sold to Presutti's for $11.25 per pound, establishing a new Ohio State Fair Record.

This makes the fourth straight year Presutti's Villa has bought the grand champion. The history of the restaurant goes back much further than that.

In 1933, Mom and Pop Presutti converted their home into a restaurant with a seating capacity of 32. Today, after ten different additions and remodeling projects throughout the years, the old home still stands. Built in and around the original house is a beautiful, modern restaurant seating over 300 people.

Poppa shares the management duties of the Villa with his son, Fred, and grandson, Sully. With the lineage of the Presutti family, The Villa will be around for many more years.

CJTA To Open

Columbus Junior Theater of the Arts announces the opening and final registration for the fall sessions Sept. 7 from 9 a.m. until noon at the workshop, 115 W. Main St.

Excerpts from plays and musicals will be presented at 10 a.m. as an introduction to the fall classes.

Fall sessions will be held in creative drama, dance, art, music, puppetry and in folk singing music and guitar performance.

Jacques Minnotti, producer at WLW-C will teach this new course concerned with folk-singing.

Enrollment is limited, for information phone 224-6672.

LaMancha Features New Decor, New Ideas

Tonight is the night, Mr. W. James Barr will light the lights, and a new season of quality steps stage center at Marty's LaMancha. Much like a production and as the new name implies, LaMancha, is taking stage center this week as many phases of redecorating, new personnel and new policies unfold surrounded by efficiency, enthusiasm and effort.

First act is the redecorating which has entailed tearing down two bars, a stage and various bangles which have detracted from the original design of Coburn Morgan.

Paul David Mahoney, LaMancha's decorator, has been scurrying from one end of Columbus to the other, selecting pieces of art and materials to give LaMancha a relaxing and friendly atmosphere that has been so badly needed.

The once-car-show-room area has been dubbed "The Ponce de Leon" and is open daily. There is art work on the walls, several marquee which hold posters describing areas of special events and a cozy seating arrangement set off with throw rugs.

In the main dining-entertaining area, LaMancha, a little gal (waitress by profession) has been scrubbing 500 chairs and you can bet all 500 mean a lot to Sharon Heffley.

A spacious dining area has been enhanced by removing the over-glorified center bar, so now the patron has the best view of the stage and not the attendants at the bar.

In the entry way and cloakroom area there's a Spanish store in the making which will offer gift-shop goodies as a reminder of LaMancha.

The second act involves personnel. Production-manager is executive vice-president W. James Barr. What he has done, is doing and will do for LaMancha is provide the cornerstone for an opening night that shall have a very successful long-run in Columbus, Ohio.

His ideas, thoroughness and effect are the factors for the enthusiasm displayed by everyone at LaMancha. If LaMancha doesn't succeed, I doubt very much that it ever will.

Barr has hired Enrico J. Wintrich as chef of LaMancha. Enrico has scrubbed his kitchen in every corner, cupboard and cranny. He proudly boasts of "his kitchen" and Barr boasts of Enrico's ability to have cuisine that looks and tastes sumptuous.

This then brings us to the final act which is policy. Fine food served at all times with several LaMancha specials listed on what is an abnormal menu in that the costs are very moderate . . . I could hardly believe the prices. During the cocktail hour in "The Ponce de Leon" hors d'oeuvres will be served free . . . Lunches will be served . . . as the traffic outside crawls by . . .

Without any reservation, LaMancha has more than enough pleasure in atmosphere and dining exclusive of entertainment. Now add a pleasant and friendly blend of personnel and the total production is one of fineness and quality long overdue at the corner of Broad and Fifth Streets.

So the curtain goes up and the lights shine tonight at Marty's LaMancha. What a stirring and momentous beginning for Columbus' Fall theater season, Columbus natives and for our city.

Curtain call comes in the name of Frank Sinatra, Jr. and company. Reservations may be made at 228-4587 for this two-week engagement through Sept. 13 or for a future night-out, party or banquet.

Go take a look, you won't be disappointed. See review of Frank Sinatra, Jr. Show in next week's paper.

Vivienne Della Chiesa To Appear On Channel 4

VIVIENNE CHIESA

When 4 p.m. rolls around, it is almost a chore to smile, let alone prepare a meal. This is the time of day when everyone I know usually feels like taking an aspirin.

Prediction: beginning Monday all this will be changed, meals will be served late and everyone will be caught up in the whirlwind of one Vivienne Della Chiesa.

Basis for Prediction: I've met her, talked with her and am going to post a sign on my door, "Do Not Disturb From 4-5 p.m.," weekdays. The telephone is another thing.

I asked oodles of questions and at a lickety-split pace she answered with the glamour, grace enthusiasm for life that I've been hearing about for six months.

She has taken Cincinnati by storm. The fact is her show is viewed more than any other show at that time, including Mike Douglas. This feat took less than a year and a half.

So with the clock at 4 p.m. Vivienne Della Chiesa will begin her talkathon, patterned like the Johnny Carson Show, this Monday to not only Cincinnati, but Columbus, Indianapolis and Dayton. Move over, Mike Douglas, there is now a woman in this all male vocation of hosting TV talkathons.

Believe me, she is colorful, lively, modern, warm and sincere. She is going to hypnotize you. Rather than print her thoughts, likes and dislikes I am going to let her tell you so you can see why she has hypnotized me.

Then after the show has been on for four or five weeks there will be a part two to this story with facts on her and the show which will no doubt be a success here too.

For starters though, I did ask her if her name is for real. "It's for sure. How could I dream up anything that original. It is my family name, Italian."

Also, I asked her how she expected to interest viewers in Columbus when her program is based in Cincinnati? She has taken care of this, for she is interested in Columbus as well as the other three cities.

Would you believe a traveling TV show? Well, it is going to hapoen in the near future. Each city will be visited a week at a time, broadcasting from the studios.

A warning to my friends and relatives, don't phone between 4 and 5 p.m., for my TV will be on Channel 4, as I am going to learn all about horoscopes, people and sewing, in addition to Vivienne and her guests talking about music, theater, books, art, movies, TV or just anything that happens along.

Bistro Bill Takes Interlude

The Bistro's schedule, which has been hectic to say the least, will take a brief interlude prior to Oct. 7.

Now through then, the La Jazzilia Quintet will perform Wednesdays with the New Jack Widner Trio performing on Fridays and Saturdays.

Then on Oct. 7, the Brooklyn Bridge singing group opens. They have most recently been playing to SRO crowds at the Cheetah in N. Y.

Another interlude follows with Linda Ronstadt and the Stone Poneys opening Oct. 28. This group currently has a recording hit with "A Different Drum."

Of special note is the possibility that Leon Bibb, singer, composer and actor, ("For Love Of Ivy") will return to the Bistro for an engagement.

Around Town

Conducted By
ROLAND SUNKER

The Hospitality Inn, located on Rt. 161, is appropriately named. The atmosphere, decor, music, food and service is all very hospitable.

There is a generous serving of delectable music provided by the Jim Johnson Trio, nightly, in the Command Post Lounge. This is one of the finest trios, musically speaking, Around Town. Leader Jim plays drums with a taste and style that you seldom find even in the so-called big name groups.

He doesn't overshadow the rest of the musicians, but blends his sound into the harmonics of the entire group. Besides his percussion talents, Jim Johnson possesses a rich, full voice which he handles with ease. His style and tone quality can only be rated as tops.

Backing up Jim is Geoffrey Tyus, literally a superb pianist, and an equally talented musician, Ron Metz, on bass. Put these three together and you have some great sounds and great music. While they stick to the melody line, they employ intricate harmonic and chord structures. Their music is relaxing and pleasing, ranging from intimate to exciting. If good music is your dish, then the Command Post of the Hospitality Inn is the place for you to go. However, entertainment isn't the only dish on their menu.

In the Four Winds Restaurant at the motel, you will find dishes from all over the world. Specializing in Continental as well as American food, the Four Winds is an exciting place to dine. Fondue Bourguignonne is one of the specialties. This recipe is French and is over 200 years old.

It was extinct in America until re-created at the Four Winds. Now it's served from coast to coast. Consisting of diced fillet, which you dip into a fondue pont at your table, it makes a very light and enjoyable meat dish. This is just another reason why you will want to go to the Hospitality Inn.

SULTRY SONGSTRESS

A sultry, beautiful gal is singing pretty for the people nightly at the Lincoln Lodge Motel. Well known Joni Jayne is pleasing the crowds, especially the men folk with her voice and beauty. Ruben Maloyan on piano and Berry Slattery at the drums provide some worthy accompaniment for Joni.

Singing with heart in her music, Joni has her own style which she knows how to use to the best of advantage. Joni is as enjoyable to see as to hear. So do it, you won't be sorry.

DUO OPENS

Opening next Monday in the Knave's Cave of the Imperial House-Arlington are Rusk and McGowan, another music and comedy act. Host Jack Gunnery was smart for booking a duo, because it's going to take two people to follow the sensational Bea Bea Benson who is finishing up her last week at the Cave.

Rusk and McGowan have good voices, terrific harmony and a great sense of humor that will keep you laughing throughout the show.

'LITTLE FOUNTAIN'

Plush, regal decor blended with a warm and friendly atmosphere is the only way possible to describe Bob Susi's Fontanelle Restaurant and Cocktail Lounge. This place virtually drips with splendor. Design is French contemporary and will remind you of many of the intimate spots in New York.

Fontanelle is French, and means little fountain. Consequently, the focal point of the decor is a beautiful fountain.

Owner Susi said that many people believe the Fontanelle to be an Italian restaurant. "There is no Italian food served here," according to Bob Susi, "we serve just good American food, featuring good steaks and sea foods." All dinners include a small loaf of old fashioned, home-made bread, which is an unusual item.

The waitresses are as charming and gracious as the restaurant's appointments. With the help situation being as it is today, Susi should be complimented for his staff. They are great.

One visit to the Fontanelle and you can understand why it was necessary for Bob to add another room to his establishment. If you're not hungry, pay a visit to the cocktail lounge where all legal beverages are served, many of them in small pitchers. You can enjoy the offerings of the Fontanelle every day, except Sunday from 11 a.m. until 1 a.m.

SKIPPING AROUND TOWN

Miss DuLois and her Music Men are back at the Everglades after a week's absence . . . For good, old fashioned music that will bring back many memories catch Les Fielding at Max's Steak House. He's an ole' timer in the business . . . If you're South, be sure to stop at Groza's and dine and dance to the Hi-Liters. You will be reading more in this column about this group . . . When downtown don't miss the belly dancers at Benny Klein's . . . Tonight is the big opening night at Marty's La Mancha with the Frank Sinatra Jr. Show . . . Danny Mann's Speakeasy is due to open soon. Watch for his new singer.

WBNS-TV Has Something For Everybody

Here we go again, another September, another season, another TV rating game, another season of new shows and specials.

This article is concerned with CBS, locally WBNS-TV, with upcoming articles on WOSU, WTVN and WLW-C.

Mainstays are: Sundays: Lassie, Gentle Ben, The Ed Sullivan Show, The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour and Mission: Impossible. Mondays: Gunsmoke, Family Affair and The Carol Burnett Show. Here's Lucy and Mayberry RFD have new formats; but will follow the same family entertainment policies.

Tuesdays: The Red Skelton Hour and CBS News Hour and Channel 10 Reports. Wednesdays: Daktari, The Beverly Hillbillies, Green Acres and The Jonathon Winters Show. Thursdays: "The Judge" (local) WBNS-TV Thursday Night Movie (local).

Fridays: The Wild, Wild West, Gomer Pyle — USMC, and CBS Friday Night Movie. Saturdays find The Jackie Gleason Show, My Three Sons, Hogan's Heroes, Petticoat Junction and Mannix returning.

So actually there are only five new shows to judge. At a preview party last week four of the five were shown, just enough to let the viewer "get the idea."

The first, "Lancer" will be seen Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. An hour long program, it is set in the post-Gold Rush period of California's adolescence and debut's on Tuesday, Sept. 24.

Stars are James Stacy, Wayne Maunder, Andrew Duggan and Elizabeth Baur. The action is the vast cattle and sheep barony of "Murdock Lancer" where the elder Lancer is engaged in a struggle for survival against the depredations of local land pirates. Two half brothers, who are strangers to each other come to the ranch in response to their father's call beginning a relationship among three men of sharply different backgrounds. It is packed with action and looks like a sure thing.

Also on Tuesdays, "The Doris Day Show" is scheduled for 9:30 p.m. and also premieres on Sept 24. Miss Day will portray "Doris Martin" a widow who returns to a family ranch with two small sons to begin a life far different from the city ways they have known. This one was not previewed.

What looks like the funniest situation comedy seen in a long time, "The Good Guys" premieres Wednesday, Sept. 25 at 8:30 p.m. Bob Denver (Gilligan's Island) and Herb Edelman star as a fast-talking cab driver with a head full of get-poor-quick schemes and his gullible buddy, the operator of a diner.

"Hawaii Five-O" starring Jack Lord (Stoney Burke) will premiere Thursday, Sept. 26, at 8 p.m. Lord portrays Steve McGarrett, head of a four-man state police unit operating out of Honolulu. Looks like an action-packed drama on the line of hard, cruel facts.

Last and least impressionable is "Blondie" which premieres Saturday, Sept. 28 at 6 p.m. Based on the popular comic strip the series stars Patricia Harty, Will Hutchins and Jim Backus. From about a five-minute excerpt this one needs polishing, acting-wise. We shall see in a very short time all of the programs . . . curiosity will be replaced by personal taste . . . there seems to be something for everyone.

'Sweet Ride' Now Playing

"The Sweet Ride," 20th Century-Fox's drama of today's young people, opened a first-run engagement yesterday at the Markham, National Auto, 17th Avenue and South Drive In Theaters.

Filmed in Panavision and DeLuxe Color on location at Malibu, it stars Tony Franciosa, Michael Sarrazine and Bob Denver. Also featured in the mod production are "The Moby Grape," one of the fastest rising new rock'n roll groups.

Completing the first-run program is "The Incident," story of a terror-filled subway ride as 15 passengers, at the mercy of two young hoodlums, find they lack the courage to defend themselves.

THE GADABOUT

By Priscilla Lenox 444-1051

The modern phenomenon of jet flight, which rearranges night and day patterns into shorter segments, proved fascinating to six localites, all relatives, who elected to vacation together in Europe earlier this year.

The three couples were Alberta and Verlin Gregory, 322 Southwood Ave., Norma and Frank Schwartz, 1308 College Ave., Margaret and Carl McCloud, 1170 Williams Rd. The zipping in and out of time changes also produced an abundance of mealtimes, but later sight-seeing tours used the extra food intake readily.

London First

As usual, London was the first foreign city visited and all the tourist attractions were noted, such as Westminster Abbey, Big Ben, Buckingham Palace and the [illegible] changing of the guard. The tourists viewed the jewel collection of the Queen and visited the site of Florence Nightingale's training. They were amused that the weatherman could accurately predict daily rain, and they noted that everybody considered umbrellas as part of their attire.

The Columbusites were happy that their visit to France occurred prior, to that country's inner struggles, for they would have had to cancel their visit there otherwise. As in all the large cities they visited, they were awned by the large population.

Reliance upon public transportation was so much more in evidence than in automobile-conditioned America. The garb of the women proved interesting, as nowhere in continental Europe did they see shorts, pedal-pushers or slacks on the "female of the species."

Children's Attire

Too, children were not dressed as miniature adults, but strictly in youthful styles. Importantly, they were generally very well-behaved.

The sextet were in Holland when the tulips were in full bloom and enjoyed the spectacle greatly. In Germany, they were surprised to see the smallness of the farms and to learn that every inch of arable ground had to be utilized.

This fact was also noted in a 150-mile trip down the Rhine when it was observed that the vineyards were so arranged as to produce a maximum yield from a minimum area. A la car ports in America, farm animals shared a common roof with the farmers, but were not in the same rooms, may we add hastily!

Germans Good-Natured

The rosy-cheeked and good-natured Germans were noted walking to Sunday church, the older women dressed in the long black dresses of yester-year.

Grim reminders of World War II were in evidence when they visited the remains of a concentration camp. Too, they visited a spot made infamous by the tirades and harangues of Hitler, which was in Munich.

Rome was the main Italian city on their agenda. Since its attractions are well-renowned, we'll merely note that the six found these attractions merited all that is claimed for them. Mrs. Gregory was particularly enthralled with the works of Michelangelo.

Were Chilled

The Americans were chilled by placards in Naples, which was then in the throes of an election, as these placards proclaimed, "Vote for Communists," or "Vote for Socialists." The extreme poverty in many sections of Europe provide fertile ground for the Red line, and this distressed the tourists.

Such poverty can be illustrated by the fact that the [illegible]rer farmers used their cattle for plowing as well as for milk and meat.

Shepherds were in evidence, as fences were non-existent. While in Italy, a visit was also made to the Isle of Capri, and the Appian Way of Julius Caesar was travelled.

Next week we'll chronicle the rest of the tour taken by the three couples, but it's time now to see what is happening on the local scene.

Birthdays

Some of today's "small fry" birthday list will share birthday excitement with that engendered by a return to school . . . Teresa Lester, Ricky Thomas, Wayne Weber, Valerie Dillon, John Rollins, Eldon Wells, James Carte, Diane Stritt, Shari Edington, Mary Ann Griffith, Jeffrey Cunningham, Jane Coverdale, Tracy Wilkins and Terry Wilkins.

Teenagers include Ricky King, Bob Anderson, Sherry Blanton and Barbara Kline.

Anniversaries

Wedding anniversary to be noted include those of Margaret and Walter Miller, Betty and Robert Karshaw, Nancy Lou and Don Jones, Judy and Harold Walters, Pauline and Walter McCain, Eileen and Otto Waidner.

Sympathy is expressed this week to the families of Edna Albrecht and Lena Vogt.

Saturday, Sept. 7, has been selected as a wedding date by Carolyn DiPiero, 1178 Linwood Ave., and Douglas Maddex, of Michigan. Corpus Christi Church will be the setting for the performance of the nuptials.

Hodge-podge hop-scotch ... Edna Mustain, 230 E. Morrill Ave., will be the hostess for members of Trudeau Guild 70, when they meet at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Circle meetings to be held at the Thurman Avenue UM Church within the week are Susannah, Monday, Sept. 9, at 7:30 p.m.; TWG, Tuesday, Sept. 10, at 7:30 p.m., and Mary Elizabeth, Wednesday, Sept. 11, at 10 a.m.

The monthly Euchre party sponsored by members of the Harmony Glee Club, 433 E. Kossuth St., will be at 8 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 7.

Rachel Circle, Trinity Lutheran Church, will meet at 12:30 p.m. at the church, Thursday, Sept. 5. Hostesses will be Mrs. Otto Bort and Mrs. Neal Goelz, and the Bible study leader, Mrs. Arthur Becker.

Esther Circle will meet at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 10, with Mrs. Michael Shields as hostess. Mrs. Margaret Ogier will provide the Bible study. The Benevolent Guild will meet Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Business Meet

The business meeting of the Columbus Grandmothers' Club will be held at Schiller Park, Tuesday, Sept. 10, at 1:30 p.m.

Sunshine Guild No. 1 will meet Tuesday, Sept. 10.

The South Side YMCA Mothers' Club will meet at 9:30 a.m., Thursday, Sept. 5, at the "Y."

Dorcas Circle, Emmanuel Lutheran Church, will meet Thursday, Sept. 5. A 12:30 p.m. luncheon will precede the 1:30 p.m. meeting.

Circle meetings of the Oakwood United Methodist Church this week are Dorothy Foged, Friday, Sept. 6, 7:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. J. W. Elsey, 3144 Astor Ave. Vivian Anderson and Julie Wright Circles will hold a noon casserole luncheon at the church, Tuesday, Sept. 10.

Congratulations

Congratulations are appropriate for Girl Scout Troop 686, which garnered three prizes at the Ohio State Fair. Anna Davidson received a second place ribbon for a decorated cake, while Denise Dodd was awarded third for campcraft skills.

The troop received the Grand Prize for a display of learning toys made for retarded children. The leader of Troop 686 is Mrs. Ray Dodd.

The Luther Leaguers and Chi Rho Teens of Emmanuel Lutheran Church will hold a combined meeting, Sunday, Sept. 8, to install officers for the coming year.

Officers of the Chi Rho Teens are: Leslie Moore, president; Linda Schultz, vice president; Chris Quickel, secretary; Vicki Kovach, treasurer.

Do-It-Yourself Books In Demand At Library

Home craftsmen and do-it-yourself enthusiasts make especially heavy use of the Parsons Branch Library's books on wood and metal working, use of hand and power tools, home workshops, and wood finishing at this time of year, according to Librarian Margaret Bausch.

Instructions for setting up a home workshop are given in such books as "The Workshop Book" by Martha Lincoln and "General Shop for Everyone" by Louis Neukirk which explains how to set up a workshop and describes various types of hand and power tools.

USE OF HAND and power tools is also covered in George Daniels' "How To Use Hand and Power Tools"; R. J. Cristoforo's "How to Choose and Use Power Tools"; DeWitt Hunt's "Shop Tools: Care and Repair"; and Alfred Morgan's "How to Use Tools."

Woodworking, the most popular shop activity, is described in "Practical Woodwork," by Charles Hayward; "Modern Power Tool Woodworking," by Robert Scharff and "Woodworking for Everybody" by John Shea.

Books are also available on wood finishing, including Jackson Hand's "How to Do Your Own Wood Finishing"; Ralph Waring's "Modern Wood Finishing," and Arthur Mikesell's "The Popular Mechanics Home Book of Refinishing Furniture."

METAL WORK is covered in "General Metals for Technology" by Joseph Giachino and "Aluminum Projects for Your Home" by Emanuele Stieri.

Step by step instructions for various home workshop projects are given in Mario Dal Fabbro's "How to Make Wood Furnishing for Your Home," Patrick Spileman's "Modern Projects in Wood, Metal, and Plastic," "Furniture You Can Build" and "Ideas for Storage" by the editors of Sunset magazine; R. J. DeCristoforo's "Fun With A Saw" and R. P. Stevenson's "How to Build Cabinets for the Modern Kitchen."

Obetz & Hamilton Township News

By RUTH BORDEN
491-8141

The Bower reunion was held Sunday, Aug. 18, at the Zion Lutheran Church, Obetz Road. There were 84 relatives present.

Mae, Carl and Bobby McQuirt recently returned from their vacation in Kentucky, where they visited Mae's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alexander of Toledo visited their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Martin, 105 Chandler Ave., recently.

The Obetz Christian Church held its annual church picnic Sunday, Aug. 18, at the Obetz Businessmen's Park.

The CWF officers of the Obetz Christian Church held a meeting to organize and plan for coming events for this fall and winter. The officers for the coming year are Ruth Borden, president; Mamie Green, vice-president; Jean Hambrick, secretary-treasurer; Hazel Cramer, assistant secretary-treasurer; Virginia Dawson, worship chairman; assistant, Lou Osborn; Sara Stewart, study chairman; Margaret Crabtree, service chairman; Margie Rainey, assistant.

The service chairman announced that one of the main projects will be the making of pads for the Cancer Clinic to be used in local hospitals. She is asking the help of persons in the community for newspapers and old sheets or any pieces of materials.

These will be used to make the pads. Also if anyone would be interested in joining the group in making these pads, there will be sewing days at the Parish Hall at the church.

Please contact any of the above members. Also the group still goes to the State School each month and welcomes anyone who would like to go with them. The day is spent mending clothes.

Mr. and Mrs. James Payne and family moved to Virginia recently. Mr. Payne is with the U.S. Air Force. The following got together at the home of Mrs. Karl Dawson for a farewell dessert luncheon honoring Mrs. Payne: Mrs. Jack Thomas, Mrs. W. Rainey, Mrs. Carl Stewart, Mrs. Richard Hambrick, Mrs. Harry Green, Mrs. Paul Barr, Mrs. Calvin Borden and the hostess, Mrs. Karl Dawson.

Mrs. Payne was a very active member in the CWF.

Mrs. John Hightower was commissioned as an American Baptist volunteer in the First Baptist Church last Sunday, Aug. 25, at the 10:45 worship service.

Mrs. Hightower will serve in the volunteer service program of the American Baptist Home Mission Society.

Her assignment is the Children's Christian Home in Anchorage, Alaska, and she left Saturday, Aug. 31. Mrs. Hightower is the daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hightower. Her husband, John, is with the U.S. Army and is in Vietnam.

S/Sgt. and Mrs. John Dean, Kenny, Wayne, Chris and Angie, formerly of Obetz, visited friends and relatives this past week. The Deans are now stationed in Cheyenne, Wyo.

Bobby McQuirt is recovering from a tonsillectomy at his home.

The Zion Lutheran Church, Obetz Road, was the scene of a marriage ceremony Saturday, Aug. 17. Miss Sharon Patricia Painter and Mr. Roger Stimpfle were united in marriage by Pastor Vernon Jones. The new bride and bridegroom will be at home at 5014 Sutherland Dr., Hamilton Meadows.

Edwin Johnson has returned home from Grant Hospital.

On Thursday evening of last week the Hamilton Township Marching Band participated in the Corn Festival at Millersport, and on Friday they marched at the Ohio State Fair.

Did you see the band march through your community last week and were you contacted at your home by any of the football boys? This was the annual drive for membership to the Hamilton Township School Boosters and if you haven't joined this organization yet please contact any member of the band or football squad or any officer of the Boosters.

President of the Boosters for this school term is Mike Stubbins, phone 491-7226.

Another organization that is getting into full activity is the Obetz PTO. Mrs. Hilda Cuffenberry is the president, Mrs. Sandy Angel, vice-president, Mrs. Ellen Johnson, secretary, and Mrs. Garber, treasurer.

Ohio Dominican Gives 3 Honorary Degrees

Two hundred and sixteen members of the class of 1972 were officially received as new student body members of Ohio Dominican College last Sunday while three distinguished Ohioans received honorary "Doctor of Humanities" degrees.

Comedian Bob Hope, and Columbus Business leaders, Charles Y. Lazarus and Edward F. Wagner, all Ohio natives, were honored with degrees as a crowd of 1200 viewed the ceremony.

Newly installed Bishop Clarence E. Elwell of Columbus gave the Investiture Address in the 2 p.m. ceremony held in Erskine Hall. The event officially opened the 1968-'69 academic year.

The ceremony also officially celebrated the name change to Ohio Dominican College made the past summer. The former name was College of St. Mary of the Springs and the school was founded in 1911 as a college for women. It became co-educational in 1964 and changed names July 1.

Hope, who appeared at the Ohio State Fair last Sunday and Monday, was born in England and moved to Cleveland.

Beside his achievements in the entertainment world, Hope has done work entertaining the troops overseas for many years.

Lazarus, president of the F.&R. Lazarus Company, also received an honorary degree in recognition of his outstanding civic work. He attended Bexley High School and the Columbus Academy.

Lazarus received his B.A. degree from Yale and served with the United States Army during World War II in both Europe and Asia. The Columbus businessman was decorated with the Bronze Star and Legion of Merit and was discharged as a Lieutenant Colonel.

Married with three children Lazarus serves on the Executive Committee of the Development Committee for Greater Columbus, the Chamber of Commerce, Temple Israel, Mount Carmel Hospital and is a member of the National Executive Board of the American Jewish Committee. He served as first general chairman of the United Appeal Campaign in 1951-52.

Wagner, vice-president of Nationwide Mutual Insurance Company is also a prominent Columbus businessman and civic leader.

He joined Nationwide Insurance in 1950, serving as vice-president-general manager of Nationwide Development Company prior to assuming his present position in 1966.

He formerly served as Columbus district director of the Office of Price Stabilization and Area Rent Director for the Office of Housing Expediter.

Wagner is president of the Franklin County Regional Planning Commission, immediate past chairman of the Development Committee for Greater Columbus and is on the board of trustees of the Columbus Convention Bureau.

Leukemia 'Treasure Hunt' Set Sept. 21

"We are making more progress each day in the field of leukemia than any other facet of cancer," explained Dr. Jack Miles, M. D., 4250 Dublin Rd., whose office is at 2586 W. Broad St.

Dr. Miles, who for two years was president of the American Cancer Society's Franklin County Unit, is a trustee of the Ohio Division.

He was speaking particularly of the fact the American Cancer Society spends more time, more effort, and more research money in the leukemia field than all othre agencies combined.

The subject came up when he was queried about the disposition of the funds to be raised by the Society in the "Treasure Hunt" scheduled Saturday, Sept. 21.

"The monies realized in the 'Treasure Hunt' will be earmarked for leukemia research," Dr. Miles stated. "We are making good gains in this field every day. I can see great progress. There are medical researchers who say the first 'break-through' in cancer research will come in the field of the leukemias," Dr. Miles added.

The "Treasure Hunt" is an evening of fun designed for adults (no one under college age is permitted to participate) who pay $25 per couple to join the Hunt. ($20 is deductible, $5 goes for expenses).

It is strictly a new way to put "fun" into "fun-d" raising. There's nothing else like it in the area and those who have participated in the first two "hunts" are making reservations for the Sept. 21 event.

"We want three couples in each car," explains Mrs. Charles E. Stover, 397 Elwood Dr., Hilliard, who is chairman of the event.

"And we must limit the hunt to 48 cars. Prizes are interesting, but are not of great value because we are trying to raise money for leukemia research. Last year 18 prizes for the first three cars was $72."

Reservations may be made by telephoning Mrs. Stover at 876-5771, or at the American Cancer Society, 276-5134.

"We hope the three couples will arrive in one car," Mrs. Stover explained, "because there is a possibility they may never get back to that starting point all evening."

Detailed instructions on what to wear, what to bring, where to be, and at what time to report will be sent to those who make reservations, she said.

Direct Dialing To Puerto Rico Now Available

Telephone users here can now dial calls to Puerto Rico without the asistance of an operator, Ohio Bell has announced.

"Inauguration of the Direct Distance Dialing service to Puerto Rico represents another significant step forward in global communications," J. Philip Gibbs, Ohio Bell district commercial manager said.

"It is the second major area beyond the continental borders to be opened for Direct Dialing," he added.

J. McDowell Finishes Course

Jerry McDowell, apprentice mechanic for Davidson-Green, Inc., authorized Volkswagen dealer in Columbus, has recently completed a week's training course in general repairs.

The course was conducted by Midwestern VW Corporation, Columbus based distributor for Volkswagen products in Ohio and Kentucky.

A comprehensive two-year training cycle is conducted for all Volkswagen technical personnel.

Boardwalk Open

Pete Smerles' Boardwalk Coney Island did not open Aug. 23 as reported in The Spectator Aug. 15 issue.

Reason was a faulty steam table. If you consider the procedure of coney island making then this reason is a good one.

You can't cook 'em without a working steam table, so I have been told.

Anyway, today is the day, The Boardwalk Coney Island on E. Main St. is now open for business.

This Week In Washington

By Chalmers P. Wylie

Member of Congress, 15th District

"Unfinished business" took up much of the time in Congress this week as members returned from the August recess. In hours out of session, most of the conversation was on national political conventions.

Only a few bills new to the calendar were scheduled, to allow more time for reports by conference committees. These involved legislation in which the two Houses had adopted versions on the same subjects sufficiently different as to require reconciliation in conference committee. Included were foreign aid authorization, redwood parks, model city funds, rent supplement funds, college assistance and vocational education.

Some of the more optimistic members are hopeful for adjournment by the end of September, but most Congressmen are less hopeful!

• • •

A RECENT ACT of Congress now signed by the President provides $12.3 billion in federal aid for highway construction. Ohio will share in these funds for improvements in many counties. The bill includes some provision for continuing highway beautification, but not to the extent the Administration desired.

• • •

Many Franklin Countians are now receiving increased Social Security payments for which I voted last year. Permissible outside earnings without penalty also were increased.

Already it is assured that this was a first step toward additional increases in the next Congress.

Latest report coming to me reveals that 70,679 Franklin Countians are beneficiaries of Social Security, for a monthly total of $6,138,326.

Totals for Madison and Pickaway Counties, also a part of the 15th Ohio District, were not immediately available, but payments and increases there can be assumed to be in line with those reported for Franklin.

IN ONE OF MY recent polls of constituent opinion, the vote was four to one for increased Social Security benefits. The most common recommendation was for keeping payments at least up with cost of living increases. Congress did even more, by a 13 percent Social Security increase in a year when living costs went up 4.2 percent.

• • •

Many tributes were heard in Washington to the late John M. Vorys when word of the former Congressman's death in Columbus reached Capitol Hill. Mr. Vorys is remembered as an effective and respected member of Congress for a period of 20 years.

• • •

Many Congressmen set forth "rules" for the guidance of constituents writing letters to their representatives. I hesitate to do so, because I welcome every communication which will help me to represent the majority views of my constituents.

Not as "rules," then, but only as guides to facilitate understanding and prompt replies, I do suggest the following:

A LETTER is better than a phone call, minimizing the possibility of misunderstanding. Correct, complete and ledgible signature and address are necessary for the reply. A personal letter or postcard is greater evidence of true concern than signing a form letter or card.

Considering that I often receive, read, and answer 100 letters a day, these do not seem unreasonable suggestions.

• • •

We continue to receive letters from families with sons in Vietnam asking if it is true an "only son" will be relieved from combat duty on request.

Unfortunately, the report is not true. Legislation to that effect has been proposed but not yet passed in Congress.

It is true that the only remaining son from a family where one member has lost his life in military action may apply for release from combat duty, and the request will be granted. This is called the "sole surviving son" rule.

In cases where two members of a family are in military service, a request that only one be assigned to combat duty usually will be granted. This does not necessarily mean, however, that one will be sent home.

SUCH REQUESTS should originate with the men themselves, not from families or friends. It follows that a Congressman may support a serviceman's request, but he cannot originate it.

Consider Child's Safety When Buying School Clothes

Almost every mother knows that her child's safety is at stake when he crosses a busy thoroughfare or plays near the edge of water.

But how many mothers know that when they buy back-to-school clothes for their children, they might be buying a potential fire hazard?

"Probably very few," says Sara Miles, safety expert at the National Safety Council. "Most people simply don't stop to consider that their clothing can burn. Women don't realize that their daughter's frilly party dress or their son's floppy pajamas can ignite and burn with surprising speed."

Yet burns from clothing that catches on fire account for 1,500 deaths each year. Furthermore, Council statisticians estimate that 100,000 people suffer disabling injuries because their clothes catch on fire.

How can a mother be sure she is buying the safest clothes for her children?

Closely woven fabrics, of a heavy weight and with a smooth surface, are least likely to burn. Wool is a good example of such a fabric.

In general, close fitting garments are less likely to catch fire than loose fitting ones. Particularly dangerous are flowing robes, flared skirts, blousy sleeves, and clothes with ruffles and frills or a napped, textured surface.

It is the parents' responsibility to prevent situations in which a child's clothes could burn. Infants and toddlers must be protected from fire at all times, since they can't look out for themselves.

Older children should be taught about the dangers of fire as soon as they are able to take direction. They should learn to be cautious when they are near common sources of fire such as space heaters, stoves, and burning trash or leaves.

Parents, and children too, should know what to do in case clothes ever catch on fire. The natural tendency is to panic and run.

The safe thing to do is just the opposite of this. If fire strikes, throw the victim to the ground and slowly roll him over and over. This stifles the flames and prevents them from sweeping upward to the face.

If a blanket or rug is handy, roll the victim in that to quench the flames more quickly.

Hang Onto Old Objects— They're Future Antiques

That Victorian or depression-era object you're thinking about throwing out just may be a collector's item or could be in years to come.

That doesn't mean that collectors aren't still interested in 17th and 18th century treasures, but there are only so many of those left, and as the demand increases so do prices.

Therefore, collectors are turning their attention to objects of the 19th and 20th centuries.

In fact, many collectors are searching actively for household furnishings of the relatively recent past.

This broadened interest in collecting American decorative arts now has become so prevalent that it forms the theme for the 1968 Midwest Antiques Forum at Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village in Dearborn, Mich.

The Forum, which runs from Oct. 14 to Oct. 18, will concentrate on the subject, "Collecting Americana Today; What Next?"

Using that subject as the title of her talk, Edith Gaines of New York City, associate editor of "Antiques Magazine," will keynote the Forum at 10 a.m., Oct. 14.

She will be followed throughout the week by other East Coast authorities. Among those authorities will be Berry Tracy, curator of the American Wing of New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art; Paul V. Gardner, curator of the Smithsonian Institution's Division of Ceramics and Glass; Mrs. Virginia P. Partridge, assistant curator of Farmer's Museum in Cooperstown, N.Y.; Mary C. Black, director of New York City's Museum of American Folk Art; and Peter Brown, director of the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Collection at Colonial Williamsburg.

Talks are scheduled daily for 10 a.m. and 11:15 a.m. and for 8:30 p.m. except on the last evening, when the Forum banquet will begin at 6:30.

Subjects will range from "Collectable Americana" and "American Glass Collectables" through "Nautical Things" and a discussion of "Antiques Reproductions."

Afternoons of the Forum will be devoted to tours of the collections of Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, and tea-panel discussions during which Forum registrants will have an opportunity to discuss topics directly with the authorities.

Daily and week-long registrations are available. The address for both more information and registrations is the Midwest Antiques Forum, Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, Dearborn, Mich. 48124.

Soup 'N Sandwich: An Old Favorite

As a long, hot summer draws to a sultry end, it is time once again for Mom to concern herself with hot youngsters.

If sweltering summer lunches for school-bound days have led to loss of appetite and poor eaters and you've been a little lax yourself when it comes to nutrition in your meals — don't despair.

Now, when cooler weather is just around the corner, is the time to improve your menu.

Soup and sandwich is a favorite lunch of long-standing popularity. Not only is it a tasty combination, but in most cases proves to be the basis for a nutritionally adequate lunch.

With the addition of a fruit for dessert and a tall glass of milk, the menu is complete.

A perfect sandwich accompaniment for this tasty treat would be a cheese and bologna combination. Also, add radish roses or carrot sticks for a crispy accompaniment.

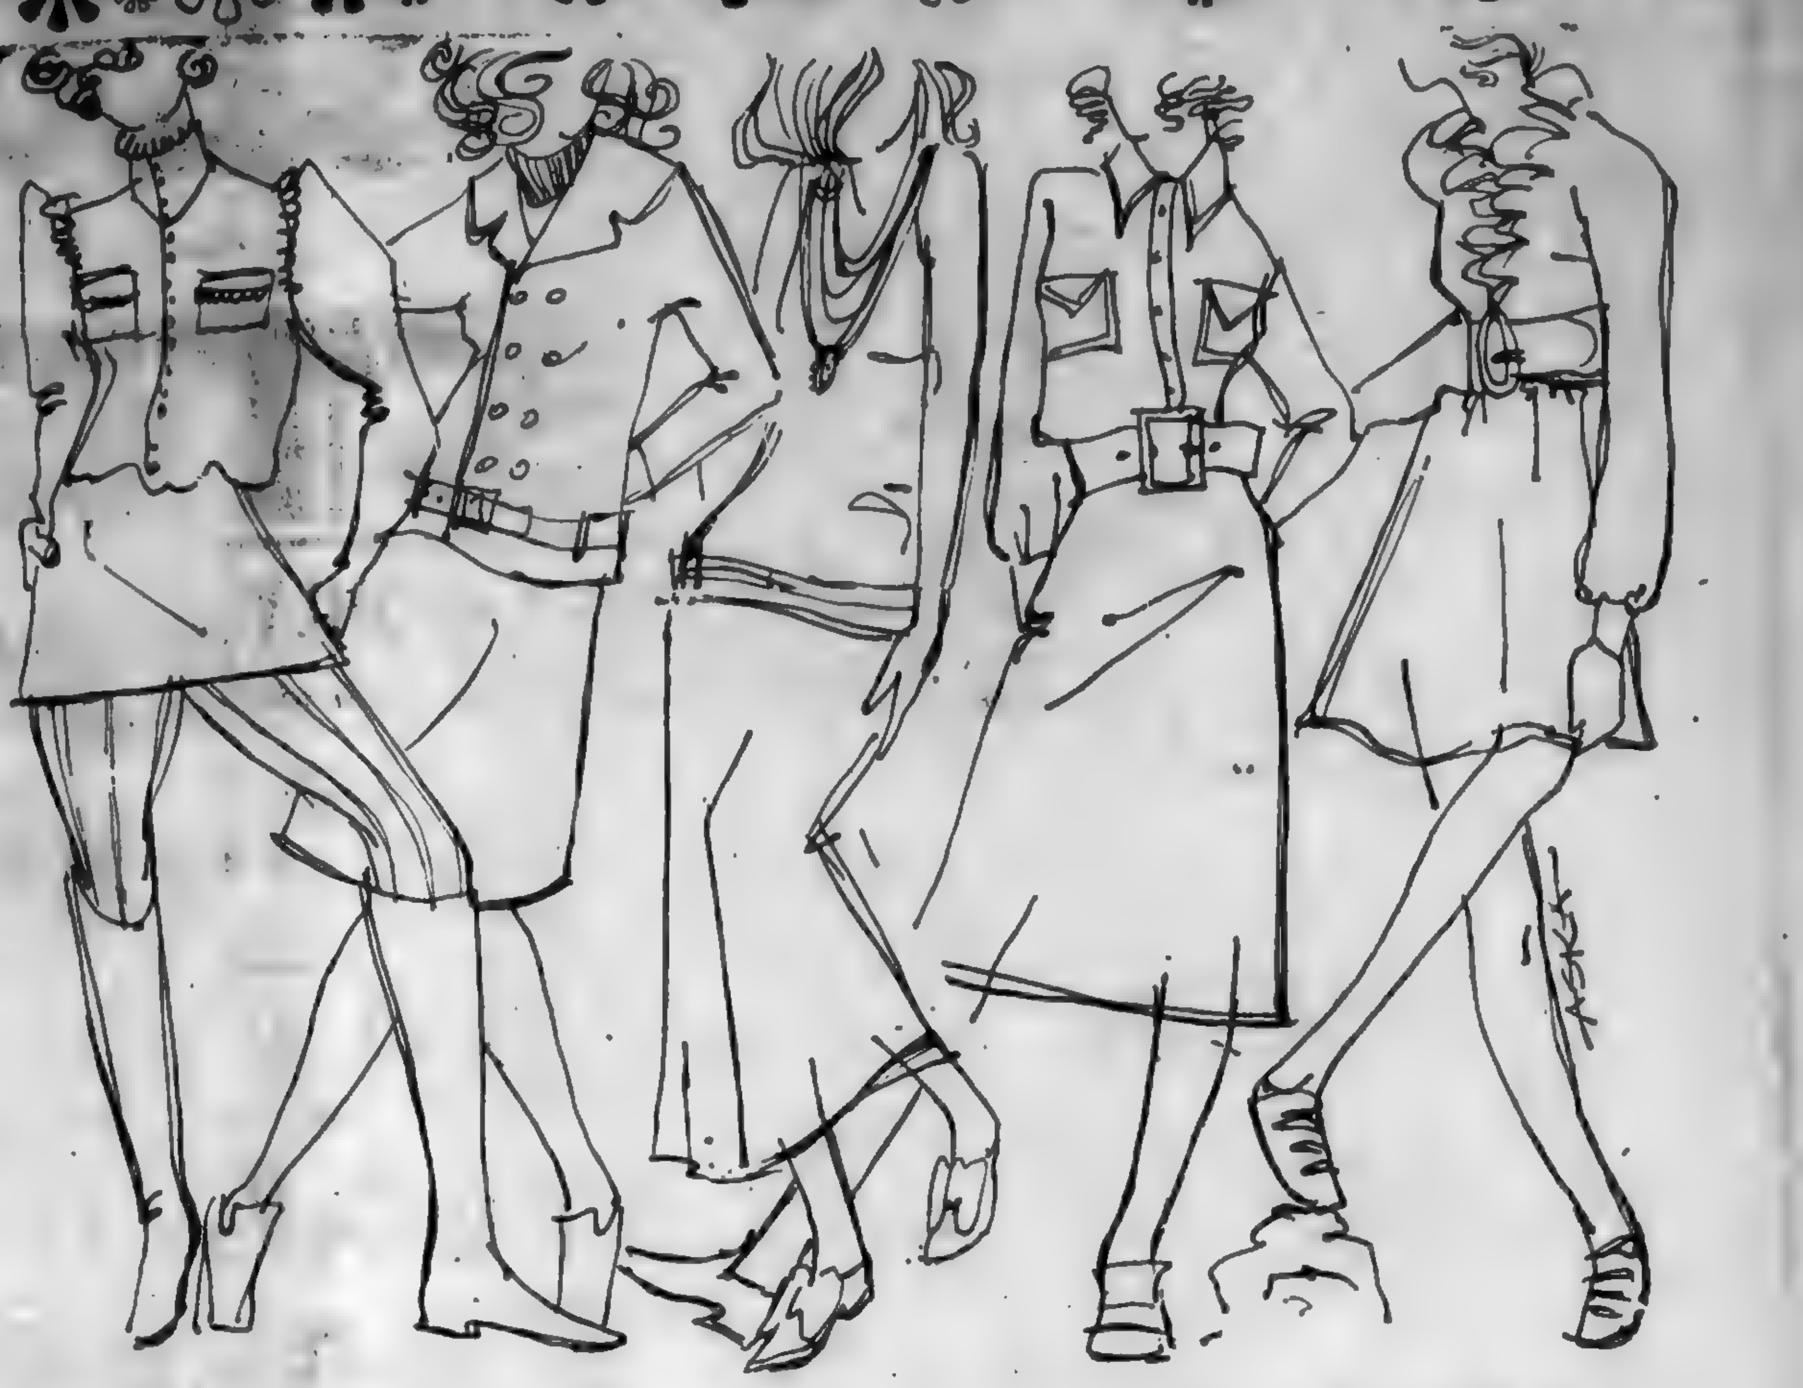
CREAMED CREOLE SOUP

½ cup sliced celery
⅓ cup chopped onion
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 can (10¾ oz.) condensed tomato soup
2 cups milk
1 small bay leaf
4 drops hot pepper sauce
1 can (4½ oz.) shrimp, drained and chopped

Saute celery and onion in butter until onion is tender. Blend in flour and salt. Add soup, milk, bay leaf and pepper sauce.

Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add shrimp and heat to serving temperature.

Makes 6 servings.



Mini, Midi, Maxi -- Anything Goes In Skirts

Standard, mini, midi, maxi — what's the length that's right for you?

With all the skirt lengths being shown, this fall may well find fashionables puzzling over where the hem should be.

"This fall, choose your own length. The time of day, the occasion, the weather, and most of all what you like determine the length of your skirt," says Edith Raymone Locke, executive editor for fashion and beauty, "Mademoiselle" magazine.

In order to make the fashion choosing game easier, here's a glossary of lengths.

TRUE MINI: Hitting three to five inches above the knee at mid-thigh, it's also known as the microskirt. From now on the true mini will show up only on sports clothes, as an alternative to shorts.

STANDARD SHORT: Above or at the knee. This is fall's standard daytime length, will probably be around for some time to come.

KNEESIE: Just covering the knee or two inches below, this length may be somewhat of a shock. It is a fun, costumey look, appearing in narrow, Thirties-type coats and some slinky, after-five things.

Too long (and too short) for boots, the "kneesie" looks best with shimmery dark stockings and higher-heeled, still-chunky shoes.

MIDI: Introduced last fall, this mid-calf length wins acceptance in casual evening things and in coats and coverups. Swooshing around the legs, it gives a nice bundled feeling without getting in the way.

MAXI: The World War I length, it hits two or three inches above the ankle. The maxi's a new, shorter substitute for full length and looks charming (very trim little ankles) at night.

Attention, Cooks! This Is For You

We're looking for the best cooks in Columbus.

For the fifth straight year, The Spectator is conducting its popular Cookbook Contest honoring those masters of the kitchen in Franklin County and Central Ohio.

And, as usual, we've got an outstanding list of prizes up for grabs.

Grand Prize will be a Frigidaire Custom Deluxe Mobile Dishwasher from Ken Bush Appliances. It will go to the entrant judged by our panel to be the premiere cook in the contest.

And that's not nearly all. There are 10 categories, and the first prize winner in each category will receive a $25 U.S. Savings Bond. Second place category winners will get an eight by ten family portrait from Firestone Photographs valued at $12.50.

Prizes will be awarded in the following categories: sandwiches, cakes, casseroles, cookies, desserts, meats, pies, salads and vegetables. And there's a separate category for teen-age culinary artists between 13 and 18 years of age.

The entries will be judged by a panel of experts to be announced in later stories.

Entry rules are simple. A sample entry blank will be found in the advertisement on page 15 of this newspaper. All you have to do is fill it out and mail it to The Spectator no later than midnight, Saturday, Sept. 28.

The cookbook will appear in Spectator editions of Thursday, Oct. 24. In it you'll find the winning recipes plus other entries and favorite dishes of some of the most famous women in the United States.

It's as simple as that. All you have to do is share your family's food favorites with us and you could win a brand new dishwasher or dozens of other valuable prizes.

But don't delay. Remember the deadline is midnight Saturday, Sept. 28.

We'll be watching for your entry.

Mother Can Learn From Second Child

There is much to learn from a second child.

It is obvious that people are different from one another, and even brothers and sisters can be as different as total strangers. What one mother learned from her second child is related in an article by Lynn Minton in the September "Family Circle" magazine.

In addition to realizing how different two children born of the same parents can be, Mrs. Minton learned some practical facts from her second child.

For example, she learned that it won't hurt if the new baby cries a little. The firstborn was picked up as soon as he became discontented. Now, if the new baby begins to cry and Mother is busy, baby must wait. Not for long, but wait she does.

Another thing Mrs. Minton learned from her second child is that there is more than one way to skin a cat. She found that for every way she had of doing something, a friend or relative could suggest another, and that surprisingly enough most of these ways were right.

At three months, Mrs. Minton's daughter taught her something about men. With her first child — a son — the father's behavior was an extension of his own ego. He wanted the child to be big and strong and independent — a man.

Toward the baby girl, he was totally different. Is the room temperature all right? Do you think she has a tummy ache? In short, he was protective.

Her second child also has taught mother to organize time and work. In some ways this gives more time than she had. "With two kids, you have to be organized."

It is relaxing to realize, the author concludes, that everything does not have to be done right then or just so. There is a margin for error, for mistakes, and the kids will still grow up all right, still be all right.

Gold – Fall's Special Color

Perhaps the sign of a real women is that she'd rather own one real gold accessory than ten pounds of charming fakes.

The precious metal might take the form of a clever bracelet of charms that is part of her personality; or a slim, elegant gold compact, or a pair of precious earrings, an heirloom locket or ring.

Maybe her gold "thing" is a Cleopatra snake bracelet to encircle a perfect upper arm, or a thin gold bangle that she might have received as a young girl.

Down through the centuries, gold has been a symbol of luxury, of the pampered and well-loved woman. Lesser jewelry and accessories can be had in good design and lesser metals—but the effect of real gold has much the same impact today as it had in ancient times.

It is interesting to note that all that is gold — and golden—has taken on added fashion significance for fall, 1968.

To emphasize your fall aureola, consider underscoring it with GOLDEN AUTUMN, the warm, wonderful scent design by Prince Matchabelli as the perfect Midas Touch for fall.

Originally designed for seasonal use, GOLDEN AUTUMN has become so popular it is now a year-round favorite. But its combination of flower and wood notes, with mossy and leafy accents makes an especially right scent to wear all day long . . . most especially this Golden Autumn.

MAVERICK

By Richard L. Pough

WITH MUDDY SHOES

If you are a member of that fast-growing army of hunters who like to meet a greater challenge, here's a dandy for you.

The Division of Wildlife has set aside a 49,000 acre area in southeastern Ohio as a primitive weapons area for the hunting of deer.

WHAT THIS means is that you may hunt the native Ohio whitetail deer from Oct. 28 through Nov. 2 with either longbow, muzzle-loading shotgun with rifled slug or muzzle loading rifle of .38 calibre or larger.

You may hunt from dawn to dark and may take one deer — any size, any sex.

In order to be eligible, you must have a 1968 hunting license, a deer permit and a free permit to hunt those days issued by the Division of Wildlife.

FOR MANY years, the state of Kentucky has had a primitive weapons season and I'm glad Ohio is recognizing the enjoyment potential of such a hunt.

I'm sure there are lots of people reading this column who will immediately itch to get that old relic out of the attic and start in practicing for the fast-approaching season.

But hear me out!

DON'T RISK your hide or that very valuable relic on the hunt. Go out and buy one of the modern replicas. They are made of modern steel and can withstand modern powders.

Stop to think for a minute. After taking that antique down off the wall, you don't even know if there is a powder load left in it from Granpa's days.

Should you pile another charge into the barrel, tamp it and ram an over-sized slug in on top of a double charge, your eye is just two inches from where the explosion will take place.

EVEN IF YOU have fired the gun many times on the range, who knows when the next charge will prove too much for that ancient barrel? Better to be safe than sorry.

The 49,000 acres of primitive hunting now known as "Wildcat Hollow" lies about 80 miles southeast of Columbus, four miles north of Glouster and five miles east of McConnelsville.

If you do not know any land owners in the area, there are 10,000 acres of Wayne National Forest and 3,500 acres or Wolf Creek Wildlife Area included in the plan — all free to you!

TO GET YOUR free primitive weapons permit and a map of the area, drop a note to: Primitive Weapons Hunt, Division of Wildlife, 1500 Dublin Rd., Columbus, 43215.

If you would like to have topographic maps of the region, send $2.28 to Division of Geological Survey, 2107 Grandview Ave., Columbus, 43212 and ask for the Deavertown, Rockby Lock, Corning and Ringold maps.

Better hurry if you want to scout the land in advance of the season.

Flag-Hopeful Jets Host J-Mets In IL Finale

With all indications pointing to another wild and woolly International League pennant finish, the contending Columbus Jets close out their regular season this weekend with their twelfth and final '68 home stand.

IL "toughie" Jacksonville provides the competition tonight through Sunday with five games scheduled.

THE METS invade tonight for a vital twin-bill (6:30), remaining for single night games (7:45) tomorrow and Saturday and helping the locals wrap up the regular campaign with a 2 p.m. Sunday clash.

Friday's game will be "Y's Men Night" at the Stadium while Saturday's tilt marks the annual "Fan Appreciation Night."

All general admission ducats will sell for $1 Saturday, and the first 5,000 fans will receive a free team picture.

BESIDES presentation of the trophy to the Jets' "most valuable" player of 1968, outfielder Elvio Jimenez and another (unnamed) player will receive special awards.

International League playoffs will open Tuesday.

In 55 home openings to date, the Jets show an attendance increase of 20,391 (153,775 to 133,384) over the same number of games last season.

CTFL Kicks Off '68 Season Sept. 15 With 12-Team Loop

The Columbus Touch Football League will conduct its final pre-season meeting of the year tonight at 7:30 at Remo's Inn (1435 Grandview Ave.).

The league schedule and divisional selections will be made at the meeting.

THE CTFL season will open Sunday, Sept. 15, on Southview's No. One field with "kickoff" ceremonies conducted at 11:45 a.m. by Commissioner Howard "Hopalong" Cassady.

Ex-OSU guests Bill Willis and Vic Janowicz will be on hand to display the Willis "Lineman of the Year" (sponsored by Immke Buick) and Janowicz "Back of the Year" (sponsored by Blatz) awards.

New awards this season will include "Coach of the Year" (Maxton Memorial Award) and the Richard Masheter "All-Star Defensive and Offensive Plaques" for the Holiday Bowl All-Star Charity game on Nov. 24.

HERE'S THE CTFL lineup for '68:

New BAAL Grid Preview Set Saturday At Ridgeway

The Boys All American League will kick-off its inaugural season Saturday at 8 p.m. with a preview at Ridgeway, Ohio.

First quarter will feature the Little Buckeyes vs the Little Gophers of Mt. Victory and the second stanza will match the Leawood Raiders against the Devonshire Chargers.

THE THIRD frame will match the losers vs losers and the final quarter will feature winners vs winners.

BAAL Commissioner is James L. Cameron, well known local official, and the newly elected president is Harold Beaird.

League membership includes: Devonshire "Chargers" (coach John Monzat), Fiji "500's" (coach Dick Johnson), Leawood Raiders (coach Randy Lavender), The Little Buckeyes (coach Tom Krieger), and the Mt. Victory Little Gophers (coach Norm Smiley).

IN ADDITION to the league championship trophy, a Sportsmanship trophy will be presented at the conclusion of the season by Commissioner Cameron. Basis for this award will be grading by the game officials. Teams will be rated in three categories — players, coaches and spectators.

BAAL play starts Sept. 15 when Leawood meets the Fiji's at West High's practice field and Devonshire visits the Little Buckeyes at Barnett Recreation field.

Starting time for all games will be 2 p.m.

'ALL HANDS ON DECK'

Ban-Tam League president Larry Garner (left) prepares an opening "pitchout" to eight members of the small-fry football league at their annual preview opener last weekend at Reynoldsburg's Huber Park. Front (from left) are Steve Bowshier (Grove City Warriors), Hal Thompson (South Franklin Raiders), Mike Plant (Lockbourne Falcons) and Larry Copley (West Mound Rams). Back row: Roy Edwards (Grove City Panthers), Steven Johns (Linden Eagles), Jon Hill (Reynoldsburg Mustangs) and Rick Garner (Reynoldsburg Ponies).

'FEARLESS PREDICTIONS'

Spectator 'Sage (?)' Takes A Look At Loop Races, Opening Night Fare

By 'FEARLESS'

Well, here I am again — back to delight and infuriate high school football fans everywhere!

Before I get into first-week predictions on area games, here's a rundown of the outlook for title finishes in five local leagues:

CITY LEAGUE

NOBODY has excluded Eastmoor from the loop favorite spot although most CL coaches figure that both Linden and Marion-Franklin should provide the most pressure on Bob Stuart's Warriors.

"Dark horse" candidates look like: South, Whetstone, Northland and Central.

"Big game" should be Sept. 27 when Linden meets E-M. Marion plays neither contender but draws Central, South and Whetstone.

CENTRAL CATHOLIC

IT'S BEEN good practice to stick with perennial champion Watterson in bygone seasons but DeSales (strong in the line) and Hartley (strong on defense) could upset the Eagle applecart this time around.

OHIO CAPITAL CONFERENCE

WITH THE exception of rebuilding Pleasant View, everybody would appear to have a crack at the first OCC pennant.

Early indications suggest Whitehall, Delaware and Reynoldsburg might have a little more but there'll be no discounting 11's at Westerville, Worthington, Mt. Vernon and Gahanna.

MID-EIGHT

THE BULK of Mid-Eight coaches say "London" but refreshed Grove City (first winning season in 13 years in '67) looks hungry and capable if defensive shortcomings can be overcome.

Bexley (strong line) can't be counted out either. Hilliard is the other contender but will have to be satisfied with the "dark horse" tag.

METROPOLITAN

• • •

Defending State champion Arlington will find the going decidedly tougher during its first voyage in Central Ohio League waters but should finish with another sterling record.

The area's other eleven with state-ranking possibilities looks like Bob Stuart's Warrior crew at Eastmoor.

MOST endangering the Weyant Ave. crew's 20-game win skein (area's longest) are back-to-back dates with Linden (Sept. 27) and state-power Canton McKinley (Oct. 4).

Here's the "opening night" outlook:

CENTRAL AT ZANESVILLE — Pirates should be CL contender but haven't had much success with COL foes. Zanesville.

MOHAWK AT FRANKLIN HEIGHTS — Could be one of area's top games. Indians, possible "surprise" team in City loop this fall, appear to have too much size. Mohawk.

FAIRFIELD UNION AT HAMILTON TWP. — Looks like a tossup from here. Rangers have Topping but also depth problems. Union has plenty back from 9-1 team. F-U.

CHILLICOTHE AT GAHANNA — Visitors didn't win any last fall and should be anxious but Troutman's Lions are hard-hitters. Gahanna

GROVEPORT AT WEST JEFFERSON — Cruisers look improved and are intent on good start but Riders have a few qualities of their own. W-J.

HARTLEY AT WEST — Cowboys lost plenty from '67 unit; Hawks injury-plagued. Look for reversal of last fall's chiller. Hartley.

BEXLEY AT WHITEHALL — Two Eastside rivals have plenty of selling points but Rams look a bit longer on experience. Whitehall.

DESALES AT MARION-FRANKLIN — This was a dilly last fall and should be again. Battle of two veteran lines. Edge to . . . M-F.

NORTH AT WORTHINGTON — Cards would like to come out of gate successfully for new coach. On a hunch . . . Worthington.

LANCASTER AT WALNUT RIDGE —Both squads trying to rebuild quickly this fall but Scots appear to have lost more than 'Gales. Lancaster.

WHETSTONE AT LINDEN — A rare opening league encounter between a pair of contenders. Braves improved but Panthers oh-so-fast. Linden.

READY AT EASTMOOR — Knights eager to improve on '67 showing but this looks like tough place to start. E-M.

EAST AT NEWARK — Neither club up to '67 par but Wildcats will be able to see over that Tiger forward wall this time. Newark

HILLIARD AT WESTERVILLE — Visitors came close (0-0) to ruining host's unbeaten mark last season and are improved this time but . . . Westerville.

WATTERSON AT BROOKHAVEN —Eagles don't figure to duplicate '67 victory margin but should have enough. Watterson.

BUCKEYE VALLEY AT DUBLIN—Irish try to start new coach Bob Farmer out on right foot. Dublin.

GRANDVIEW AT REYNOLDSBURG — Raiders' Thompson has been waiting impatiently since last November for this season and shouldn't be disappointed here. Reynoldsburg.

CIRCLEVILLE AT GROVE CITY—Greyhounds let this one get away late last fall and will be looking for revenge. But Tigers appear to have enough remnants from 10-0 campaign to slip by. Should be close but . . . Circleville.

SOUTH AT NORTHLAND —Head-on collision between two of CL's most improved elevens. Rebs have Payne and Vikings unsettled at QB. So . . . South.

WEHRLE AT TEAYS VALLEY — Success was hard to find for both these elevens last fall. Wolves are looking for reversal of winless season. Coin flip says . . . Wehrle.

Keglers' Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

The Lifetime Sports Foundation, an organization with headquarters in Washington, D.C., printed a testimonial to bowling in one of its recent issues. It is reprinted below on the premise that bowlers will find it interesting to read:

A prominent Midwestern physician who specializes in the care of injuries and diseases of the bones and joints has come out strongly in favor of supervised exercise and participation in the lifetime sports as a form of treatment for persons with such ailments.

AFTER THE necessary period of curtailed activity, the physician starts his patients on swimming, golf, tennis, bowling or handball as a means of getting them to resume or begin normal activity.

He states he has found bowling to be the most useful and satisfactory sport for these reasons:

—It need not require any initial outlay for equipment.

—It is not limited to any age group.

—It can be engaged in by patients with physical handicaps of persisting disabilities.

—It entails small risk of strain or acute injury.

—It does not require a partner, the making of dates, complicated scheduling, etc.

—It does not require membership in a private club or [illegible] YMCA.

—Bowling centers are nearly universally available."

THE PHYSICIAN added that he knew of one orthopedic surgeon who has prescribed bowling for so many of his patients that they formed their own league.

JIM MURRAY

To Juan, Batters Are Funny

Did you ever notice how easy it is to laugh when you're not supposed to?

Like in church, or at a funeral, or when your boss slips on a cake of soap, or when your wife tries on a new hat and asks you how you like it.

MURRAY

THAT'S the main trouble with Juan Antonio Marichal Sanchez.

When he sees something funny, he cannot control his laughter.

Now, some guys might hold out for Laurel and Hardy. Others might like Shelley Berman, Jerry Lewis, Joey Bishop.

TO JUAN Marichal, the funniest sight in all the world is some 200-pound lug with a bat on his shoulders watching an 0-and-2 pitch go by for a strike, or lunging at a change-up and popping it high into the air to the catcher.

"He stands there and laughs at you as if you just told him the latest Polish joke—or as if you are one," the Dodgers' Al Ferrara complains.

It's not Juan's curveball the league resents, it's his sense of humor.

"HE LOOKS like he's smothering a laugh when you even come to the plate. He's enjoying himself hugely," Tommy Davis once protested.

Pitchers are supposed to cry a little in tight games. Complain to the umpire, frown, bite their lips, kick the ground, mutter to themselves, look worried.

Marichal just grins at you.

"IT'S OBSCENE," Bobby Bragan once observed. "Like a guy giggling when he turns on the electric chair."

Juan Marichal can hardly be blamed for thinking the hitter is funny.

They couldn't amuse him more if they came up to the plate in funny hats and made faces.

JUAN Marichal is, to put it simply, the best pitcher in the game of baseball today. He may be as good as there ever was.

The first big-league game he ever pitched was a one-hitter. He followed that act with several others plus a no-hitter.

He has an assortment of pitches almost no modern pitcher has. He gets the ball to the plate so many different ways, at so many different speeds that Al Ferrara notes:

"YOU DON'T want to know what's coming, just where it's coming from. You almost feel as if you're being struck out by some guy in the seats, the ball comes from so many different angles."

Most pitchers are lucky to have two effective pitches — curveball and fastball.

"Juan Marichal has 18, maybe 20," Orlando Cepeda, who has swung at all of them, told me one day.

"HE THROWS a fastball from here (gesturing overhand), here (gesturing sidearm), here (underhand). He throws the curveball from here (overhand), here (sidearm) and here (underhand).

"He has eight different speeds on his fastball. He can throw his curve so it will take a week. He can throw a screwball so it will do a tango if he wants."

How fast is he? "He is as fast as he wants to be," Tom Haller, who caught him for seven years, says.

TOM LASORDA puts it more graphically: "He can throw a ball through a car-wash and not get it wet."

He has better control than the iron batting machine. If Juan Marichal ever hits a batter, a fight will break out because every player in the league knows he can hit a gum wrapper at 60 feet.

Once, when the manager told him to hit a batter on the fist, Marichal countered, "Which one?"

"LOTS OF pitchers yell 'Look out' when they feel a pitch getting away from them. Juan is the only one who yells it before he even throws the ball," Maury Wills has said.

Every hitter in the league can tell you what size shoe he wears, what color it is, what the label is and how many spikes it has on it.

The first thing Juan Marichal does on the mound is put his foot up in the batter's eyes.

He kicks his leg so high in the air some batters can't recognize him when he has both feet on the ground.

HE HAS five shutouts this year which is extraordinary because he only pitches the shutout if his team gets him less than two runs.

He went the route in [illegible] hit game this year. And won.

When he gets a big lead, he throttles the arm back to about two-thirds of capacity and just tries to keep awake.

HE CONSIDERS one pitch to a batter sufficient.

He has now had five 20-game seasons out of the last six. He may become the first 30-game winner in the game in 34 years. With him, every game is a laugher.

HE SAT IN his cubicle at Dodger Stadium the other night while I questioned him about his pixie-ish attitude on the mound.

He began to grin. "Oh," he said, his eyes beginning to crinkle. "I have plenty of respect for the batter (pronounced 'butter')."

Then, his shoulders started to shake, his mouth started to open and he started to laugh. Pretty soon he was weak with helpless laughter, his shoulders leaning on the cage and tears coursing down his cheeks.

IF YOU catch him some afternoon, he'll be the one with the baseball who looks as if he's watching the Colgate Comedy Hour from a front-row seat.

I mean, they all look so funny standing there waving that useless stick, right?

If your want ad is in this paper, people are reading it today!

Her time is limited because soon some voice of authority will be issuing orders about drying dishes or doing home work. But until the boom is lowered, this young lady in her early teens takes advantage of her opportunity to read the Want Ads in today's Spectator. A strange pastime for one so young, you say? No indeed.

The money she has earned baby sitting is burning a hole in her clutch purse. She wants a record player, or is it a tape recorder, or a typewriter, or even a vanity for her room? Whatever it may be, she knows that such items are offered for sale in the Want Ads.

When you use a Spectator Want Ad to sell an article you no longer need or use, that ad reaches an audience which spans all ages, and willing buyers are plentiful. Take advantage of this efficient, low cost way to market any item which you wish to sell. By dialing 274-1155 you can contact a pleasant, helpful Ad-Visor who will assist you in many ways in placing your Spectator Want Ad.

Sample Recipe

MEAT

BARBECUED SPARERIBS

Four to six pounds spareribs
Salt and pepper
One-half cup finely chopped onion
Three tablespoons vinegar
Two tablespoons brown sugar
One cup catsup
Three tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
One tablespoon prepared mustard
One cup water
Dash hot sauce, if desired

Have spareribs sawed across rib bones so individual servings carve easily. Season spareribs with salt and pepper. Place in a shallow baking pan, cover tightly and cook in a slow oven (325 F.) one hour. Pour off drippings. Combine onion, vinegar, brown sugar, catsup, Worcestershire sauce, mustard, water, and hot sauce. Pour mixture over spareribs and continue cooking uncovered for one hour or until done. Baste occasionally with the barbecue sauce.

OUR FOURTH SEASON STARTS SEPT. 6th

SEP 1968

Project HOPE Plans Second Annual Ball

Unprecedented success on its "maiden voyage" last year ($30,000 turned over to Project HOPE) has spurred on the local chapter of Project HOPE to set even more exciting plans for the Second Annual HOPE Ball, to be held Saturday evening, Sept. 21, at the Sheraton-Columbus, with music for dancing provided by the famous Glen Miller Orchestra.

The Ship's Journal invites the Columbus community to participate in the support of the work of S. S. HOPE, currently docked in Colombo, Ceylon.

The American doctors, including Dr. M. P. Sayers of Columbus, are working with Ceylonese doctors and students under actual hospital conditions so that the most advanced medical practices can be demonstrated and learned.

Refuse Pick-Up

Due to the holiday, the Columbus refuse pick-up schedule has been changed.

If your pick-up day is Sept. 4, set your refuse out Sept. 5; if your pick-up day is Sept. 5, set your refuse out Sept. 6. If your pick-up day is Sept. 6, set your refuse out Sept. 7.

BABY CARE COURSE SET

Red Cross R.U.'s will instruct a free three-week course in Baby Care, 1 to 3 p.m., Mondays and Wednesdays, beginning Sept. 9, at the Red Cross, 995 E. Broad St.

Besides discussion of prenatal development, delivery, equipping the layette and preparing the formula, expectant parents will be able to practice bathing, feeding, diapering and dressing the newborn.

To register, contact Nursing Services at the Red Cross at 253-7981.

Open Housing Stand Taken By Church

Another Columbus Church has joined the ranks of those supporting open housing in the area.

The Vestry of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 30 W. Woodruff Ave., adopted a unanimous resolution July 15 deploring the "present pattern of segregated housing in the Greater Columbus area."

Noting that segregated housing is a "symbol and a consequence of racial attitudes which should have no place in the hearts and minds of Christian people," the Vestry took a stand in support of fair housing.

The church body declared that "positive and effective steps should be formulated and acted upon to insure equal opportunity to all people, without regard to race or religion, in their search for dwelling places."

NEW NEIGHBORS

New Neighbors League Club of Columbus will honor Mrs. Kendrick Brown as new neighbor of the month at the Sept. 10 luncheon meeting.

There will be pre-luncheon bridge at 10 a.m. with a social hour at 11 a.m. followed by lunch at noon.

Speaker this month will be Mayor Sensenbrenner.

Vol. XIV, No. 26—Total No. 702

The role of hostess was thoroughly enjoyed recently by little Rosalee Barnhart when Sardar Parampal Singh Mann, left, and Vijay Pal Singh were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Barnhart.

Barnharts Host Indian Farmers

Sardar Parampal Singh Mann farms 90 acres of citrus fruit, wheat, and rice and maintains acreage for demonstration projects with the help of two camels and hand labor hired at 30 cents a day.

This was but one of the facts learned by the Floyd Barnharts, Hendron Road dairy farmers, when they entertained two Indian agriculturists last week as part of the Farmer Leader Exchange Program in operation between India and the United States.

Mann, who is from the state of Punjab was accompanied by Vigay Pal Singh from Dehli. They are observing farming methods practiced throughout the United States until the third of October when they will tour Europe on a like mission.

Both men are executives of the cooperatives of their respective states as well as farmers themselves.

Of particular interest to them at the Barnhart farm where they spent several days were the silos which are unknown in their homeland and the more advanced machinery. They reported that with the exception of thrashing, most labor is done by hand.

Hamilton Board Votes 4-1 To Seek OK For 13 Mills

With Tim Gibbs passing, the Hamilton Local Board of Education voted four to one Monday to place a 12-mill operating levy on the November ballot to support a $1,11[illegible]550 budget.

Before the action was taken it was established that Supt. John Savel's recommendation for the millage had the full support of the principals and other certificated and non-certificated personnel.

AN EXPLANATION of the budget submitted by Savel shows a four per cent increase in salary for all employes, the Obetz building utilized as a kindergarten center and central offices, grades one through five at Central and South, grades six, seven and eight at the Middle School and the High School used exclusively for the four upper grades.

Other features of the revised budget include adding eight faculty members including three classroom teachers next year, establishing eight new non-certificated positions, and restoration of funds to certain areas that have been curtailed.

Although few present were as emphatic as Dick Frye, president of Hamilton Local Teachers Association who claimed the 13 millage is necessary "to sustain life" in the district, the concensus apparently is that the millage is needed and that it is the board's obligation to put the matter up before the public.

AND WHEN JOHN Boyle of the faculty asked what would be done if and when the issue fails, Savel stated the same plea would be put on the ballot at a special election in December.

With it conceded the Middle School will be filled the day it opens, Gibbs' protest that construction bonds are needed more than operating levy was met with an optimistic note from Savel.

According to the superintendent, the district is fifth in line for a slice of the $18 million pie available in State Building Assistance. (A request for $3 million has been filed with the state).

BOARD ACTION to inform the principal parties involved that it is not relinquishing its option on 80 acres adjoining the Middle School site indicated members have become somewhat leary of the "deal" it made with Guthrie May of Mayfair Homes last spring.

In March, after the board decided 39 acres of the 120 acres optioned from the Fishburn heirs was adequate for the Middle School site, a letter of intent was accepted from May, the developer of Hamilton Meadows.

According to the letter, contingent upon Mayfair's purchase of the surplus acreage from Fishburn, Mayfair would run water and sanitary and storm sewer lines to the property line of the school site without charge to the board. The letter also promised Mayfair's building a road from Rathmell Road to Astoria Avenue with 900 feet of it adjacent to the school property.

APPARENTLY, NO effort has been made to follow through with the proposal (Gibbs reported that lack of water is already holding up construction) and the board is unhappy.

How effective the board's action will be remains somewhat in doubt as Savel stated he had heard that the transaction between the Fishburns and May has been consummated with money exchanging hands this week.

(No one explained how this could be done with the land at least technically under option to Hamilton).

Don Beggrow, who is employed by Jay Bell, an associate of May, and Gibbs who had long ago "washed his hands" of the quid pro quo arrangement abstained from voting on the matter.

ALTHOUGH HIS protests were largely belittled, Gibbs lodged a belated protest against the adoption of a handbook for the students in which penalties are established for indiscreet dress.

Admitting he has been told his attitudes indicate he "is getting old" Gibbs stated he believes such rules unjust when equally indiscreet dress is tolerated from teachers.

A VOLLEY of accusations and counter accusations broke out between Mrs. Frances Shipley and Gibbs when he objected to her comments as reported in last week's Spectator. (She had asked her denial be printed to Gibbs' suggestion her vote on the proposed millage at the Aug. 21 meeting had been subject to the persuasion of Bill Laras, board president).

It was apparent that both board members condone publicity be given to their own views, but not that of those taking exception to those views.

Other business included the report that the Fisher property recently annexed to Columbus will remain in Hamilton Township for school purposes.

LAST MINUTE filling of staff vacancies were made with the employment of Thomas Martin for high school printing, Jerry Borlani to instruct data processing, Robert L. Slaubaugh to teach industrial arts and two elementary teachers.

Mrs. Darlene Tope was also hired as a playground aide at Obetz to replace Mrs. Florence Peck who resigned Aug. 30.

C-W Board Refuses To Accept Budget

Canal Winchester School Board has refused to accept the budget approved for it by the Franklin County Budget Commission.

The clerk, Mrs. Betty Klamfoth, was instructed when the board met Monday night to return the budget which did not include the 6.6 mill operating levy that will be up for voter approval in November.

SHE WAS ALSO instructed simultaneously to request a second hearing with the Commission.

If the tax rates are not adjusted to agree with the $601,604 appropriated for the general fund, the Canal Winchester Board plans to immediately file with the Board of Tax Appeals of the State of Ohio.

Canal Winchester is one of several area school districts thrown into a quandary when the Franklin County auditor interpreted a relatively new law to mean that levies passed this year cannot be collected unless the hoped-for income had been included in the temporary budgets mandatorially filed by July 15. (Apparently this interpretation is unique to Franklin County.)

CANAL WINCHESTER had shown the "need" as unquestionably required by law, with the anticipated levy budgeted.

According to school administrators, this was done upon the advice of the auditor's office.

Although the outcome of the furor is still unknown, it is recognized that the Board of Tax Appeals is empowered to instruct the county prosecutor to order the auditor to collect the levy if it passes.

IN THE MEANTIME a committee consisting of Virgil Harrison and Sheldon Burtner of the C-W Board and Carl Miller, local superintendent, was named to formulate plans to promote the pending campaign to support the levy.

SS Senior Citizen Housing To Open Doors In Six Months

Ground will be broken within the week for the 260-unit senior citizen housing project on Marion Road between Lockbourne and Fairwood.

Pat Feeney, director of the Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority which awarded the $3,600,000 "turnkey" contract to Klingbiel Co. last Friday, predicts that some of the cottage-type housing will be ready for occupancy within six months.

HE EXPLAINED that the approaching bad weather will [illegible] construction coming [illegible] as rapidly as would have been possible if the contracts had been let in early summer.

The project will consist mostly of efficiency and one-bedroom apartments with a handful planned as two-bedroom units for couples with particular health problems that demand separate sleeping quarters.

Feeney states that the recreation area will include community meeting rooms, craft facilities, card rooms and kitchen area.

HE INDICATED such facilities will be adequate although he expressed regret that shortage of funds prevented the City Recreation Department from participating in a recreation center similar to the one adjoining the high rise at McDowell and Rich Streets.

Feeney says he believes the end of the shortage of units for the Golden Ager is at hand and that the waiting period in the future will be no longer than six months. (Applications are being accepted currently at the CMHA administrative office on Rich Street and at all CMHA project offices.)

HIS OPTIMISM comes from the 252 units under construction at Mock and Brenner, the 560 units to be converted from family apartments to senior citizen units at Bolivar Arms and the 126 units adjoining Sunshine Terrace which will be put under contract in the immediate future.

Racks Up Big Purse

Jerry Lee Nicodemus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Nicodemus, 53 Lancaster Ave., Obetz, recently rode the favorite "Three O's" to victory in the "American Futurity."

Known as the world's richest horse race and held in Rudioso, N.M., the Futurity offered a total purse of $401,373.80, with the winner's slice $160,372.80.

Nicodemus, who is one of the three top jockeys in Southwestern Quarter Horse Racing, brought "Three O's" in to establish the record for the Futurity's 10 year history.

Other big wins of Nicodemus include the $46,400 Spring Quarter Futurity, the Sunland Park Appaloosa Futurity and the Triple Crown Futurity in Columbus, Tex.

He lives with his wife Linda and daughter Shelly in Rosenberg, Tex.

Madison Enrollment Jump Follows Predicted Pattern

The enrollment report presented to the Madison Local School Board Monday indicates the administration's crystal ball is still in excellent working order.

Student population now stands at 4,446, compared with that of 3,989 when school closed last June.

THIS FIGURE tallies closely with the 500 increase predicted by Supt. Phil Williams by Oct. 1.

He stated that some classrooms in the Dunloe elementary are "light," but this is according to plan with 100 homes in the attendance area slated for completion before Christmas.

It is hoped that the accuracy of the enrollment predictions may strengthen the district's position in its request for state building assistance. Madison has requested a $6,000,000 construction program.

LOCAL administrators and board members will join representatives of the other 29 districts that have applied for such help at a meeting scheduled by the State Department of Education at 10 a.m. Friday, Sept. 20.

The stated purpose of the meeting is "to review the provisions and procedures of the state school building assistance program that determine the allocation of state funds."

At the relatively routine meeting Williams also made a report of the summer school program involving driver education and instrumental music.

PUPIL FEES and state subsidy for the 83 students who completed the former reduced local cost to $13.54 per pupil. The $6 fee charged the 158 students enrolled in the latter course made the program self-supporting.

The Madison Board agreed to set up a pilot program for computerized payroll in cooperation with the county. It is anticipated the system will eventually be used as a model by other county schools.

Other business included recognition of the commendation given Mrs. Lana Giehl by the Groveport Madison Civic Center, Inc.

MRS. GIEHL, who teaches vocational home economics at Groveport-Madison, was commended by letter to the board for the time and effort she has contributed to the teen program at the Center this summer.

Mrs. Belcher To Head New Democratic Club

Mrs. Florence Belcher, 3176 Parsons Ave., will be installed this evening as president of the newly-organized 12th District Women's Democratic Southeast Area Club.

Others taking office at the installation slated at 7 p.m. at the Huntington Bank Building in Canal Winchester are Mrs. Mary Martin, 285 Southgate, vice president; Mrs. Margaret Hickman, 2457 Rhodes Ave., secretary and Mrs, Dorothy Hamler, 297 Walmut St., Groveport; treasurer.

The ceremonies will be conducted by the Honorable Judge John J. Duffey, Court of Appeals, 10 District. Richard McCracken, referee and candidate for office in the Common Pleas Court, will also speak.

The Southeast area includes Ward 29 (Columbus), Obetz, Reese, Groveport, Lockbourne, Canal Winchester and Madison and Hamilton Townships.

Any interested woman is invited to join the organization.

OHIO PENITENTIARY: PART V

Why Punishment Fails To Change Human Lives

(Editor's Note: Rev. Tom Sagendorf, now director of the Interfaith Action Council in Flint, Mich., continues his series on the Ohio Penitentiary this week with comments on what he considers to be the main failures of the penal system — as he saw them two years ago. Rev. Sagendorf was an intern chaplain at the Ohio Pen and also engaged in clinical training there.)

By REV. TOM SAGENDORF

If we had set out to create a prison system which was guaranteed to fail, we couldn't have done a better job than we've done at the Ohio Penitentiary . . .

It's highly unlikely that any high state officials plotted to make the Ohio Penitentiary the epitome of failure and a monument to death and destruction. And who could say that the citizens of Ohio ever intended to create an environment which makes mockery of enlightened humanity? . . .

OVER HALF a century ago, American criminologists were saying that penal systems such as Ohio supports today were doomed to failure . . .

Inmates are told by the rule book, by the Kangaroo "Summary Court," by trumped-up charges and guards' abuse, by mail harrassment and starvation in the "hole," that there is no justice in the world — that there is no regard for human dignity . . .

Criminologists have said, and have been able to prove, that a punitive penal environment does not correct deviant behavior.

REGIMENTATION

How silly of us to think that we can prepare men for social life by reversing the ordinary process of socialization . . .

Repressive regimentation turns men into animals who march in tight formation to the beat of a drum whenever they step out of the cell block; repressive regimentation requires that a man wait for a pass to go anywhere inside the prison . . .

WORK IN the Ohio Penitentiary is also an absurdity. Work is a godsend to most of the inmates: for most of them it is the only alternative to [illegible] and rotting for years in cellblocks . . . Obviously, there isn't much economic motivation to work in the Horrible World — even though the economic motive is an integral part of the outside world.

MOTIVATION?

There isn't much appeal to higher motivation anywhere else either. There isn't much motivation for education in the penitentiary . . .

Rehabilitation is only a game that the system plays when important people come to visit the penitentiary—and even most of them see through it . . .

TO BE A MAN in the Ohio Penitentiary means to survive, and to survive means to be willing to become a rotten carcass and to prey on other rotten carcasses . . .

In the Ohio Penitentiary, violence breeds violence, irresponsibility breeds irresponsibility, indignity breeds indignity, contempt breeds contempt, hurting breeds, more hurting and hate breeds more hatred.

THE RESULT

As you might expect, the recidivism rate from the Ohio Penitentiary (two years ago) is two-thirds.

It's no wonder.

If we made a conscious effort to add elements to the Horrible World to make the rate even higher, we probably couldn't do it.

THERE IS a host of examples, on the federal and state levels, of penal systems which have substituted rehabilitation for the "lex talionis" and have seen the result in lov[illegible]cidivism, more protecti[illegible] society, and new hope [illegible] inmates who found a new way of life which is responsible and whole.

This could happen in Ohio, but it hasn't.

We've had the light of enlightened penology shining all around us (even as close as Ohio State University), but, like Nicodemus, we have never seen the light.

Something can be done to overcome the Horrible World of Ohio, and it must be done by those who have seen the light . . .

(Next week: What [illegible] be done?)

News Of Lockbourne

By MRS. BETTY McCUMBER — 491-3469

We want to extend a welcome to the three new families who moved into our town: Mr. and Mrs. Layman Scott, 135 Mechanic St.; Mr. and Mrs. John Gee, 95 Landis St.; Mr. and Mrs. George Gee, 72 Commerce St.

The Methodist Church choir will have a home-made ice cream social at the church Saturday, Sept. 14, starting at 5 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Frazier and daughters spent Labor Day weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Frazier, at Partridge, Ky. While there they attended the Frazier reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Coon and Henry spent Labor Day with Charley's sister, Mrs. Ellie Zinn, at Jackson and also had dinner with Charley's former school teacher, Elizabeth Parks, at Oak Hill, who is 86 years old.

The Lutheran Church has resumed the winter schedule with Sunday School at 9:30 a.m. and church at 10:30 a.m.

Mrs. Lou Cheadle and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Beane (Joy) spent Labor Day weekend visiting Lou's four sisters at Washington, Pa.

Camp At Galena

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Scott spent Labor Day weekend camping at Lake Berkshire, Galena.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Roll (Joyce) and boys from Bucyrus spent Labor Day weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Roller. Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Eccard and Debbie and David and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Jordon and Julie and Jennifer Hicks joined them on Sunday for a picnic at Scioto Trails. David was home on leave from Chicago for three days.

Mr. and Mrs. David Bynum and his father from Croton, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Lozier and family, Mr. and Mrs. John McCumber and daughters had home-made ice cream and cake at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Miller on Labor Day.

Stationed At Stewart

M/Sgt. Ben Warning has been transferred to Stewart Air Force Base in Tennessee.

Rev. McDowell will be in his office at the United Methodist Church on Wednesday of each week from 9 till noon.

Displaying the garments which won her recognition at the State Fair is Mary Goodall, 244 Southwood Ave.

Michael May Honored For Vietnam Valor

Sp/4 Michael G. May has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device for heroism in the Republic of Vietnam.

According to the citation forwarded to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John May, Jr., 1410 S. Champion Ave., Cpl. May distinguished himself by exceptional valor while serving as a rifleman with the 5th Cavalry.

WHEN HIS UNIT became engaged with a large enemy force he exposed himself to hostile fire as he placed accurate fire, enabling his comrades to evacuate the wounded and withdraw to a more defensive position.

The award further states, "His display of personal bravery and devotion to duty is in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service, and reflects great credit upon himself, his unit and the United States Army."

At the time of the situation Cpl. May was ranked private first class.

A 1967 GRADUATE of South High School, May has been in Vietnam since March.

Now stationed in the Quang Tri province, he will leave for Bangkok, Thailand for Rest and Recuperation.

CPL. MICHAEL MAY

Junior High Student Collects Ribbons At Ohio State Fair

Mary Goodall, of the A-U-GA-KI Camp Fire groups won more ribbons at the State Fair than any other girl in Southeast District.

Among them were two blue ribbons for sewing, second for [illegible]ntings and her nature collections and several in cooking.

Mary, who has been active in service projects and the resident day camping program will be president of the Southeast District Junior High cabinet next year.

The seventh grader is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Goodall. Her mother is the leader of her Group and her father serves on the Board Day Camp Committee.

Something Missing?

Our grandfathers were fond of talking about the "good old school days" when they had to walk 10 miles through snow drifts as high as a house to the little one-room school house in the valley.

Franklin County youngsters returning to school may not have such exciting stories to tell their children.

It seems that professionals, scientists and the know-how to which all flesh is heir have done their job well.

Education has become a science — probably rightfully so.

[illegible] it is pleasant to ponder the old days, when a teacher was also a friend and the community was deeply involved in the educational process. It may not have been scientific; but it was personal.

Those old days are over. Some say good riddance.

Now we have the statistics, the task forces and the psychiatrists to do the job.

With all the talk about the science of education, however, one wonders how anyone over 40 ever got an education.

There is much of the "good old days" of reading, writing and arithmetic which was not very good. But there was a great deal which, lacking professional studies, gave a personal touch to learning.

Ill-Conceived

The move by a Columbus minister to consider circulating a recall petition against at least one city councilman and possibly all four in the teenage entertainers ordinance squabble sounds ill-conceived.

Rev. Paul Bock, who believes he is representing the will of the people, was obviously not representing the viewpoints of some councilmen — one of whom labeled his proposal "ridiculous and silly."

These seem to be apt words for describing the attempt.

It was Councilman Donald Woodland who sponsored legislation which reduced the age from 21 to 18 of those eligible to work in night clubs. This was in line with the state law.

Rev. Bock intimated that his committee has proven it can gather enough signatures to force the issue to the ballot.

Many months ago The Spectator Newspapers endorsed the right of teenage entertainers to provide for their livelihood by working in night clubs.

We believe City Council is to be commended for its actions.

Looking Down Wall Street

By LARRY GOLDBERG
Saunders, Stiver & Co.
Investment Securities
[illegible]

Investment banking provides the means through which investment capital flows to new as well as established businesses. The investment banker, or underwriter, is relatively unknown to the investing public. His efforts bring together the users and suppliers of capital. The underwriter provides a wide variety of securities for the investors while acting as a merchandiser of capital.

The underwriter is the most important factor in raising new or additional capital for companies. The XYZ Corp., a moderate sized, promising company, needs money. The reason may be to build a new plant, develop an invention, or provide working capital. The first step is for a representative of XYZ Corp. to consult with an underwriter. Before a decision is made by the underwriter, every facet of the company is probed — its history, earnings, capital structure, management, and products. After the underwriter decides to go ahead with the deal, various methods of raising capital are discussed. The alternative methods are a bank loan, a bond issue, a preferred or common stock issue. It is decided, in this case, to issue common stock.

The rest is simple from the standpoint of the company. XYZ Corp. receives a check from the underwriter for the amount of the issue less the underwriter's expenses. Then it's up to the underwriter to offer the common stock to the investors. The underwriter's reputation and integrity are his greatest assets. The underwriter, therefore, must constantly examine proposed issues offered to him. Many investors will purchase new securities solely on the recommendation of the undewriter whose past record merits this confidence.

An additional function of the investment banker is to finance public works for political subdivisions such as schools, sewer, water and street improvements. Bonds issued by a city, county, or state may be sold at competitive bidding or negotiated with an underwriter to pay for the project. The bonds are retired over a period of years either by taxes or by the revenues of the project.

Many underwriters are also broker-dealers and handle seasoned issues of companies both listed and over-the-counter.

That 'Old Dixie'

By JOHN MORGAN

It was tune-in time for the Democratic National Convention in Dixie, where I settled down to watch the American flag waving behind a barbed wire fence on the television screen as the familiar strains of the "land of the free and the home of the brave" echoed more strangely than I have ever heard before.

It was also supposed to be vacation time in North Carolina, in the "New South" of which southern intellectuals are so fond of talking. I had been told the South no longer flew the Rebel flag so zestfully, that modern technology had brought about a change of attitudes, a new way of looking at the social illnesses which have plunged the North into one crisis after another.

I had been brainwashed by too many writers with optimism from sociologists and novelists. The geography had changed—suburban homes and small factories, the ever-present signs of progress. But O[illegible] are more difficult to change — [illegible] endure in their ways long after the surroundings have altered.

I have not studied the South from a historian's perspective. I claim to be nothing more than a "damn Yankee." And perhaps a friend was right when he told me that "no Yankee can ever understand us."

All I know is what I heard and saw—and recorded in the camera of my mind. For all practical purposes I was still in the Old South, that curious mixture of "give 'em hell" religion, cultural patriotism and racial paternalism.

The South may not have the urban powder kegs of the North, but I don't think this is a factor to brag about.

In the name of law and order and with the sacred name of George Wallace (some thought his movement was the second coming) on their lips, some Southerners still cling to a way of life which elects a majority of people as God's chosen and the rest as outcasts.

I welcome viewpoints different from my own. I do not feel threatened by any philosophy. But I do feel alienated by philosophies of hate, of repression, of returning to old values rather than seeking out the new.

A college president in the small town symbolized the attitudes of many unaffected by urbanization when he told why his area had no racial problems —"We keep our darkies happy here."

A tour of the town, however, told me other things.

- The Klan is still active in the area. I was told by one resident how Klansmen stand out on a highway waving down cars to their rally with their white hoods.
- The black community is, for all purposes, segregated, shut out, silenced. I do not think they are very happy.
- The local newspaper — which managed to highlight Mr. Wallace in each edition — also identifies race in regular news stories. If a man is caught speeding and happens to be a Negro, he is identified as a Negro in the article. The paper omits such sentences as: "George Smith, a white man, was arrested for speeding."

While the "New South" may be emerging, it was clear to me that the Old South has not yet died.

• • •

There were some signs of change adrift in this small town, however, despite suppression of such goings-on in the local newspaper.

A Eugene McCarthy supporter (something as rare in town as integration), who has lived there 13 years, told me how he planned to help organize concerned elements of the community around education issues.

A college some 30 miles away is free of the cultural attitudes of the Old South —but it appears to be a voice crying in the wilderness.

But the voices of the concerned minority often are lost in the wheels of a way of life which is buried in a past of clear-cut moral customs, social rigidity and darkness.

There was no strife. No dialogue. No change. The peace and quiet of the small town betrayed little social improvement.

And then I turned on the television set again and saw Chicago.

And while the local newspaper editor praised every crack on the head of demonstrators, it seemed he missed what was in front of him.

He missed a rigid way of life which is doomed to extinction.

At first I was horrified by the proceedings at the Democratic Convention. Like most Americans, I rose to the cry of the underdog and complained of Mayor Richard Daley's tactics.

But now I understand that the Democratic Convention was at least in part open to strife.

And I asked myself which is more creative: A town buried in the darkness of silence or a convention partially open to dialogue?

The Wallace Myth

By ROBERT W. REIDER
Editor and Publisher

REIDER

A year ago most politicians laughed off the presidential candidacy of George Wallace.

Today it is another story. The former Alabama governor's third party has both G.O.P. and Democratic leaders scratching their heads.

Wallace has come up fast in the polls in recent months. People are listening to what he has to say — and kicking in campaign funds.

From now until election, however, his popularity is likely to decline for two principal reasons.

First, the average citizen wants to be with a winner. Now that the major parties have settled on their candidates, most voters will support one or the other, rather than risk throwing away their vote on a third party.

Second, the man's record is being examined more closely as he emerges from a regional to national figure. Some of the findings are distasteful, and there is certain to be a dropoff in his personal popularity as the facts become known.

Here is what the current issue of "Focus," publication of the Ohio AFL-CIO, has to say about the Wallace Record:

- Wallace pledged not to increase taxes, but double-crossed the people soon after becoming Governor and raised Alabama's sales tax to the highest in the nation.
- Driver's license fees were increased 100 per cent by Wallace.
- Cigaret and beer taxes were boosted by Wallace.
- Wallace increased taxes more than any two other Alabama governors, and spent more money than all other Alabama governors.
- The U.S. debt has increased by 18 per cent since World War II. Alabama's bonded indebtedness has increased by more than 200 per cent during Wallace's administration without letting the people vote on it. The interest on this debt is now $50,000 a day.
- Wallace cut old age pensions in Alabama after his record spending of $1.5 million in 1965 depleted the old age pension treasury.
- Most trade schools and junior colleges built by the Wallace administration were built by scab, non-Union construction workers.

This is only the beginning. It is extremely doubtful that Wallace the presidential candidate can overcome the liabilities of Wallace the governor as the campaign progresses.

'New' Politics

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

I'm tired of hearing people complain about the "old political system."

I'm even tired of hearing myself complain.

It's not that I don't agree the old system is on its way out. I'm just tired of hearing myself and others complain about it and not do anything about it.

So I did a little checking around and discovered that all it takes to make the changes is a little effort — less talk and a little effort.

Despite all you read and hear, there will be no "fourth party" or even a third party moving into the national limelight in the next few years. Any change that comes will have to come through the two major existing political parties.

And that change can come.

There's one good thing about "old politicians." They're old. They're on the way out. Someone is going to have to take their place.

But there is no easy way. The longest journey, it is said, begins with but a single step. It takes patience and hard work and little gratitude before the results start to show.

Both political parties need help in terms of time and effort. They are desperate for really interested people to work at the real "grass roots" level — in the precincts and wards in our city.

Small potatoes, you say. Baloney, I say. No one ever started a political career as county chairman. Every major political organizer started as a precinct worker, then moved up through the ranks to precinct committeeman, ward committeeman and on up.

That is the only way to get there.

But if enough young idealists can channel that idealism into practical politics, it will do the trick.

Alleys

By TED BEARDSHEAR

Columbus' alleys lack the character and quality of the alleys of my youth.

Here they are just routes to one place or another. But my alleys, (which were in a small town) were more than that.

They were exciting places. In one there was an apple tree to climb. In another, there were hollyhocks taller than a child. child.

It used to be fun to get a jar, punch holes in the lid, and collect bees from the hollyhocks. We'd trap them in the flower and then drop them in the jar.

All you see in Columbus' alleys are trash and broken garages.

There are no hollyhocks, or apple trees.

And I think back to the times when an alley was a place to play baseball or football. And all of those young friends who are now scattered to all ends of the globe.

A place where we used to swap comic books. A place where matters of honor were settled with one's fists. A meeting place to smoke cigarettes and tell jokes about which we knew nothing.

Columbus' alleys are not like that.

And I feel sorry for the generation now growing up who cannot trap bees in the hollyhocks, or play ball, or swap stories or settle matters of honor with one's fists.

We used to take alleys to go to school. We'd throw rocks at birds, pick green apples or just pluck the flowers that grew wild on the edges of the alley.

We preferred alleys to streets. If there were two ways to go to school and we had to choose between a street and an alley, we'd always choose the alley.

The alleys of my youth were a second home.

And I miss them here in Columbus. They were a part of my education . . . a part of growing up.

Where have they gone? The alleys of my youth. Where are all those boys and girls who made them come alive?

Gone now.

Like the song says: "The answer, my friend, is blowin' in the wind."

Columbus' alleys don't have it. They lack character.

And it is sad.

Letters To The Editor

UCC Watching

To The Editor:

Please be advised that the Board of United Community Council and staff have followed with considerable interest your series of articles on the problems of welfare. It is indeed heartwarming to know that certain portions of our mass media are sensitive to the social concerns of our times, and attempt in a positive and informative manner to advise the populace of the problems inherent in those social conditions.

Welfare, like juvenile delinquency, may be a part of our large growing metropolitan cities which we may never be able to fully eradicate. Helping people to face up to these facts is indeed worthwhile. Your articles have brought deep understanding and greater awareness, and we are hopeful that others reading them will now look at those forced to reside on welfare in a more positive light.

River Plan

To The Editor:

Downtown Columbus could grow if:

The semi-circular Scioto River bow in the downtown area was eliminated partially, or in whole, by straightening the main channel. Thus the Scioto could run just east of the Sandusky Freeway. Or even be relocated to the west of the same freeway.

Central High School could be relocated to better advantage for everyone and release more land to a crucial part of the downtown area.

The Scioto today as it now runs is an expensive luxury. From the confluence with the Olentangy River on the north to the area south of Mound Freeway are hundreds of acres. These important acres could just as well be to the east of the Scioto River instead of to the west behind the natural barrier to growth.

Just an idea . . .

The Grown-Ups' Famous Victory

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

Once upon a time in the country called Wonderfuland, there were wars and riots and unease and disillusionment.

Now Wonderfuland was run by those called The Grown-Ups. And it was clear that The Grown-Ups weren't running it very well.

It was clearest of all to The Children. "Why can't there be peace and equality and justice and kindness?" they said. "Why? Why? Why?"

"Don't ask so many questions," said The Grown-Ups irritably. "You'll understand just as soon as you're Grown-Ups, too."

The Children swore they would never understand. They vowed to tear down this sorry scheme of things entirely. Only they didn't quite know how.

Then along came a shining knight on a white charger who said he would lead them to peace and equality and justice and kindness.

• • •

Some of The Children thought his name was Eugene, some thought it was Bobby. And some came to think it was Teddy. But whatever his name, The Children worshipped The Shining Knight. And they followed him through snows and deserts and valleys and mountains and forests for months and months and thousands and thousands of miles.

At last he led them to the very citadel of The Grown-Ups, a fortress called Chicago.

There were club-carrying guards in white helmets as far as The Children could see. And there were Grown-Ups everywhere, openly wheeling and dealing and maneuvering with public contempt for fairness and justice.

"Fear not," cried The Children. "We shall win the battle, for our cause is just and our hearts are pure."

So the battle began. Some of The Children were brutally clubbed. Some were reviled. And all were appalled by how callously and unfairly The Grown-Ups fought.

"If that's the way they want to fight," said The Children, as the tide ran against them, "we'll fight that way, too."

So some who had talked of kindness threw rocks. And some who had talked of fairness tried to wheel and deal. But they didn't know how. And The Shining Knight went down to defeat quickly and easily — just as The Grown-Ups had known he would all along.

Some of The Children wept. "It's not fair," said a beautiful young girl, her large eyes wet with tears. "It's just not fair."

A few vowed to fight on somehow.

But many grew apathetic and disillusioned. "I guess that's the way life is," they said wearily, "and there's not much we can do about it."

At this, The Grown-Ups patted them on their shoulders and said, "See? We told you that you'd understand when you became Grown-Ups, too."

So, as expected, it was a famous victory for The Grown-Ups. An overwhelmingly easy victory, as expected. All as expected.

And the only odd thing in the glorious hour of triumph was that no one was happy about it. Not the old Grown-Ups nor the new Grown-Ups. No one was happy at all.

All Southeast Gridders Seek Win Formula In Second Try

COUNTY Sports

By JACK WITTENMEIER and BOB WHITMAN

Although all three bowed in their '68 openers last weekend, Canal Winchester's Mike Locke, Hamilton Township's Bruce Burnham and Groveport's Bob Starr aren't about to fall onto their respective swords.

Bitterest pill to swallow, however, was that stuffed down Locke's throat as Mifflin slipped by his Indians, 20-18.

"I MUST HAVE used up 10 crying towels since Friday night," the young C-W mentor reported Monday. "I'm still just sick about it."

Locke had good reason to be sick as his Indian 11 completely dominated play, marching up and down the field against the Cowpunchers and spending most of the evening on the opponent's side of the 50-yd. stripe.

"We beat 'em every place but the scoreboard," Mike continued—pointing out such statistics as a 12-3 second-half edge in first downs as an example.

"BUT THOSE three plays did it (43 yd. interception TD and 85 and 88 yard breakaways by Mifflin QB Doug Richards)," the Winchester mentor lamented.

There were bright spots, however, like the defensive play of Keith Schiller and the pass-catch act of QB Chris Hanners and halfback Chuck Carpenter.

Hanners clicked on 18 of 29 with Carpenter on the receiving end 14 times.

THE INDIANS' inability to put together anv kind of a sustained running attack was listed by Locke as the reason for the heavy aerial barrage.

"It's better than getting beat, 89-0," Mike concluded. "At least this way our kids knew they were in the game."

"But we can't afford to lose any more," continued the C-W grid boss — pointing to tomorrow's visit by Pickerington, the Indians' first Mid-State League playmate this season.

PICKTOWN dropped its opener also (16-0 to New Albany). "Our scout tells us they're a good sized team with a good quarterback," says Locke.

"They run from wing-T, pro set and tight-T formations and passed 80 per cent of the time against New Albany. Of course, that might have been because they couldn't run the ball."

Locke, who looks for a 5-4 defensive alignment, concluded, "They'll have to take away our passing to beat us."

GUARD-linebacker Keith Babbert (bad ankle) is listed as "very questionable" for C-W's loop opener with halfback-linebacker Gary Kemmerling (scored two of three TDs vs Mifflin) figured for only "limited service." The latter is slowed with a knee injury.

HAMILTON TWP.

"WE'RE NOT junking anything. It's just a matter of tightening up the loose ends."

So says Ranger football coach Bruce Burnham of H-T's date tomorrow night at Grandview.

The "loose ends" would appear to be ball handling (H-T fumbled three times in 22-0 loss to Fairfield Union) and cutting down on penalties.

"WE GOT hit for 55 yds. in penalties in the first quarter and just lost our momentum after that," says Burnham.

All told, the Rangers were saddled with 150 yds. in red-flag step-offs and lost out in the total yardage battle, 250 to 185 (all but 15 rushing).

F-U also did a top-notch defensive job on Hamilton's number one offensive threat — fullback Gary Topping. "They keyed on him all night with three and four men," Burnham related.

HELPING TO take up the slack with Topping boxed in was halfback Jim Gorczyca who totaled 68 rushing yards — over and above an additional 70 yds. nullified by penalties.

Most costly of the latter was a 40-yd. TD scamper which was negated.

Brightest spots were the blocking of soph tackle Mike Blair and the defensive work of junior tackle Larry Jones.

BURNHAM also inducted four Rangers into his "110 Percent Club (outstanding effort during practice and in ball game) last week — halfbacks Gorczyca and John Cunningham and defensive ends Dick Coogan and Gene Grubb.

Bruce sees Grandview as a club with "an offense similar to Fairfield Union's (I formation and pro set with split ends and flanker backs and the emphasis on rollout passing)."

The Bobcats put the ball in the air 21 times against Reynoldsburg last weekend (lost 30-6) but managed only 34 net yards (plus 82 more rushing).

"THEY'VE ALSO got a 195-lb. fullback to keep you honest," Burnham adds. "He's got good speed and must be stopped."

The H-T mentor, who sees his Rangers outweighed by the 'Cats, adds that Grandview stresses spreading out their opponent's secondary.

"Defensively, they used a six-man front with the linebackers in close against Reynoldsburg," Bruce continues. "But I look for them to switch to a 5-4 for us."

ONLY RANGER on the disabled list is quarterback Bob Koontz who suffered a shoulder separation in practice last week and is out for four-to-six weeks.

Jerry Topping is currently quarterbacking the club.

GROVEPORT

Bob Starr is looking for better things to come out of his Groveport football camp but feels that toughies on the first two Friday nights of the season won't help matters very much.

THE CRUISERS bowed on opening night (26-6) to West Jefferson, but managed to fashion a fairly decent offense that netted over 200 yards and showed a 7-of-14 passing act by QB Mark Boyer.

In fact, the lone score came on a 15-yard shot to Stan Jacklin in the third period.

But things figure to be a bit rougher tomorrow when rugged Reynoldsburg invades on the heels of a 30-6 win over Grandview.

"THEY'RE AN awfully big team and one of the best teams in the area," notes Starr. "We aren't going to be able to make the mistakes we did against West Jefferson and stay alive."

Bob feels that the men who will have the work cut out for them are linemen Don Stokes (200-T) and Forest Jackson (175-T). They will have to combat 275 and 250 pound Raider tackles.

He also thinks that Mike Davis, a hard-running senior halfback, will have to be turned-off in order to contain the offense.

"THEY DON'T do anything fancy but they execute real well," Starr says.

"Right now, we lack consistency on both offense and defense. When we get that I think that we can win a few games because we have the material.

"Against West Jeff we held well for a few sets of downs and then allowed them to spring the long one on us."

ONLY OTHER area game tomorrow finds Teays Valley (0-1, a 69-12 loser to Wehrle Friday) traveling to Circleville (0-1, 26-24 loser to Grove City).

JIM MURRAY

Joe Resigns As 'Saint'

It was sportswriter Bob Broeg who first surveyed Joe DiMaggio in the chorus-girl livery of Charley Finley's Athletics—white shoes, green sleeves, gold stripes, white hat — and allowed dryly:

"Seeing Joe in that is like seeing Santa Claus in a purple bikini."

THE WRITER Charlie Einstein suggested the team be re-christened "Charley's Aunts."

MURRAY

Another columnist suggested they dust off the old line, "What's a nice girl like you doing in a place like this?" and apply it to Joe in the Oakland locker room.

The implication was, Joe was playing the piano downstairs in the waterfront dance hall.

FOR THE baseball purist, this is like stoning a saint, painting black eyes on the Mona Lisa, putting cigarette ads over the Sistine Chapel, wrapping fish in a Vermeer.

Like catching a statue in the park smoking or the Queen Mother playing darts in a pub in Soho.

I don't suppose anybody ever played the game of Baseball with the pure grace and style of Joseph Paul DiMaggio.

HE EXCELLED at the game with the kind of bored, disdainful perfection of a fencing master beset by clods, almost as if he were good in spite of himself.

"He was like a dowager distributing baskets to the poor," the late Tom Meany once told me. "He never looked like he was even SWEATING."

He was aristocracy on and off the field. He not only never got gravy on his tie, he never even got dirt on his uniform.

HE WAS an idol of the day of the magnitude of Charles Lindbergh — aloof, godlike.

He never caught fly balls like a guy falling through a skylight. He was THERE when the ball came down.

He stood at the plate as easily and naturally as a guy watching a sunset.

HISTORIANS swear he went five years once without hitting anything but a line drive. Some of his hits went through the infield but many went through the infielders.

Joe DiMaggio played baseball the way a fish swims, a bird flies or a lion bites. If anybody seemed suited to his environment it was J. P. DiMaggio.

And yet Joe DiMaggio had ulcers. Joe DiMaggio got gray before he was 35.

THE PRESSURE he never let anyone see would have broken windows for miles around if he ever let it out.

He would get the bends if he left the locker room too early, if he didn't adjust to different pressures on his way back to the street or Toots Shor's.

All New York expected of him was an annual Triple Crown, a pennant, world's championship, impeccable behavior on and off the field.

HE WAS A captive of his genius and like all geniuses—the gift of God had a "Return in 60 days if not satisfied" [illegible]

Joe [illegible] Baseball like a guy getting a parole. No one ever yelled, "Ya, bum, ya!" at Joe DiMaggio. That was the trouble.

He was an Untouchable, a holy man.

AS A RESULT, he couldn't wait to leave and he fled to where he could be "Hey, you" or "You're away, you hacker" or even "Mr. DiMaggio."

Baseball dismissed him as "too aloof." They took loud-mouthed banjo hitters for managers, sweet-talking salesmen for front office.

JOE DIMAGGIO came to a personal decision this year. The statue left the pedestal, the portrait climbed down from the frame. He put the halo on backwards.

He is sick of being an institution, the prisoner of his reputation.

Charley O. Finley asked him to join the Oakland A's and all baseball protested.

FINLEY IS A brawling, shoot-from-the-hip type of front office competitor, the kind of guy who realizes even the Emperor goes to the bathroom.

And then there were, of course — ugh! — THOSE UNIFORMS! Joe Dimaggio would NEVER climb into one of those!

Well, Joe fooled everybody with a nice neat bunt along the third-base line.

HE ACCEPTED Finley's offer and, instead of climbing into the kind of uniform you can put a carnation in every day, he put on Finley's circus suit and started to teach kids how to bat.

Joe resigned as saint.

PIN NEWS

Keglers' Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

While your columnist is on vacation — here are words of wisdom from Byron Schoeman:

"TV bowling matches can be enjoyed an infinite measure more if you will pay heed to the ball at the right time. 'Keep your eye on the ball' has become synonymous with bowling and golf.

IN MOST instances, we agree with this sage advice. But there is, definitely, one occasion when it is not applicable. And by refusing to follow its brisk command, the average bowler can improve his average several points.

"The occasion to which we refer is when the bowler sheds the role of player and becomes a TV-match spectator.

"Those of us who have spent even an hour at any important event know the average spectator has eyes only for the balls which the stars send speeding down the lanes.

"WE WOULD be the last to deny that the sight of a perfectly executed pocket hit is a thrill. However, for at least part of the time during a TV match, the spectator should keep his eye on the player if he really desires to enjoy the match better, or improve his own game.

"The spectator should be objective, and observe how the kegler faces the pins; when he places his fingers (and how many) in the ball holes; from what spot and in what position he starts his delivery; the way the hand and arm are employed in starting the backswing; how he goes to the line on his approach; how he breaks his wrist in turning the ball just before releasing it, and on what board (approximately); whether he looks at a spot on the lane or the pins, or both; over what arrow (approximately) his ball rolls; how his foot slides or stops abruptly at the foul line when the ball is released; the follow-through (!) and, finally, any eccentricities, such as body English.

"In order to shoot a creditable score, a bowler must have a mental image of the proper fundamentals. Where else than at a TV match (or tourney) can the average bowler find better examples from which to draw this mental picture?

"BE A scientific watcher. You are certain to absorb impressions of timing and rhythm which will be beneficial.

"Stars use stances which are adapted to their particular statues, advantages and likings. Watch them and you will see unorthodox form. That's a warning to be natural — feel natural on the approach.

"We do not say that all this will make a topnotch bowler out of you. But we do declare you will get a great deal more out of a TV match."

Negro Clergy Plan Gets Coordinator

The first step in putting a "Mandate for White Christians" into operation has been taken by the Board of Trustees of the Ohio Conference of the United Church of Christ.

Conference offices are located at 41 Croswell Rd.

The board has approved hiring Lima, Ohio resident Hiram Maddox to coordinate the program. He will begin Sept. 15.

The Mandate, designed to support Negro churches and clergy, was approved by the Ohio Conference at its annual meeting in May.

Maddox, 47, has been in the construction business since 1949. He decided to leave the business world because of his concern for the black community.

Maddox's initial efforts will be aimed at assisting Negro pastors who must supplement their incomes by employment in other fields to give fulltime leadership to their churches. The program also seeks to support black churches in providing more effective leadership in their communities.

The program will be funded through gifts from individuals and churches, support from the National Committee for Racial Justice and offerings planned this fall in United Church congregations.

South, M-F, Mohawk Form Winning City 'Threesome'

By JACK WITTENMEIER
and
BOB WHITMAN

Bob Jackson's Bulldogs never got started and Jim Harper's Red Devils almost didn't finish but both Southside City League entries stashed away opening victories last weekend.

Jittery, butter-fingered South slipped past Northland, 6-0, to take a one-game jump on the CL lineup while Marion-Franklin held on for dear life in a wild 'n woolly 38-32 cliff-hanger over DeSales.

FRANK HOWE'S Vikings actually outdid South in the statistical side (333 to 210, 159 rushing) but scrambling Reb quarterback Les Payne rambled to paydirt for the only statistic which counted.

"We've won the statistical battle before and lost the ball game," remarked Jackson. "I'd rather have them this way."

Eleven fumbles marred play — Northland's seven (one on South's five) showing the way. The Vikings also had a TD nullified on an illegal procedure call.

"WE FUMBLED twice inside their 20," Jackson groaned, "besides taking 70 yards in penalties. We just couldn't get untracked."

The Bulldog veteran, who added that his Bulldogs "just weren't together offensively or defensively," passed a warning on to fellow CL playmates who still have Northland left to hurdle:

"They (Northland) won't finish at the bottom of the barrel. We were lucky to get out alive."

BESIDES PAYNE, who did his "usual good job," Jackson credited the play of tackle Don Caldwell (14 solo tackles), linebacker Gary Blackburn, Paul McCamery (defensive interior) and punter Jerry Driggs (seven boots for 37.4 avg.).

Jackson's Bulldogs literally step out of the frying pan into the fire tomorrow — journeying to Upper Arlington, an 89-0 winner over hapless Pleasant View last weekend.

"They may lack a few of the names from last year's state champions but I can't see much difference other than that," Jackson claims.

"IT'S THE same old balanced attack — the power sweep, power off-tackle and fullback straight ahead. To win, you stop Arlington — not just one man," the Reb grid boss warns.

Bob sees little relief in sight defensively from the Bears' gaming 5-4 alignment.

"They're not quite as big as last year but they're strong and aggressive with lots of hustle," Jackson concluded.

MARION-FRANKLIN

M-F's MARTY Donley spoiled DeSales "Mission Impossible" ending to Friday's opener.

Donley's second interception of the evening on the final play of the game with the Stallions trampling around the Devil 20 saved many a red face in the Koebel Rd. camp.

DeSales trailed 32-6 when they got their momentum going with a kickoff return TD which set off a 20-point final period barrage.

"THEN THEY blocked a punt and we got the penalty bug and just about blew it," reported Harper, still fretting over 80 yds. worth of final stanza penalties.

DeSales actually trimmed the margin to six points with three minutes to play and they took over again as the Devils fumbled at their own 40 on the first play after the kickoff.

A 15-yd. penalty moved the ball close to the 20 and set the stage for Donley's heroics.

"WE WERE our own worst enemy," moaned Harper. "We'll definitely have to cut down on our mistakes. We just can't afford to ever let a club get that kind of momentum again."

On the brighter side, Harper was "well pleased with our inside game. After our South game last year, we wanted to make sure we had a power game to go along with our outside stuff."

In the statistical department, M-F fell just 23 yards short of the 500 yd. total offensive mark — piling up 373 rushing yards and 104 more in the air while limiting the Stallions to 180 (total).

BESIDES game-saver Donley, Harper credited flanker back Rick Austin (174 yds. in 16 carries), running back Bill Harris (close to 150 rushing yds., including 80-yd. TD on first play of game) and QB Lloyd Ball (seven of 10 passes for 120 yds., impressive in other departments) with top efforts vs DeSales.

It doesn't figure the Devils will be able to afford a 20-point letdown vs a tough Lancaster crew tomorrow.

The Gales, who trampled Walnut Ridge (40-6) last weekend show a power 'T' attack offensively and a rugged 5-4 Oklahoma defensively.

"MUST-STOP" qualities figure to be off-tackle and outside slants (particularly halfback Joe DeFillippo) and "enough trapping up the middle to keep you honest," according to Harper.

As to the Gales ability to pass, the M-F mentor is uncertain. "They didn't have to pass against Walnut Ridge. It was strictly power football all the way."

In their last meeting (1966), Lancaster stopped the Devils, 24-14.

MOHAWK

IN WHAT could shape into a new area rivalry, Mohawk—coming off a 20-16 win over Franklin Heights—is matched with neighbor Wehrle, who whipped Teays Valley, 69-12.

This will be the first varsity action between the two although Mohawk won a reserve scrap last season, 16-6. Both are also taking part in their respective leagues for the first time this year — Mohawk in the City and Wehrle in the Catholic.

But firsts do not end on that note as Wehrle will be coming off a first varsity grid win and Mohawk springing from its first 11th hour triumph as Sam Hancock bulled over from the two for the winning score with 30 seconds showing Friday at F-H.

MOHAWK'S John Butler singled out standout play from quarterback Lew Hale for his 209 passing yards (including a 40-yd. TD strike and a 50-yd. shot that set up the final score).

But John saved his biggest praise for a couple of pint-sized scrappers — Steve Saul (130, center) and Ron Jones (125, safety).

"Both of these boys refused to be pushed around and gave us a real fine game. It seemed that the smallest kids on the team rose to the occasion."

IN THE tight win over Franklin Heights, Butler felt that the picking off of two passes and recovering of one fumble helped set the story in Mohawk's direction.

"The first half was all Franklin Heights and they had a 16-0 lead at one time. But our kids didn't quit and that has been typical of them.

Looking to Wehrle, John [illegible] "They are a real well-coached ball club which does a lot of sweeping and countering back. We'll have [illegible] size on them but they're fairly quick."

CITY Sports

Groveport To Play At Junior High Site

Groveport-Madison will inaugurate its new football field tomorrow night as the Crusaders stage their '68 home opener against Reynoldsburg.

The new field is located at Madison Junior High School (4475 S. Hamilton Rd., just south of Williams Rd. and adjacent to the Eastland Joint Vocational School).

Madison Superintendent Phil Williams reports there is "nearly unlimited" parking space for fans with lots at both Madison Junior High and Eastland Vocational being used.

INDIAN TD — Mohawk halfback Earl Hines (22) squirms loose from the grasp of two would-be Franklin Heights tacklers enroute to 19-yard end-sweep touchdown run Friday. Indians' last-minute tally earned comeback 20-16 victory over Falcons.

SSY Fetes Softball Champs, Sportsmen

Championship teams and Sportsmanship winners in the 1968 South Side YMCA Inter-Church Softball program were recently honored at the Hoover Y-Park.

Here's the rundown (by league):

JUNIOR LEAGUE

UNDER THE watchful eye of coach Chet Emrich, Emmanuel Lutheran picked off the loop title with a 6-0 unblemished season.

The team Sportsmanship Award went to the St. Leo squad (coached by Charlie Kaiser). Individual team sportsmanship awards went to Larry Harper (Emmanuel Lutheran), Gary Casey (Lockbourne Baptist), Lonnie Wallace (Washington Avenue United Methodist), Jeff Polling (Christ Methodist), Bob Elflein (St. Leo), Donald Gaal (Southwood Church of Christ) and Ron Endorle (Ohio Avenue United Methodist).

GIRLS' LEAGUE

AN UNDEFEATED season is the dream of every coach but Southwood Church of Christ's Alice Nolan managed the feat in her coaching debut, guiding the team to a 7-0 mark (and the tourney championship with a 3-0 record).

South Congregational (coached by Janet Arledge) won the team Sportsmanship award.

Individual sportsmanship winners were Cheryl Cripe (Washington Avenue United Methodist), Debbie Barr (Emmanuel Lutheran Two), Jean Sanders (Thurman Avenue Methodist), Diana Ellis (Emmanuel Lutheran One), Marjorie Nolan (Southwood Church of Christ), Mariam Reynolds (Livingston Methodist), Becky Arledge (S. Congregational) and Kim Demmler (Ohio Avenue United Methodist).

INTERMEDIATE BOYS

WRAPPING up their second straight championship (under the guidance of coach Charles Swisher) was Thurman Avenue Methodist. The team also took tourney honors.

SENIOR SLO-PITCH

ST. PAUL Lutheran edged Emmanuel Lutheran, 5-4, in a round playoff to pick up the league title.

Emmanuel won the first round with a 3-1 mark and the two teams closed second round play with identical 3-1 records — St. Paul winning the second-round playoff by forfeit.

In a close vote for team Sportsmanship honors, the South Side Y team won.

INDIVIDUAL sportsmanship winners were: Chet Emrich (Emmanual Lutheran), Ron Cooper (St. Paul Lutheran), Ken Dotson (St. Paul United), Don Pearsall (Grace Lutheran) and Herb Diebert (SSYMCA).

6 Writers On Tap For Conclave Here

The Columbus Writers Club will hold its annual conference Saturday, Sept. 21, at the Southern Hotel, beginning at 9 a.m.

Six outstanding personalities in the field of writing will share their experience and know-how with the audience.

Joan Kinne, Merrill Publishing Company social studies editor, will discuss current trends in textbook writing

Novelist Duncan Thorp, who wrote "Thanks, Yer Honor" and "Only Akiko," will talk about novel writing.

Doral Chenoweth, playwright and public relations director, will speak on "My Life Among the Ping Pong Ball Manufacturers."

Alvin Epstein of Baltimore, Md., will speak on "The Twelve Elements of Humor."

Reservations must be in by Sept. 17. Information is available from Mrs. Richard W. Parkinson, 7344 E. Rich St., Reynoldsburg.

Summer Months Busy For Groveport Police

The police activity report issued by Chief Al Whipple to the Village of Groveport and the Madison Township Trustees for the eight-week period ending Aug. 22 shows increased activity with a total of 185 reports taken.

In the village, these included one burglary, three larcenies and two forgeries. The township reports included five burglaries, 30 larcenies, three auto thefts, three forgeries, four sex crimes and one manslaughter.

DURING THE period, there were 44 adult traffic arrests in Groveport and one less in the township. Thirteen of the 22 adult criminal arrests were made in Groveport.

One juvenile was arrested on a traffic charge in Groveport and criminal charges made against 10 juveniles in both the village and the township.

Fourteen of the 17 accidents resulting in bodily injury occurred in the township and 19 of the 26 accidents with property damage also took place outside of Groveport.

ACCORDING TO the report, cruiser mileage for the period totaled 15,161.

Whipple expressed no particular alarm about the rise in action requiring police attention, stating such a hike is typical of that of mid-summer months.

THE GADABOUT

By Priscilla Lenox 444-1051

Last week we began the account of a European trip taken by six Columbusites, and so today we begin with their reactions and experiences in Venice, Italy. The six are Mr. and Mrs. Verlin Gregory, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schwartz and Mr. and Mrs. Carl McCloud.

In Venice, they were warned of pickpockets and learned to be leery of the pigeons. Guides warn tourists of the former, but it takes individual alertness to anticipate the pigeons, as Alberta discovered when a pigeon unexpectedly snatched an earring she was wearing. Not finding it tasty, he abandoned it, luckily. Tourists find the 9 a.m. descent of pigeons on St. Mark's Square quite a spectacle, as the "inner-pigeon" sounds the breakfast alarm.

The 500 bridges criss-crossing the Venetian canal system are jammed with shops and factories, which was another reminder of space-conscious Europe. Though the sight of boated funeral and wedding parties seemed normal in Venice, the Midwesterners were at first surprised to see fireboats, but quickly realized they were very necessary. The traditional gondola ride was taken, in typical musical style.

Find Spain Friendly

Switzerland and Spain were the two favorite countries visited . . . in the former country, they were delighted to have an "almost American meal," and in Spain, the people were friendlier.

While in Switzerland, Verlin had a chance to try his luck at yodeling, which provided amusement to his relatives and the rest of the touring party.

In Portugal, the tourists saw women using the creeks to do the family laundry in a most primitive fashion. And, since the Portugese men have always been mariners, it was natural the localites were able to watch a fish auction.

Handiwork Sold

Agriculture is practically non-existent in much of the barren land, so the women augment family incomes by beautiful handiwork sold to tourists.

Oddities noted were the dog-sized donkeys and the manner in which natives carried heavy loads on their heads. For their final day in Portugal, the six had a "typical" meal which consisted of cold tomato soup, cubed bread and mangoes, hard rolls and a whole roasted lamb.

The tour guide was outstanding, but this is not his story, so we'll only mention that Mrs. Gregory enjoyed calling a lady friend of his in Cleveland and talking to her. As with most European travelers, the verdict was "it's nice to visit, but how nice it is to be back home."

Circle To Meet

Evelyn Hare Circle, Oakwood United Methodist Church, will meet at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 17, in the home of Miss Evelyn Cassidy, 863 Lockbourne Rd.

Wedded happiness wishes are appropriate for Beth Jacks and Richard Edwards, who were married in the Oakwood United Methodist Church, Thursday, Aug. 29. Cindy Jacks, Beth's sister, will have little trouble remembering the date, as it was her 16th birthday.

Birthdays Remembered

Mid-September means "birthday" to these young residents of the area . . . Karen Dillon, Quonia Evans, Karen Moore, Keith Speakman, Danny Copley, Mathew Burgess, Debbie Jarrell, Elizabeth Loar, Patricia Tolliver, Gina Hellenthal, Billie Newell, Terry Erwin, Tina Tabor and Lisa Baughman.

Teens with natal days approaching include James Adams, Brenda Blair and Kathy Held.

Those who have observed the world's activities a lot longer and who have an anniversary of their birthdate to celebrate are these: Carolyn Farrar, Winnie Minor, Rose Di Gola, Eileen Waidner, Margaret Ellifritz, Donna Schmidt, Howard Henry Jr., Ann Whalen, Paul Fisher, Ray Ellis, Barbara Naegele, Jolan Gerstner, Lucy Curmode, Francis Camell, Lucy Mewing and Carla Peer.

Wedding anniversaries to be remembered this week are those of Helen and Francis Spotts, Nan and Jim Buchan, Maxine and "Doc" Crary, Frances and Bill Pauhus, Janet and John Workmaster and Margaret and Michael Stralecki.

Golden Anniversary Noted

Belated 50th anniversary greetings to Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Merrill, who reached this milestone Aug. 17. The former residents now live in Millersport.

Hodge-podge hop-scotch . . . The WSCS of the Gates-Fourth United Methodist Church (Gates and Fourth Streets) will hold a rummage sale Thursday, Sept. 19, and Friday, Sept. 20. Lunch will be served all day long.

The men of Emmanuel Luther Church will hold a meeting at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 17.

Laurel Court No. 40, Order of the Amaranth, will meet at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Sept. 16, at the K of P Hall, 697 S. High. St.

The social meeting of the Schiller Park Golden Age Club will be held at noon, Tuesday, Sept. 17.

Fall Festival Set

The Harmony Glee Club Fall Festival will be Saturday, Sept. 14, and Sunday, Sept. 15. Serving of the Saturday Sausage Dinner will begin at 3 p.m., with tickets $1.00. A dance will be held from 9 to 12, Saturday evening. Sunday, Sept. 15, a roast beef dinner, $1.85, will be served from noon until evening.

The South Side YMCA Mothers Club will visit the Fenton Glass Co. in Williamstown, W. Va., Tuesday, Sept. 17.

Ruth Circle, Ohio Avenue United Methodist Church, will hold a noon dessert luncheon, Tuesday, Sept. 17, while the Dorcas Circle will meet at 7:30 p.m. the same day.

The Serv 'n' Sews of St. Paul's United Church of Christ will meet at 9:30 a.m., Monday, Sept. 16.

Wesner at Rally

Ellis Wesner, former minister of the Southwood Church of Christ, is in charge of the Round Lake Men's Rally, to be held Friday, Sept. 13 and Saturday, Sept. 14. A youth retreat will be held at the South Side "Y" Park on the same dates.

Saturday, Sept. 14 is quite important to Judith Douglas, 595 Robinwood Ave. and Richard Skeen, 1242 S. Champion Ave., who will wed on that date. Also exchanging Sept. 14 vows will be Carolyn Falco, 1509 Meadow Rd. and James Schwochow, 1178 Berkeley Rd.

A 6:30 p.m. potluck supper will be held at the Southwood Church of Christ, Thursday, Sept. 12, honoring the new pastor of the church, Rev. W. H. Mills, and his family.

Sunday, Sept. 15, the 60th anniversary celebration of the church will be observed, and all interested persons are invited to attend.

Potluck Set

Activities at the Thurman Avenue United Methodist Church this week are: general meeting of the WSCS, Thursday, Sept. 12 at 7:30 p.m.; commencement of a dance class, 9:30 to 12, Saturday, Sept. 14, and Methodist Men's potluck supper, Mon., Sept. 16, at 6 p.m.

IS DECORATED

Sgt. Michael L. Blake, right, is pictured receiving the Air Medal at Phan Rang AB, Vietnam. He was cited for his outstanding airmanship and courage as a C-123 loadmaster on successful and important missions under hazardous conditions. The sergeant, son of Mrs. Nellie E. Blake, 2143 Watkins Rd., is a graduate of Marion-Franklin High School.

Reese Mission Holding Services

The Reese Union Gospel Mission Church has announced three weekly services.

According to the pastor, the Rev. Francis Hood, Sunday School is held at 10 on Sunday with Sunday Worship at 7:30 p.m. and Wednesday Prayer Meeting at 7:30 p.m.

WATKINS

The staff will be introduced when the Watkins Elementary PTA holds its first meeting of the year at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 17. Grade level meetings will also be held.

German Village U.S.A.

VISIT THE OLD WORLD HERE IN COLUMBUS . . .

Columbus Firsts

Columbus was the first village to be planned and developed in the United States. It was instigated under legislation created while the capital was in Zanesville.

German Village is the first German Village to be planned and deevloped in the United States. Most of the owners grew up in German Village, but about 5% live elsewhere. Shopkeepers and business owners are mostly of German extraction.

(Wisconsin is made up of Old World colonies that grew as immigration brought them into a community due to a language barrier. Berlin, Wisconsin was originally founded by German emigrants. So it was with South Columbus.

German Culture And History

German Village recreates Old World culture, notably in architecture, carpentry, and building. Members of The Association and Societies and others formed to recreate Old World Culture often reclaim their own Heritage and family crests, heraldry and memorabilia for Reclamation programs. "Over 35% of U.S. settlers are of German extraction," Mr. Schully, co-owner of Old World Bazaar, said. They rank high in patented inventions in mechanized and machine power operated vehicles. One invented the automobile starter and auto battery while another in brickmaking carried Ohio products throughout the world in the late 1800's.

They played a part in Ohio's roadbuilding and engineering fields that led to formation of Ohio Roads Federation and still later highway fund subsidizing.

German brewmasters produced products for our government and local monies that developed towns and villages into cities.

THE GADABOUT

By Priscilla Lenox 444-1051

Last week we began the account of a European trip taken by six Columbusites, and so today we begin with their reactions and experiences in Venice, Italy. The six are Mr. and Mrs. Verlin Gregory, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schwartz and Mr. and Mrs. Carl McCloud.

In Venice, they were warned of pickpockets and learned to be leery of the pigeons. Guides warn tourists of the former, but it takes individual alertness to anticipate the pigeons, as Alberta discovered when a pigeon unexpectedly snatched an earring she was wearing. Not finding it tasty, he abandoned it, luckily. Tourists find the 9 a.m. descent of pigeons on St. Mark's Square quite a spectacle, as the "inner-pigeon" sounds the breakfast alarm.

The 500 bridges criss-crossing the Venetian canal system are jammed with shops and factories, which was another reminder of space-conscious Europe. Though the sight of boated funeral and wedding parties seemed normal in Venice, the Midwesterners were at first surprised to see fireboats, but quickly realized they were very necessary. The traditional gondola ride was taken, in typical musical style.

Find Spain Friendly

Switzerland and Spain were the two favorite countries visited . . . in the former country, they were delighted to have an "almost American meal," and in Spain, the people were friendlier.

While in Switzerland, Verlin had a chance to try his luck at yodeling, which provided amusement to his relatives and the rest of the touring party.

In Portugal, the tourists saw women using the creeks to do the family laundry in a most primitive fashion. And, since the Portugese men have always been mariners, it was natural the localites were able to watch a fish auction.

Handiwork Sold

Agriculture is practically non-existent in much of the barren land, so the women augment family incomes by beautiful handiwork sold to tourists.

Oddities noted were the dog-sized donkeys and the manner in which natives carried heavy loads on their heads. For their final day in Portugal, the six had a "typical" meal which consisted of cold tomato soup, cubed bread and mangoes, hard rolls and a whole roasted lamb.

The tour guide was outstanding, but this is not his story, so we'll only mention that Mrs. Gregory enjoyed calling a lady friend of his in Cleveland and talking to her. As with most European travelers, the verdict was "it's nice to visit, but how nice it is to be back home."

Circle To Meet

Evelyn Hare Circle, Oakwood United Methodist Church, will meet at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 17, in the home of Miss Evelyn Cassidy, 863 Lockbourne Rd.

Wedded happiness wishes are appropriate for Beth Jacks and Richard Sowards, who were married in the Oakwood United Methodist Church, Thursday, Aug. 29. Cindy Jacks, Beth's sister, will have little trouble remembering the date, as it was her 16th birthday.

Birthdays Remembered

Mid-September means "birthday" to these young residents of the area . . . Karen Dillon, Quonia Evans, Karen Moore, Keith Speakman, Danny Copley, Mathew Burgess, Debbie Jarrell, Elizabeth Loar, Patricia Tolliver, Gina Hellenthal, Billie Newell, Terry Erwin, Tina Tabor and Lisa Baughman.

Teens with natal days approaching include James Adams, Brenda Blair and Kathy Held.

Those who have observed the world's activities a lot longer and who have an anniversary of their birthdate to celebrate are these: Carolyn Farrar, Winnie Minor, Rose Di Goia, Eileen Waldner, Margaret Ellifritz, Donna Schmidt, Howard Henry Jr., Ann Whalen, Paul Fisher, Ray Ellis, Barbara Naegele, Jolan Gerstner, Lucy Curmode, Francis Camell, Lucy Mewing and Carla Peer.

Wedding anniversaries to be remembered this week are those of Helen and Francis Spotts, Nan and Jim Buchan, Maxine and "Doc" Crary, Frances and Bill Pauhus, Janet and John Workmaster and Margaret and Michael Stralecki.

Golden Anniversary Noted

Belated 50th anniversary greetings to Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Merrill, who reached this milestone Aug. 17. The former residents now live in Millersport.

Hodge-podge hop-scotch . . . The WSCS of the Gates-Fourth United Methodist Church (Gates and Fourth Streets) will hold a rummage sale Thursday, Sept. 19, and Friday, Sept. 20. Lunch will be served all day long.

The men of Emmanuel Luther Church will hold a meeting at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 17.

Laurel Court No. 40, Order of the Amaranth, will meet at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Sept. 16, at the K of P Hall, 697 S. High. St.

The social meeting of the Schiller Park Golden Age Club will be held at noon, Tuesday, Sept. 17.

German Village U.S.A.

VISIT THE OLD WORLD HERE IN COLUMBUS . . .

Columbus Firsts

Columbus was the first village to be planned and developed in the United States. It was instigated under legislation created while the capital was in Zanesville.

German Village is the first German Village to be planned and deevloped in the United States. Most of the owners grew up in German Village, but about 5% live elsewhere. Shopkeepers and business owners are mostly of German extraction.

(Wisconsin is made up of Old World colonies that grew as immigration brought them into a community due to a language barrier. Berlin, Wisconsin was originally founded by German emigrants. So it was with South Columbus.

German Culture And History

German Village recreates Old World culture, notably in architecture, carpentry, and building. Members of The Association and Societies and others formed to recreate Old World Culture often reclaim their own Heritage and family crests, heraldry and memorabilia for Reclamation programs. "Over 35% of U.S. settlers are of German extraction," Mr. Schully, co-owner of Old World Bazaar, said. They rank high in patented inventions in mechanized and machine power operated vehicles. One invented the automobile starter and auto battery while another in brickmaking carried Ohio products throughout the world in the late 1800's.

They played a part in Ohio's roadbuilding and engineering fields that led to formation of Ohio Roads Federation and still later highway fund subsidizing.

German brewmasters produced products for our government and local monies that developed towns and villages into cities.

HARMON FOOTBALL FORECAST

'Highlights'

By HARMON

It's back to the forecasting "hot-seat" after eight months of relative peace enjoying the other unpredictables in basketball, hockey, baseball, and golf. However, it's really a delightful hot seat for what is becoming the King of this country's sports program.

So here's the opening look at football, '68:

IN THE first nationally televised college game of the season, Southeast Conference champ Tennessee, a two-point loser to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl and rated the Number Two football team in the land last fall, takes on 14th-ranked Georgia. The Bulldogs were upset in last year's Liberty Bowl game by North Carolina State.

And picking the winner in this big one — where both teams are apparently looking for quarterbacks — is a real toughie. Quietly . . . Tennessee over Georgia by one point.

Another biggie pits 1967's "almost" only undefeated football team, Wyoming (beaten only in the Sugar Bowl), against Big Eight power, Nebraska. The Huskers ranked 32nd in the country last fall after a 6-4 season while the Cowboys were rated 18th.

IN SPITE of much muscle flexing in Lincoln (and the possibility of losing a subscriber) plus the sight of crying towels flying in from Laramie, we're going to go with a real sleeper: Wyoming over Nebraska by a touchdown.

High-scoring Houston, 19th in the final ratings last year, will be a 22-point winner over Tulane. Liberty Bowl champion North Carolina State, No. 17 last fall, will trip Wake Forest by 16, while 24th-rated Texas at El Paso (Sun Bowl champ) will run over Santa Barbara by about 44 points.

Elsewhere among the major teams, Buffalo is a three-point choice over Iowa State, and New Mexico State will be seven points too tough for Utah State. Miami of Ohio will whip Xavier by 11 points, and Kent State will just nip Dayton by one in their '68 opener.

AMONG THE small colleges, top-ranked San Diego State opens with a toughie at home against the University of Texas at Arlington. Arlington was our 12th-ranked small college team last year. The Aztecs of San Diego are favored — but only by six points.

The 1968 NAIA champion, Fairmont State College of Fairmont, W. Va., will be the under-dog against Waynesburg College in Pennsylvania. Fairmont was the only team to beat the high-scoring Yellow Jackets last year, so we're picking Waynesburg to turn things around this year by about 14 points.

Kitsmiller's 'Explosion' Paces CFFL Openers

Paced by spring-schedule "MVP" Ken Ramsey, Kitsmiller Motors highlighted opening action in the Columbus Flag Football League Sunday with a lopsided 69-0 rout of Local 789.

Ramsey scored five touchdowns himself and passed for two others, rushing for 187 yds. and hitting on seven of 11 aerials for 137 yds.

ELSEWHERE, Franklin Sports Center broke up a tight game vs. Bell-Haven Big Red in the final stanza to win, 38-25, while Berwick Party House eked out a TD in the final 10 seconds of play to slip past Bon-Aire Lounge, 12-6.

IN ADDITION to Ramsey's offensive burst, Jay Sheets (2), Keith Fraser, Gene Harper and Dick [illegible] tallied Kitsmiller six-pointers.

Other standouts were Larry Garnett (four receptions for 31 yds.) and Nick Joseph (16 unassisted stops). Wayne Quinlan (two receptions worth 61 yds.) looked best for [illegible].

RANDY WALKER slipped outside for a pair of TDs to pace Franklin's attack (also caught four aerials for 166 yds.).

Dave Frantz (94 rushing yds., one TD) and quarterback Joe Biddle (nine of 19 passes for 244 yds.) also highlighted the victory. Tim Carty, Bob Curtain and Larry Guglielmi tallied other Franklin TDs.

Terry Robb (two receptions worth 55 yds., 61 rushing yards for two TDs) and Paul Hufnagel (rushed for 140 yds., one TD) were sparkplugs for the Big Red.

Bruce Smith tallied the losers' other touchdown.

JAKE SPAHR (rushed for 53 yds.) and Tom Kineline (received four Spahr aerials for 55 yds.) paced Berwick's tight win over Bon-Aire.

Kineline and Jim Hughlette tallied the winners' six-pointers while Roger Middaugh (five receptions for 190 yds., one TD) sparkled for the losers.

SUNDAY'S SCHEDULE
(All games at Wolfe Park)
Local 789 vs. Bon-Aire Lounge (11 a.m.)
Kitsmiller [illegible]
Franklin Spts. vs. Berwick (4 p.m.)

'Fearless' Predictions

Hopefully on the brink of a "best-ever" campaign in the predicting department, the "Fearless One" soared to an opening "19 right, three wrong" account last weekend.

And The Spectator seer, as he so "humbly" points out, was deprived of his first perfect week of forecasting by a bare total of 11 points.

HERE'S THE rundown for week two:

WORTHINGTON AT BROOKHAVEN — These 58 pts. the Cardinals put on the board last weekend should say something to OCC foes (Cards were well into game four last fall when No. 38 was rung up) but Bearcats appear tougher than North. Still . . . Worthington.

DUBLIN AT JONATHAN ALDER — Both elevens won openers last week but we'll stick with Shamrocks. Dublin.

HAMILTON TWP. AT GRANDVIEW — Here's a couple of clubs looking for first win. Should be dandy with Bobcats rating slight edge. Grandview.

GROVE CITY AT FRANKLIN HEIGHTS — Falcons let one slip off hook last week but don't figure to get that same opportunity this time. South-Western rivalry tilt but still . . . G-C.

WHITEHALL AT EASTMOOR — Improved Rams were "tuckered" out last fall but figure to be tougher this time. Hard to pick against 11 with 21-game win skein. Warriors take two-game lead in long-standing neighborhood "head-on." Eastmoor.

MIFFLIN AT WEST JEFFERSON — 'Punchers showed breakaway ability in opener; Riders saddled with penalties. Try . . . West Jeff.

NORTHLAND AT EAST — Howe's Vikings almost held rugged South to standoff last week, should have enough to bounce back vs. Tigers. Northland.

MIAMI TRACE AT PLEASANT VIEW — Panthers licking both physical and pride wounds this week after Arlington shell-shocking. Miami Trace.

REYNOLDSBURG AT GROVEPORT — Raiders should ring up number two — if they can keep eyes off that upcoming OCC schedule. Reynoldsburg.

SOUTH AT ARLINGTON — Don't look for any 59-0 encore. However, Bears should prevail. UA.

WATTERSON AT LINDEN — Eagles haven't forgotten that this one started that downhill slide last fall. On paper, it should be Linden but we'll try . . . Watterson.

MOHAWK VS. WEHRLE (AT CENTRAL) — Wolves breezed last week while Indians sweated profusely. This one should develop into one of those neighborhood tilts. This time, we'll pick . . . Mohawk.

DESALES AT WEST — Maybe Cowboys are for real. If this one's wrong, I'll know for sure. DeSales.

WESTERVILLE AT BIG WALNUT — Wildcats shooting for quite a streak of their own. Should lengthen it here. Westerville.

READY AT NORTH — Knights scored on Eastmoor, Bears couldn't vs. Worthington. Try . . . Ready.

HARTLEY AT WHETSTONE — Hawks don't figure to cough up ball thrice in first three minutes this week and Braves appear to need little more seasoning. Hartley.

PICKERINGTON AT CANAL WINCHESTER — Three "breakaways" killed Indians last week, don't figure to do so again. C-W.

MARION - FRANKLIN AT LANCASTER — Devils will have to harness Gales' outside whirlwinds to succeed. Should be another dandy. M-F.

WALNUT RIDGE AT ZANESVILLE — Blue Devils figure to be superior to Lancaster so Scots could be saddled with long ride home. Zanesville.

Fiji 500's Host Leawood Sunday

The Leawood Raiders, "almost" conquerors of the fabled Little Buckeyes last week, invade the Hilltop Sunday to open BAAL play against the Fighting Fiji 500's on West High's practice field.

Coach Randy Lavender's Eastside club scored only the second TD in seven years on the Little Bucks last weekend at the league preview in Ridgeway, O.

Leawood placed second behind the Little Buckeyes and ahead of host Mt. Victory and Devonshire at the preview.

The Fijis (formerly Mt. Ivy), stand 4-1 in the rivalry between the two clubs to date but are fielding an inexperienced club this season.

The Fiji 500's play a night game at Ridgeway (Sept. 28), visit Devonshire the following week and then battle the Little Buckeyes at home the next week.

Fruit, Dairy Foods Mix Well

Colorful fruits and vegetables are perfect for cool and light summer meals. Fresh produce combined with creamy cottage cheese, or sherbet combined with on its alone, makes meal preparation a snap.

When you combine the creaminess of dairy foods with the tartness and crispness of fruits and vegetables you're bound to have enjoyable eating.

Cottage Cheese 'n Fruit Mold is a good example.

Cottage cheese is molded with a fruit flavored gelatin. Orange juice concentrate and dairy sour cream are also included. Serve the molded cheese gelatin with an assortment of fruits and the entree is complete.

To complete a menu around Cottage Cheese 'n Fruit Mold plan to serve hot crusty bread, butter, spice cupcakes a la mode, and milk.

COTTAGE CHEESE 'N FRUIT MOLD

1 pkg. (6 oz.) lemon flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 can (6 oz.) frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups (1 lb.) cream-style cottage cheese
2 cups (1 pint) dairy sour cream
Orange sections, whole strawberries, avocado crescents, pineapple spears, grapefruit sections, apricot halves

Salad greens
Salad dressing

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add orange juice concentrate and salt; stir to blend. Cool until the mixture begins to thicken.

Meantime, whip cottage cheese until smooth and combine with sour cream. When gelatin has cooled, but not thickened, fold in cottage cheese — sour cream mixture.

Spoon into 6-cup ring mold or 12 individual molds (½ cup size) and chill until firm. To serve, unmold on large salad or cake plate and arrange assorted fresh fruit salad greens around the outside border. Serve with any desired salad dressing.

Makes 12 servings.

WHO'D HAVE BELIEVED THEY'D MAKE IT

SUNDAY AFTERNOON . . . Don Levy, executive vice president of The Union, stands amid empty cartons in what was to be the store's "Street of Shops," the fourth floor of its new building at 130 S. High St. Much of the store still looked this way less than 24 hours before opening.

MONDAY MORNING . . . That's Levy again, and that's the "Street of Shops." An all-night work session got the store finished barely in time for its opening Monday morning. The new location provides The Union with nearly three times the floor space it had in its old N. High Street store.

Frozen Egg Rolls Newest Snack Idea From Chun-King

Chun King has just introduced an exciting group of bite-sized frozen egg rolls to this area. The egg rolls are now available in a choice of four fillings . . . lobster, shrimp, chicken and meat-and-shrimp. These tiny pillows of golden brown crust filled with crisp Oriental vegetables and succulent pieces of shellfish, poultry and meat are one-half ounce each, and come in packages of 12.

The egg rolls are perfect to serve with cocktails, as the appetizer course of a meal, as a main course side-dish, or as a tasty snack. They require no thawing and a minimum of preparation time — only 6 to 10 minutes from freezer to table.

Chun King originated the concept of the bite-sized frozen egg roll a few years ago. Since then, the meat-and-shrimp egg roll, which has been the only one available until now, has met with tremendous success among the nation's housewives. Because of this popularity, the three savory new flavors were developed.

Chun King egg rolls can be oven-heated, pan-fried or deep-fried. The deep frying method takes only 6 minutes and adds an extra measure of golden crispness to these crusty treats.

Each 6-ounce egg roll package contains a packet of hot Chinese-style mustard powder. If the mustard powder is mixed with cold water and the flavor is allowed to develop for 10 minutes, the taste is greatly enhanced. (Simply mix up the mustard before heating the egg rolls, and both will be ready to serve at the same time.) In addition to the mustard condiment, the egg rolls are excellent served plain or with a wide variety of dips and dressings.

Chun King, the nation's leading producer of canned and frozen American-Oriental convenience foods, is one of the R. J. Reynolds Foods lines. Other R. J. Reynolds Foods lines include Hawaiian Punch beverages, Patio Mexican Foods, My-T-Fine puddings and pie fillings, Brer Rabbit New Orleans Molasses, College Inn products, and Vermont Maid Syrup.

Don't Be A Drip, Lady-- Care For Your Coiffure

Just because you like to swim doesn't mean that you have to look like a drip.

And we are talking about your hair. You may be sporting the latest in swim suits but it won't make up for damaged, lusterless locks.

First of all, try to keep your hair protected from the sun. Wear a beach hat if you must.

Over-exposure to the sun's rays robs youthful tresses of their shine just as surely as it burns unprotected skin. The hot sun also dries out the natural oils, leaving hair parched and brittle.

Both salt water and chlorinated water can damage your hair if allowed to remain in it any length of time. The makers of Crystal Clear White Rain suggest combating this problem by bringing your favorite shampoo along with you and sudsing your curls right under the shower after you have taken a dip.

Union Plan Seventeen Show

The Union will break in its brand-new Special Events Center Saturday with a Film Festival of Fashion sponsored by The Union and Seventeen magazine.

Beginning at 1 p.m., the show will feature fashions from the pages of Seventeen with Jean Osborn, Seventeen coordinator, commenting.

"The Rush" will play before the show and Mike Adams of WCOL Radio will be master of ceremonies.

Following the show, the "San Hedron Move" will play in Juniortown on the third floor at 2 p.m. Free Pepsi and potato chips will be served.

Teens attending the show can also look into the Union-Seventeen Beauty Workshop, which will give teens the inside look at all the latest in fashion and beauty. Registration information will be available.

Mixed Styles Now 'Okay' In Furniture

Does furniture have to be all one period or style? The answer used to be "yes," but it isn't any longer. Families are so much on the move to different parts of the country that they find they need furnishings that blend with a variety of homes.

To meet their needs, notes The Better Floors Council, manufacturers of resilient floor coverings, are now offering vinyl asbestos tile designed to blend with a mixed collection of decorating themes.

Some of the favorites among new embossed floor tile patterns are pebble, mosaic and travertine because they provide such a good background for furniture of different periods.

Made principally in off-white and beige tones, these floor coverings are planned for use with contemporary and traditional furnishings, or a mixture of both.

In a predominantly traditional room, the many colors of an Oriental rug take on an added glow when seen against a light tile floor. A woman with a variety of traditional pieces can always feel confident that her furniture will look appropriate in this setting.

A woman with furniture in the modern mood finds that with a neutral floor as background her bright, contemporary colors take on added brilliance. The three-dimensional texture of the floor tile complements the variegated weaves of modern fabrics, adding a new element of interest to the room.

With neutral colors on walls and floors, preferably in light tones, furnishings take on their own personality. The result is a room more pleasing than one that strictly follows the rules of design.

Tots Toys Are Learning Aid

A listless tot may not be suffering from the heat and sun of summer — he may have outgrown his toys!

According to Playskool Research, a child needs and wants to learn while playing. Toys which are too young have no appeal for him, offering no challenge to his imagination.

Toys especially created for his age and his educational development will capture his interest, keeping him an alert, happy child all summer long.

LEUKEMIA SUNDAY NEARS

Sept. 15 is Leukemia Society Sunday and fire stations throughout Franklin County will be used as dropoff centers for the society kits between 1 and 5 p.m. Grandview Heights No. 1 fire truck, owned and recently restored by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Horton is shown—calling attention to the fire stations' use in the drive. Left to right are: Carl Horton, owner of the fire truck; Mayor Joseph Wyman of Grandview; Mrs. Margery Perkins, executive director of the Central Ohio Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America; fireman Morgan Jeffrey; O. Allan Gulker, general campaign chairman; and fireman William S. Moore.

Golden Agers To Show Products Of Hobbies

The 20th Annual Golden Age Hobby Show will open Sept. 20 and will continue through Sept. 22 at the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts, 480 E. Broad St.

Mrs. Herbert Hoffman, 192 N. Drexel, chairman, announced that the Friday program, beginning at 7 p.m., will include remarks by Columbus Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner, greetings from Melvin Dodge, director of the Columbus Recreation Department, and the awarding of grand prizes by Charles Egger, editor of the Columbus Citizen Journal.

The Golden Age Hobby Show is sponsered by the Columbus Recreation Department and is open to all those 60 years of age and older to enter crafts and hobbies for judging. Items accepted must have been made after the entrant was 60 years of age and cannot have been entered in a previous Hobby Show. Categories include art, collections, literature, handicrafts, photography and needlecraft.

Entries will be accepted at the Gallery from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sept. 17 and 18.

Sept. 21 and 22 the show will be open from 1 to 5 p.m.

A coronation tea dance will be held Saturday from 1 to 5 p.m. in Derby Court with the Frankie Bush Orchestra providing music. Nick Clooney, TV personality, will serve as master of ceremonies and crown a king and queen.

Coordinating the show will be Melvin Dodge, Edmund Kuehn, Ardath Lynch and Catherine Gillie.

United Appeal 'FanFair' To Show Funds In Action

More than 60 units of demonstrations, free health testing and exhibits are set for "FanFair," United Appeal's first agency fair, Sunday, Sept. 22, from 2 to 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial.

FanFair, the largest public event ever sponsored by the local UA, is provided free by area businessmen.

FanFair will begin the 1968 UA campaign and will feature actual recipients of services demonstrating to the public the services UA dollars provide for more than 500,000 Franklin Countians each year.

Demonstrations in Vets Exhibition Hall will include: Pottery-making by a cerebral palsy victim; judo, karate and physical fitness exhibitions by the YMCA; Red Cross baby care training for blind girls; chair-caning by a blind man from Goodwill Industries; camping experiences by children — and a raccoon, who attended Community Camp.

Also included will be: A mock day care center set up by UA's day care centers, recruitment of hostesses by USO, a nail-pounding contest with clients at the Vision Center and an activity row by UA's six settlement houses.

A "health lane" will feature free, supervised testing by the Diabetes Association, Epilepsy Association and Hearing and Speech Center.

Entertainment will include a Big Brother-Little Brother duet, folk singing by Red Cross teenage volunteers, the Salvation Army band, Boy Scout Drum and Bugle Corp and Golden Brass Ensemble, YMCA Indian dancing and USO drill team.

Highlighting FanFair will be a Pageant of Services at 3 p.m. in Vets Auditorium. It will feature the 300-voice combined Industrial Chorus and recipients of UA services.

Practicing for the East Side YMCA judo exhibition at United Appeal FanFair, Sunday, Sept. 22, at Veterans Memorial are left to right: Mark Eucker, 1646 Richmond Ave., and Joseph Sims, 427 Eldridge St.

Society Ends Camp Meet

The Ohio Society for Crippled Children and Adults (the Easter Seal Society) has concluded its camping session for physically and neurologically handicapped adults. This 1968 summer recreation program was held this year at Camp Pittinger near Tiffin.

Sixty-one adults attended the final week of the five week program. Two, two-week sessions for children and young adults were held earlier in the summer months.

Forty-five of the adult campers were in wheel chairs, and ranged in age from 20 to 62 years. Many had had no previous away-from-home experience or vacation.

Thirty college students devoted their summer months to the camp this year. Under the direction of Gary Corn, a sixth grade teacher in Cincinnati Schools, the students serve as counsellors, and friends to the campers.

State wide representation included 32 Ohio counties.

ORGANIZATIONAL NOTES

Board To Tour Adena Home

The Women's Board of the Kidney Foundation of Central Ohio will mark its second annual round-up with a tour Oct. 1 to Adena, the early 19th century home of Thomas Worthington, sixth governor of Ohio.

The home is under the administration of the Ohio Historical Society.

Chartered buses will leave Broad Street Presbyterian Church at 9:30 a.m. and will return by 3:30 p.m.

Co-chairmen of the round-up are Mrs. Richard Arnold, 850 Montrose Ave. and Mrs. James Gardner, 190 S. Cassingham Rd.

The colonial costumed hostesses who will welcome guests are Mrs. Harold Platt, Mrs. Jerry Haller, Mrs. Raymond Bethel, Mrs. Douglas Barno, Mrs. I. R. Amerine, Mrs. Lewis Bailey and Mrs. Duane Campbell.

'FAMILY RETREAT'

Members and friends of Worthington United Church will hold a "Family Retreat" at Pilgrim Hills camp the weekend of Sept. 21 to 22. Those participating will have an opportunity to enjoy fellowship, worship and recreation in an outdoor setting.

Non-members of the church are also invited to attend. Reservations are required and must be received by Sept. 14.

ENGINEER UNIT

Women's Auxiliary to the Franklin County Chapter of the Ohio Society of Professional Engineers will meet at noon Tuesday, Sept. 17, at Worthington Hills Country Club.

Hostesses will be Mrs. James Lee, Mrs. Olin Mintzer, Mrs. Ralston Russell, Jr. and Mrs. Walter Fleming.

Panel for the program includes Mrs. Donna Paul, director of volunteer services at Doctors Hospital; Mrs. Nancy Kuempel, volunteer coordinator at the Center of Science and Industry; and Mrs. JoAnne Kister, Franklin County Home Demonstration Agent.

DENTAL CONCLAVE

The Ohio Dental Association will hold its annual session Sept. 14 through 18 at the Sheraton-Columbus Motor Hotel to emphasize increasing the need for dental manpower to meet growing needs.

ODA President Dr. John R. Wilson, dean of the Ohio State University College of Dentistry, and Drs. James R. Hull and Robert P. Merrill, Jr., have invited several leading authorities to discuss the dental manpower issue.

Dr. James W. Bawden, dean of the University of North Carolina School of Dentistry, will speak on an overall plan for changing duties of dental assistants and dental hygienists to produce more dental care.

Dr. Vincent A. Tagliarino, associate professor, University of Louisville School of Dentistry, will discuss the results of the Louisville experiment in expanding duties of dental auxiliaries, and Reginald H. Sullens, secretary of the American Dental Association Council on Dental Education, will project the needs for dental care in the 1970's and suggest areas of change needed to meet these needs.

AERIE 297

A steak dinner will honor Columbus Aerie 297, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Class "A" Ritual and Drill Team Sunday, Sept. 15, at 3 p.m. at the Aerie Home, 991 N. High St.

The Columbus Class "A" competitors were proclaimed grand champions in ritual and drill team competition at the Eagles 70th Annual International Convention at Houston, Tex.

Dancing will be held from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. for Eagle members only, following the dinner and presentation of awards.

PILOT DOGS

The first meeting of the year for the Women's Board of Pilot Dogs Inc., will be held Monday, Sept. 16, at the home of Mrs. Raymond W. Bethel, 3177 Dale Ave.

Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p.m.

HEART ASSOCIATION

The Women's Board of the Franklin County Heart Association will begin its season with a meeting at the home of Mrs. Raymond W. Bethel, 3177 Dale Ave.

Date of the meeting is Thursday, Sept. 19, at 1:30 p.m.

POSTAL AUXILIARY

The Women's Auxiliary of the National Association of Postal Supervisors, Branch 33, will hold its September luncheon and meeting at David's Buffet, 137 Graceland Blvd., Graceland Shopping Center at 11:30 a.m. Sept. 18.

Hostesses for this luncheon will be Mrs. Ray Burchfield, Mrs. Guy Leatherwood, Kenneth Clark and Mrs. man LeCrone.

PROJECT HOPE

The Women's Division, Project HOPE Central Ohio, will hold a reception honoring Dr. and Mrs. William B. Walsh, founder and director of Project HOPE and the ambassador of Ceylon, Oliver Weerasinghe.

The reception will be held Sept. 21 from 2 to 4 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Jack Tetirick, 105 Indian Springs Dr.

Hawaiian cake

CREAMY HAWAIIAN CAKE
2 cups cake flour
1½ cup sugar
3 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
⅓ cup soft shortening
⅔ cup milk
½ tsp. almond extract
½ tsp. vanilla
⅓ cup milk
2 egg yolks—unbeaten
1 whole egg—unbeaten

1. Generously grease and flour two 8-inch round cake pans.
2. Sift together cake flour, sugar, baking powder, and salt.
3. Add soft shortening, ⅔ cup milk, almond extract, and vanilla; beat two minutes.
4. Add remaining ⅓ cup milk, egg yolk and whole egg.
5. Pour into prepared pans; bake in GAS oven at 350°F. for 30 to 35 minutes; cool.
6. Fill cool layers with Pineapple Filling (see recipe below); spread top layer of cake with about ½ cup Pineapple Filling, leaving 1½ inch border.
7. Frost cake with sweetened whipped cream or whipped dessert topping.

PINEAPPLE FILLING
½ cup sugar
3 Tbsp. cornstarch
½ tsp. salt
¾ cup pineapple juice
1 cup crushed pineapple, well drained
1 Tbsp. butter
1 tsp. almond extract

1. In saucepan, combine sugar, cornstarch, and salt; gradually stir in pineapple juice and crushed pineapple.
2. Bring to boil, stirring constantly; boil one minute; turn off flame; stir in butter and almond extract; cool thoroughly.

WOSU-TV Sets Schedules For Autumn Programming

Channel 34, WOSU-TV, has opened the fall season with two vital series: CBS's "You Are There," the dramatic film series recreating historic events with host Walter Cronkite showing on Mondays at 8:30 p.m. . . . "Profiles In Courage," NBC's Peabody Award-winning series based on the Pulitzer prize-winning book written by John F. Kennedy, is being shown on Tuesdays at 7 p.m.

"You Are There" leads the [illegible] back into history to [illegible]ence famous events of [illegible]st as if they were taking place at the moment. "Profiles In Courage" focuses on individuals who forged the American Spirit and the times they lived in.

In-school TV (the COETV and ITV service) begins Monday, Sept. 16, at 9:10 a.m. and continues through Friday. The public affairs programs, "NET Journal" and "NET Almanac," are seen Mondays at 9 p.m. and Wednesdays, 9 p.m. for "Almanac." The French Chef has moved to Tuesdays, 8:30 p.m., and NET Festival to Thursdays, 7 p.m.

NET Festival showcases "Eroica" as Conductor Bernard Keeffe analyzes the first movement of Beethoven's Symphony and leads the London Philharmonic in a performance of the first movement.

The Converaation 1968 program will feature Bill Cosby, three-time Emmy award-winner Negro comedian, discussing his television and club career with program host James Day, this evening at 10:30.

Programming for Channel 34 will come from 17 sources with local program commitments involving more than 120 hours of broadcasting.

Future series will include "Eugene Ormandy," "Milestones of the Century," "Richard Boone Theater," "Biography," "The Great War," "War of the Roses," "The Christmas Carol," "The Messiah," "Houle Consort: Renaissance and Baroque Christmas Music" and "20th Century."

Sandy V Booked Into Desert Inn

The Sandy V will play the Desert Inn for a two week engagement beginning Sept. 16.

Accenting this diversified entertainment act is a wide range of instruments ranging from guitar, saxophone and flute to bass and drums, accented by all five members doing individual and strong five-part vocals.

They have appeared at the Golden Rooster in Odessa, Tex., Parkway House in St. Louis and Annarino's in Dayton to name a few and are best known for the range of music presented.

The Brazilian sound, bossa nova and show tunes are spiced with a jazz twist, they play for all ages . . . providing dance music for all tastes and abilities.

At 9:30 p.m., they will strike up their act for your enjoyment . . . four handsome males and a perky lass named Sandy East. There will be a cover charge of $1.

Name's A Barrier But Jr. Makes It

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Entertainment Editor

Six years ago a mere kid set out to make his way along the highway of life. His cumbersome burden was his name. His calling cards to success were and are his talent, strong determination and beliefs. His magic, much like, but distinctive from his father's, slowly melted the cold world of skeptics.

This now 24-year-old entertainer is recognized and admired for his talents. Frank Sinatra, Jr. has been at Marty's La Mancha since Sept. 5 with tonight and Friday winding up his night-club debut in Columbus.

This interview was conducted between shows this past Friday in an informal and relaxed atmosphere above Marty's La Mancha as a football game came over color television, performers came in and out, and downstairs the La Mancha patrons sat waiting for the second show.

His humor and way of life are best described by his answers to questions. There is a subtleness about Frank which could be mistaken for cockiness. This he is not. Frank is sincere, completely in tune and in control of life and career.

"Sure I read, newspapers, periodicals, books, magazines and writing on the wall in the men's room. You name it, I read it. It's kind of funny, you get to a point where reading is a part of your life."

I asked him how old he is and he replied with a twinkle in his eye, "This is so sudden . . . I'm 24." He isn't perticular about food. "I use food in my life only because the car won't run without gas. I only eat once a day. I'm not really a gourmet."

Then a series of questions such as sports, interests, work followed. Frank summed up, this way, "If the car has internal problems, it's out of tune. Everything must be in tune and balance. I like sports, a little; I drink, a little; I have hobbies, a little; I work in a correct volume, as well. I study, read and eat as best in tune as I can. By doing this it is amazing how it really affects the overall picture, but you have to work at it full time."

What is the format of the show? "We fool around quite a bit. We have an informal and relaxed kind of show. I have a fine band of musicians. I get up, say and do what I want to do. Very little is planned ahead of time, other than order of songs. For example, I never try to say the same things in each show. I just say what comes to mind."

Would he like a different career? "This job has its occupational hazards like every one does. The grass always looks greener on the other side. This is the only thing I know how to do and I love it."

His future looks as secure as his beliefs.

The remarkable fact remains . . . Frank Sinatra, Jr., has knocked down the cold world, on his record alone. At 24, he has had a six year career of road tours, the successful replacement show for Dean Martin and a growing list of fans, including the college crowd.

All this at 24? All this sturdiness and accomplishment at 24? He said it himself . . . "You know, some day, I'm going to write a book and dedicate it to those great talented performers who didn't make it, but came back stage and offered me good advice. They are the ones who helped me, so they could be a part of success, if it was to happen."

That's the way he is and at 24 he's got a lifetime of desires to fulfill and Frank Sinatra, Jr. will bring them about . . . stamina, wit, talent and sincerity make the difference.

IN MEMORIAM

Zada Van Doorn

Zada Van Doorn took her last curtain call this past Friday but nobody was laughing or applauding.

The respected comedienne who for years has delivered lines in a rough voice and perfect timing at Stadium Theater, Playhouse On The Green, Players Club, Gallery Players and WBNS-TV's Flippo Show has passed on.

During her career she made a lot of people laugh. She amassed more friends and admirers than any other local performer. One didn't need to know her to know of her for her accomplishments were known by all.

Zada was a legend and first lady of theater in Columbus and her warmth, love of theater and distinctive humor shall remain behind as a legend.

It isn't very many performers that attain respect from every fellow performer and at the same time achieve a rapport with every single member of any given audience. That was Zada.

Zada took her final curtain call, but the love within everyone who laughed with her and respected her and knew her and loved her weep silently for she requested no fan fare.

Around Town

Conducted By

ROLAND SUNKER

The orchestra plays a couple of bars, and with no fanfare, no introduction, a man walks on stage at Marty's La Mancha and begins to perform. The man Frank Sintra Jr. does perform. He has put together a strong show that is polished and well done.

However, if you go with the idea that you are going to forget who Frank Sinatra Jr. is, and judge him only on his own merits and ability, you will find that this is next to impossible. For those of you who can remember Frank senior of about 25 years ago you will notice a great resemblance in Frank junior today. His looks, speech and mannerisms are those of his dad when he was junior's age.

Also, on stage Frank does not let you forget that he is a Sinatra. He kids around quite a lot about his dad and his sister Nancy. Without a doubt, the high point of his show is when he does a medley of his father's famous songs that include "That's Life," "This Love of Mine," "Come Fly With Me," as well as one of Nancy's, "Sugar Town."

NEIL HOUSE REMODELING

The Neil House, long a landmark in downtown Columbus, was setting on a shaky foundation for quite a long time.

Last April 1, this foundation was firmed up when the Hotel Investment Corp. purchased the hotel and began a top to bottom remodeling program. Already 570 rooms have been completely refurbished with new carpeting, drapes, bedding and furniture.

A new remodeling program has begun, equalling over another million dollars in improvements, which, according to general manager, Charles Duffy, "will make this the finest convention hotel in the state of Ohio."

Included in the latest program is the addition of air conditioning in all of the public rooms, remodeling the Governor's Ballroom, the southeast wing of the ballroom floor, the mezzanine floor and the hotel's front office. Duffy said they are designing an intimate cocktail lounge to be located over the front office area as well as re-designing the Town and Country Room and the cocktail lounge which will remain on the main lobby floor.

Other improvements include the installation of eight new automatic passenger elevators and direct dial phones in every room.

When Duffy was asked if there were plans for a supper club type of operation in the Town and Country Room, he gave a very emphatic negative answer. There will be no floor shows booked in the room. Perhaps the hotel will try a small combo for dancing. Duffy believes that supper clubs will not be supported in the down town area until more people live in the area. This will not happen until apartment houses are built in downtown Columbus.

The Neil House changed its name from the Neil House Hotel to the Neil House Motor Hotel because of the fact it offers free parking to overnight guests at both the Capitol Garage and the State House Garage. With this convenience and the completion of all the remodeling programs, the Neil House Motor Hotel is sure to become again the center of activity in downtown Columbus.

* * *

Your host, Jack Gunnery, at the Knave's Cave in the Imperial House-Arlington has done it again. He has booked one of the most fantastic lounge duos to appear Around Town in a long, long time. Rusk and McGowan is the name Jim McGowan on piano and John Rusk on drums. But that's not all. They both sing well and they are masters at the belly laugh type of comedy.

Their show really moves with snappy comedy and crazy antics. They have good rapport with their audience, and if you are a member, you can be sure you will be included some way in their routine.

Musically, both Rusk and McGowan are exceptionally good vocalists. Without the comedy, they still would be an entertaining duo. But, the Rusk and McGowan comedy is something else. They are not just funny, they are plain nuts! Most of their comedy material is original, and is delivered in a polished manner.

These two boys really work. They both are quick witted and very versatile. Combined together, Rusk and McGowan are a dynamic, powerful duo. They are not recommended by the American Medical Association, because they are sure to give you a tummy ache due to their hilarious comedy.

Ferrer Warm, Pleasing In Maramor Act

This week is a must at the Maramor because you will see one of the finest night club acts ever written and performed. Jose Ferrer possesses the talent, poise, warmth and personality to guarantee an enjoyable evening.

Handling himself on stage as can be expected of an old pro, Ferrer capitalizes on well written material and fine arrangements. His voice is rich and warm. It's a quality that one does not meet every day in the night club or supper club field.

One of the pinnacles of his act are the excerpts from the Broadway show, "Man of La Mancha." This bit of material was one of the most pleasing to the packed house on opening night.

Even though the night club field is a rather new adventure for Ferrer, he draws on his many years as an actor and all 'round performer to present an interesting evening of entertainment. It's a tight show that moves along rapidly and smoothly. Because of Jose Ferrer's warmth, sincerity and artist ability, his show, which ran over an hour, passed by much too quickly for the opening night crowd.

LOMBARDO IN CONCERT

Guy Lombardo, his orchestra and all-star show will be presented at 8:30 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 19, at Veterans Memorial under the auspices of Cowall Promotions, Inc. Tickets are on sale at Central Ticket Office, Sears Stores, Nejac's, Harley-Davidson Sport Store and Cochran Drugs.
